This was in the early part of 1777, one of the gloomiest periods of the struggle; perhaps just the time for a brave man to tender his services in his country's behalf. He applied to Gen. Washington, then on the Hudson, and he sent him immediately to General Schuyler, who was then in command of the Northern Army. He was sent by Gen. Schuyler to ascertain the strength of the Army of Burgoyne, who was then coming up from Montreal.

Undaunted by the perils of his situation, he went from Fort Stanwix (now Rome) through the wilderness, a distance of nearly three hundred miles, and found Burgoyne's army near St. John's, between the foot of Lake Champlain and Montreal. He managed to ascertain the exact number of officers, men and arms in every department of that army.

He also ascertained that St. Ledger was to diverge from the main army and go by the shore of Lake Ontario.

Having reported these facts to Gen Schuyler, he was again despatched to ascertain the strength of St. Leger's army. Again he set forth alone upon his perilous undertaking. In doing this he seems to have been following his own inclination, for then there could be no one responsible for his acts except himself From what can be learned it appears that the place he choose in order to count the army of St. Leger was the very same as where his body now lies. This is near the mouth of Salmon creek, in the town of Mexico, Oswego county, N. Y., near the shore of Lake Ontario. It is an island which becomes a peninsula in low water, and is approachable only from the land side. It is about one acre in area, is highest in the center, and is about fifteen or twenty rods above the mouth of the creek. It is surrounded by a thick underwood, and is covered by bushes and trees.

St. Leger at this place made a halt, with a view of leaving the lake shore and going directly through the forest to Oneida lake. The Indians in his army refused to follow him, so that he and the old Tory, Johnson, were obliged to continue their march on the lake shore via Oswego.

This contention with the Indians caused a delay of which Town took advantage as he lay concealed upon the island, where he counted them, thereby ascertaining the exact number of men and armament of which St. Leger's army was composed. Nature could not have formed a more propitious spot for a spy to secrete himself and yet have a complete view of the enemy as they crossed the mouth of the creek.

From his place of concealment he heard the plans of the British officers and determination to attack Fort Stanwix and waited until he saw the "redcoats" start on their way, when he took a short cut, reached the fort in time and had the commander prepared to receive the enemy.

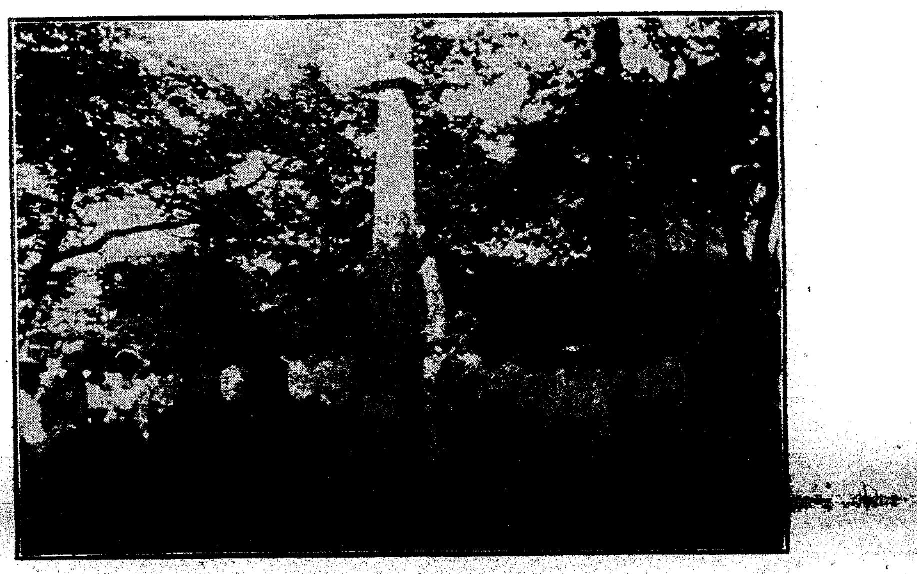
He was a firm patriot and true to his country and its cause—ever ready and willing, while a soldier, to serve in any capacity in which he could do the most good to the cause in which he was engaged.

A man of but few words, he sought not office nor fame, but was ready to act in any capacity when he himself only could be responsible, let it be a scout, a spy or forlorn hope.

After the successful termination of the war, he, for some reason, chose to spend the remainder of his days in this new country where he had been when it was a wilderness. It was his last request to be buried on this island.

And here, upon this lonely wave-washed shore, we leave the remains of Silas Town, an old Revolutionary soldier, esteemed and honored by all who knew him; faithful in the discharge of every duty and true to the interests of his country in whose service he so often risked his life.

SILAS TOWN DAVIS.



THE SILAS TOWN MONUMENT.

The following interesting address was delivered by Mrs. Viola Davis Vincent of this city, Regent of Fulton Chapter, D. A. R., at a gathering of the Daughters of the American Revolution of Oswego County, at Mexico Point, the occasion being a visit to Spy Island, Wednesday, June 15, 1904. This was in compliance with an invitation extended by Ontario Chapter, embracing the following kindred associations: Fort Oswego of Oswego City, Kayendatsyona of Fulton and Deborah Champion of Adams. There were also a number of visiting friends, the more prominent being Vice State Regent Mrs. Roberts of Utica and Mrs. Prince, State Regent of New Mexico.

The Davis cottage was beautifully decorated with flags and bunting. It was opened by Mr. and Mrs. George Davis to the visitors, and they were most hospitably entertained.

MRS. VINCENT'S ADDRESS.

Madam State Vice Regent, Regents of Chapters, Daughters of the American Revolution, ladies and gentlemen:

On July 4, 1871, thirty-three years ago this last July, I witnessed the erection and dedication of the Silas Town monument. The address was given by the Rev. S. M. Greeley of Oswego. It was not a large gathering, although most parts of the county were represented by patriotic people, who listened with attention.

The man who was responsible for the erection of this monument was Silas Town Davis, familiarly known to me as Uncle Silas, who inherited the military spirit from his patriotic ancestors, his grandfather having served in the French and Indian wars; he also served in the American Revolution, while his father went to the front in the war of 1812. The eminent scout whose memory is here enshrined in this monument of stone, served his country well in the dark days of the Revolution. After the Revolution, when peace finally came to the land, Silas Town found a home under the hospitable roof with my grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Phinee Davis. Their home was then on the same farm, not far from the homestead where my mother, Mrs. Phines Davis, resides. Nearly a century ago, April 4, 1805, a little boy was born to the Davis family in this old home and the patriotic affection of the parents for the Revolutionary scout induced them to give to the child the honored name of Silas Town Davis. The veneration for the man for whom he was named grew with his growth, and love of country became dominant in his mind. The last days of the old scout's life were passed with Walter Everts, who occupied a log house about midway between the Davis home and this Spy Island.

There never was a house on this island, but here evidently centered memories of the old veteran, because upon this spot he lay hidden, and in peril of his life, when watching and counting the British troops and Indians temporarily encamped near by. Here also Town had many times expressed a wish that his body should be buried.

Years went by and the place was unmarked until Silas Davis, loyal to the memory of the man whose name he bore, gave time, toil and money, to place this shaft as a lasting tribute to the scout and that love of [illegible]

I have thought best, in a gathering like this, to speak not only of the man to whose memory this shaft is raised, but also the man who placed it here. For Silas Davis, in so doing, exemplified the principles upon which the Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution are founded. Let his name not be forgotten, for here before us is his expression of love for the Revolutionary soldier.

Let us call him our pioneer, and looking upon this work which he did for the veteran, behold a symbol of the very work that we Daughters are doing, and must continue to do, to show our gratitude to those whose heroism and sacrifice made us a nation.

DIED.

Andrus G. Morse, an aged and well known resident of Volney Center, died at his home in that place on Wednesday morning. Funeral arrangementr not yet perfected.

Mrs. Anna Curtiss Bowen, aged 83, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frederick H. Shepard, in Milwaukee, Wis., on Tuesday of last week, after a long illness. The deceased was born in Granby and was educated in Falley Seminary.

Jesse Roberts, aged 85, died suddenly on Saturday at his home in Granby. Coroner Cusack was summoned and found death to have been caused by heart disease. The funeral was held from the Granby Centre church on Monday and interment was made at Sayles Corners. The deceased was well known in this city and was highly respected.

The death of Byron J. Slauson occurred on Thursday at his home in Granby, as the result of a fall from a scaffolding in his barn about three weeks ago. Paralysis was caused by the injuries received. The deceased was a long time resident of this vicinity and was respected by all knew him. He was 54 years of age. The funeral which was largely attended, was held from his late home on Saturday morning and the body was interred in Mt. Adnah.

MANDAMUS PROCEEDINGS ABOUT TO BE INSTITUTED.

The Board of Public Works will immediately begin mandamus proceedings against the members of the Common Council to compel them to raise sufficient money to pay for the Third and Fourth street improvements.

Annual Meeting.

The adjourned annual meeting of the Stockholders of the Battle Island Paper Company of Fulton, N. Y., for the election of Directors, and for the transaction of such other business as may come before the meeting, will be held at the office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, Fulton, N. Y., on Tuesday, September 20th, 1904. at 2 o'clock p. m.

G. C. WEBB, Secretary.

Fulton, N. Y., August 29, 1904.

MARRIED.

Last Wednesday evening, at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. William Wetmore, New Haven, N. Y., occurred the marriage of their only daughter, Blanche Ceres, to Harry James Pepper of Fulton, N. Y. Miss Flora E. Couvne of New Jersey acted as bridesmaid and Mr. J. P. Wetmore of Morrisville, N. Y., a brother of the bride, as best man.

The bridal party entered the parlor and took their places under an arch of evergreens, to the accompaniment of Lohengren's wedding march, superbly executed by Mrs Warren Wetmore. The room was artistically decorated. The Rev. F. A. Miller of New Haven performed the ceremony.

The bride was prettily attired in white mousseline de soie over white taffeta and carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid was becomingly gowned in pale blue organdie and carried red roses. After the ceremony, congratulations were extended, followed by showers of rice. After which the guests partook of a bountiful repast. The presents were numerous, costly, and useful. Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties were present. The bride is a very popular young lady and the groom is a prosperous young business man of Fulton. Their many friends extend best wishes and congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Pepper left for Rochester and other points. They will reside in Fulton after Sept. 1st.

This Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the home of the brides mother, Mrs. Lena A. Draper, on Seventh street, will occur the marriage of Miss Helen May Draper and Mr. Lurell Frank Eastman. both well known and very popular young people of this city. The Rev. John Richards, pastor of the First M. E. Church, of which the bride and groom are members, will speak the sacred words which will link the two lives. There will be about forty guests, nearly all relatives, present. The parlors have been prettily decorated in green and white; hydrangea blooms, ferns and palms being used with artistic effect. The dining room is very attractive with its profusion of sweet peas and ferns. The guests will be met at the door by little Miss Doris Richards and Master Walter Lawrence of Ossinning, and directed where to go. The bride and groom will informally receive their guests prior to the ceremony [illegible] will preside at the piano and will furnish music during the evening. The bride's gown is most beautifully made of ivory crepe de chine, over taffeta of the same shade and it is elaborately trimmed with hand embroidered chiffon and pearl trimming. She will wear orange blossoms sent by a friend in California and also a diamond and pearl brooch, which was a gift. After the ceremony, congratulations will be offered the young couple and a collation will be served. In the refreshments the pink and green color scheme will be carried out. Many handsome gifts have been received by Miss Draper, among which are silver, cut glass, china, linen, pictures, &c. One gift of especial interest is a tablecloth and napkins of linen in perfect condition, which are over sixty years old.

The bride and groom will leave on the evening train for Buffalo and they will proceed to St. Louis by the lakes. After visiting the exposition they will go to Los Angeles, Cal., where they will remain until January. After February 1, they will be at home to their friends in Syracuse, where they will make their future home. The out of town guests who will attend the wedding are Mr and Mrs. John Forbes and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Robinson of Weedsport; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wetherby of Auburn; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Draper of Syracuse; Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Draper of Utica; Mrs. Ward Staley of Chittenango and Mrs. Henry Goodjon and Walter Lawrence of Ossinning.

Miss Draper last Spring graduated from the training school for nurses connected with the Women's and Children's Hospital, Syracuse, and she has served as head nurse for a portion of the time since. She has met with excellent success in her work. Mr Eastman is travelling salesman for the Crossett Shoe Company, Boston, and his rapid promotion by that firm proves that his success in business is assured. The Times joins with the many other friends of the contracting parties in extending congratulations.

On Sunday, Aug. 28, by the Rev. John N. Fulford, Mr. Amos H. Collins of Gilberts Mills and Miss Nadie Howard of Mt. Pleasant were united in marriage.

Democratic Club Organized.

A Third Ward Democratic club was organized in John Mullin's saloon in Broadway on Wednesday evening with a charter membership of 23. The officers selected are President, Eugene Austin; first vice-president, Daniel Wescott; second vice-president, Jefferson Walton; secretary, Fred Taylor; treasurer, John Mullin. The trustees elected were Delbert E. Guile, Charles Flet and Michael O'Brien.

Prof. H. B. Lindsey, assisted by Nellie Lindsey, the world's greatest Balloonists and Parachute Jumpers, will make a balloon ascension and parachute drop every afternoon at the Oswego County Fair, Sept. 13, 14, 15, and 16.

WAREHOUSE BURNED.

Sandy Creek Wood Manufacturing Company's Building Destroyed—Loss $10,000.

The storehouse and factory of the Sandy Creek Wood Manufacturing Company at Lacona, of which William D. Sanford, of New York is the controlling stockholder, was struck by lightning last Friday and burned to the ground.

The factory was a frame building about eighty by forty feet. It was not in operation, and in it were stored a large quantity of wood and wood pulp plates and some machinery, all of which were destroyed. The loss was estimated at about $10,000; party covered by insurance.

To accommodate those who are partial to the use of atomizers in applying liquids into the nasal passages for catarrh troubles, the proprietors prepare Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Price including spraying tube, is 75 cents; druggists or by mail. The liquid embodies the medicinal properties of the solid preparation. Cream Balm is quickly absorbed by the membrane and does not dry up the secretions but changes them into a natural and healthy character. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York.

NOTABLE GATHERING AT THE STATE FAIR.

Cattle Show at the Big Fair to be Exceptionally Large—Prizes Aggregating Over Eight Thousand Dollars Offered—Special Train to Convey Prize Winners to St. Louis.

The finest herds of cattle in the country will be on exhibition at the State Fair, to be held at Syracuse, September 5-10, and the problem that now confronts the management is the matter of accommodation for the animals already entered. Commissioner Milo H. Olin has been devoting his personal attention to this feature, so important to the success of an agricultural fair. He has secured the best herds in the country by arranging for a special train, which will leave the Fair Grounds to convey many of the prize winners to Indianapolis and thence to St. Louis.

One of the difficult problems in Fair management is the selection of suitable judges. The commission has decided to appoint to these positions men selected by the various breeders' associations, which, it is confidently believed, will assure satisfactory awards.

Prizes aggregating over $8,000 will be paid upon cattle alone, which will attract the best animals ever entering the prize ring.

In addition to the prizes paid by the management on short horns, the American Shorthorn Breeders' Association will pay special premiums in the various classes.

Barker's Residence Burned.

On Thursday afternoon, H. A. Barker's residence, which is located near the old Battle Island cheese factory, caught fire from a defective chimney, and within two hours was burned to the ground. The fire was first noticed by Mrs Barker, who had been baking bread in the kitchen, and stepped outdoors to get a breath of fresh air, when her eyes caught sight of flames shooting from the roof just above the attic. A good stiff breeze was blowing from the south, which fanned the flames, and they spread rapidly, enveloping the whole house.

Mr. Barker and his men were working at a distance from the house, and by the time they arrived it was useless for them to try to save the house, so they turned their attention to saving as many of the household goods as possible. Most of the furniture in the parlor was taken out, but that was all. Everything else upstairs and down was lost. A bucket brigade was formed, which kept the adjoining barns from being burned.

The house was valued at $2,000. It was a two-story structure, 80 feet long by 60 feet wide, with about twelve rooms. The house and contents carried $1,000 insurance.

BARGE CANAL.

Visit of the State Advisory Board to Fulton.

The State Advisory board of the barge canal, consisting of Edward A. Bond, sr., E. L. Corthell, A. B. Fry, William A. Breckenridge and F. W. Symons, accompanied by H. C. Allen of Syracuse, arrived in Fulton on Thurday evening, and on Friday morning the party, with Resident Engineer William H. Cushman and Assistant Engineer Byron G Failing, inspected one or two places along the canal south of Fulton with the end in view of locating a suitable site for one of the three locks to be built.

After the inspection the party was met at the Hunter dock by A. S. Page of Oswego and taken in his launch to Oswego, where they were the guests of the Board of Trade. On the way down the canal they examined the proposed sites for the other two locks. They also investigated the sites proposed for the two dams that are to be built.

I had Stone in the Bladder,

And my kidneys were affected. None of the means taken for relief produced any lasting benefit until I began the use of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y. Grand Water Carnival Alexandria Bay.

On September 1st 2nd and 3rd, will be held a grand three day water carnival consisting of aquatic sports of all kinds. A large sum has been contributed for prizes in the different events.

The first day's program will include steam yacht races for second class boats under 80 feet, row boat races, gasoline launch races, swimming races, tug of war in skiffs and band contests.

On the second day there will be sailing yacht races, gasoline launch races, greased pole contest, canoe races, slack wire exhibitions, tugs of war in skiffs, in addition to which elaborate program, James A. Ten Eyck, coach of the Syracuse University crews, will row a half mile in single scull against the world's record for that distance.

On the third day, in addition to the finals of the first and second days' events, there will be single scull races for the championship of Massachusetts and New York State, between James A. Ten Eyck, present champion of Massachusetts, B. J. Henley, champion of New York State, Fred Warner of Oneida Lake and W. J. Henley of Syracuse, distance two miles, finishing in front of Thousand Island House.

Other events on the last day of the carnival include Indian war canoe race and game of water polo. A balloon ascension and parachute drop will be made every evening at 6 o'clock by Professor Frisbie, and the national salute will be fired every day at 12 o'clock.

In order to give Northern New Yorkers an opportunity to attend this carnival, the New York Central will sell tickets on each day, September 1st, 2nd, and 3rd, to Alexandria Bay and return, tickets good returning to and including September 5th. Rate from Fulton will be $3.80.

THE OSWEGO TIMES.

Local Council of American Federation of Labor Removes Paper From Unfair List.

The Local Council of American Federation of Labor, at a meeting held in Oswego last Friday evening, passed a resolution removing the Oswego Publishing Company, publishers of the Times, from the unfair list. While the meeting was but lightly attended, there being less than twenty delegates present, it was one of the stormiest sessions that the local Council has ever held. The question was fought over for more than two hours, and it was eleven o'clock when the final vote was taken. Without the vote of the Chairman, Nicholas White, the vote was found to be a tie. Mr. White cast the deciding vote which removed the paper from the unfair list.

THIS is the day of the natural waisted woman. The W. B. Erect Form has changed the American figure. It has supplanted discomfort with ease—it has banished the impossible and exaggerated figure produced by the old corset idea. It removes the strain of lacing from the sensitive parts of the body and throws all pressure upon the hips and the strong back muscles, supporting the stomach within the corset and not forcing it below the garment. The Erect Form is made in more models than ever before. There are forty distinct styles of this popular make, each meant for a distinct type of woman. Dealers in all sized towns and cities the land over, sell the Erect Form. Prices range upward from $1.

PHILIPPINES AT WORLD'S FAIR

Complete Exhibition of Island People and Industries Covers Forty-seven Acres and Is Independent of Larger Show.

Not even in the heart of Manila city could there be found forty-seven acres of Philippine territory as interesting as that amount of space covered by the islands' display at the World's Fair. Here is an exposition within an exposition, a little wheel that revolves independently of the larger one encompassing it.

Scores of buildings are filled with exhibits, native life is depicted by as many different villages as there are tribes on the islands, military drills are given by Philippine troops, and concerts are rendered by native bands. For its amusement features the Philippine exposition has the humorous Igorrote, who dines on dog meat, and visitors are entertained by Visayan actors and actresses. Nothing is lacking to make the show complete.

The Administration building is a replica of the government offices in Manila, while the Art and Education building reproduces in miniature the cathedral within the walled city, even the mellowed tints of age being faithfully rendered. A section of the ancient but still serviceable town wall has been reconstructed to serve the double purpose of a gateway to the show and a museum of arms and war relics. The other main edifices are types of Filipino homes, being built of undressed timber, bamboo and rattan, with thatched roofs and broad verandas.

Then there are the tribal villages nestling under the trees, some of the houses perched high up among the boughs, others on piles above the waters of the Arrowhead lake, all of them actual dwellings fashioned of native materials by native workmanship and illustrating the manners, customs and pursuits of their occupants. Here are women weaving a coarse cloth on a rude hand loom, others making baskets, others tending irrigated fields of rice. One group of men are in village council, trying an offender according to their tribal laws; others are slowly moving in a circular dance to the thump of tomtoms and the clang of brass gongs; others, again, are smelting iron by the aid of a primitive but most ingenious bellows, the constituent parts of which are a bamboo tube and an air-tight mop of feathers working therein like the piston of a syringe. And these are but a few of an almost endless variety of life pictures.

The ethnological problem is a somewhat complicated one; but, although there are no fewer than sixteen races represented among the village dwellers, the scouts and the constabulary, each race speaking its own dialect and following its own customs, all may be roughly classified into four groups—the true aboriginals or non-Malays, the pagan Malays, the Christian Malays and the Mohammedan Malays.

The first are the dwarf Negritos, with dark skins and woolly heads, wearers of scanty raiment, proficient in the use of the bow and poisoned arrow, a race of nomads and forest dwellers, pagans pure and simple. They live in their own stockaded village.

Next to them are the Igorrotes, whose origin is traced back to the first wave of Malay invasion. Here, again, we have scanty clothing, amounting almost to nudity, but copper colored skins, long wavy tresses, pleasant featured faces and fine physiques, even though the stature be small. Among these pagan Malays are the head hunters and the dog eaters. They are savages, yet have their code of laws and a knowledge of several primitive industries.

The Christian Malays, produced by the second wave of invasion, are represented by the Visayans, a tall and handsome race, dressing well, living in pretty homes, skilled in weaving, dyeing, basket making, hat making, wood carving and other handicrafts, musicians of no mean merit, the one group of natives who came early and thoroughly under the influence of the early Spanish settlers.

Very different are the Moros, who swept into the islands from the Malay peninsula last of all, bringing with them their Mohammedan religion, also a knowledge of gunpowder acquired with the Koran from the Arabs—fanatics like their teachers, pirates, bloodthirsty, treacherous and vindictive fellows, ever at war among themselves and with the whole outside world. Despite their ferocity they are a clever race, dress handsomely, have their sultans and their slaves and are expert seamen, while long continued pillage on the high seas has surrounded them with many of the luxuries and conveniences of western civilization.

The buildings of Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries show all the varied natural products, also the extremely primitive processes as yet in vogue, while in the Women's building we are introduced to a number of native manufactures, including the beautiful fabrics from the jusi, banana and pineapple fibers. This information is collated in the Building of Commerce, where a unique and most effective method of exhibiting is followed. In one hall are samples of all the articles produced for export, among which manila fiber, of course, holds the chief place of prominence, while in a second hall are all the manufactures from every country that are imported and find a ready market among the populace. Thus the business man gets a dual lesson. He sees what he can profitably take from the islands, and also what he may profitably send to them. When it is added that a large number of representative Filipinos have been brought over to visit the Exposition and study American business methods and manufactures, it will be recognized that great benefit both to the islands and to the world at large must result from this work of mutual enlightenment.

CONCERTS BY MASSED BANDS

Prizes Aggregating $30,000 to Be Distributed at the World's Fair.

Never were musical events in America planned upon such an elaborate scale as those of the World's Fair. A series of concerts will be given by competing bands in contest for prizes offered by the World's Fair. These contests will take place in Festival Hall, Sept. 12 to 17.

Nine cash prizes, aggregating $30,000, are offered for the successful bands. The prizes are divided so as to give to the organization scoring the highest number of points $3,250; $2,500 will be given to the band scoring the second highest number of points and $1,500 to the one getting the third highest number.

The above division is made for bands in Class A, which consist of twenty members. In the B class $10,000 will be given in prizes—first, $4,500; second, $3,500; third, $2,000.

Class C, which includes bands of thirty-five members, will enjoy the division of $12,750. For the organization scoring the highest number of points a prize of $6,000 has been named. The second prize is $4,000 and the third $2,-700.

Bands employed by the Exposition are not permitted to contest. All players must be bona fide members, and each musician must have been enrolled at least three months prior to the date of the contest. Each band must send to the bureau the name of its members and a nominal entrance fee.

Festival Hall concerts by massed bands will be given at 7:30 each day during the contest, in which all contesting bands will take part under the direction of a distinguished conductor. All bands entering must agree to play one concert in addition to the competing concert and massed concerts.

A separate programme has been prepared by the Bureau of Music for each class, and each band will play through the full programme of its class. The numbers in all three programmes are by eminent composers and are chosen with the view of bringing out the qualities of the bands performing them. The list of composers includes Wagner, Gounod, Offenbach, Verdi, Saint-Saens, Bizet, Strauss and Leoncavallo.

WEATHER AT WORLD'S FAIR.

Cool Nights and Delightful Indian Summer to Be Expected at St. Louis.

Usually the warmest month of the year, July proved to be one of the most pleasant of the World's Fair season, the average temperature being 67 degrees, a record lower than that made by either Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Cincinnati or Chicago. The weather bureau records show that the temperatures in St. Louis during July were just between the extremes recorded at New Orleans and St. Paul, cities located at great variance.

August in St. Louis is a month of cool nights, and September and October are the most delightful months of the year. It is that period known as Indian summer, when the foliage and birds linger to challenge the coming winter. Nowhere on the American continent is there a spot more delightful than the World's Fair city, a garden of blooming flowers and spraying fountains.

St. Louis, like all cities, experienced several hot days during July, but her highest temperature recorded was 93 degrees against 94 degrees registered by the thermometer at Chicago. On the same day the mercury rose to 96 degrees in Philadelphia, and scores of heat prostrations were reported from New York and Boston.

The relative humidity shows St. Louis to be about normal. Assuming absolutely no moisture in the atmosphere to be zero and absolute wetness to be 100, the relative humidities for July, taken from the records of more than twenty years, Boston shows 70.6, New York 72.2, Philadelphia 68.6, Cincinnati 64.6, Chicago 66.9 and St. Louis 66.3. The same degree of heat in two places, with different degrees of humidity, would cause it to seem the hotter at the point of greater density.

St. Louis may therefore rightly claim to be a summer resort this summer, positively one of the most comfortable and delightful places on the map.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS, 1904.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing amendment to article seven of the Constitution, relating to improvement of highways.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the seventh article of the Constitution be amended by adding thereto the following section: § 12. Improvement of Highways.—A debt or debts of the State may be authorized by law for the improvement of highways. Such highways shall be determined under general laws, which shall also provide for the equitable apportionment thereof among the counties. The aggregate of the debts authorized by this section shall not at any one time exceed the sum of fifty millions of dollars. The payment of the annual interest on such debt and the creation of a sinking fund of at least two per centum per annum to discharge the principal at maturity shall be provided by general laws whose force and effect shall not be diminished during the existence of any debt created thereunder. The legislature may by general laws require the county or town or both to pay to the sinking fund the proportionate part of the cost of any such highway within the boundaries of such county or town and the proportionate part of the interest thereon, but no county shall at any time for any highway be required to pay more than thirty-five hundredths of the cost of such highway, and no town more than fifteen hundredths. None of the provisions of the fourth section of this article shall apply to debts for the improvement of highways hereby authorized. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the Legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the Constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 1, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 2, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER TWO.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the constitution in relation to the time within which debts of the state must be paid and striking from said section certain limitations.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section four of article seven of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VII. § 4. Except the debts specified in sections two and three of this article, no debts shall be hereafter contracted by or in behalf of this state, unless such debt shall be authorized by a law for some single work or object, to be distinctly specified therein; and such law shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax to pay, and sufficient to pay, the interest on such debt as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal of such debt within fifty years from the time of the contracting thereof. No such law shall take effect until it shall, at a general election, have been submitted to the people, and have received a majority of all the votes cast for and against it at such election. On the final passage of such bill in either house of the legislature, the question shall be taken by ayes and noes, to be duly entered on the journals thereof, and shall be: "Shall this bill pass, and ought the same to receive the sanction of the people?" The legislature may at any time, after the approval of such law by the people, if no debt shall have been contracted in pursuance thereof, repeal the same; and may at any time, by law, forbid the contracting of any further debt or liability under such law; but the tax imposed by such act, in proportion to the debt and liability which may have been contracted, in pursuance of such law, shall remain in force and be irrepealable, and be annually collected, until the proceeds thereof shall have made the provision hereinbefore specified to pay and discharge the interest and principal of such debt and liability. The money arising from any loan or stock creating such debt or liability shall be applied to the work or object specified in the act authorizing such debt or liability, or for the payment of such debt or liability, and for no other purpose whatever. No such law shall be submitted to be voted on, within three months after its passage or at any general election when any other law, or any bill, shall be submitted to be voted for or against. The legislature may provide for the issue of bonds of the state to run for a period not exceeding fifty years in lieu of bonds heretofore authorized but not issued and shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax for the payment of the same as hereinbefore required. When any sinking fund created under this section shall equal in amount the debt for which it was created, no further direct tax shall be levied on account of said sinking fund and the legislature shall reduce the tax to an amount equal to the accruing interest on such debt. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 21, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 22, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER THREE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the constitution in relation to justices of the appellate division of the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section two of article six of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VI. § 2. The legislature shall divide the state into four judicial departments. The first department shall consist of the county of New York; the others shall be bounded by county lines, and be compact and equal in population as nearly as may be. Once every ten years the legislature may alter the judicial departments, but without increasing the number thereof. There shall be an appellate division of the supreme court, consisting of seven justices in the first department, and of five justices in each of the other departments. In each department four shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of three shall be necessary to a decision. No more than five justices shall sit in any case. From all the justices elected to the supreme court the governor shall designate those who shall constitute the appellate division in each department; and he shall designate the presiding justice thereof, who shall act as such during his term of office, and shall be a resident of the department. The other justices shall be designated for terms of five years or the unexpired portions of their respective terms of office, if less than five years. From time to time as the terms of such designations expire, or vacancies occur, he shall make new designations. A majority of the justices so designated to sit in the appellate division, in each department shall be residents of the department. He may also make temporary designations in case of the absence or inability to act of any justice in the appellate division, or in case the presiding justice of any appellate division shall certify to him that one or more additional justices are needed for the speedy disposition of the business before it. Whenever the appellate division in any department shall be unable to dispose of its business within a reasonable time, a majority of the presiding justices of the several departments at a meeting called by the presiding justice of the department in arrears may transfer any pending appeals from such department to any other department for hearing and determination. No justice of the appellate division shall, within the department to which he may be designated to perform the duties of an appellate justice, exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court, other than those of a justice out of court, and those pertaining to the appellate division, or to the hearing and decision of motions submitted by consent of counsel, but any such justice, when not actually engaged in performing the duties of such appellate justice in the department to which he is designated, may hold any term of the supreme court and exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court in any county or judicial district in any other department of the state. From and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, the appellate division shall have the jurisdiction now exercised by the supreme court at its general terms and by the general terms of the court of common pleas for the city and county of New York, the superior court of the city of New York, the superior court of Buffalo and the city of Brooklyn, and such additional jurisdiction as may be conferred by the legislature. It shall have power to appoint and remove a reporter. The justices of the appellate division in each department shall have power to fix the times and places for holding special terms therein, and to assign the justices in the departments to hold such terms; and to make rules therefor. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 29, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 6, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FOUR.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to trial commissioners.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that section six of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 6. Circuit courts and courts of oyer and terminer are abolished from and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five. All their jurisdiction shall thereupon be vested in the supreme court, and all actions and proceedings then pending in such courts shall be transferred to the supreme court for hearing and determination. Any justice of the supreme court, except as otherwise provided in this article, may hold court in any county. Whenever and as often as the causes upon the trial term calendar of any county of this state, having a population according to the latest state enumeration of over five hundred thousand, shall have so accumulated that an unpreferred cause cannot be reached for trial in due course within one year after it has been placed upon the calendar, the appellate division of the department in which such county is embraced may, by a certificate signed by a majority of its members, certify the fact to the court of appeals, whereupon said court may by order authorize the appointment in said county of trial commissioners, stating in said order the number of commissioners to be appointed, and their terms of office, not exceeding six years. Such order shall be made in duplicate and one copy thereof filed in the office of the secretary of state, and one in the office of the clerk of the county in which said appointments are authorized. The appellate division of the department embracing said county shall thereupon appoint the number of trial commissioners authorized by said order, who must possess the qualifications required for a justice of the supreme court. They shall possess and exercise in the county for which they are appointed all the powers of a justice of the supreme court respecting the trial and disposition of causes upon said trial term calendar and the settlement of cases on appeal, but shall possess none of the powers of such a justice out of court or at special term. They may be removed in the same manner as is provided in case of a justice of said supreme court. They shall each receive an annual salary of twelve thousand dollars to be paid by the county for which they are appointed, and may not practice law. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 23, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 6, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FIVE.

Concurrent resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the constitution.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section seven of article seven be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Forest preserve.—The lands of the state, now owned or hereafter acquired, constituting the forest preserve as now fixed by law, shall be forever kept as wild forest lands, except as hereinafter provided. They shall not be leased, sold or exchanged, or be taken by any corporation, public or private, nor shall the timber thereon be sold, removed or destroyed. The legislature may authorize the removal of dead timber on burned areas so far as necessary for reforestation, through officers and employees of the state, but not by contract. The legislature may also authorize the sale of lands outside of the limits of the Adirondack park and the Catskill park as such parks are now established by law. The proceeds of such sales shall be set apart in a separate fund and used only for the purchase of lands in such parks. A violation of this section may be restrained at the suit of the people or with the consent of the supreme court on notice to the attorney-general at the suit of any citizen of the state. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 4, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 9, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State, at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section one of article two of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SIX.

Concurrent resolution, proposing amendment to section one of article two of the constitution relating to qualification of voters.

Resolved (if the senate concur), that section one of article two of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article II. Section 1. Qualification of voters.—Every male citizen of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a citizen for ninety days, and an inhabitant of this state one year next preceding an election, and for the last four months a resident of the county or of a city comprising more than one county, and for the last thirty days a resident of the election district in which he may offer his vote, shall be entitled to vote at such election in the election district of which he shall at the time be a resident, and not elsewhere, for all officers that now are or hereafter may be elective by the people, and upon all questions which may be submitted to the vote of the people, provided that in time of war no elector in the actual military service of the state, or of the United States, in the army or navy thereof, shall be deprived of his vote by reason of his absence from such election district; and the legislature shall have power to provide the manner in which and the time and place at which such absent electors may vote, and for the return and canvass of their votes in the election districts in which they respectively reside.

State of New York: In Assembly, Mar. 23, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section one of article two, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to sections one and seven of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SEVEN.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to article six of the constitution in relation to providing additional justices of the supreme court and judges of the court of appeals.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section one of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 1. Supreme court; court of appeals; how constituted; judicial districts.—The supreme court is continued with general jurisdiction in law and equity, subject to such appellate jurisdiction of the court of appeals as now is or may be prescribed by law not inconsistent with this article. The existing judicial districts of the state are continued until changed as hereinafter provided. The supreme court shall consist of the justices now in office, and of the judges transferred thereto by the fifth section of this article, all of whom shall continue to be justices of the supreme court during their respective terms, and of twelve additional justices who shall reside in and be chosen by the electors of, the several existing judicial districts, three in the first district, three in the second, and one in each of the other districts; and of their successors. The successors of said justices shall be chosen by the electors of their respective judicial districts. The legislature may alter the judicial districts once after every enumeration under the constitution, of the inhabitants of the state, and thereupon reapportion the justices to be thereafter elected in the districts so altered. The legislature may at any time, when it deems that the public interests requires it, increase the number of justices of the supreme court or of judges of the court of appeals as it sees fit, provided that the total number of judges of the court of appeals shall not exceed eleven, and provided also that any bill increasing the number of justices or judges as aforesaid shall receive the assent of two-thirds of the members elected to each branch of the legislature. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section seven of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Court of appeals.—The court of appeals is continued. It shall consist of the chief judge and associate judges now in office, and of such additional judges as the legislature may from time to time provide in accordance with section one of this article and as may be elected according to law, who shall hold their offices until the expiration of their respective terms, and of their successors, who shall be chosen by the electors of the state. The official terms of the chief judge and associate judges shall be fourteen years from and including the first day of January next after their election. The legislature may provide by law for the manner in which the court shall sit, whether in two divisions or one, and for the number of members of the court necessary to form a quorum in either instance and also for the number whose concurrence shall be necessary to a decision. The court shall have power to appoint and to remove its reporter, clerk and attendants. § 3. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 13, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to sections one and seven of article six, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER EIGHT.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That section six of article six of the constitution be amended by adding thereto the following: In any department in which supreme court commissioners have been appointed, the justices of the appellate division of the department, or a majority of them, are authorized from time to time to designate one or more of such supreme court commissioners to hold trial terms of the supreme court within such department and to revoke such designation. A supreme court commissioner so designated shall have power to hold a trial term of the supreme court within said department and to perform the duties of a justice of the supreme court in the trial term to which he may be assigned. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, to be published for three months previous to the time of such election

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 15, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

DANIEL S. LAMONT.

DEMOCRAT TALKED OF FOR GOVERNOR OF NEW YORK.

Faithful Service Won Him Promotion From Subordinate Positions to Posts of High Responsibility — A Significant Career.

The talk of Daniel S. Lamont as the Democratic candidate for governor of the state of New York brings into the public eye again a man who was a conspicuous figure ten years ago. At that time his chances of reaching even the highest office in the land seemed good, but Mr. Lamont suddenly began to devote himself entirely to his business interests and took no active part in politics. Should he be nominated for governor of the Empire State and elected to that office his figure might again loom large among those mentioned for the presidency in the campaigns of the near future.

Daniel Scott Lamont was born at McGrawville, near Cortlandville, N. Y., Feb. 9, 1851. He went to the village school, attended the Central academy and in due time entered the class of '72 at Union college, Schenectady, N. Y. In the endeavor to support himself while at college he wrote to the governor of the state asking his aid in obtaining employment in the service of the legislature. Something in the appeal of the college lad enlisted the interest of the governor, with the result that young Lamont was given a position as an engrossing clerk. That was the beginning of his political career.

His association with the legislature eventually brought him into the service of Samuel J. Tilden, of Daniel Manning and of Grover Cleveland. For several years he was clerk of the state committee of his party, and as an editorial writer on the Albany Argus he showed that he could wield a trenchant pen. These positions gave him a thorough acquaintance with the politics and politicians of the state, an acquaintance that made him of great value to Governor Cleveland as private secretary. When the voice of the people called Mr. Cleveland to the national capital Dan Lamont was promoted from private secretary to the governor to private secretary to the president. After Mr. Cleveland's defeat for re-election in 1888 Lamont, like the president, retired to private life, and in four years' time, through association with New York street railway interests, had become a man of wealth and financial influence. Mr. Cleveland, on becoming president again, once more called him to Washington, not this time to be his private secretary, but to be his secretary of war. On the close of Mr. Cleveland's second administration Colonel Lamont again devoted himself to business and now is a leading factor in the railroad world, being vice president of the Northern Pacific Railway company. Mr. Lamont married, in 1876, Miss Juliet Kinney, a playmate from childhood, and has several children.

Mr. Lamont is a short man and used to be quite frail, but of late years he has taken on more flesh, so that he is now a more impressive figure than when he was familiar to the public as President Cleveland's secretary.

LOCAL POLITICAL MATTERS.

It will be necessary to elect a Mayor this Fall in our city to fill the unexpired term. The present administration may have made some mistakes, and the question might be asked, within reason, who could have done better? We believe fair-minded men will concede that throughout there has been a conscientious regard for the taxpayer and for the best interests of the city. Many improvements have been inaugurated, necessitating the outlay of considerable money, but the streets and sidewalks of the eas and west side have been improved and efforts have been made to begin the work of building sewers on the west side. The Board of Public Works has had no easy task. There is one measure they are deserving especial credit for, viz., safe-guarding the taxpayers against the adoption of the Storer lighting contract. They refused to recognize the existence of the contract or to pay a higher rate than $75 a lamp for all-night lighting. A new contract has been entered into for a term of ten years at $75 a lamp. The Storer contract called for $90 for a five-year contract or $80 for a ten-year term. The Times was opposed to the acceptance of the Storer contract for very plain and cogent reasons given at the time of its adoption and acceptance by the Board of Light and Water Commissioners. The measure has been fought out by the present Board of Water Commissioners to a successful termination.

It is concede that there may be some discontent on the part of those who have not shared in many of the improvements. The lack of capital has been a serious hindrance, not only to the Board of Public Works but also to the other city departments. The millennium has not yet dawned, nor will it dawn if our Democratic friends gain entire control of our civic government. The present Common Council has not achieved wide distinction by the adoption of sweeping reforms, the four Democratic members evidently being content to occupy their time and attention with petty details of the office they have held since January 1. It was heralded as a "business administration," but what has been accomplished? An expert accountant has been secured at $15 a day and expenses to do the work that was clearly within the province and duty of the Finance Committee.

It is hoped a competent business man can be secured to accept the nomination for Mayor. It is equally desirable that he receive the hearty and loyal support of the Republicans of our city and be elected to office.

"LEST WE FORGET."

The history of the past eight years of Republican rule is pregnant with convincing proof that they have been years of progress and prosperity—years that have been advantageous to our country, our commerce and our people. The pledges of 1896 have been redeemed and prosperity has come as a result. The protective tariff has been sustained; the gold standard made permanent; Cuba has been freed and given independence; the Panama Canal assured under the sole ownership and control of the United States; a department of commerce and labor established; rural free delivery given to millions of the agricultural community; the laws for the proper regugation of trusts and great corporations strengthened and enforced; commerce developed; labor protected and given ample employment and reward; intelligence, prosperity and good government established in distant lands, and the flag of the United States made the emblem of honor in every part of the world. These accomplishments have been the work of the Republican party.

President Roosevelt stated, in his speech of acceptance: "Assuredly it is unwise to change the policies which have worked so well and which are now working so well."

The policies of the Republican party should be sustained. They have ever been to increase our production in the United States, diversify our productive industries, enlarge the field, and ever to increase the demand for American workmen.

Is it any wonder our business this year eclipses that of last—any wonder we are employing a larger number of gas fitters and service gangs than at any previous time? There's a reason for everything, in this case the reason lies in the fact that every one of the hundreds of users of gas "talks it up" with his or her neighbor. "Nothing as quick," "nothing as cheap," "nothing as convenient," "wouldn't be without it for anything." Such talk as that, you know, must have its effect, besides, there's the influence of the free piping offer—the saving of about $20.00—don't know how long it may last.

Our Special Lighting Offer

Here is something you should look to, right at once—piping for lights. There's a reason why you should, there's a special offer being made at present.

Gaslight—artifical daylight—no such light as gaslight; brighter, softer, steadier, and as everybody knows, very much cheaper than any other light. Well named "the poor man's light" is gaslight.

REPRESENTATIVE MEN ON THE WORLD'S FAIR

What Distinguished Statesmen and Others Say of the Educational and Inspiring Exposition at St. Louis.

The public utterances of distinguished men who have visited the world's fair have but one note, and that of emphatic praise. Here are some of their comments:

Hon. John Hay, secretary of state: "I have never seen nor heard of anything so fine."

Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, secretary of the treasury: "Any father of a bright boy can afford to send him to the Fair simply to study any one of at least a thousand exhibits."

Hon. Charles H. Grosvenor of Ohio: "A visit of ten days by a man of ordinary aptness and appreciative capacity to the Fair is almost equal to a postgraduate course in a university."

Hon. Benjamin B. Odell, governor of New York: "St. Louis has been badly misrepresented by accounts which say that her weather is unbearable. The Fair is wonderful."

Hon. George C. Pardee, governor of California: "The governor of the Golden State, who has spent all his life within her borders, finds that he knew only a little about his state until he came to the Fair and saw all her varied products assembled together."

Hon. Albert B. Cummins, governor of Iowa: "The Louisiana Purchase Exposition is on the grandest scale of any exposition the world has ever seen."

Hon. Richard Yates, governor of Illinois: "The more I see of the Exposition the more I enjoy it."

Hon. Fennimore Chatterton, governor of Wyoming: "I wish the Fair the greatest success. It certainly deserves it."

Hon. Franklin Murphy, governor of New Jersey: "It is well worth coming from New Jersey to see even a small part of this Fair."

Hon. A. B. White, governor of West Virginia: "I cannot speak too strongly of the greatness of this Fair."

Hon. William J Bryan: "The Exposition is an unparalleled wonder."

Hon John Sharp Williams, member of congress from Mississippi: "The most wonderful thing of its kind."

Hon. Hoke Smith of Georgia, formerly secretary of interior under President Cleveland: "I am highly pleased with the Exposition and believe it to be one of the triumphs of modern civilization."

Hon. Perry Belmont of New York: "In magnitude and beauty the Fair is wonderful. It is worth coming a long distance to see."

Hon. Daniel J. Campau, chairman of the Michigan delegation to the Democratic national convention at St. Louis: "It is positively sinful for parents to fail to bring their children to see the Fair."

M. Paul Dupuy, editor of Le Petit Parisien of Paris, France: "I admire the Exposition for its immensity, its spirit of the sublime, its general beauty and its completeness."

Prince George of Bavaria: "I have never seen anything prettier than the St. Louis World's Fair buildings when outlined at night with their millions of electric lights."

Hon. Louis E. McComas of Maryland: "The greatest Fair in the world."

Hon. John F. Dryden of New Jersey: "The people have no idea of the greatness of the Exposition. Every American should see it."

T. P. Shants, president of the Clover Leaf route of Chicago: "The Fair is a big success and will continue to become a greater success as it progresses."

WAGE EARNERS AT THE FAIR

Prominent Men Planning to Help Workers See the Great Exposition.

Wage earners of America are to see the World's Fair by tens of thousands under the auspices of the National Civic Federation. A new bureau of the Federation has just been established at St. Louis upon the World's Fair grounds. Back of the movement are Grover Cleveland, David R. Francis Andrew Carnegie, Cornelius N. Bliss and others. Plans are making to have a vast number of the wage earners of the United States see the World's Fair, the most glorious spectacle of the age and the most influential factor in the education of the American citizen.

The bureau is in charge of Miss Gertrude Beeks, secretary of the Federation's welfare department, of which Mr. H. H. Vreeland, head of the street railway system of New York city, is chairman. The bureau headquarters is in the east end of the Palace of Transportation, on the ground floor. The Exposition management is in hearty accord with this movement on the part of the Federation to induce the large manufacturers and other employers of labor to provide ways and means for the wage earners of America to visit the Exposition. President Francis is displaying personal interest in the undertaking by affording the Federation every facility for the consummation of its efforts, and in this connection he has directed Theodore Hardee, assistant to the secretary, to co-operate with Miss Beeks and Ralph M. Easley, chairman of the Federation's executive council, in every possible way.

The Exposition management has also equipped this bureau with clerical assistance and a full supply of World's Fair literature. The bureau will be used as headquarters for all wage earners coming to the Exposition under its auspices. The aim of the Federation is to make it feasible for the largest possible proportion of wage earners to visit St. Louis and see the World's Fair. It will see that they are met at the depot by responsible persons and conducted to suitable lodgings, where they will be treated fairly.

There will also be furnished, free of charge, appropriate itineraries indicating the points of interest to be seen within a limit of one week, which is about the average time each party will spend here. It will also indicate the objects of special interest to various craftsmen in their particular lines, so that they may devote as much time as possible to the objects of peculiar interest to them. These and many other efforts will be made to help all wage earners to enjoy the benefits of this great Exposition comfortably and at an expense within their means.

TEAS THAT ARE WORTH FORTUNES

Twelve Hundred Kinds Are in China's Show at the World's Fair---The Most Populous Nation of the World For the First Time Makes an Exhibit Worthy of Her Greatness.

Many expositions of stupendous character make up the World's Fair of 1904. Each part is a vast and distinct show. Each building shelters many acres of wonderful things—wonderful because they are the choicest of their kind. Every nation on the globe is represented. Every state and territory is here with its best and making the most of its greatest opportunity.

The fact that China has not been a large exhibitor at world's fairs gives to her great exhibit here a prominence quite exceptional. It is a wonderland of ingenious productions. We know China best by reason of her extensive exports of teas, which have found a vast market in the United States for generations. Her commercial interests therefore prompted her to make a display of teas that we should not forget.

In sealed glass jars China displays in the Liberal Arts Palace some 1,200 kinds of tea. Young Hyson and Old Hyson have a string of tea relations longer than the genealogical chain of a Plymouth Rock. They are neatly selected "chops," in the language of the tea farmer, and these classes do not embrace medicinal teas, which are quite another lot in the rather modest number of 400.

The teas exhibited vary in price from a few cents a pound to some rare and exclusive kinds that are worth their weight in gold, the tea in the latter cases being placed on one side of the scales and pure gold on the other—that is to say, the tea of this expensive kind is worth about $20 gold an ounce. Only a very small quantity of this exclusive leaf is exhibited, and it is grown in carefully guarded tea plantations or gardens right under the shadows of the great wall of China. Its cultivation is prohibited for any use save for the imperial family of China and a few of the favored high officials.

Mention has been made of the word "chop" in connection with tea, and it may be interesting to the everyday reader to know what the word actually signifies. The tea leaf is grown in various districts of the Chinese empire on large areas of ground which are often mistaken for single plantations. This is hardly ever the case, as the large tracts are very often owned by hundreds of different men, whose individual plots of ground bearing the tea plants are carefully mapped out, so that each individual owner may cultivate and pick his own crop of tea. Each owner likewise markets his own tea and puts his own special mark, or "chop," on the packages. Hence the term "chop" signifies an individual growth or picking of tea by one owner. In an area of tea land of, say, a thousands acres, all apparently under one ownership, there may be some forty, fifty or more owners of the plantation and consequently a like number of "chops" of tea.

It must not be imagined that all these different owners of the tea get the same price for their commodity—far from it, as each of these individual tea growers has his own secrets for improving the quality and flavor of tea. Take, for instance, the Amoy and Fuchau districts, whence most of the tea for the United States comes. The owners of "chops" of tea varying from 10 to 200 chests of 56 pounds each bring samples of their goods to the various foreign merchants for sale. These latter turn the Chinese tea growers over to the good offices of the foreign or American professional tea taster, who passes on the goods as to price. The tea taster has the samples infused, not boiled, in his presence and passes upon the quality, flavor, twang and manner of curing, fixing a price accordingly, from which there is never any variation and which the tea grower must accept or go elsewhere to dispose of his wares. In a single tract of tea land like the one cited above the price has ranged from 14 cents, the lowest, to 48½ cents, the highest, per pound among sixty-one different tea producers. A matter of great moment that also figures in the price of tea is that very often tea from the same district will have the various "chops" blended together in order to produce special flavors.

LEGAL NOTICES.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage upon real property situated within the State of New York, whereby the power to sell has become operative, notice is hereby given that said mortgage, which is dated the 22d day of February, 1889, and is recorded in the office of the Clerk of the County of Oswego, at Oswego, N. Y., on the 23d day of February, 1889, at 9:20 o'clock a. m., in Liber 156 of mortgages at page 422, was given by John E. Cain and Hattie Cain, his wife, mortgagors to Orlando Howell, mortgagee, and the name of each assignee of said mortgage is as follows: 1st assignee, Fred O. Howell, 2d assignee, Maria A. Howell.

The sum claimed to be due upon the said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is sixteen hundred seventy-five dollars and forty-one cents, which is the whole amount secured by said mortgage.

The following is a description of the mortgaged property, contained in the said mortgage:

"All That Tract or Parcel of Land, situate in the Town of Granby, County of Oswego and State of New York, and being on Lot No. 72 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is described as subdivision Number One of said Lot according to Peter Schenck's map, made from his survey & dated Sept. 26, 1839, and is bounded on the N. & W. by the N. & W. lines of said lot; on the S. by the State Road running E. & W. through said lot & on the East by Subdivision No. 2 containing 19 acres of land more or less.

"Also all that certain tract or parcel of land situate in the said Town of Granby, N. Y. & being a part of the State's 100 acres of land on lot No. 62 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is bounded as follows: Beginning at the S. E. ED. PINAUD'S is the only Hair Tonic I have in my shop. It's the best! I have used one hundred other sorts on a thousand different heads, but never with the wonderful results that Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine has given. At first sight you would think it to my advantage to use a cheap tonic, but when I tell you that one bottle of Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine goes as far as three bottles of any other preparation, you can see that after all this is the best value I can get for the money.

EAU DE QUININE HAIR TONIC

For women, men and children. It cleanses the roots—feeds the cells and strengthens the hair—holds its color and gives a beautiful gloss.

TOM MASSON, HUMORIST.

He Is the Father of the Summer Girl—His New Book.

The summer girl is so much of an institution now that it will be of interest to know that the first verses that were printed about her were written some fifteen years ago by Tom Masson, who has included them in the characteristic collection of verse, "In Merry Measure," just issued.

"I wrote the verses one February," said Mr. Masson, "during a blinding snowstorm, and the only thing I could think of was 'The Summer Girl.'" The poem was widely copied, and the phrase thereafter became a part of current speech.

Mr. Masson was born in Essex, Conn., in 1866. His father was one of the best known old time sea captains in the United States, and Mr. Masson went to sea when he was nine months old. He has been the managing and literary editor of Life for the past ten years, his writings for that paper and other magazines having become universally known. He is a versatile genius, and his poems cover such a range of subjects, varying in form from the quatrain to a comedietta satirizing society, that one finds plenty of variety in "In Merry Measure." The illustrations are by C. D. Gibson, Allan Gilbert and other well known artists. Mr. Masson is a resident of Glen Ridge, N. J. "My family," he once remarked, "consists of three children, three dogs, three servants and only one wife."

Mrs. Masson was Miss Fannie Zulette Goodrich, and her marriage to the poet took place in Hartford, Conn., Oct. 24, 1893.

Much of Mr. Masson's verse has a most happy commingling of philosophy, sentiment and humor. In illustration two stanzas entitled "Why?" may be quoted:

Unequal portions seem to be Allotted unto man.
For some have all, and others naught—
  And this by nature's plan.

Why are some portions cut so large
  And others cut so small?
Why should she have her heart and mine
  And I have none at all?

A Sweet Breath

is a never failing sign of a healthy stomach. When the breath is bad the stomach is out of order. There is no remedy in the world equal to Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for curing indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders. Mrs. Mary S. Crick, of White Plains, Ky., writes: "I have been a dyspeptic for years; tried all kinds of remedies but continued to grow worst. By the use of Kodol I began to improve at once, and after taking a few bottles am fully restored in weight, health and strength and can eat whatever I like." Kodol digests what you eat and makes the stomach sweet. Sold by H. C. Geisler.

A Pert Maid.

The B.'s had given an impertinent maid notice and in consequence were obliged to suspend the duties that she pointedly neglected. On the last day of Katie's stay as one of the ladies of the family was hastening to answer a ring at the front door she was arrested by an explosive whisper from the rear of the hall, where the irrepressible ex-maid, Katie, in most unpicturesque dishabille, was established, "Mrs. B., if that's any one for me, say I'm out."

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

Kodol Digests What You Eat and relieves the stomach of all nervous strain and the heart of all pressure.

Bottles only. $1.00 Size holding 2½ times the trial size, which sells for 50c.

Sold by H. C. Giesler, druggist, Cayugastreet.

Imitation In Animals.

Some animals have wonderful powers of imitation. Dogs brought up in the company of cats have been known to acquire the trick of licking the paws and then washing the face. When a cat has been taught to sit up for her food her kittens have been known to imitate her action. Darwin tells of a cat that was in the habit of putting her paw into the mouth of a narrow milk pitcher every time she got the chance and then licking the cream off her paw. Her kitten soon learned the same trick. A lady tells of a rabbit that she keeps in a cage with a monkey and says that Bunnie has caught many of the monkey's ways. It is said that starving pigeons that have been brought up on grain will not eat peas to save their lives, but that if pea eating pigeons are put with them they follow their example and eat peas.

Von Lenbach the Painter.

Franz von Lenbach, the great portrait painter, painted three portraits of the poet Adolph Wilbrandt. The sittings varied from three to five hours. On one occasion the sitting lasted through the whole day, with intervals for meals. The afternoon passed, and dusk came on, but still Lenbach worked away without appearing to notice the failing light. At last it grew so dark that Wilbrandt could scarcely see him. He called his attention to this, saying that it seemed impossible for him to paint any more, but Lenbach begged him, unless he was tired, to continue sitting. "But what can you see of me?" asked the puzzled poet. "Quite the best of all. Excellent. Sit still, please." And the sitting only ended with the last glimmer of light.

De Witt is the Name.

When you go to buy Witch Hazel Salve look for the name De Witt on every box. The pure, unadulterated Witch Hazel is used in making DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, which is the best salve in the world for cuts, burns, bruises, boils, eczema and piles. The popularity of De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve, due to its many cures, has caused numerous worthless counterfeits to be placed on the market. The genuine bears the name E. C. De Witt & Co., Chicago. Sold by H. C. Geisler.

Human Inequality.

There is a notion, and a most pernicious one, that it is the highest realization of republican form of government that all the people should by some forcing process be made as much alike as possible. All human beings are born equal only in the single fact that they all come into the world by the same natural process. The same equality exists in the matter of death, since what we call life is extinguished for all under the selfsame conditions. But that is all the equality that is possible, for human beings are all unlike and unequal in bodily and mental characteristics, and to such an extent does this lack of equality go that it is seen in the peculiarities of every individual.—New Orleans Picayune.

A Summer Cold.

A Summer cold is not only annoying but if not relieved pneumonia will be the probable result by Fall. One Minute Cough Cure clears the phlegm, draws out the inflammation, heals, soothes and strengthens the lungs and bronchial tubes. One Minute Cough Cure is an ideal remedy for the children. It is pleasant to the taste and perfectly harmless. A certain cure for Croup, Cough and Cold. Sold by H. C. Geisler.

How He Viewed It.

There was a carriage accident in a town in Scotland. A brougham containing two ladies was run away with down a steep hill. The noise and clatter of the horses' hoofs on the flags with which the town was paved were terrific. A Scotch farmer who was walking on the footpath turned to watch the carriage disappearing in the distance and said to his companion: "For us who see it, it is indeed a fearsome sight, but for those who are inside it must be a rich spiritual experience!"—London Gentlewoman.

Sick Headache.

"For several years my wife was troubled with what physicians called sick headache of a very severe character. She doctored with several eminent physicians and at a great expense, only to grow worse until she was unable to do any kind of work. About a year ago she began taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and to-day weighs more than she ever did before and is real well," says Mr. Geo. E. Wright of New London, New York. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

I find nothing better for liver derangement and constipation than Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets.—L. F. ANDREWS, Des Moines, Iowa. For Sale by H. C. Geisler.

PRINCE A LIEUTENANT.

Royal House of Japan Well Represented In the Field.

It is a notable fact that in the Japanese army, fighting usually where the fiercest conflict is raging, are many of the princes who are closely allied by ties of blood to the mikado himself. Nor are these princes allowed high command until they have won promotion through display of signal ability and courage. Among those who have been in the thick of the fight is Prince

LIEUTENANT PRINCE KUNI.

Kuni, who was in the great battle at the Yalu and in many of the subsequent engagements in which the First army has participated in its continuous pursuit of the forces of General Kuropatkin. Prince Kuni is content to serve as a first lieutenant and adjutant on General Kuroki's staff, but his fine record will doubtless win him promotion if he lives. Another prince in General Kuroki's army is Lieutenant General Prince Fushimi, who is a division commander and was conspicuous for his bravery in the famous assault on Nanshan hill. Prince Yamashima is in the navy.

Taken With Cramps.

William Kirmse, a member of the bridge gang working near Littleport was taken suddenly ill Thursday night with cramps and a kind of cholera. His case was so severe that he had to have the members of the crew wait upon him and Mr. Gifford was called and consulted. He told them he had a medicine in the form of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he thought would help him out and accordingly several doses were administered with the result that the fellow was able to be around next day. The incident speaks quite highly of Mr. Gifford's medicines.—E kader (Iowa) Argus.

This remedy never fails. Keep it in your home, it may save life. For sale by H. C. Geisler.

Christmas Feasting In Old Times.

There are certain dishes which are peculiarly dedicated by custom and tradition to the Christmas feast. The plum pudding is almost the sole survivor of a long list of equally savory ones. There was the boar's head, always the herald of the feast and always seasoned with mustard. Next in importance was the peacock. The skin was carefully stripped off, with the plumage adhering. The bird was then roasted. When it was done and had cooled it was served up again in its feathers and with gilded beak was sent to the table. Sometimes the whole body was covered with gold leaf and a piece of cotton saturated with spirits placed in its beak and lighted as it made its gorgeous entry. The noble bird was not served by common hands. That privilege was reserved for the ladies most distinguished by birth and beauty. Geese, capons, pheasants and pies of carps' tongues also helped to set out the Christmas table in days gone by.

Cholera Infantum.

This disease has lost its terrors since Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy came into general use. The uniform success which attends the use of this remedy in all cases of bowel complaints in children has made it a favorite wherever its value has become known. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

Trial by Jury.

Trial by twelve compurgators, which was of canonical origin, existed in Anglo-Saxon times and only resembled what is known as trial by jury in the number of persons sworn. Under the name of wager of law it continued to be the law of England until abolished Aug. 14, 1833. Traces of trial by jury are found in the reigns of William I. and II., Henry I. and Stephen, but it was not fully established until the reign of Henry II. Trial by jury was first adopted in criminal cases in the reign of John, 1189-99, and was the established mode of dealing with them at the end of the thirteenth century. Witnesses were examined and evidence first laid before juries in the reign of Henry VI., 1422-61, but this change was not fully carried out till the time of Edward VI., 1547-53. The laws respecting juries in England were remodeled June 22, 1825.—London Globe.

Violent Attack of Diarrhoea Cured by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and Perhaps a Life Saved.

"A short time ago I was taken with a violent attack of diarrhoea and believe I would have died if I had not gotten relief," says John J. Patton, a leading citizen of Patton, Ala. "A friend recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I bought a twenty-five cent bottle and after taking three doses of it was entirely cured. I consider it the best remedy in the world for bowel complaints. For sale by H. C. Geisler

A Monkey Detective.

A monkey brought a criminal to justice at Singapore some time ago. A native with a little boy, a bear and a monkey traveled lately through several villages in the Straits Settlements and made a good sum of money by his animals' tricks. One day he was found with his throat cut, the boy and the bear lying murdered close by, while the monkey had escaped up a tree. The bodies, with the monkey, were being taken to the police station when the monkey suddenly rushed at a man in the crowd, seized his leg and would not let go. The man seemed so alarmed and anxious to get away that the police became suspicious and searched him, with the result of finding part of the money belonging to the murdered native. The balance was discovered at his house.

Fruitful Normandy.

A traveler in France writes: "Normandy is sweet, clean, green and prosperous. Its iris crowned thatches are the most beautiful, its posy gardens the most sedulously nurtured and its farmyards the most enchanting in all France. Its cows are sleek and good milkers, its horses world famous and its blond women—even those seasoned by field labor—always sphinxlike and often fair. It is attractive, sensuous [illegible] at every season, and the [illegible] all their [illegible] for their [illegible], are not bad company [illegible] long run."

A Perfect Painless Pill

is the one that will cleanse the system, set the liver to action, remove the bile, clear the complexion, cure headache and leave a good taste in the mouth. The famous little pills for doing such work pleasantly and effectually are De Witt's Little Early Risers. Bob Moore of Lafayette, Ind. says: "All other pills I have used gripe and sicken, while De Witt's Little Early Risers are simply perfect." Sold by H. C. Geisler.

The King of Bardsey.

About a mile distant from the rocky promontory of Braich-y-Pwll, the extreme westerly point of north Wales, lies the island of Bardsey, the home of a singularly isolated community. The island is the property of Lord Newborough and was a favorite resort of the third baron, grandfather and predecessor in the title of the present peer. At that period the island was even more remote and out of the way than at present. Communication with Pwllheli was infrequent and uncertain. Consequently the Bardsey folk formed an entirely independent community, forced by circumstances to conduct their own affairs without special reference to the laws of the country. Lord Newborough instituted the office of "king." Selecting from the islanders one of superior parts and character, he invested him with the general authority which he himself possessed as landlord, bidding the rest to obey his ruling, abide by his decisions in case of dispute and in general respect his authority. Partly in jest, partly to strengthen his vicegerent's position, he conferred upon that worthy the title of "king of Bardsey" and bestowed upon him a crown, a treasure and an army. The "crown" was a gorgeous diadem of brass, wondrously embossed and wrought; the "treasure" a silver casket brought from Italy, and the "army" a wooden figure painted to represent a soldier.

THE CURE IS LASTING.

How Cal-cura Solvent, Dr. David Kennedy's LATEST Medicine, Cured Mr. Eldridge,

Let the people speak for themselves. Praise from those who have been cured is praise indeed, and comment would be a waste of words. This is what Mr. H. W. Eldridge, of Cherry Valley, N. Y., writes to the manufacturers of Cal-cura Solvent, Dr. Kennedy's new medicine, Dr. Kennedy Row, Rondout, N. Y.

"Gentlemen:—I should like to tell you, in a few words, of the good Cal-cura Solvent, Dr. Kennedy's latest medicine, has accomplished in my case, one of kidney trouble.

"Before I took Cal-cura Solvent my urine was of a brick dust color, and there was always a sediment of a reddish tinge. I procured a bottle and gave it a thorough trial. I noticed that the sediment gradually disappeared and the urine became clear. I have not taken any of the Cal-cura Solvent for a long time, and no sediment has appeared." All druggists, $1.00.

CLARENCE E. PITTS.

He Refuses to be Made the Tail of the Democratic Kite.

Clarence E. Pitts, the Prohibition candidate for County Judge, refuses to be brushed aside like a fly on the Democratic chariot wheel, and in a recent interview in the Syracuse Herald, is quoted as saying:

"The Prohibition party will not be made the tail of the Democratic kite this year. Two years ago, the Prohibitionists indorsed the Democratic nominee for Attorney General thereby assuring Mr. Bulger his present job, and last year when we wanted that party to pay its debt of gratitude, we were told by Mr. Bulger that the Prohibition tail would not be allowed to wag the Democratic dog, and after Mr Bulger having agreed to have the Democratic Convention either indorse the Prohibition candidate for County Clerk, or to allow our party to name the candidate, all negotiations having been on the initiative of Mr. Bulger. I am the candidate of my party for County Judge and have just as good a chance of being elected as the Democratic candidate, when you come to think of the enormous Republican majority in the county. All either a Prohibitionist or a Democrat can expect to get out of it is the honor, and I can see no reason why the honor should not go to me as much as to a Democrat."

New York, August 21st, 1904.

My Dear Mr. Streeter:—The children returned safely last night and it only remains for me to send a word of appreciation of the good work done for them. The longer I am in this work (this is my twenty-eighth year) the stronger are my convictions of the vast amount of good done to the children by these fortnight outings.

The joy and comfort of the children is quite enough compensation, but there is a deeper and permanent influence for good in it, and we fully appreciate all of your good efforts.

Very truly yours,

SENATOR GATES

Unanimously Renominated to Represent the Oswego-Madison District at Albany. Enthusiastic Convention.

Senator Francis H. Gates of Chittenango was unanimously renominated yesterday in Oswego by the Republicans of this Senatorial district. The convention was largely attended and considerable enthusiasm was manifested throughout the proceedings.

The leading Republicans of Oswego and Madison counties were present and cordially greeted the venerable Senator at an informal reception held in the Deep Rock Hotel in the forenoon, and nearly one hundred enthusiastic Republicans from Madison county arrived on the noon train to honor the proceedings with their presence.

The chairman of the Senatorial Committee, John E. Smith of Madison county, called the convention to order, and Secretary W. A. Robbins of Mexico called the roll of delegates.

The temporary organization, which was afterward made permanent, comprised Henry R. Carrier of Oswego, chairman; W. A. Robbins of Mexico and Charles W. Maynard of Madison county, secretaries. The secretaries also acted as tellers.

The chair appointed the following committee on resolutions: Messrs. M. H. De Lano and Dr. Cavana of Madison; E. P. Cole, W. J. Acker and M. P. Neal of Oswego county.

When nominations were in order, District Attorney Kiley of Madison county, in a most appropriate speech, presented the name of Francis H. Gates for State Senator. Mr. Kiley pointed out the eminent fitness and qualifications of the candidate for the position, stating in closing that it was both a privilege and a pleasure to present his name.

The nomination was seconded by Ex-Congressman W. B. Baker of Constantia; Ex-Assemblyman T. M. Costello of Altmar and State Commissioner of Excise P. W. Cullinan, all of whom emphasized all the good things said of Mr. Gates.

On motion, the secretary was instructed to cast one ballot for the nominee, and Messrs. Costello and Maynard were selected as a committee to notify Mr. Gates and present him to the convention.

When Mr. Gates appeared he received a flattering ovation, and when silence was restored he thanked the members for the honor conferred, stating in conclusion that if he were elected he should continue to work for the best interests of the people of the district and State.

The adoption of appropriate resolutions brought the convention to a close. but before adjournment the Hon. P. W. Cullinan called for three cheers for the Republican nominees for President and Vice-President. These were given with a hearty good will.

The delegates to the convention and the attendants, became the guests of Mr. Gates at a dinner in the Hotel Deep Rock after the convention adjourned. Over two hundred covers were laid; the dinner was served in courses and it was a most sumptuous repast. An artistic souvenir menu, containing an excellent likeness of Senator Gates, was laid at each plate.

At the conclusion of the banquet a hearty vote of thanks was extended to Senator Gates by his guests.

Granby Escort Officers.

The Granby Escorts, at a meeting held on Wednesday evening, selected the following officers: Captain George Simons; First Lieutenant, Charles E. Stewart; Second Lieutenant, Arthur Stewart; Assistant Lieutenant, Messrs. H. C. Dann and W. M. Hinsdale. The club will meet for drill work on each Thursday evening.

Golden Wedding Anniversary.

Golden wedding anniversaries are very much like the proverbial hen's teeth—few and far between. To walk together in matrimonial union for half a century is really quite a wonderful feat when we stop to reflect upon the vicissitudes of this present life. Yet such is the record of Mr. and Mrs. Ovid V. Taft of Volney. Fifty years ago the 6th of Sept. they joined hands and hearts "for better or for worse," and on Monday last the anniversary of the event was fittingly celebrated at their pleasant home six miles east of Fulton. Invited guests to the number of seventy-five gathered and heartily congratulated the host and hostess upon having reached so auspicious an event in their lives.

A large tent had been erected on the lawn in front of the house and in this were held the festivities of the day. After Mr. and Mrs. Taft had received their guests informally a choice collation was served. Each guest found at his place at the table a tiny boquet of golden rod tied with yellow ribbon in harmony with the thought of the occasion. The tables and tent also were tastefully decorated in golden colors.

Following the repast a short program was presented, as follows:

Music.
Declamation, "Biff Perkin's Toboggan Slide" .... Fred Dolbear.
Recitation, "That Old Sweetheart of Mine" .... Lena Jennings.
Reminiscences............Mr. Ovid V. Taft
Remarks............Rev. C. J. Taft.
Brief words from a number of friends.
Recitation............Ivan Taft.
Recitation, "When Grandpa and Grandma got Tied,"....Lena Jennings.
recitation............Melrose Taft
Declamation............Fred Dolbear,
Letter from Rev. Jay W. Taft of Locke, N. Y.;

During the course of his remarks Mr. Ovid Taft stated that the day was a triple anniversary, it being not only the fiftieth anniversary of his marriage but also the seventieth birthday of his wife and the twenty-first anniversary of the marriage of his daughter, Mrs. Frank Jennings. He spoke interestingly of the youth of himself and wife, and waxed both eloquent and humorous when he came to tell of their courting days. He also read the following original poem:

What! fifty years of life since our primal wedding day?
How the busy wheels of Time have sped us on our way!
With throngs of friends bringing words of cheer
We'll place the record and mark the year.

There's a joy in looking backward along the varied way
Made up of clouds and sunshine in our labor day by day.
How the birds have sung in chorus, and the flowers at our feet
Have bloomed in mystic splendor, bringing fragance sweet.

Our mothers dear and our fathers strong
Have from life's journey passed along;
The grass grows green o'er their honored graves
And the years have passed, wave after wave.

And we ourselves grow old—and we hope more wise,
With crow track wrinkles carving round our eyes.
Rheumatic aches our joints do rack with sudden pain;
But once they're fully passed, we're growing young again.

I'll make mention of our household and of our projected plan
To keep in wholesome numbers the great family of man.
Our children and grandchildren, when we get them all in line,
Will count almost as many as are pennies in a dime.

Our earnest thought has been, in passing down the line,
In the living of this blissful life, to ever bear in mind,
That he who scans our pathway, as the sun sinks in the west,
May have no blush of shame, when we are laid to rest.

The day was all that could be desired and a most enjoyable time was had by all present. Mr. and Mrs. Taft received many beautiful and substantial gifts from their friends. Among the guests were people from Fulton, Oswego, Syracuse, Ohio and Kansas.

PITTS IS STILL SORE

Prohibition Leader Refuses to Dicker with Bulger--Efforts to Induce Him to Resign in Favor of Mr. Piper Have Proved Futile.

[Syracuse Sunday Herald.]

OSWEGO, Sept. 3.—Clarence E. Pitts, leader and candidate for County Judge of the Prohibition party, held the center of the stage politically during the last week. Mr. Pitts was much in demand, especially by Charles N. Bulger and the Democratic leaders, who used every known inducement to get Mr. Pitts to resign as the candidate of his party and have the Prohibitionists endorse the nomination of Giles S. Piper of Fulton, whom the Democrats nominated for County Judge at the convention recently held in Pulaski.

Mr. Bulger held his last interview with Mr. Pitts on the Monday preceding the convention and it lasted two hours. Politically Mr. Bulger and Mr. Pitts are not friendly, as Mr. Pitts has not forgiven Mr. Bulger for the manner in which he used him a year ago, and Mr. Pitts told the Democratic leader that he would not resign the nomination which his party had tendered him. But Mr. Bulger had other things which he wanted to talk over with the Prohibition leader. It seems that A. W. Young, the Prohibition candidate for Lieutenant Governor, and Claude Duval, another member of the party had prepared a letter which they had sent broadcast throughout the county, calling upon members of the Democratic party to remember the assistance which the Prohibition party had rendered their candidates for State offices two years ago, and asking them to use their influence to have the Democratic convention endorse the candidacy of Mr. Pitts. More than that, some of these letters had reached the hands of the State leaders in the Democratic party, who remembered the assistance the Prohibitionists were in electing Attorney General Cunneen, and thought that there might be a chance to get the Prohibition party of the State to endorse the Democratic candidates for Judges of the Court of Appeals, which the State Prohibition convention, held in this city, held open. Letters were received in this city from some of these State leaders which said that they would use their influence to endorse Mr. Pitts, and it is said that letters were sent to Mr. Bulger making inquiries about the matter. These were the things Mr. Bulger wanted to talk to Mr. Pitts about, and he accused Mr. Pitts of transferring his affections from the Democratic party to the Republican party of this county. It is said that the interview between the two leaders was exceedingly warm and Mr. Pitts told Mr. Bulger that if he intimated that he had sold out to the Republicans that he did not want to talk further with him and to leave his office.

OFFER MADE TO MR. PITTS.

After this interview Mr. Bulger kept away from Mr. Pitts, but sent his lieutenants to try and get the Prohibition leader to agree to endorse the candidacy of Mr. Piper. The last conference was held Thursday morning, an hour before the special train left this city for the convention at Pulaski. It is understood the committee which called on Mr. Pitts made him the following offer if he would consent to withdraw and endorse Mr. Piper:

One thousand dollars to be used for campaign purposes for the Prohibition party.

To have the Democratic convention endorse Mr. Pitts for District Attorney next year.

To have the Democratic district conventions in this county endorse the Prohibition nominees for Members of Assembly.

To have the Democratic convention three years from now endorse the Prohibition nominee for County Treasurer.

To have the Democrats in the Third school district endorse the Prohibition candidate for School Commissioner.

Mr. Pitts listened to the inducements which the committee had to offer and his reply, as reported by one who was present at the conference, was as follows: "You can go back and tell Mr. Bulger that when some member of the Democratic party, a leader whose word can be relied upon, comes to me and makes an offer which I think advantageous to the Prohibition party I will be ready to talk business, but I will not consider any offer coming from Mr. Bulger. He deceived me once with his promises and he will never have a chance to do so again."

The convention was held Thursday and Mr. Piper was nominated, but whether he will accept the nomination or not is a question. It has been stated on good authority that Mr. Piper made the statement that he would accept the nomination providing the Democrats succeeded in getting the endorsement for him of the Prohibition party and that unless this was done he would resign the nomination.

REPUBLICANS TAKE A HAND.

It is said that at the present time there are negotiations on between Mr. Pitts and some of the State leaders in the Republican party to the end that the Prohibition candidate for Attorney General is to be withdrawn from the ticket a few minutes before the Republican State convention is held and that the executive committee of the Prohibition party will get together and endorse the Republican candidate for that office. Mr. Bulger is being boomed as the Democratic candidate for that office and Mr. Pitts does not intend taking any chances, preferring to have his party endorse the Republican candidate rather than to leave any opening for a chance of Mr. Bulger being nominated. He wants to make sure of Mr. Bulger's defeat if he runs for Attorney General.

When asked in regard to the rumor that the State Prohibitionists were going to endorse the Republican candidate for Attorney General Mr. Pitts said: "That is a matter which I do not wish to talk about at this time. I will say that I believe Mr. Bulger treated the Prohibition party in a very shabby manner last year after that party had been the cause of Attorney General Cunneen being elected and Mr. Bulger receiving an appointment as First Deputy Attorney General which pays him about $5,000 a year. I am not through with Mr. Bulger by any means, and he will hear from me hereafter, but I will not confirm or deny the rumor that the Republican candidate for Attorney General is to be endorsed by the Prohibition party."

STREET IMPROVEMENTS.

Common Council Passes Resolution to Raise $10,157.85.

The Common Council held a meeting last Friday evening and adopted a resolution authorizing the city officials to negotiate a temporary loan of $10,157.85, payable from the proceeds of the tax levied, pursuant to section 65 of the city charter, upon the real estate fronting on South Third street, between Buffalo and Cayuga streets and South Fourth street, between Division and Buffalo streets, for the improvement of the said sections of the said streets, to be determined by the Board of Public Works of said city, and according to a contract entered into between the city of Fulton and John Hendricks.

The adoption of the foregoing resolution relieves the city from an unpleasant situation brought about through the Common Council refusing at first to authorize the negotiation of the loan to pay Mr. Hendricks for services rendered or about to be rendered in the completion of his contract.

W. C. T. U.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held at the home of Mrs. Mary Harper on Second street last Friday afternoon and Mrs. Wesley McCully was chosen president; Mrs. T. J. Redhead, first vice president; Mrs. Edna Moore, Corresponding Secretary; Mrs. Palmer, Recording Secretary and Mrs. W. D. Edgarton, treasurer.

The past year has been one of great success along some lines, although a little discouragement is felt when one looks round and sees the great evil of intemperence ever before us, and we so helpless. The flower mission department deserves special mention, Mrs. Burt who is Superintendent of this work has done much to cheer the sick and suffering during the year. Thirty bouquets and plants have been taken to brighten sick rooms, besides many visits have been made. The Secretary, Mrs. McClellen thanked Mrs. Redhead in behalf of the ladies of the Union for her faithful services during the past two years

The State convention will be held in Elmira, Oct. 11-14. Mrs. McCully was chosen delegate with Mrs. Sears alternate.

At the close of the meeting ice cream and cake were served.

REPUBLICANS SWEEP STATE OF VERMONT.

WAR SITUATION IN THE FAR EAST.

The Russian forces are pushing on to Mukden, greatly impeded by heavy roads and floods, conducting an orderly retreat and followed step by step by the Japanese.

From Tokio comes the official report that the bulk of the Russian forces is still at Yentai.

Port Arthur expects a general land attack this Wednesday.

DIED.

Guy, the 5-months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weeks, died at their home in this city on Wednesday. The body was taken to Wayne County for burial.

The remains of Mrs. John Sullivan who died at her home in Dexterville on Thursday were taken to Napanee, Canada, where the funeral services were held on Saturday.

The body of Libbie Corp, who committed suicide by drowning in Onondaga Creek in Syracuse on Monday of last week, were brought to this city for interment on Friday.

Charles H. Stewart, aged 61, died at his home in El Dorado, Kansas, on Aug. 19. The deceased was born in Granby. Two brothers, Messrs. Henry of Granby and John of Palermo are the surviving relatives in this section of the country.

Louisianna Chubb, aged 76, died at her home in Second street on Thursday. The deceased had been a lifelong resident of this city where she was born. The funeral services were held on Friday afternoon from the home of Mr. Charles Easton, the Rev. [illegible] made in Mt. Adnah.

Word was received by Miss Jennie Lappin on Sunday night that her brother Frank, who left Fulton when he was 12 years of age, had died at his home in New Mexico at the age of 28, from pneumonia. The deceased never visited the place of his birth after leaving it 16 years ago. Five sisters survive, Mrs. Catherine Coyne of San Francisco, Cal., Mrs. William Grady and Mrs. James Martin of Oswego, Mrs. Fred Jewett of Volney and Miss Jennie Lappin of the city.

Andrus G. Morse who resided just north of Volney Centre, was stricken with apoplexy at his home on Tuesday afternoon of last week and although medical assistance was called, he died about midnight of the same day. The deceased was born near Morse's Corners 66 years ago, and had resided in the towns of Volney and Palermo ever since, having lived for 44 years in the house in which he died. The funeral services were held on Sunday afternoon, the Rev. W. G. Bassett officiating and the body was temporarily placed in the receiving vault at Mt. Adnah. It will be taken to Hillier, Ont. for interment. The deceased is survived by his widow, a sister, Mrs. Henry Keeler of Atchinson, Kan., and a brother, Daniel Morse of Oskaloosa, Kan.

Entered Into Rest.

In Volney Center after a lingering illness, Mrs. Carrie Jewett Tubbs passed from earth on Sept. 3, 1904.

While teaching in the High School at Fulton seven years ago, she had a slight stroke of paralysis, from which she never recovered, gradually failing until the end came. She spent almost her entire life in teaching, a calling to which she was particularly adapted and she will be remembered by many people as their early and most efficient teacher, to whom they owe largely their first inspiration and success as students. The schools in Oswego, New Rochelle, and Fulton, as well as some of the country schools of Volney in early years were favored with her instruction, and her work was done in a thorough and most conscientious manner, as all her pupils will attest. In 1864 she married Alfred Dean Tubbs, M. D., Surgeon on the United States Steamer Neptune, West India Squadron, and in less than a year after their marriage he fell a victim to yellow fever at Cape Haytien. She was intellectually above the average, ever a kind and loyal friend, and many will long remember with affection her many noble qualities of mind and heart. She died at the home of her cousin, Mrs. Anna Fredenburgh, where her home had been for the last three or four years, and was buried at Volney Center cemetery. on Tuesday, Sept. 6 at three o'clock.

"High lies that better country
The land of morning and perpetual song;
And graciously the Warder
From over th mountain border
Called to her, "Come"

Voted for Fremont.

Fifty years ago this September in the city of Auburn was held the first delegated convention to form a new political party—Republican in principal and name. A great uprising of the National conscience against the evils of slavery, had commenced at this early period. In May 1854, the Missouri comprimise was repealed and the Nebraska bill admitting slavery into new territory was passed. This act fired the better class of people throughout the North, and in New York State in particular. That year and the next there was a great struggle to elect "Anti Nebraska" Republican Congressman throughout the North. In June 1856 the Democrats nominated Buchanan and Breckenridge [illegible] the first Republican convention [illegible] in Philadelphia nominated [illegible] C. Fremont and Wm. [illegible] platform of [illegible]

[illegible] voting solid [illegible] very. Among the Republicans [illegible] ney and Granby who voted [illegible] mont and who expect to vote [illegible] Roosevelt in November are Messrs. [illegible] L. Brown, Stephen Cathcart, [illegible] Stranahan, H. N Gilbert, O. L. Brown, Lewis Sherman, Ed. Wilber, H. [illegible] ner, N. H. Gilbert and the Rev. A. [illegible] Roe. Mr. Newell Gilbert organized a singing club which furnished music for the rallys during the Freemont campaign and which added greatly to the effectiveness of the work done. Messrs. Edward Wilber and Nathan Rowles prepared and helped erect the first flag staff and flung to the breeze the names of Fremont and Dayton at Volney Centre. Samuel Griswold, a noted Whig politician, who had voted at every election since Washington and who cast his last vote for Fremont, asked the privilege of furnishing the handsome streamer. At the pole raising, the gathering was addressed by DeWitt C. Littlejohn, a political giant of those days. It is expected that several of the gentlemen named will attend the golden anniversary celebration of the Republican party in Saratoga next week.

MARRIED.

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Snyder in Pennellville, on Wednesday noon, occurred the marriage of Miss Coral Louise Snyder and Mr. Ralph Hannum of this city. The Rev. G. R. Foster of the Congregational church officiating. The bride was prettily gowned in white silk mull and carried a shower boquet of white carnations. She was attended by her sister, Miss Edna Snyder and the best man was Mr. Wells P. Hannum, brother of the groom. A reception and wedding breakfast followed the ceremony and Mr. and Mrs. Hannum left on the afternoon train for a trip among the Thousand Island resorts. They will make their future home at 110 Newell street, Syracuse, where they will be at home to their friends after October 1.

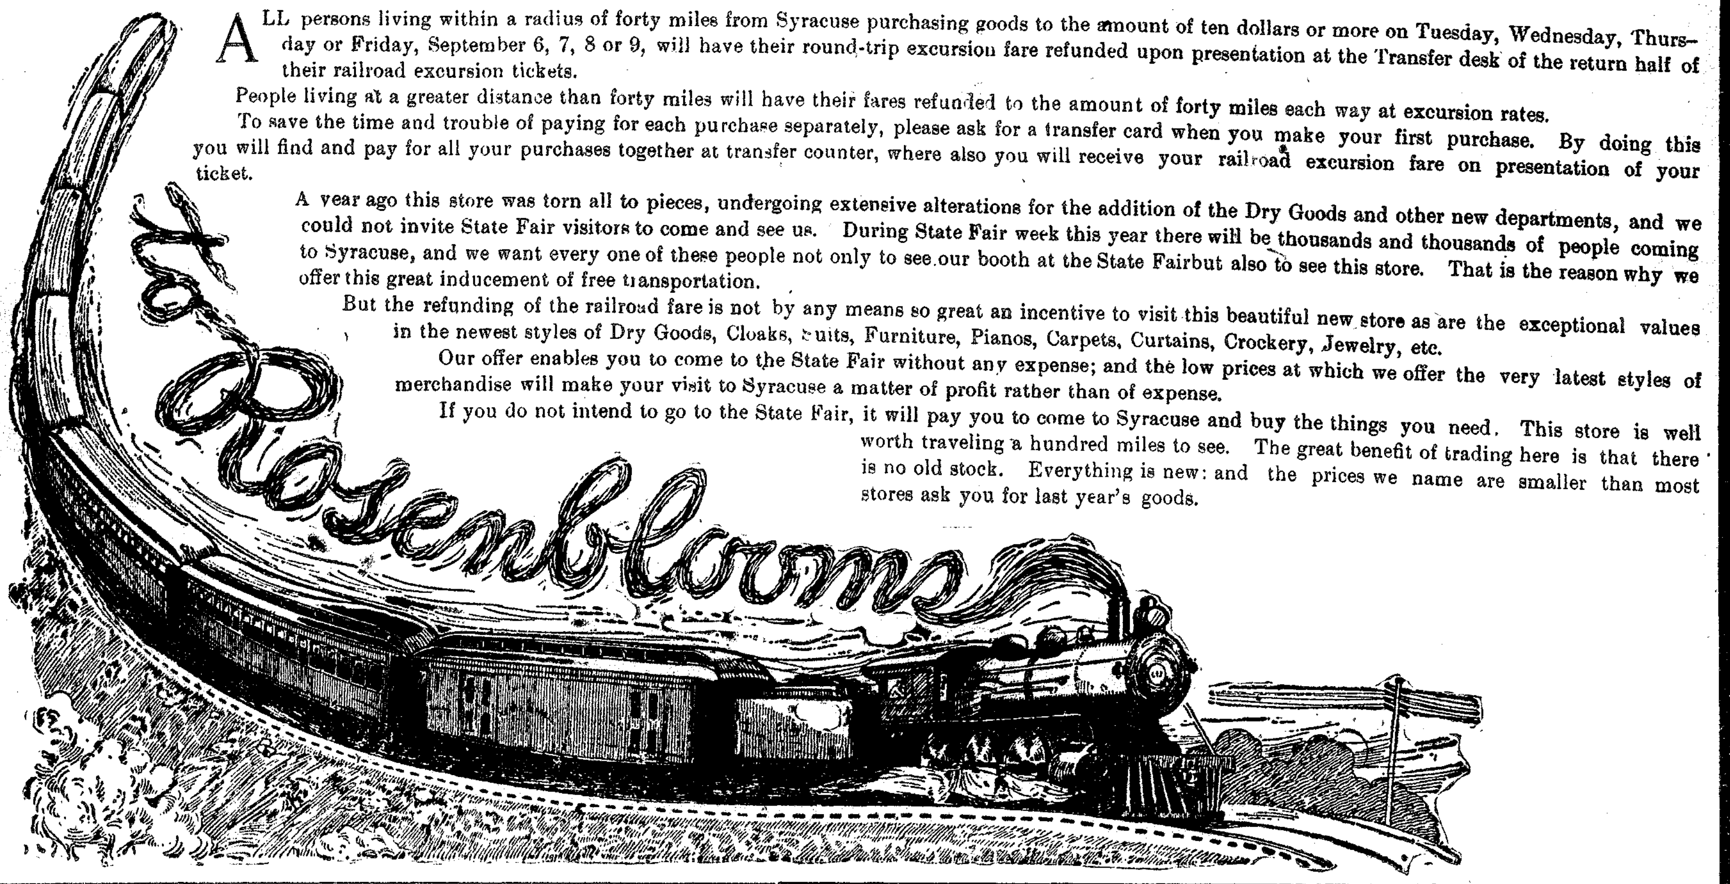
FREE EXCURSION

To the STATE FAIR

Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, September 6, 7, 8, 9



ALL persons living within a radius of forty miles from Syracuse purchasing goods to the amount of ten dollars or more on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday or Friday, September 6, 7, 8 or 9, will have their round-trip excursion fare refunded upon presentation at the Transfer desk of the return half of their railroad excursion tickets.

People living at a greater distance than forty miles will have their fares refunded to the amount of forty miles each way at excursion rates.

To save the time and trouble of paying for each purchase separately, please ask for a transfer card when you make your first purchase. By doing this you will find and pay for all your purchases together at transfer counter, where also you will receive your railroad excursion fare on presentation of your ticket.

A year ago this store was torn all to pieces, undergoing extensive alterations for the addition of the Dry Goods and other new departments, and we could not invite State Fair visitors to come and see us. During State Fair week this year there will be thousands and thousands of people coming to Syracuse, and we want every one of these people not only to see our booth at the State Fairbut also to see this store. That is the reason why we offer this great inducement of free transportation.

But the refunding of the railroad fare is not by any means so great an incentive to visit this beautiful new store as are the exceptional values in the newest styles of Dry Goods, Cloaks, Suits, Furniture, Pianos, Carpets, Curtains, Crockery, Jewelry, etc.

Our offer enables you to come to the State Fair without any expense; and the low prices at which we offer the very latest styles of merchandise will make your visit to Syracuse a matter of profit rather than of expense.

If you do not intend to go to the State Fair, it will pay you to come to Syracuse and buy the things you need. This store is well worth traveling a hundred miles to see. The great benefit of trading here is that there is no old stock. Everything is new: and the prices we name are smaller than most stores ask you for last year's goods.

Grotesque African Custom.

Tattooing is almost universally practiced by both sexes of the natives of Africa. It is, however, very roughly done and is altogether inferior to the tattooing of the Maoris of New Zealand and other Pacific races. The method of operation is simply to make a slit in the skin and then rub in charcoal. Among the less pleasing feminine ornaments must be reckoned the nose buttons of the Wa Yao and the frightful pelele, or lip ring, of the Anyanja. The nose button is a circular disk of ivory or burnished lead let into one side of the nostril. Ugly as is the effect produced by this, it is yet a thousand times less hideous than the pelele, which consists of a round, flat piece of ivory or wood fixed in a slit in the upper lip. The slit is gradually increased by the insertion of successive plugs, each a little larger than the preceding one, until it can accommodate a full sized pelele, which sticks out an inch or more in front of the face, rendering the appearance of the wearer scarcely human.

The Game of Trinquet.

Popular among the Basque peasantry is an ancient game known as trinquet. No one knows the origin of trinquet. Like all Basque customs, it can be traced back and back till its history is lost in the remote past. Nearly every court in the country bears the aspect of extreme age. The court at Bayonne is believed to be 400 years old, and the one at St. Jean de Luz looks older than the one at Bayonne. When Louis XIV., who was married in St. Jean de Luz church, went down to the little frontier town to meet his Spanish bride, he found the Basques of St. Jean de Luz energetically playing their ancient game, and he took the idea back with him to Paris, and from it, largely modified, comes the game of tennis.

Tennis and trinquet are very similar, save that instead of a racket a leather arrangement, known as a glove, is used for propelling the ball.—Country Life.

Duty, Then Pleasure.

Mr. Nasmyth, the inventor of the steam hammer, once said: "If I were to try to compress into one sentence the whole of the experience of an active and successful life and offer it to young men as a rule and certain recipe for success in any station, it would be comprised in this: 'Duty first; pleasure second.' From what I have seen of young men and their after progress I am satisfied that what is generally termed 'bad fortune,' 'ill luck' and 'misfortune' is in nine cases out of ten simply the result of inverting this simple maxim. My own experience convinces me that absence of success arises in the great majority of cases from want of self denial and want of common sense. The worst maxim of all maxims is, 'Pleasure first; work and duty second.'"

Rare Ornithological Curios.

The catalogue of the Museum Tradescantianum, or Tradescant's museum, published in England in the year 1656, makes mention of many rare ornithological curios owned or left on deposit in that institution. Among the dozens listed three are especially interesting—viz, "two feathers from the tayle of a phoenix," "Easter eggs laid by a mayle barnyarde fowle" and "the claw of the bird roc, who, as authors report, is able to trusse an elephant."

GOT EVERYBODY GUESSING.

Business World is Asking How it is That a Corning, N. Y., Concern Can Sell Choice Family Groceries Cheaper Than All Competitors—The Real Reason.

Grocer—to former customer: "How is it, Mr. Wright, that I don't get your trade any more?"

Mr. W.: "Well, to be frank, I am now buying this Signature Line from Brown over here as you don't keep them. My wife sent and got the catalog of a big Corning concern and we spent about a week o' evenings studying it. It stated that this concern had been handling choice groceries, teas, coffees, household supplies, etc., for more'n 40 years. It said that their long experience had prepared them to handle goods at the least expense and their big capital enabled them to buy large quantities of merchandise for the least money. Then it went on to tell how they had originated what they call 'Signature Brands' of groceries. This 'Signature' business kind o' bothered Mandy and me at first, but Cora—that's our eldest daughter who had just graduated from the High school—explained that the 'Signature Brands' are choice family groceries put up in sealed packages by this firm. This, she said, guarantees both quantity and quality and absolute cleanliness. The firm's name is written across their seal on each package and stands for quality and character in the goods. These signatures are to be saved, as each one is valuable according to the amount of goods one buys. For instance, eight signatures cut from packages of Old Holland Coffee the firm puts up are equal to 400 points. These points are accepted in payment for any one of a list of 300 premiums. Thus each signature is valuable."

Grocer: "What's the name of this concern?"

Mr. W.: "C. B. Maltby Company of Corning, N. Y."

Grocer: "You ought to have experience enough by this time to know that they add the cost of these premiums to the price of the goods they sell."

Mr. W.: "It's natural for you, being in the same line o' business, to think that way. We did too, at first, but seein' as how we actually get better and more tea, coffee, flour, etc., in these 'Signature Brands,' we had to change our minds. Since we get these groceries cheaper'n we ever got any before, Mandy 'lows that the premiums in silverware, cut-glass, chinaware, furniture, etc., are purty convenient things to have and are clear gain. These we get in exchange for the signature which is writ'en on each package."

Grocer: "Somebody has to pay for these premiums and the chances are they are a snide lot anyway."

Mr. W.: "We were suspicious of them at first, but in their catalog it said that every article had been carefully selected and is of standard value and many of them are made specially for The C. B. Maltby Company. We asked our bank about this house and they told us there is none better and that their word is as good as their bond. We then began to use their 'Signature Brand' of groceries; we sent in the signatures and got a set o' silverware and other things and they are as pretty as a big, red apple and have never tarnished. By using their goods exclusively, the signatures accumulate rapidly and we get a lot of premiums."

Grocer: "You seem to have been studying this question of getting high-class groceries for the least money."

Mr. W.: "Yes, and there are others. The time is here when the women folks are going to buy where they can get the best goods for the least money. Don't you forget it!"

FARMERS' MONTH AT WORLD'S FAIR

Biggest Department of the Great Exposition Ready For the Inspection of the Army of Men Who Made Its Creation Possible.

Now that crops have been or are being laid by, the farmer prepares for his trip to the World's Fair, a treat that has long been promised him and for which he has patiently waited. No exposition has offered so many inducements for the farmer's presence as this one at St. Louis, nor has any previous exposition given the prominence and space to the subject of agriculture.

August and September are ostensibly the farmer's months at the Exposition, for it is at this season that the agriculture exhibits are the freshest and best. Products of the new crops are pouring into the booths from every state in the Union, and additions are constantly being made to the gorgeous display.

Headquarters for visiting farmers may be found in every state section of the great Agriculture Palace, but for their special convenience there has just been completed a Grange House, situated in the south end of the building. It is equipped with a reception room, ladies' retiring rooms and check rooms, where parcels may be left free of charge. Here will be kept a list of moderate priced rooms to aid visiting farmers and their families in procuring accommodations.

The largest building on the grounds is the Palace of Agriculture, covering twenty acres, while the Palace of Horticulture near by covers about a third as much space. These two immense structures are filled with exhibits of the farm, garden and orchard of the most extensive and elaborate character, every state in the Union and most of the principal countries of the world being represented.

Agriculture is given more prominence than any other department at the Exposition, the paramount importance of this great industry having been fully appreciated from the very beginning of the World's Fair movement.

About seventy acres of ground are covered by the agriculture and horticulture department at the Fair, large outdoor spaces being devoted to this industry. Outside there are growing crops, trees and flowers, an instructive six acre farm maintained by the United States Government Plant Industry, and gardens in all parts of the grounds.

There are more exhibits in the Agriculture building than in any other section of the Exposition. This building is considered by many people the most interesting part of the World's Fair. The exhibits in the palaces of Agriculture and Horticulture constitute a display vast enough and instructive enough to occupy the attention of visitors for many days. Nothing to compare with them was ever attempted before. They are the climax of several decades of educational work which is placing farming on a high plane and is making scientific agriculture a pleasing reality.

The conspicuous role played by agriculture at the World's Fair should bring untold benefits and wealth to the farming community of the world and impress all farmers with the importance and dignity of their calling.

Passing through these colossal buildings, studying the attractive exhibits and fascinated with the bewildering encyclopedia of rural life which is spread out before his eyes, the World's Fair visitor is impressed with the important part the farmer plays in the great world of industry, and every farmer who views these interesting exhibits is given a new pride in his vocation if filled with inspiration and impressed with new ideas in harmony with the progressive strides that farming has been making for the past few years. The visit will give an insight into up to date farming on the most approved plan and will bring new hopes and blessings to the farm.

How properly to rotate crops, how to get the best results from fertilizing and irrigation, how to protect crops and fruit from the ravages of insects—all these and many more things of vital interest to farmers and fruit growers are taught at the World's Fair.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS, 1904.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing amendment to article seven of the Constitution, relating to improvement of highways.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the seventh article of the Constitution be amended by adding thereto the following section: § 12. Improvement of Highways.—A debt or debts of the State may be authorized by law for the improvement of highways. Such highways shall be determined under general laws, which shall also provide for the equitable apportionment thereof among the counties. The aggregate of the debts authorized by this section shall not at any one time exceed the sum of fifty millions of dollars. The payment of the annual interest on such debt and the creation of a sinking fund of at least two per centum per annum to discharge the principal at maturity shall be provided by general laws whose force and effect shall not be diminished during the existence of any debt created thereunder. The legislature may by general laws require the county or town or both to pay to the sinking fund the proportionate part of the cost of any such highway within the boundaries of such county or town and the proportionate part of the interest thereon, but no county shall at any time for any highway be required to pay more than thirty-five hundredths of the cost of such highway, and no town more than fifteen hundredths. None of the provisions of the fourth section of this article shall apply to debts for the improvement of highways hereby authorized. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the Legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the Constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 1, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 2, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER TWO.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the constitution in relation to the time within which debts of the state must be paid and striking from said section certain limitations.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section four of article seven of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VII. § 4. Except the debts specified in sections two and three of this article, no debts shall be hereafter contracted by or in behalf of this state, unless such debt shall be authorized by a law for some single work or object, to be distinctly specified therein; and such law shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax to pay, and sufficient to pay, the interest on such debt as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal of such debt within fifty years from the time of the contracting thereof. No such law shall take effect until it shall, at a general election, have been submitted to the people, and have received a majority of all the votes cast for and against it at such election. On the final passage of such bill in either house of the legislature, the question shall be taken by ayes and noes, to be duly entered on the journals thereof, and shall be: "Shall this bill pass, and ought the same to receive the sanction of the people?" The legislature may at any time, after the approval of such law by the people, if no debt shall have been contracted in pursuance thereof, repeal the same; and may at any time, by law, forbid the contracting of any further debt or liability under such law; but the tax imposed by such act, in proportion to the debt and liability which may have been contracted, in pursuance of such law, shall remain in force and be irrepealable, and be annually collected, until the proceeds thereof shall have made the provision hereinbefore specified to pay and discharge the interest and principal of such debt and liability. The money arising from any loan or stock creating such debt or liability shall be applied to the work or object specified in the act authorizing such debt or liability, or for the payment of such debt or liability, and for no other purpose whatever. No such law shall be submitted to be voted on, within three months after its passage or at any general election when any other law, or any bill, shall be submitted to be voted for or against. The legislature may provide for the issue of bonds of the state to run for a period not exceeding fifty years in lieu of bonds heretofore authorized but not issued and shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax for the payment of the same as hereinbefore required. When any sinking fund created under this section shall equal in amount the debt for which it was created, no further direct tax shall be levied on account of said sinking fund and the legislature shall reduce the tax to an amount equal to the accruing interest on such debt. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 21, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 22, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER THREE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the constitution in relation to justices of the appellate division of the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section two of article six of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VI. § 2. The legislature shall divide the state into four judicial departments. The first department shall consist of the county of New York; the others shall be bounded by county lines, and be compact and equal in population as nearly as may be. Once every ten years the legislature may alter the judicial departments, but without increasing the number thereof. There shall be an appellate division of the supreme court, consisting of seven justices in the first department, and of five justices in each of the other departments. In each department four shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of three shall be necessary to a decision. No more than five justices shall sit in any case. From all the justices elected to the supreme court the governor shall designate those who shall constitute the appellate division in each department; and he shall designate the presiding justice thereof, who shall act as such during his term of office, and shall be a resident of the department. The other justices shall be designated for terms of five years or the unexpired portions of their respective terms of office, if less than five years. From time to time as the terms of such designations expire, or vacancies occur, he shall make new designations. A majority of the justices so designated to sit in the appellate division, in each department shall be residents of the department. He may also make temporary designations in case of the absence or inability to act of any justice in the appellate division, or in case the presiding justice of any appellate division shall certify to him that one or more additional justices are needed for the speedy disposition of the business before it. Whenever the appellate division in any department shall be unable to dispose of its business within a reasonable time, a majority of the presiding justices of the several departments at a meeting called by the presiding justice of the department in arrears may transfer any pending appeals from such department to any other department for hearing and determination. No justice of the appellate division shall, within the department to which he may be designated to perform the duties of an appellate justice, exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court, other than those of a justice out of court, and those pertaining to the appellate division, or to the hearing and decision of motions submitted by consent of counsel, but any such justice, when not actually engaged in performing the duties of such appellate justice in the department to which he is designated, may hold any term of the supreme court and exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court in any county or judicial district in any other department of the state. From and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, the appellate division shall have the jurisdiction now exercised by the supreme court at its general terms and by the general terms of the court of common pleas for the city and county of New York, the superior court of the city of New York, the superior court of Buffalo and the city of Brooklyn, and such additional jurisdiction as may be conferred by the legislature. It shall have power to appoint and remove a reporter. The justices of the appellate division in each department shall have power to fix the times and places for holding special terms therein, and to assign the justices in the departments to hold such terms, ... to make rules therefor. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 29, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 6, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FOUR.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to trial commissioners.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that section six of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 6. Circuit courts and courts of oyer and terminer are abolished from and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five. All their jurisdiction shall thereupon be vested in the supreme court, and all actions and proceedings then pending in such courts shall be transferred to the supreme court for hearing and determination. Any justice of the supreme court, except as otherwise provided in this article, may hold court in any county. Whenever and as often as the causes upon the trial term calendar of any county of this state, having a population according to the latest state enumeration of over five hundred thousand, shall have so accumulated that an unpreferred cause cannot be reached for trial in due course within one year after it has been placed upon the calendar, the appellate division of the department in which such county is embraced may, by a certificate signed by a majority of its members, certify the fact to the court of appeals, whereupon said court may by order authorize the appointment in said county of trial commissioners, stating in said order the number of commissioners to be appointed, and their terms of office, not exceeding six years. Such order shall be made in duplicate and one copy thereof filed in the office of the secretary of state, and one in the office of the clerk of the county in which said appointments are authorized. The appellate division of the department embracing said county shall thereupon appoint the number of trial commissioners authorized by said order, who must possess the qualifications required for a justice of the supreme court. They shall possess and exercise in the county for which they are appointed all the powers of a justice of the supreme court respecting the trial and disposition of causes upon said trial term calendar and the settlement of cases on appeal, but shall possess none of the powers of such a justice out of court or at special term. They may be removed in the same manner as is provided in case of a justice of said supreme court. They shall each receive an annual salary of twelve thousand dollars to be paid by the county for which they are appointed, and may not practice law. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 23, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 8, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FIVE.

Concurrent resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the constitution.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section seven of article seven be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Forest preserve.—The lands of the state, now owned or hereafter acquired, constituting the forest preserve as now fixed by law, shall be forever kept as wild forest lands, except as hereinafter provided. They shall not be leased, sold or exchanged, or be taken by any corporation, public or private, nor shall the timber thereon be sold, removed or destroyed. The legislature may authorize the removal of dead timber on burned areas so far as necessary for reforestation, through officers and employees of the state, but not by contract. The legislature may also authorize the sale of lands outside of the limits of the Adirondack park and the Catskill park as such parks are now established by law. The proceeds of such sales shall be set apart in a separate fund and used only for the purchase of lands in such parks. A violation of this section may be restrained at the suit of the people or with the consent of the supreme court on notice to the attorney-general at the suit of any citizen of the state. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 4, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 8, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State, at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section one of article two of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SIX.

Concurrent resolution, proposing amendment to section one of article two of the constitution relating to qualification of voters.

Resolved (if the senate concur), that section one of article two of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article II. Section 1. Qualification of voters.—Every male citizen of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a citizen for ninety days, and an inhabitant of this state one year next preceding an election, and for the last four months a resident of the county or of a city comprising more than one county, and for the last thirty days a resident of the election district in which he may offer his vote, shall be entitled to vote at such election in the election district of which he shall at the time be a resident, and not elsewhere, for all officers that now are or hereafter may be elective by the people, and upon all questions which may be submitted to the vote of the people, provided that in time of war no elector in the actual military service of the state, or of the United States, in the army or navy thereof, shall be deprived of his vote by reason of his absence from such election district; and the legislature shall have power to provide the manner in which and the time and place at which such absent electors may vote, and for the return and canvass of their votes in the election districts in which they respectively reside.

State of New York: In Assembly, Mar. 28, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section one of article two, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to sections one and seven of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SEVEN.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to article six of the constitution in relation to providing additional justices of the supreme court and judges of the court of appeals.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section one of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 1. Supreme court; court of appeals; how constituted; judicial districts.—The supreme court is continued with general jurisdiction in law and equity, subject to such appellate jurisdiction of the court of appeals as now is or may be prescribed by law not inconsistent with this article. The existing judicial districts of the state are continued until changed as hereinafter provided. The supreme court shall consist of the justices now in office, and of the judges transferred thereto by the fifth section of this article, all of whom shall continue to be justices of the supreme court during their respective terms, and of twelve additional justices who shall reside in and be chosen by the electors of, the several existing judicial districts, three in the first district, three in the second, and one in each of the other districts; and of their successors. The successors of said justices shall be chosen by the electors of their respective judicial districts. The legislature may alter the judicial districts once after every enumeration under the constitution, of the inhabitants of the state, and thereupon reapportion the justices to be thereafter elected in the districts so altered. The legislature may at any time, when it deems that the public interests requires it, increase the number of justices of the supreme court or of judges of the court of appeals as it sees fit, provided that the total number of judges of the court of appeals shall not exceed eleven, and provided also that any bill increasing the number of justices or judges as aforesaid shall receive the assent of two-thirds of the members elected to each branch of the legislature. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section seven of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Court of appeals.—The court of appeals is continued. It shall consist of the chief judge and associate judges now in office, and of such additional judges as the legislature may from time to time provide in accordance with section one of this article and as may be elected according to law, who shall hold their offices until the expiration of their respective terms, and of their successors, who shall be chosen by the electors of the state. The official terms of the chief judge and associate judges shall be fourteen years from and including the first day of January next after their election. The legislature may provide by law for the manner in which the court shall sit, whether in two divisions or one, and for the number of members of the court necessary to form a quorum in either instance and also for the number whose concurrence shall be necessary to a decision. The court shall have power to appoint and to remove its reporter, clerk and attendants. § 3. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 13, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to sections one and seven of article six, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER EIGHT.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That section six of article six of the constitution be amended by adding thereto the following: In any department in which supreme court commissioners have been appointed, the justices of the appellate division of the department, or a majority of them, are authorized from time to time to designate one or more of such supreme court commissioners to hold trial terms of the supreme court within such department and to revoke such designation. A commissioner so designated shall have power to hold a trial term of the supreme court within such department and to perform the duties of a justice of the supreme court in the trial term to which he may be assigned. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, to be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 15, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

Old London Bridge.

Old London bridge was a monstrosity. It dated back to the year 1176 A. D., and at least three wooden bridges are known to have occupied the same site prior to that date.

The old bridge was slightly over 900 feet in length, and had eighteen solid stone piers, varying in thickness from twenty-five to thirty-four feet, thus confining the flow of the river to less than half its natural channel. The entire surface of the bridge was occupied by blocks of brick and stone buildings—erected on arches, with the roadway running tunnel-like beneath—some of them four stories high. All of these bridge buildings were densely packed with human beings—at one time estimated at 1,700—carrying on all the trades and other vocations of life. Spanning the two center piers was a huge church building, dedicated to St. Thomas of Canterbury, but usually styled St. Peter's of the Bridge.

In very early time the arch opening from the bridge toward the city was called "Traitors' gate," and it was no unusual thing to see the heads of a dozen executed criminals hanging over it.

THE selection of an employe of the postal department of this city as an election inspector was so clearly a violation of the State election law (section 11) that as soon as the name was presented by the First Ward Committee, Mayor Foster's attention was immediately called to it by The Times. There were some, however, who thought that the section referred to did not fit the case, and in order to settle the matter beyond peradventure, Governor Odell and the Honorable William Barnes, Jr, chairman of the Republican Executive Committee of the State, were appealed to regarding the validity of the preceeding. Both gentlemen decided that a Federal employe was not eligible to the position and advised that the spirit and letter of the election law be strictly adhered to. This city has suffered somewhat through legal entanglements over election matters, and it is only an act of prudence to avoid complications, especially when there is so much at stake.

THE Hon. Francis H. Gates of Chittenango, who was chosen to succeed himself as Senator from this district by the Republican Convention yesterday in Oswego, has served his State and party well. Mr. Gates has had a conscientious regard for the duties and responsibilities of his position and has ever been anxious to pursue the policy which has been for the best interests of his constituents and the State. The Oswego-Madison district has been well represented and Mr. Gate's record of effective performance in legislation is deserving high commendation.

THE SUN, of New York, has had a varied experience in the course of its career as a paper which shone for all. One need not recapitulate the list of all the candidates it has supported, enough for our present purpose to know that it refuses to sup upon the Democratic platform, which it describes as composed of "hell-broth, dishwater and dynamite," and that it announces it prefers the "impulsive candidate," Roosevelt, to the "representative of the Hun vote in the back ground." This is pretty severe, but the Sun always did use strenuous language.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT can see no good reason why mechanics employed in the Washington Navy Yard, who have half a day off on Saturday, should not be paid for that half day as well as clerks who are in the employ of the Government. At all events he has induced the comptroller of the Treasury to take his view of the matter and now people who work with their hands and brains in the District of Columbia will be treated on the same footing as those who work with their brains.

THE famous Populist, Tom Watson, [illegible] the populist fires still burn fiercely [illegible] him. Can it be they are fed [illegible] wood alcohol? In speaking of [illegible] Democratic party he used more [illegible] than poetry when he said: "It [illegible] its appeal to the Diety through a [illegible] and drafted its platform by [illegible]." The truth is the party [illegible] out of the usual.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTIONS

Attorney Giles S. Piper of This City Placed in Nomination for County Judge—Albert S. Barker of Altmar named for Assembly in the Second District. Ambrose S. Gregg of Pennellville for Assembly in the First District.

The Democratic County and Second District conventions were held at Pulaski last Thursday. There was a large attendance. Mr. John H. O'Brien of Phoenix, as chairman of the County Committee, called the County Convention to order and Judge James R. O'Gorman of Oswego became chairman. The Secretaries were Messrs. J. H. Howe of this city, A. C. Moyre of Phoenix and F. J. McNamara of Oswego.

The following committee on resolutions was selected on motion of the Hon. Charles N. Bulger of Oswego: Messrs. O. M. Reilly of Phoenix, Gilbert N. Harding of Lacona, Dr. S. A. Russell of Fulton, G. H. Lang of Amboy, Frederick M. Moore of Richland, Jerome E. Baker of Mexico, George E. Bacon of Scriba, Henry F. Cavanaugh of Oswego, J. A. Frost of Williamstown and J. E. Calkins of Albion.

A resolution on a new plan of organization was adopted which does away with ward and town committees, the county committeemen acting in their places.

In an appropriate speech, Dr. S. A. Russell of this city presented the name of Attorney Giles S. Piper of Fulton for county judge. Speeches seconding the nomination were made by O. M. Reilly of Phoenix, Frederick T. Cahill; John B. Higgins and Charles N. Bulger. Mr. M. B. Dwyer of Constantia moved that the nomination be unanimous and it was carried.

John B. Higgins nominated Major Alexander R. Penfield of Oswego for county treasurer. Ross L. Simons of Mexico was nominated for the special county surrogate and Dr. Charles E. Low of Pulaski for coroner. After selecting the county committeemen, the convention adjourned.

Second Assembly District Convention.

The Second Assembly District Convention was called to order by Michael O'Gorman of Oswego, chairman of the District Committee, shortly after 4 o'clock. Gilbert N. Harding of Lacona was selected as chairman and O. S. Burt of Scriba as secretary. Delegates to the state convention were named as follows: John R. O'Gorman of Oswego, Jerome E. Baker of Mexico, Albert W. Wright of Richland; alternates William Burns of Oswego, George H. Lang of Amboy, Seymour Spoon of Volney.

Albert S. Barker of Altmar was nominated for Member of Assembly, and after the adoption of the customary resolutions and the arranging of details of minor importance, the convention adjourned.

First District Convention.

The Democratic electors of the First Assembly District met in convention in the City Hall last Saturday afternoon. Mr. J. R. Sullivan was elected chairman and Messrs. John Follan and F. J. Cusick, secretaries.

After a permanent organization was effected, the following delegates were selected: State Convention—C. N. Bulger, Oswego; Daniel Brennan, Thomas Shephard, Fulton.

Alternates, Dr. Cooley, Hannibal; William McNamara, Fulton; Douglass Slogan, Granby.

Senatorial Delegates—John Follan, Fulton; Thomas Dalton, Oswego; Herman Coville, Schroeppel.

Congressional Delegates—O. M. Reilly, Phoenix; Emerson Irwin, Oswego Town; F. J. Cusick, Oswego.

Nominations for Member of Assembly were called for by Chairman Sullivan.

Mr. John O'Brien of Phoenix presented the name of Mr. Ambrose Gregg of Pennellville, and on motion, he became unanimous choice of the convention for Assembly from this district.

In response to loud calls for "speech" the chair appointed the Hon. Charles N. Bulger of Oswego, a committee of one to present Mr. Gregg to the convention. Mr. Bulger having fulfilled the duty imposed, Mr. Gregg accepted the nomination, thanking the members for the honor bestowed.

Mr. Bulger was called for and he responded with one of his characteristic speeches, arraigning the Republican party in scathing terms, President Roosevelt in particular, and making a number of statements that were absolutely misleading and untrue, but which were applauded to the echo by his audience.

Resolutions similar to those adopted at the Second Assembly District Convention held in Pulaski Thursday were read and adopted.

$4,000 in premiums will be paid at the Oswego County Fair, Fulton N. Y., Sept. 13, 14, 15 and 16.

No one can afford to have clothing destroyed by acids used in the laundry work; nor to have collars broken at the edges after a few visits to the laundry. You will experience neither difficulty if you patronize the Fulton Steam Laundry.

Observer: Monday a young sporting man of Fulton was down the river in his yacht and touched at Pathfinder Island. While engaged in conversation with those present, a red balloon was seen coming up the river. As it passed over the Island it lodged in the top of a tall tree. All were curious to see what was in the balloon, and the yachtsman being dressed in a light outing suit with light shoes, proceeded to "shin" up the tree with a pole, and with considerable effort succeeded in dislodging the balloon. It contained a card with the following: "In camp at Battle Island, Aug. 29. The holder of this card is entitled to a free shave and hair cut at Otto Scholtz' barber shop in Oneida street"

The New Czarowitz and the Russian Succession

THE Czarowitz Alexis, whose recent christening was made the occasion of a gorgeous and imposing ceremony, is heir to the throne of Russia. When he received at the hands of the church the name of Alexis Nicholaevitch, the bells of the churches rang from the Baltic to the Black sea, and the favors of the czar were extended in many unusual ways to his millions of subjects.

Shortly after the emperor had been made happy by the birth of a son and heir he issued a manifesto determining the order of succession. In this manifesto it was decreed that if the present emperor should die before the czarowitz attains his majority the emperor's brother, the Grand Duke Michael, will become regent, the empress assuming the guardianship of the czarowitz.

The Grand Duke Michael, who before the birth of a son to the emperor was the heir apparent, is now twenty-six years of age, and his character does credit to the imperial family. He is a young man of fine appearance and excellent habits and has high ideals as to his country and its government. He does not, however, enjoy the best of health.

MICHAEL (CZAR'S BROTHER).

Michael is the czar's only brother, but he has four uncles, one greatuncle, four first cousins of the male sex, ten second cousins and thirteen third cousins. All these relatives except the third cousins are grand dukes. The birth of the czarowitz makes it less likely that any of them will succeed to the throne. Nevertheless the line of succession is very carefully guarded. The grand dukes are an expensive luxury for the empire of Russia. They and the thirteen third cousins of the czar represent a drain of about $16,000,000 a year upon the imperial exchequer, for each receives from the treasury of the empire an annual income of a million rubles, or about $500,000.

By a decree of Czar Alexander I. any member of the royal family marrying without the consent of the emperor forfeits the rights of succession. This decree has imposed upon the present emperor a heavy load of responsibility for the affairs of the heart of his thirty-three uncles and cousins. As might be expected, some of them have given him no little trouble.

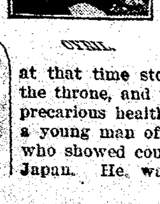
VLADIMIR.

The Grand Duke Vladimir is the eldest of the czar's uncles and occupied the regency during the emperor's illness some years ago. He is the soldier of the imperial family and is generally considered the most intellectual of the Romanoff clan. He was greatly trusted by the predecessor of the present czar. The Grand Duchess Vladimir is a handsome and clever woman, and both she and her husband are very popular. She was the Duchess of Mecklenburg-Schwerin before her marriage. This happy imperial couple have four children, three sons and a daughter.

One of the sons of the Grand Duke Vladimir was in America not long ago and created much comment by his fondness for "seeing the sights." This was the Grand Duke Boris. He came to this country with the view of having a good time, and, according to all accounts, he had it. The newspapers printed a great deal about his visit, and when he returned to Russia he carried back with him a set of scrapbooks consisting of five volumes of ninety pages each, containing in all 120,000 clippings referring to himself. The Grand Duke Boris has been at the front in the war with Japan, but was recently recalled from Manchuria by the czar because of his tendency to paint a bright red any town in which he happened to be sojourning.

BORIS.

Another of the Grand Duke Vladimir's sons is the Grand Duke Cyril, and his romance, the final chapters of which remain to be written, reads like a French novel. Before the birth of a son to the emperor there seemed considerable likelihood that the Grand Duke Cyril might succeed to the throne, as he is the eldest of the czar's first cousins, and only three persons at that time stood between him and the throne, and these were all men of precarious health. The grand duke is a young man of soldierly appearance, who showed courage in the war with Japan. He was on the Petropavlovsk when she was blown up at Port Arthur. He jumped from the vessel and dived far out into the water to avoid being drawn under the sinking hulk. He swam some distance from the ship under water before coming to the surface. He then grasped a piece of wreckage and assisted in rescuing victims of the explosion from the water. After a time he was picked up.



CYRIL.

When the grand duke returned to St. Petersburg he found himself quite a hero. But the applause of the populace was as nothing to him compared with the good opinion of a young woman living at Coburg, who, before her marriage as a girl of seventeen to the Grand Duke Ernest Louis of Hesse-Darmstadt, was the Princess Victoria Melita of Saxe-Coburg. She is a niece of King Edward VII. of England, a high spirited woman, full of dash and admiration for things military. She loves to gallop at the head of the regiment of hussars of which she is colonel. The Grand Duke Ernest is her antithesis, cares nothing for a soldier's life, and, it is said, is devoted to canvas embroidery and knitting. After seven years of unsatisfactory marital relations a divorce took place, the duke agreeing to pay the vivacious Victoria $200,000 per annum. She is a first cousin of the Grand Duke Cyril and had long been a favorite with him. After the divorce the young man offered himself to her and was accepted, the condition being made that the czar should sanction the marriage. This the czar was by no means willing to do—first, because of their near relationship, marriage of first cousins being forbidden by the Russian church, and, second, because of the divorce in the case, this phase of the matter being aggravated by the fact that the first husband of the lady is the brother of the czarina. The match seemed to have been abandoned, but on his return from the war covered with glory the grand duke again besought permission to marry Victoria and this time, it would appear, with better success. At least, it was announced a short time ago that the princess had decided not to accept further allowances from her former husband, and her early marriage to the Grand Duke Cyril is predicted.

ALEXIS.

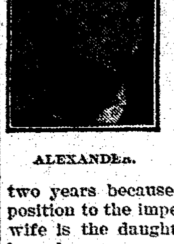
PAUL.

The Grand Duke Michael Michaelovitch, cousin of the present emperor, Nicholas II., braved a former czar's wrath for love of a beautiful and exemplary woman, and his romance is one of the prettiest ever whispered at court. Though his morganatic marriage led to his banishment, he has lived a life of happiness such as few scions of imperial houses enjoy. This Russian prince fell in love with the Countess Sophie Nurenburg, daughter of Prince Nicholas of Nassau by a morganatic marriage. He became acquainted with her through a runaway accident. He caught the plunging horse the princess was riding and helped her to dismount, when the lovely girl fainted in his arms. It was a case of love at first sight. But, knowing the usual results of morganatic unions, the prince would not become his wife unless he promised never to marry another woman. The grand duke readily made the promise and kept it. His wife is one of the most accomplished women in Europe. She is a descendant of the Russian poet Pushkin, who was descended from a negro, and that fact, together with the morganatic status of the mother of the Countess Sophie, caused the late Czar Alexander III. to be very angry at the course of his nephew. When the present emperor came to the throne Michael was forgiven and returned from exile.

MICHAEL (CZAR'S COUSIN).

The Grand Duke Alexis is the czar's uncle and is now fifty-four years of age. He has been in supreme command of the Russian navy as president of the board of admiralty. He visited the United States in 1871.

The Grand Duke Paul Alexandrovitch, another of the czar's uncles, has been in exile for two years because he married in opposition to the imperial command. His wife is the daughter of a St. Petersburg lawyer.



ALEXANDER.

The Grand Duke Alexander Michailovitch, nephew of the late Czar Alexander III., invented a new siege gun for the navy. He is a naval officer and colonel of infantry. He married his cousin, the Grand Duchess Xenia. He visited America in 1893.

WINGS AT LOW PRICE

INVENTOR HOLLAND EXPECTS TO PUT THEM ON MARKET.

They Will Be Guaranteed to Soar. The Inventor of the Submarine Boat Thinks He Has Solved Problem of Flying—Tests In Progress.

"Lend, lend your wings! I mount! I fly!" wrote the poet Pope. In a few years, if the inventor, John P. Holland, can bring it about, no one will have to borrow wings, for they will cost only $10 per pair, and at that rate almost every one will have "the price." Inventor Holland prophesies that in a few years' time the air will be full of people flying about on business or pleasure. He thinks he has found the secret of flying and will soon be able to put a style of wing on the market that will exactly meet the popular demand.

There is a difference between Inventor Holland and Daedalus, Icarus and their modern imitators who have essayed to navigate the air, as Virgil put it, "on wings not given to men." These men have as a rule been visionaries who had no record of performance behind them. Mr. Holland has made startling promises before, but he has kept his word. He promised to build boats that would navigate the sea beneath the waves and did it. The remarkable performances of the submarine boats built on the Holland plan are well known.

From navigation of the depths of the sea to soaring on wings above the clouds is a far cry, yet it may be that the same mind which solved the one problem can solve the other. Of course Mr. Holland will not divulge the secret of making wings which will fly. The shop in New Jersey where the experiments are being conducted is guarded with care, but Mr. Holland allows it to be known that the wings he expects to put on the market will be from ten to fifteen feet long and will be adjusted to the shoulders and hips. Both feet and hands will be used in working the apparatus which is to operate the wings. This apparatus, which is to be of steel wire, leather and some hard but light metal like aluminium, will weigh less than twenty-two pounds. It has not yet been decided of what material the wings themselves shall be constructed. As they are to be built for individuals, of course they will need to be of different sizes and also of different styles, for the woman of society, when she flies off on a shopping tour or to make a few afternoon calls, will want wings to match her costume, while the workingman who sails back and forth between home and shop will care more about the durability than the appearance of his wings. Doubtless only the more venturesome will undertake to fly at first, but as the public becomes accustomed to the idea every one will learn until no more danger will be associated with flying than is now associated with bicycle riding or automobiling. Even young children will have cute little pairs of wings and will fly away from the paternal roof like merry larks. It will be useless to try to keep them penned up in the dooryard then. This is all, of course, according to the Holland idea.

JOHN P. HOLLAND.

For the start in one's aerial journey, the inventor says, it will be necessary to jump from some height, so as to gain momentum. Nobody need fear a fall, for even if the apparatus should fail to work the person with the wings would not drop suddenly to earth, but would descend gradually and thus be able to alight in safety. The inventor advises choosing a "skyscraper" or a public park or a field in which to alight, as the person soaring in the air must come to earth at an angle rather than straight downward. The objection to alighting with a pair of fifteen foot wings in a street crowded with trolley cars and automobiles is obvious.

Mr. Holland once said that it took him twenty-three years to educate the United States government up to the idea of using submarine boats, so he will not be discouraged if his new invention is received with incredulity by the general public. Mr. Holland's first submarine boat was exhibited in New York harbor in 1879. The company which now makes the Holland type of submarine boats is capitalized at $1,000,000. Mr. Holland is no longer connected with the company, but is experimenting with a new submarine boat which he believes will be a greater wonder than that with which the public has now become familiar.

As for flying, he expects ere long to pass some of the pleasantest days of his life sailing through space at the rate of fifty miles an hour.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage upon real property situated within the State of New York, whereby the power to sell has become operative, notice is hereby given that said mortgage, which is dated the 22d day of February, 1889, and is recorded in the office of the Clerk of the County of Oswego, at Oswego, N. Y., on the 23d day of February, 1889, at 9:20 o'clock a. m., in Liber 158 of mortgages at page 422, was given by John E. Cain and Hattie Cain, his wife, mortgagors to Orlando Howell, mortgagee, and the name of each assignee of said mortgage is as follows: 1st assignee, Fred O. Howell, 2d assignee, Maria A. Howell.

The sum claimed to be due upon the said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is sixteen hundred seventy-five dollars and forty-one cents, which is the whole amount secured by said mortgage.

The following is a description of the mortgaged property, contained in the said mortgage:

"All That Tract or Parcel of Land, situate in the Town of Granby, County of Oswego and State of New York, and being on Lot No. 72 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is described as subdivision Number One of said Lot according to Peter Schenck's map, made from his survey & dated Sept. 26, 1839, and is bounded on the N. & W. by the N. & W. lines of said lot; on the S. by the State Road running E. & W. through said lot & on the East by Subdivision No. 2 containing 19 acres of land more or less.

"Also all that certain tract or parcel of land situate in the said Town of Granby, N. Y. & being a part of the State's 100 acres of land on lot No. 62 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is bounded as follows: Beginning at the S. E. Corner of said Lot 62 and running West 21 chains & 62 links; thence N. 11 chains & 56 links; thence E. 21 chains & 62 links to the east line of said Lot, thence S. 11 chains & 56 links, to the place of beginning. Containing twenty-five acres of land, more or less.

"Also all that certain other tract or parcel of land, situate in the Town of Granby, N. Y., and being a part of Lot 71 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby) is bounded as follows: Beginning in the East line of said Lot in the center of the Fulton & Hannibal Plank Road (so called); thence Northerly along the E. line of said lot 71 about 25 rods & 6 links to a stone wall intersecting said line of Lot 71 from the East; thence Westerly in a direct line with the center of said stone wall One Hundred four & one-half (104-½) feet to a stone set in the Earth indicating said corner; thence Southerly parallel with the East line to the center of said highway; thence Easterly along said Highway to the place of beginning. Containing about one acre of land."

Pursuant to the power of sale contained therein, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the said mortgaged property, or a part thereof, at public auction, at the law offices of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton County of Oswego, New York on the 29th day of October, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day.

Dated and subscribed at Fulton, N. Y., this 3d day of August, 1904.

ED. PINAUD'S
EAU DE QUININE HAIR TONIC
A Positive Dandruff Cure!

is the only Hair Tonic I have in my shop. It's the best! I have used one hundred other sorts on a thousand different heads, but never with the wonderful results that Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine has given. At first sight you would think it to my advantage to use a cheap tonic, but when I tell you that one bottle of Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine goes as far as three bottles of any other preparation, you can see that after all this is the best value I can get for the money.

For women, men and children. It cleanses the roots—feeds the cells and strengthens the hair—holds its color and gives a beautiful gloss.

HIS LITTLE MASCOT

By BELLE MANIATES

Copyright, 1904, by Belle Maniates

Bradley paused at the door of Miss Kane's studio, listened a moment to the sound of smoothly struck chords and then gave an apologetic knock. The music ceased and the door was opened by Miss Kane, teacher of vocal music.

"You know better," she said forbiddingly.

"Yes," he said with penitent air, "but I am not a visitor. I came on professional business, really," and walked on into the room."

"Do you want your voice tried?" she asked sarcastically.

"No, I don't want you to score another point against me, but I called to see you in regard to your pupil, the little girl Patti. I understand she is to make her debut at the charity concert tomorrow night. I want to write her up."

"Oh!" she exclaimed, interested, but still skeptical. "And since when did the city editor himself take to writing 'In a Minor Strain' column?"

"Miss Fleming is ill," he replied, "and we are all helping her out. I volunteered to take this part of her work. I thought, Miss Kane," he said earnestly, "that it would be to your advantage and to that of the child to get satisfactory press notices, and I will write whatever you wish."

"Thank you very much, Mr. Bradley," she replied, her little air of reserve melting for the once. "I shall be very glad if you will do so."

"Now, what kind of a voice has she?"

"High soprano. Her voice is perfectly placed. When I discovered her pure tones—I heard her first in a school—I had her come to the studio. I sounded low C on the piano and asked her to sing the note. She did, with perfect attack and pitch. Then she kept on with the successive tones and half tones until we came to B flat. I began to tremble, for there begins the middle register, the stumbling block of nearly all singers, but the right quality came into her voice—that imperceptible shading of the chest tones as they emerge into the smooth waters of the soprano's realm. The tones kept coming clearly, sweetly and with a silvery ring until I didn't dare take her any farther."

"I suppose it's all right," said Bradley, with a perplexed sigh, "but it's all Greek to me. If her voice was perfect by nature why are you giving her lessons?"

"I have made her voice stronger and more flexible; have taught her phrasing and enunciation."

"I think you had better write a little sketch of her personality and voice and I will publish it."

There came a light rap at the door, and a slender little wisp of a girl with big brown eyes and golden hair came into the studio.

"This, Mr. Bradley, is my little song bird, Louise Harvey."

Bradley was very fond of children. He shook hands with the little songstress and, turning to Miss Kane, said:

"Is it possible that this microscopic child can sing so gloriously as I have heard it intimated?"

The little girl drew herself up with a suspicion of hauteur.

"I am in my teens!" she protested.

"That does give one an old feeling," he said, with a laugh. "I haven't forgotten the first day I could say so proudly, 'I am in my teens.'"

"Have you been out of them long?" Miss Kane could not forbear asking.

The bright eyes of Louise sparkled with appreciative mirth.

"Miss Louise, you mustn't make fun of me. I have the power to make or mar public personages. I am going to put your picture in the paper tonight, and the day after tomorrow I shall tell how well you can sing."

"Thank you," said the little girl simply. "But I must go now. I came to return this music, Miss Kane."

"I will go with you," said Bradley. "We will stop at the florist's and order some flowers for you to carry at the concert."

Louise flushed with pleasure as she left the room in company with Bradley.

"I like Miss Kane. She is lovely to me," she confided when they were out on the street.

"I wish she would be lovely to me," he said ruefully.

"Is she mad at you?" asked Louise ingenuously.

"Yes, music mad. But unfortunately I can only appreciate music from a ragtime standpoint, so I can't creep into the circle of devotees Miss Kane draws around herself."

"Why don't you jump in?" asked Louise.

He stopped abruptly and looked reflectively at her.

"That's a very good idea, Miss Louise. Thank you."

When they reached the florist's and Louise had selected the roses he was to send to her on the morrow, Bradley said:

"Now I will make my first jump and send Miss Kane some roses too."

"Send her violets," replied the little girl earnestly. "They are her favorite flower."

"Thank you again, Miss Louise. You are certainly my mascot."

He ordered a huge bunch of violets to be sent to Miss Kane on the evening following and left his card to accompany them.

When Beryl Kane was dressing for the concert a box from the florist's was brought to her. A little thrill of pleasure went through her as she lifted the cover and saw the violets; another when she read the card.

"I thought," she mused, "that he held me in disdain as 'one of that musical crowd' who are so uninteresting to him. He addresses such curt, cynical remarks to me when we meet. I always begin to get a retort ready as soon as I see him approach. I wonder how he came to send me these! I suppose because he was giving Lou some."

She sighed as she finished her toilet. Her carriage stopped at the home of her little pupil, and Louise, radiant with excitement and pleasure, came out, carrying her roses.

"You got the violets Mr. Bradley sent you, didn't you?" asked the young girl as she took her seat beside Miss Kane. "I must tell you what he said about you. He said you were music mad and you didn't care for him because he wasn't musical and he could never get into your circle, and I told him to jump in."

Beryl listened to this voluble confidence with the feeling that she ought to check or reprove the little tale bearer, but she didn't. She felt still another little thrill and thought what a lovely night it was. If only Louise would do her best!

Louise did. She came out upon the stage clad in the white robes of a chorister, her fair childish face brilliant with excitement and expectancy. Her eager, searching eyes caught sight of Bradley in one of the boxes. She flushed happily while the dimples came and went. The prelude to her number ended, Bradley, the crowd, every one, vanished from her thoughts. She forgot herself in the grand music of the "Ave Maria," and she surpassed in its delivery the highest hopes of her teacher.

Then followed a wild ecstasy of applause from an enthusiastic audience, and she reappeared, this time attired in a pretty white frock. She sang "Home, Sweet Home," into the hearts of her hearers. Applause, calls, recalls and flowers followed.

When the excitement had subsided and the next number was on Bradley found his way behind the scenes.

"Miss Louise," he said, bowing low to the happy little girl, "when you are a great prima donna don't forget that I gave you your first flowers."

"May I thank you for my violets?" said a soft voice behind him.

He turned, and his face glowed with pleasure when he saw Miss Kane was carrying his flowers. He noted how happy she looked, but attributed the fact to the success her pupil had scored.

"Even I know that Miss Louise made a hit. Every one is wild over her singing, and they say she is the perfect exponent of your teaching."

"Then my ambition is satisfied musically," she replied. "I wanted to be recognized as a successful teacher."

"And have you any ambitions other than music?"

"Why, of course," she laughed. "Music is only a part of my life."

"Every one has an aim," said Louise precociously. "Mine is to be a prima donna, Miss Kane's to be a teacher. What is yours, Mr. Bradley?"

"To make a scoop," replied Beryl.

"That is only a 'part of my life,'" he quoted. "I have another, a great aim and hope."

"What is it?" asked Louise artlessly.

"I am going to tell Miss Kane some time if she will let me. Then I will tell you."

Some one called Louise away just then.

"May I come and see you soon—tomorrow night—Miss Kane?" he asked in vibrant voice.

"Yes," she replied softly, screening her face with the violets.

"I always thought you were bored by people who were not musical," he said.

"And I always thought," she retorted, "that you were bored by people who were musical."

"You were mistaken."

"So were you."

Louise ran to them.

"Our carriage is here, Miss Kane. Are we going home now?"

"Certainly not," replied Bradley quickly. "Prima donnas always have a supper after they sing. I am going to take you to one now, and Miss Kane will chaperon us."

"Oh, oh!" cried Lou ecstatically. "This is my loveliest night!"

"And mine," declared Bradley emphatically.

"And mine," echoed Beryl softly.

Sing While at Work.

"They say the man whose soul wakes not to music is dead indeed," said the man on the lookout for odd things, "and the average working negro in this great southland of ours seems to be a pretty fair example of those who have 'waked,' if his fondness for venting his feelings in music is to be taken as a criterion. Did you ever see a gang of street laborers at work that some one or more of them were not calling out to an original theme a story anent the things good to a darky's eyes? They seem to fit the very measure of motion, whether it be the swing of a hammer or pick or the heaving of some weighty object. I saw a gang at their labor the other day, and the ditty they enunciated held me interested until I had learned the very rhythm, if not the dialect, myself. These two fellows told their trouble and desire along this line:

"'Say, old man, augh!' (with a swing of the pick).

"'Have yer got a good dog?'

"'Can he catch any coons?'

"'Just take him and try him.'

"Repeating the grunt with every stroke. To the white man this might look like wasted energy, but somehow the negro seems to do more and do it better with a musical incentive."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A Power For Good.

The pills that are potent in their action and pleasant in effect are DeWitt's Little Early Risers. W. S. Philpot, of Albany, Ga., says: "During a billious attack I took one. Small as it was it did me more good than Calomel, blue mass or any other pill I ever took and at the same time the effect was pleasant. Little Early Risers are certainly an ideal pill." Sold by H. C. Giesler and G. T. Boyington.

Its Advantages.

Scene—Train stopping at small railroad station. Irritable Old Gentleman—What on earth do they stop at a station like this for? Objectionable Passenger (alighting)—To allow me to get out. Irritable Old Gentleman—Ah! I see it has its advantages then.

Young Plants

Every farmer knows that some plants grow better than others. Soil may be the same and seed may seem the same but some plants are weak and others strong.

And that's the way with children. They are like young plants. Same food, same home, same care but some grow big and strong while others stay small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion offers an easy way out of the difficulty. Child weakness often means starvation, not because of lack of food, but because the food does not feed.

Scott's Emulsion really feeds and gives the child growing strength.

Whatever the cause of weakness and failure to grow—Scott's Emulsion seems to find it and set the matter right.

Sixteenth Century Manners.

In an old book published in the sixteenth century and entitled "The Accomplished Lady's Rich Closet; or, Ingenious Gentlewoman's Delightful Companion," it is written:

"A gentlewoman being at table must observe to keep her body straight and lean not by any means with her elbows nor by ravenous gesture discover a voracious appetite. Talk not when you have meat in your mouth and do not smack like a pig nor venture to eat spoon meat so hot that the tears stand in your eyes, which is as unseemly as the gentlewoman who pretended to have as little a stomach as she had a mouth and therefore would not swallow her peas by spoonful, but took them one by one and cut them in two before she would eat them. It is very unseemly to drink so large a draft that your breath is almost gone and you are forced to blow strongly to recover yourself. In carving at your own table distribute the best pieces first, and it will appear very comely and decent to use a fork, so touch no piece of meat without it."

Sour Stomach.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, sour stomach is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food throughly Let five hours elapse between meals, and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the sour stomach may be avoided. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

When troubled with constipation try Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They are easy to take and produce no griping or other unpleasant effect. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

Science and Human Sense Organs.

Dr. Carl Snyder says in the American Inventor, while pointing out the inferiority of human sense organs to the instruments of science, that, whereas the human eye can see only little more than 3,000 stars in the heavens on the clearest of nights, the photographic plate and the telescope can discern countless millions. The eye if a good one can perceive a measure of one two-hundredth of an inch. The microscope makes an object one ten-thousandth of an inch look comparatively large To hear the footsteps of a fly seems inconceivable; but, assisted by the microphone, the tread of that insect sounds like the tramp of cavalry. The most sensitive skin cannot detect a change in temperature of less than one-fifth of a degree, but the bolometer will register on a scale an increase or decrease of temperature of one one-millionth of a degree and can discern the difference in temperature in a room when a match is lighted.

The Reason.

Little Son—Father, is there a reason for all things? Father—Yes, I suppose so. Little Son—Well, then, father, why do hens lay eggs? Father—Because they can't stand them on end.

The Foolish Man

The Back Porch Sanitarium.

Ninety-eight per cent of those who have tuberculosis of the lungs, if they get well at all, will have to do so at home, but not "by the fireside." Even in tenement houses people have made good recoveries, but it has been by lying under a wide open window all day long and all night long, by extra feeding, by rest and by good courage. There are wondrous possibilities on back porches and in sheltered nooks. It isn't the coldness of the air nor yet the sweltering heat of the sun that heals. It is the fresh, pure air in comfort. The patient must not be annoyed by cold or heat, but must be dressed so as to be comfortable. Sleep out of doors, shielded from the storm, and dress indoors where it is warm.—Everybody's Magazine.

From 148 to 92 Pounds.

One of the most remarkable cases of a cold, deep-seated on the lungs, causing pneumonia, is that of Mrs. Gertrude E. Fenner, Marion, Ind. who was entirely cured by the use of One Minute Cough Cure. She says: "The coughing and straining so weakened me that I ran down in weight from 148 to 92 pounds. I tried a number of remedies to no avail until I used One Minute Cough Cure. Four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me entirely of the cough, strengthened my lungs and restored me to my normal weight, health and strength." Sold by H. C. Giesler and G. T. Boyington.

Undignified but Cool Official.

A humble French official who was sent to one of the hottest departments of France found his bureau a perfect furnace until he had a brilliant idea. He improvised a cistern and sat in it all day. The public came into his office and panted, but he was up to his armpits in water, cool and comfortable. Nobody minded; it was thought very clever of him, and he grew in the local esteem. But one day there came an inspector whose business it was to maintain the dignity of the public service. He stood aghast. What! A registrar sitting in a cistern? It was a stigma on the republic. The case was reported to Paris, and the offender was on the point of being dismissed when a cynic suggested a more humorous punishment. "Send him to Algeria!" Even the cisterns are hot in that climate.—London Chronicle.

No Choice.

"And you say all the girls at the summer hotel were devoted to you?"

"Yes."

"Well, I must say they were easily suited."

"They had to be. I was the only young man there."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

LIVER TROUBLE CURED.

Cal-cura Solvent, Dr. Kennedy's NEW Medicine, Drove the Disease Out of Mr. Larsen's System.

A proprietary medicine that is not without honor in the city where it is made, must be a good thing. No chance for deception there, where everybody knows all about the men who make it. In Rondout, City of Kingston, N. Y., where Dr. David Kennedy lived and practiced for so many years, his new medicine is highly regarded and many wonderful cures have been wrought by it. There is Mr. Christopher Larsen, the leading painter and decorator of that city, who says:

"I have not had a sick day since I was cured of kidney and liver trouble, and painter's colic, by Dr. Kennedy's new medicine called Cal-cura Solvent. It drove the disease out of my system, so it never came back. Nothing like Cal-cura Solvent to purify the blood." $1.00; all druggists.

AFTER THE FARMERS

Democratic Chairman Sends Tammany Congressman to "Reorganize" Them.

He Travels About For a Week and the Job Is Done.

Francis Burton Harrison of New York city has been appointed by Chairman Cord Meyer to visit the counties north of the Bronx and "reorganize the farmers," as the Democratic state committee described his work.

He has begun operations. He visited Esopus as the guest of Judge Parker. He proceeded to Albany, where he dined at the Fort Orange club. Then he went to Troy. He has returned to New York. He was absent from New York one week, according to dispatches in New York city newspapers.

Simultaneously with his return the Democratic papers of New York city announced:

After a complete tour of New York state in his capacity as vice chairman of the bureau of organization of the Democratic state committee Congressman Francis Burton Harrison returned to the city yesterday and made a report to Chairman Meyer of the state committee and also to Chairman Sheehan of the executive committee. He said that organization had been perfected in every election district of the state, with from ten to twelve men at work in each looking after the vote and the canvass. As there are upward of 5,000 election districts in the state, this means an army of from 50,000 to 60,000 persons now actively at work in New York state in the interests of the Parker and Davis ticket.

Mr. Harrison, who thus speedily can organize "the farmers," is one of the rich young men of New York city. He is a Tammany congressman. He is a member of a half dozen or more clubs. But such speedy work as getting from 50,000 to 60,000 men at work in every election district in the state in a week's time, it is conceded, stamps Mr. Harrison as one of the wonders of the day.

It was only a few days ago that Chairman Tom Taggart of the Democratic national committee announced officially that he was going to print and distribute 15,000,000 tons of Democratic documents. The New York Herald let out the hot air in this statement by showing that the total output of all the paper mills in the United States in a year is 1,568,873 tons. So Mr. Taggart's scheme would involve the entire paper product for about ten years.

The suggestion has been made that perhaps Mr. Harrison's "reorganization of the farmers" may have been computed on the Taggart basis.

THE LAWS ENFORCED.

Mr. Fairbanks Emphatically Cites the Republican Record.

No one can truthfully say the laws have not been faithfully enforced. They have been enforced against all who have disobeyed them with equal impartiality.

This is what the people demand. They will have nothing else. Our Democratic friends inveigh against the trusts, yet they have done nothing to restrain them.

While the Republican party believes in restraining capital which is organized to restrict just competition, it firmly believes in safeguarding that which is engaged in wholesome trade and commerce.

Our modern development requires the use of larger capital than was necessary a few years ago. The use of such capital is not a menace. It has a vital function to perform in our material development. It is only the misuse of it we seek to guard against.

The Democratic party has put upon the federal statute books no act to regulate combinations which concern the public welfare, nor has it enforced those written there by the Republican party. All that has been done with respect to trust regulation has been done by the Republican party. The Sherman antitrust law was the fruit of Republican statesmanship.

President Cleveland in his last annual message recognized the existence of trust evils, but declared that the laws enacted by congress for their cure were inadequate. We should not forget that the same laws which Mr. Cleveland regarded insufficient have been effectively enforced by Republican administrations. They have been sustained by the courts. They have enabled us to hold in restraint many combinations effected to restrict wholesome competition.

President Roosevelt has had a large number of railroads restrained from giving rebates to shippers. The Northern Pacific merger, which sought practically to combine competing railroads, has been declared to be illegal. These are a few of the things accomplished by the administration in the enforcement of the antitrust laws.—From Senator Fairbanks' Speech at Marion, Kan.

It's Different Now.

The national Democratic committee could not find a vacant building for the committee's use this year in the business district of New York. How different from 1896, after four years [illegible] and his tariff theories, when [illegible] and vacant stores were [illegible]where.—Carthage Republic-

Alumni Association Meeting.

The meeting of the High School Alumni Association held on Wednesday evening was productive of much encouragement for those who are interested in the Free Scholarship movement. There was a large attendance and much interest was manifested. The members of the Association as far as have been heard from, have responded liberally. The committee was empowered to proceed with the work of soliciting for the fund, and were empowered to ask contributions from the friends of the Association. The students and instructors in the High School will actively work for the cause during this year, and it is hoped to secure the entire sum necessary for a perpetual scholarship in Cornell University, by Jan. 1. Owing to the fact that Miss Mabel Osborne will be away teaching, thus making one less active member on the committee, Miss Helen Osborne was also made a member of the committee.

Passengers Involved as Accomplices

The St. Louis World's Fair proves, as everybody knew it would, an inviting field for the ticket scalper, whose sphere of operations has been for the last few years growing small by degrees and beautifully less. The railroad managers, forwarned, have been forearmed, and the courts of St Louis appear to have no doubt either as to the law or their duty in the case. Fines of $250 and $300, accompanied with from ten to sixty days in jail, are handed out with neatness and dispatch, and the nefarious business is evidently to be broken up from its foundations. Patrons of ticket scalpers however, have received an additional warning in the fact that while they not only stand to lose their money, they are also likely to be involved as accomplices or detained as witnesses for the prosecution. In any way it is looked at, the less the honest traveler has to do with the scalper the better, for the apparent saving in the transaction is likely to prove in the end the most dearly bought experience.—Brooklyn Standard Union, August 5, 1904.

"INDEPENDENT" JUDICIARY LEAGUE

How It Is Regarded By the Republicans of the City of Fulton—Base Insinuations Regarding County Judge Arouse Fighting Blood—Judge Stowell Endorsed—Republicans Loyal to Entire Ticket.

A fear has been expressed that the Republicans in this city might be apathetic in the coming campaign; that they were content to let the excellence of the national and county tickets plead their own cause; that victory was already assured with little effort necessary on the part of the electors, but an alleged independent movement started last week against the head of the county ticket, Judge Merrick Stowell, by a few men who are not Republicans, but who have been a menace to the party in this city, has brought forth such a vigorous protest that all danger of defeat through lethargy has passed.

The men who are leading the alleged independent movement are known to be far removed from favoring any project that is independent of pecuniary advantage to themselves, and their oft-repeated scheme has been to pose as belonging to the party which they most desire to injure. These "reform" specialists are undoubtedly possessed of all the important knowledge regarding the duties and characteristics of the judiciary. Their pretensions, however, have only excited ridicule in this city where they are known, but their base insinuations have aroused the fighting blood of all Republicans.

It was erroneously stated in last week's Observer, heretofore a Prohibition paper, that there is an "aroused sentiment in this city against the re-election of Merrick Stowell to the office of County Judge." This statement, coupled with another in the same paper, that the "business of the County Court has deteriorated to practically nothing in civil procedures, due to the administration of Judge Stowell," is positively untrue, and is told with malicious intent.

The Republican party has placed in nomination the Hon. Merrick Stowell for county judge. He has been a wise and just judge, administering the duties of his office in a fearless and admirable manner, and he is worthy the loyal support of his party.

It will be seen from the following interviews, held with prominent [illegible] deeply interested in the welfare [illegible] and morbid imaginations:

In so far as I have had anything to do with the County Court or observed the work of Judge Merrick Stowell, I have only words of the highest commendation to express regarding him. He has been unqualifiedly fair, upright and impartial in his conduct of the office.

Thomas Hunter, President of the Board of Public Works.

My relations with Judge Stowell are of the most cordial nature. I admire his stalwart Republicanism and heartily approve of his renomination for office. He is entitled to and will receive my most unqualified support.

Nicholas Lester, Commander of Post Scheack No. 271, G. A. R.

I have a warm admiration for the Hon. Merriek Stowell—first as a comrad and second as a judge. He has, in my opinion, been an equitable and conscientious administrator of justice, thoroughly unprejudiced, and I shall support him at the polls with all the influence I can command and sincerely hope for his re-election to the county judgeship—a position he has honored for many years.

George G. Chauncey, Ex-President Fire and Police Commissioners.

I am opposed to the alleged independent movement and will vote and work for the entire Republican ticket.

George C. Webb, District Committeeman, Fourth Ward.

Judge Stowell has made an excellent record on the bench and I heartily endorse him and will do all I can to elect him.

Dr. H. L. Lake, Chairman City Committee.

The high standing and sagacious leadership of Judge Stowell in party affairs, together with a clean record on the bench, entitles him to the solid vote of Republicans throughout the county.

Leonard E. Taggart, County Committeeman, First Ward.

The movement started by alleged Republicans to defeat Judge Stowell at the coming election should not meet with any encouragement from good, loyal members of the party, and will, in all probability fail for lack of support. It would seem as if there was too much at stake this Fall for any one to introduce anything into the campaign that would tend to disrupt the party vote, and Judge Stowell's services as judge and leader of the Republican party in the county entitles him to re-election by a large majority.

James A. Foster, Mayor of the City of Fulton.

The report that Republicans have started a movement against the election of Judge Stowell is without foundation, so far as I am able to discover. The only ones so interested are not considered closely identified with the Republican party, and I believe will have little influence with its vote. Judge Stowell is entitled to the full vote of the Republican party from both his record and nomination by that party, and I confidently expect it.

John Hunter, Ex-Member of the Board of Education, Fifth Ward.

I am glad indeed to have the opportunity of indorsing Judge Stowell, and it will be a pleasure to give him my unqualified support. Having had experience in the judge's court, I know his justice is impartial and fair, and as an adviser to the uninitiated he is courteous and kind. He deserves the support of his constituency and should have it without question. I feel it a privilege to pay such a tribute to an official so worthy.

Surrogate S. B. Mead.

As an attorney, I have practiced before Judge Stowell during his term of office as County Judge, and I regard him as thoroughly competent and honest, and so far as my observation extends, he has discharged his duties without fear or favor. I shall support him and do all I can to promote his election. I regard the alleged independent movement as a device originated by David Bennett Hill, who hopes that an attempted split of tickets on the part of the Republican electors will cause a large number of votes to be lost to the State and National tickets. It is a poor time for Republicans to fail to support any candidate of their party.

Republican Organization, Sixth Ward.

EDITOR FULTON TIMES: In reply to your inquiry I would say, in behalf of the Republican organization of the Sixth ward of the city of Fulton, that it will be unconditional in its support of the entire Republican ticket in the coming election.

H. PUTNAM ALLEN,
County Committeeman.

Mr. John Stephenson, Ex-Police Justice, Second Ward.

I am for Judge Stowell, first, last and all the time. He has discharged the duties of his office in an admirable and praiseworthy manner. You can believe that I will do my duty by him and all the Republican nominees at the polls.

Ward Committee, First Ward.

We believe every Republican should support Mr. Stowell for County Judge. Any opposition to him comes from wrong motives. He has proved himself to be an able, fearless and valuable member of the organization.

F. A. LAMSON,
C. S. BURLEIGH.

Dr. Homer P. Marsh, Member of the Board of Education, Fifth Ward.

Judge Stowell has my hearty endorsement and support for re-election to county judgeship. He is an ideal judge and Republicans will make a grave mistake if they endorse any alleged independent movement which to my mind is only a clever Democratic trick.

Charles R. Bennett, County Committeeman, Third Ward.

I heartily endorse the candidacy of Judge Stowell for the office of County Judge, and at all times and places will do what I can to insure his election.

William Hunter, Ex-County and City Committeeman, Fifth Ward.

I am for Judge Stowell's re-election to the office of County Judge, the duties of which he has so ably discharged, and will do my utmost for him at the polls. He is, in my judgment, an ideal and just judge and a fearless and equitable administrator of the law.

Frederick L. Burden, President of the Fire and Police Commissioners, First Ward.

I am proud to be numbered with the Republican workers of my ward and city. Depend upon it, the nominees of the parties shall have my loyal support. In regard to Judge Stowell, no man in the party is more deserving of the nomination for County Judge. The men who are opposing him are the same who have been against our Republican organization throughout. They are not worthy of consideration.

E. P. Cole, County Committeeman, Fifth Ward.

I have always known Judge Stowell as a man of integrity, an able judge and a loyal Republican—one who is worthy of the high office which he has filled for many years with credit to himself and the party. No Republican or fair-minded man should register a vote against him.

Harry L. Waugh, Ex-Alderman, Fifth Ward.

The Republicans have placed in the field an excellent county ticket, worthy of support. The alleged independent movement in my judgment is simply a scheme to entrap unsuspicious Republicans into cutting their ballots in the hope that the City, County, State and National tickets might suffer in the shuffle and the Republican majority be reduced, thereby endangering the State and National nominees. Judge Stowell is my candidate for County Judge. He is entitled to the hearty support of all Republicans.

H. A. Ferguson, City Committeeman, Third Ward.

The candidacy of Judge Stowell has met with my hearty approval, and you may count upon it, anything I can do to secure his election will be done. He is in every way qualified for the duties of the office; is a fearless and faithful judge, and in my humble opinion should be retained. At all events, he is a Republican, and is deserving of the support of his party. What I am anxious to learn is why should the Republican party give any support to the Democratic nominees?

George R. Simons, County Committeeman, Second Ward.

I am opposed to this alleged independent movement. There is no necessity for it. A few soreheads—possibly three—do not represent the Republican workers of this city. My idea is that all differences, if there be any, should be settled at the primaries. Judge Stowell has my hearty support for re-election He is a Republican of which we are all proud.

N. H. Gilbert, City Committeeman, Fifth Ward.

I wish to put on record my sincere admiration for Judge Stowell as a judge, a man, and a Republican. His unwavering fairness in decisions, his loyalty to his party and his ability as a lawyer should and will recommend him to every Republican elector in Oswego County. I heartily disapprove of the alleged independent movement and shall use my every effort against it and for the election of Judge Stowell.

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

Special Correspondence to The Times.

At a conference held this afternoon, (Tuesday) it became very evident that Lieutenant Governor Frank W. Higgins will become the choice of the convention for Governor; a poll taken of the choice of the delegates in Saratoga at that time giving Mr. Higgins 709 and Timothy Woodruff 265 votes, out of a total of 974. The temporary chairman will be J. S. Fassett; permanent chairman, George Maltby. Only a preliminary session will be held Wednesday.

MAINE ENDORSES ROOSEVELT.

Maine endorses President Roosevelt and the Republican administration by electing the Republican candidate for Governor, William T. Cobb, by a plurality of about 30,000.

MARRIED.

Miss Lillian Brown and Mr. Ernest Borden, both well known in this city, were united in marriage on Sunday evening at the home of the bride's parents in Syracuse. They left on the evening train for their future home in Philadelphia. Mrs. Joseph Grom of this city was among the guests at the wedding.

The Rev. James Tholens of Syracuse, formerly pastor of the Free Methodist church in this city was united in marriage in Utica last week with Mrs. Minnie Gaines, widow of the late blind preacher and musician, the Rev. Alfred Gaines of Rome. Mr. and Mrs. Tholens will reside at No. 520 Tallman street, Syracuse.

DIED.

Almira E. Powers, aged 83, died at her home in Minetto on Thursday from heart disease, after a lingering illness. The funeral was held from the Baptist church in Scriba on Saturday.

Martha A., the 9-months old daughter of the late Bert and Grace Candee, died at the home of her grandmother, No. 803 Emory street, on Saturday. The funeral services were held from the house on Tuesday. Interment was made in Mt. Adnah.

Thursday as James Wilcox, a well-known resident of Granby, was engaged with his hired man in building a fence, he was striken with apoplexy and expired immediately. He called to the man to catch him as he was falling, but before he could be reached, he was dead. Medical aid was procured but to no avail. The deceased was well known in this city as he conducted a meat market in Cayuga street for several years. He was a member of Hiram Lodge, F. and A. M., and that body was well represented at the funeral, which was held at the home on Sunday afternoon, the Rev. G. R. Foster officiating; interment in Mt. Adnah. The deceased is survived by his widow and three brothers, Messrs. Lyman and Cyrus of Granby and William of Eckerson, North Dakota.

Athletic Association.

A meeting of the High School Athletic Association was held on Thursday afternoon when plans for the coming school year were discussed, and officers for the Association selected as follows; President, Grove Gilbert; secretary and treasurer, Prof. George Moore; committee, Prof. George Edmunds of the faculty; Attorney W. S. Hillick of the Alumni, and Frank Morin of the student body. Raymond Doty was elected captain of the football team. It is expected that the team will even excel previous years' teams in proficiency as there is plenty of good material in the school from which to select the regular team. Practice work has already commenced and matches with strong teams will be played.

Shocking Accident.

Mrs. Austin Lansing of Oneida, a former resident of this city, was instantly killed when returning from the State Fair on Thursday evening. It will always remain a mystery as to how the accident really occurred as it was dark and no one seems to have been an eye witness to it. The theory is that Mrs. Lansing attempted to leave the train before it had reached a standstill, to avoid the crowd that would be getting off at the station, and that her dress skirt caught on the coach and she was drawn under the wheels Her body was broken and the body was mutilated. Physicians say her death was instantaneous. Mr. Lansing died in November The deceased is survived by two sons, Messrs. Carroll of New York City and William of Rome. The funeral was held on Monday. Mr. A. P. Tucker of this city, a relative, attended it.

NOW'S THE TIME, And Why.

Now's the time to get free piping—now, while our offer is open. Don't overlook this fact—now is the time to act.

Have you ever stopped to consider what free piping really means? for it means so much—means all ditching and all piping, from the street main to the plate or gas range, free. Not a cent does all this cost you—not one "red" cent; we bear all this expense, aggregating fully $20.00; you simply buy the plate and oven or range—buy it on weekly payments of $1.00, if you wish; we do the rest. Living in a rented house? that cuts no figure—free piping now and each time you may move.

A $22.00 gas range for $13.50 should also induce prompt action, for here is a further saving of $8.50.

Three-burner gas plates with 20-inch ovens sell by hundreds, cost so little, only $5.50 each. They easily take care of families of 6 or 8. Free piping even to these gas plates.

Now's the time to put in lights, lights that are lights—powerful, soft and steady; lights that surpass all others; lights that cost less to burn than oil lights. There's a special lighting offer on at present. Take up this lighting question with us. How many do you think you'll need? Just let us know, and we will name a figure on the spot, right at our office.

Though the climaxes are thrilling even sensational, there are no incongruities and each situation lends effectiveness to a harmonious work. Excellent acting helps the spectator to a keen enjoyment while the eye is treated to a succession of faithful reproduction of New York scenes, including a big department store, an east side slum, the interior of Trinity church and the receiving room of Bellevue Hospital. Prices 25, 35 and 50 cents. Seats now on sale.

Hoyt's "A Trip to Chinatown."

The attraction at the Stephens Opera House next Friday evening Sept. 16th will be Charles Hoyt's most successful comedy "A Trip to Chinatown", with its sparkling music, catchy songs, and novel vaudeville features.

The late Charles Hoyt had this advantage over most playwrights, he could present in quick succession the smart sayings that strike the audience like so many pointed tacks and could see at once the full force of a ridiculous situation. This talent was never demonstrated more plainly than in "A Trip to Chinatown". There are several scenes in which the situations are so ridiculous that they evoke peals of laughter, in fact merriment rules from the moment the curtain rises and there is not a dull moment from then until the end.

This season the play is said to have an entirely new musical setting of the latest successes of popular authors, and a first-class company of comedians is promised.

Seats now on sale at Watson's drug store.

Very desirable rooms for light house keeping, boarding or students wishing to board themselves, may be secured at the home of Mrs. C. H. Graves, 173 West First street, Fulton. 14-tf

WORLD'S FAIR

An Interesting Letter from One Who Has Recently Returned from St. Louis. An Exhibition of Marvellous Beauty and Magnitude.

It would be impossible to adequately describe the Louisiana Purchase Exposition because of its magnitude. As a whole it is very beautiful. The immense park of twelve hundred acres contains more than one thousand buildings great and small. In style the architecture is mostly a modification of the Renaissance. The buildings are ivory white with a touch of color in the roofs; the spacious lawns are green and velvety and the walks of pink gravel, making the color scheme ideal.

The horticultural display is not confined to the palace of horticulture, but in every part of the grounds and surrounding every building are examples of the highest art in gardening and floral display. The largest rose garden in the world slopes from the east side of Horticultural Palace and covers ten acres; while near by is a cactus garden of special interest to those who have never seen these plants in their native home.

Crowning an eminence in the central part of the grounds stands Festival Hall. On either side stretches the Colonade of States, while in front of these the Cascades pour their waters down over the brims of a series of ten marble basins, at the foot of the hill forming the lagoon which surrounds several of the large buildings.

In the main exposition palaces the exhibits resemble somewhat those of the Columbian Exposition at Chicago, in that they display the achievements of all the nations of the earth.

In the Palace of Education and Social Economy the Sloyd work exhibited by the schools of Sweden shows their great proficiency in manual training; and the display of our own American schools shows great progress along these lines in the last decade. In several sections the entire furnishings, consisting of clocks, furniture, ornamental pieces of metal work, pyrography, basketry, etc., was the work of high school pupils.

In the Government Building are many things of interest, among them the beautifully engrossed address of thanks sent by the Russian nobility of St. Petersburg to the United States for assistance rendered during the famine of 1892. Also a letter from the Emperor of China to the President of the United States, sent by special ambassador Li Hung Chang. This letter was engrossed in the Chinese characters on a strip or roll of yellow vellum about eighteen inches wide and eight or ten feet long, and the yellow satin covering was beautifully embroidered. The display of the Post Office Department was very complete, as were also those of both Army and Navy. Among the war relics are some old army wagons, one having been used by General Thomas during his marches, and another that went with Sherman on his march to the sea.

In another part of the grounds stand the handsome buildings of the new Washington University, used during the Exposition as the Administration building. Here are to be found the Vatican treasures, among which are reproductions of famous manuscripts, &c., and a large collection of beautiful mosaics. Here are displayed the Queen's Jubilee gifts. Many of these are addresses in costly caskets or cases of gold, silver, ivory and sandalwood, wrought with the finest oriental art, and some of them crusted with jewels. Among the gifts was the beautifully carved ivory throne with its foot stool and kneeling cushions of green velvet, and several large screens of peacock and ostrich feathers.

Of the foreign countries Japan has perhaps the largest exhibit, having sections in most of the large buildings beside a commodious building, or rather series of buildings of her own. The embroideries are simply wonderful, especially those of animals and birds. One would scarcely think the needle capable of producing such effects. Several draperies were shown on which were embroidered lions in life size and most perfect color. Their embroidery differs from their painting in its treatment of subject, in that every minute detail is wrought out most accurately with the needle, but when the brush is used much is left to the imagination and only such lines as will be lines of beauty and necessity are drawn.

The Phillipine exhibit has of course a special interest for us. A large sum of money has been expended to place it before the people. It shows something of the mode of life of the natives and the industries pursued by them. There is quite a comprehensive display of the work done in the schools, also their agricultural implements, their manufactures and their fisheries. Some of the native woods are very beautiful and take a fine polish, and these immense table tops and other pieces of furniture are especially worthy of mention. The pina cloth, made from pineapple fibre was like silk gauze, and is much used by the native women.

Many of the foreign nations have reproductions of famous buildings. That of England is the Orangery. It is placed in a setting of old English landscape gardening, the box being trimmed in fanciful shapes to represent the lion, other animals and birds. France has reproduced the Grand Trianon with a part of the Versailles garden. While Germany has a portion of the Schloss at Charlottenberg, and the rooms are filled with tapestries and rare old furniture sent by the Emperor. The buildings of the other foreign countries are perhaps equally attractive each in its own way, as are also the different State buildings.

The Art Palace is one of the permanent buildings in the park and contains many beautiful pictures by both American and foreign artists. Perhaps the picture which attracts the most attention is that of the Chinese Empress, painted by Miss Kate Carl, an American artist in Pekin. The dress is almost covered with embroidery and jewels, but the finger decorations of jade are the most distinctively Chinese feature on the canvas. The loan collection contains pictures by some noted artists, Rembrandt, Corot, Millet, Reynolds and others. J. G. Brown of New York has some attractive canvases of street life, and among portrait painters, Andres L. Zorn, a Swedish artist, is receiving a great deal of praise.

Of course no one visits the Exposition without going down the Pike where many novel sights and strange people are to be seen.

When wearied with sight seeing some of the special programmes invite the attention. There are guard mounts by the Phillipine scouts, drills by the United States marines, lectures on curious and various educational and scientific topics, or musical programmes in the various pavilions. Most lovers of music find themselves at some time during their stay listening to one of the organ recitals given in Festival Hall, the organ used being the largest in the world. Withal a visit to the Louisiana Purchase Exposition affords a pleasure that will linger long in memory.

JAPAN'S WAR GENIUS

TO GENERAL KODAMA BELONGS CHIEF CREDIT FOR SUCCESS.

His Gifts as a Military Strategist the Means of Bringing Victory to the Japanese Arms—His American Training and Previous Military Career.

European and American military authorities have been fairly staggered by the brilliant strategy of the Japanese armies in Manchuria. The Japanese are so patriotic and therefore so careless of aught save the final result in the present war that there have until recently been no data upon which to base an estimate of the relative merits of the commanders. Kuroki has shown that he is little short of a military genius, and Oku has also demonstrated that he is competent to command large bodies of men under conditions which try a commander to the utmost. The uniform success of the land movements of the Japanese has naturally been ascribed to the direction of Marquis Oyama, commander in chief of the armies in the field. It now transpires, however, that the plan which has worked so well in Manchuria was devised by Lieutenant General Baron Kodama. What is more, such modifications as circumstances have made necessary were also suggested by him. Indeed, it is said that Oyama has not rejected a single plan laid before him by his chief of staff. General Kodama.

This truly remarkable subject of the mikado was for some years a resident of the United States. He is now about fifty years of age. When he was about seventeen he came to America to study at Rutgers college, New Brunswick, N. J. At that time a native of Japan was quite an uncommon sight in this country. Though belonging to an old and wealthy Japanese family the young man readily fell in with the democratic—almost rough and ready—ways of the students among whom he was thrown. He was good natured and bright and quickly made friends. He had come to America as a student sent by the government, having passed rigid examinations in Japan before entering Rutgers, and he made the very best use of his time while in the United States, not only acquiring a good general education, but imbibing the spirit of American institutions and studying the secrets of American progress. It was in part due to this American training that on returning to his native land the future warrior rose so rapidly in the confidence and esteem of his countrymen.

When Yamagata and Oyama were engaged in the task of reorganizing the army, previous to the war with China ten years ago, Kodama was able to give them much valuable assistance. He is a born warrior—he comes of the samurai stock—but to the martial spirit he unites strategic ability of a high order and works with inexhaustible energy to bring about the successful achievement of his plans. He has served as assistant minister of war and minister of the interior of Japan and as governor general of Formosa. At the beginning of the war with Russia he was made assistant chief of the general staff and in that capacity carried out plans which he had formulated several years previously relating to the mobilization and transportation of troops.

Many of the greatest military men of history have been small of person. General Kodama is short and slight of frame. His weight has been estimated at 120 pounds. Nevertheless he is well built and has wonderful endurance. In Korea, some years ago, he was shot in such a manner that he had to lie in a plaster cast for months, unable to move the upper part of his body, but he was never heard to murmur and eventually fought his way back to health. He has not recovered the use of one arm, but otherwise appears to be in vigorous condition and much of the time works eighteen hours a day.

Speaking of the courage and patriotism of the subjects of the mikado in the present war, General Kodama said recently:

"Every man, woman and child in Japan is fired with the spirit of patriotism and is willing to make great personal sacrifices, if need be, for his imperial majesty the emperor and to preserve the integrity of the country. That this is true is evidenced by the hearty response to the popular war loan, which was subscribed five times over; by the thousands of petitions received from soldiers waiting in reserves who ask to be permitted to take the field with the army and by the alacrity with which relief societies have been organized in every town of the empire by native women. We believe the cause of Japan to be a just one. We have profound faith in the temper of our people and that the fortitude of our soldiers will bring success to our arms."

Food Aversions.

Cows' milk is said to be abhorred by the Japanese, and rabbits are never eaten by the Abyssinians, who explain that rabbits are too much like big rats. The natives of the Sandwich Islands would not take caviare for a gift. Cheese in Mexico is simply curds desiccated and pressed in pancake shape, and even then it is patronized only by the Caucasian colonists. The half breeds accept it with hesitation, and a two ounce slice of limburger would stampede a tribe of mountain Indians. They resent it as a practical joke in questionable taste. But why the Koreans eschew ice cream, as a traveler reports is the case, is less easy to explain. Perhaps they share the Japanese prejudice against dairy products or the Chinese predilection for superheated tidbits.

A Queer Italian Custom.

On Aug. 1 of every year the people of Val di Rosa, in Italy, gather in the great square, which is also a thrashing floor, and proceed to exorcise the devil for the benefit of their own dreams and for the well being of their vineyards. The most intelligent man in the community is chosen master of ceremonies. A small fire balloon is made ready and to this the master of ceremonies solemnly attaches a puppet representing his Satanic majesty. Amid the shouts of the peasantry the balloon, with the devil attached, is liberated. The good people believe that for the rest of the year the evil one will not disturb their dreams or damage the vintage.

Fungus Slippers.

Before the discovery of lucifer matches a large hoof shaped fungus growing on the trunks of trees was used throughout northern Europe for making amadou or tinder. The thick, brown, woody flesh of the same fungus, cut into slices and beaten until it assumes the appearance of felt, is used at the present day in Germany for the manufacture of chest protectors, caps, purses, bedroom slippers and various other articles.

One Exception.

"Papa, is the hand that rocks the cradle the one that rules the world?"

"That's what I've heard."

"Well, I know one that don't."

"Who is it?"

"Nurse. She wanted to go downtown, and mamma told her she'd fire her if she went and wouldn't give her no recommendation." — Indianapolis Sentinel.

A Chronic Habit.

"No," said the man who had recently made his fourth pilgrimage to the matrimonial altar; "I can't say that marriage is a failure."

"Of course not," rejoined his bachelor friend. "With you it is merely a habit."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Then He Went.

Father (at head of stairs)—Ethel, what time is it? Ethel (in drawing room)—It's a quarter past 10, father. Father—All right. Don't forget to start the clock again after the young man goes out to get his breakfast.

An Anxious Query.

A certain New York restaurant has become famous for its high prices. At the entrance a man just leaving, having paid his bill, was recently overheard to ask the waiter, "I say—do you charge anything for going out?"

MISS CORA WILLARD, Albany, N. Y.

THIS is the day of the natural waisted woman. The W. B. Erect Form has changed the American figure. It has supplanted discomfort with ease—it has banished the impossible and exaggerated figure produced by the old corset idea. It removes the strain of lacing from the sensitive parts of the body and throws all pressure upon the hips and the strong back muscles, supporting the stomach within the corset and not forcing it below the garment. The Erect Form is made in more models than ever before. There are forty distinct styles of this popular make, each meant for a distinct type of woman. Dealers in all sized towns and cities the land over, sell the Erect Form. Prices range upward from $1.

BRILLIANT SOCIAL LEADER.

Mrs. Arthur Paget and Her Career in the Fashionable World.

Mrs. Arthur Paget, who was injured recently by a fall down an elevator shaft of her London residence, is one of the most brilliant of the American set abroad. She is the wife of Major General Arthur Henry Fitzroy Paget of the Scots guards and the daughter of the late Mrs. Paran Stevens of New York.

The marriage of General and Mrs. Paget in 1878 was an international alliance of much note. The bride was famous for her wit and beauty. She achieved a distinct social success in London. Her mother was a New York society leader, and the daughter had consequently been trained in a way that enabled her to take her place in court circles abroad and feel perfectly at home. It has been said that Mrs. Paget is the only woman who can "drop in" at any time on Queen Alexandra. When the latter was Princess of Wales and lived at Marlborough House she once sent for Mrs. Paget.

"Why do you not call upon me?" the princess is said to have inquired.

"I wait to be summoned, your highness," replied Mrs. Paget.

"Then wait no longer," said the royal lady, "but call often. And do not call me 'your highness,' but Alexandra. It is the way that two friends should converse together."

The will of Mrs. Paget's father was in litigation for many years. About a year ago a decision was handed down by a Rhode Island court which divided the estate between Mrs. Paget and her half sister, Mrs. Ellen S. Melcher.

Mrs. Paget once had the distinction of being consulted by King Edward on the question of a tour which was proposed for the Prince of Wales.

His Lack of Tact.

[illegible] Howes is a pretty good sort [illegible] fellow. Shedd—Yes, but he hasn't got any tact. At the restaurant the other day he asked me if I was fond of cats, and I was eating rabbit stew at the time! The idea of asking such a question at such a time as that!—Boston Transcript.

GOT EVERYBODY GUESSING.

Business World is Asking How it is That a Corning, N. Y., Concern Can Sell Choice Family Groceries Cheaper Than All Competitors—The Real Reason.

Grocer—to former customer: "How is it, Mr. Wright, that I don't get your trade any more?"

Mr. W.: "Well, to be frank, I am now buying this Signature Line from Brown over here as you don't keep them. My wife sent and got the catalog of a big Corning concern and we spent about a week o' evenings studying it. It stated that this concern had been handling choice groceries, teas, coffees, household supplies, etc., for more'n 40 years. It said that their long experience had prepared them to handle goods at the least expense and their big capital enabled them to buy large quantities of merchandise for the least money. Then it went on to tell how they had originated what they call 'Signature Brands' of groceries. This 'Signature' business kind o' bothered Mandy and me at first, but Cora—that's our eldest daughter who had just graduated from the High school—explained that the 'Signature Brands' are choice family groceries put up in sealed packages by this firm. This, she said, guarantees both quantity and quality and absolute cleanliness. The firm's name is written across their seal on each package and stands for quality and character in the goods. These signatures are to be saved, as each one is valuable according to the amount of goods one buys. For instance, eight signatures cut from packages of Old Holland Coffee the firm puts up are equal to 400 points. These points are accepted in payment for any one of a list of 300 premiums. Thus each signature is valuable."

Grocer: "What's the name of this concern?"

Mr. W.: "C. E. Maltby Company of Corning, N. Y."

Grocer: "You ought to have experience enough by this time to know that they add the cost of these premiums to the price of the goods they sell."

Mr. W.: "It's natural for you, being in the same line o' business, to think that way. We did too, at first, but seein' as how we actually get better and more tea, coffee, flour, etc., in these 'Signature Brands,' we had to change our minds. Since we get these groceries cheaper'n we ever got any before, Mandy 'lows that the premiums in silverware, cut-glass, chinaware, furniture, etc., are purty convenient things to have and are clear gain. These we get in exchange for the signature which is written on each package."

Grocer: "Somebody has to pay for these premiums and the chances are they are a snide lot anyway."

Mr. W.: "We were suspicious of them at first, but in their catalog it said that every article had been carefully selected and is of standard value and many of them are made specially for The C. E. Maltby Company. We asked our bank about this house and they told us there is none better and that their word is as good as their bond. We then began to use their 'Signature Brand' of groceries; we sent in the signatures and got a set o' silverware and other things and they are as pretty as a big, red apple and have never tarnished. By using their goods exclusively, the signatures accumulate rapidly and we get a lot of premiums."

Grocer: "You seem to have been studying this question of getting high-class groceries for the least money."

Mr. W.: "Yes, and there are others. The time is here when the women folks are going to buy where they can get the best goods for the least money. Don't you forget it!"

SHANGHAI INCIDENT.

TWO AMERICANS PROMINENT IN ITS SOLUTION.

Consul General John Goodnow and Rear Admiral Yates Stirling Influential In Bringing About a Peaceful Settlement — The Neutrality Question.

Two Americans have enhanced reputations as a result of the peaceful ending of the international incident at Shanghai. They are John Goodnow, consul general at Shanghai, and Yates Stirling, rear admiral in command of the Asiatic squadron of the United States, which, most opportunely, was stationed off the Chinese coast when the Russian war vessels Askold and Grozovoi put into the harbor of Shanghai after the disastrous sortie of the Port Arthur fleet, to which they belonged. Especial credit belongs to Consul General Goodnow because as the dean of the consular corps at Shanghai the chief responsibility for effecting a peaceful solution of the difficulties that arose fell upon his shoulders. An imprudent course in this emergency by the American consul general or rash action by the American admiral might easily have led to international complications.

The cruiser Askold and the torpedo boat destroyer Grozovoi were badly crippled in the conflict with Admiral Togo's fleet on Aug. 10, and their course in escaping further injury by putting into a neutral port like that of Shanghai was naturally vexatious to the Japanese. The latter, on the other hand, were considered premature in sending an armed vessel into the harbor of Shanghai in pursuit of the Askold and Grozovoi before the expiration of the time limit of twenty-four hours in which, according to international rules on the subject, a war vessel may remain in a neutral port without dismantling. By a singular coincidence the American destroyer Chauncey happened into the harbor of Shanghai and anchored near the dock where repairs were being made to the Askold just as the Japanese vessel arrived on the scene. The suggestion was at first made that the visit of the Chauncey was in connection with preserving the peace in the port, but it was later stated that her mission was simply the delivery of dispatches. The insistence of the Japanese that the Russian ships be compelled either to leave the harbor or to disarm, the vacillation of the

CONSUL GENERAL JOHN GOODNOW.

Chinese authorities in the matter of enforcing the neutrality of the port and the procedure of the Russians in going forward with repairs to their vessels made the situation a threatening one. Americans and other foreigners have extensive property interests at Shanghai, and hostilities between the armed vessels in the harbor would have involved damage to them, not to mention the possible loss of life and property among the natives of the city. Happily the American consul general possessed the confidence of the foreign residents, and his course as the presiding officer at the meetings held by the consuls to consider the situation contributed much to the eventual peaceful solution.

According to international law, a state which maintains an attitude of noninterference in regard to a contest between other states may render no service to either belligerent. Formerly there were different degrees of neutrality, but international law no longer recognizes "qualified" neutrality. A neutral state now must not only treat each belligerent with impartiality, but must abstain unqualifiedly from giving aid or comfort to either except where justified by dictates of humanity. It must not furnish troops or money or ships of war or articles susceptible of warlike use, and it must not allow it ports to be used by either belligeren for hostile purposes. It is not a viola tion of neutrality to allow a belligeren vessel in distress to seek shelter, bu according to general agreement amon civilized powers the limit of twenty four hours is put on such a stay unles the vessel removes its guns. The Rus sians refused at first to act in accord ance with this rule, and the Chinese taotai pursued a weak and vacillating course, but the insistence of the consular representatives that the rules of neutrality be observed had the effect of bringing from St. Petersburg an order for the dismantling of the ships.

Consul General Goodnow was appointed to his present post by President McKinley in 1897. He was born at Greensburg, Ind., in 1858. He graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1879 and was a resident of Minneapolis when commissioned to go to Shanghai. He rendered important service as a member of the commission which negotiated the treaty of 1902 with China. He married in 1897 Miss Elizabeth Beaver, the ceremony taking place at Yokohama, Japan.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS, 1904.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing amendment to article seven of the Constitution, relating to improvement of highways.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the seventh article of the Constitution be amended by adding thereto the following section: § 12. Improvement of Highways.—A debt or debts of the State may be authorized by law for the improvement of highways. Such highways shall be determined under general laws, which shall also provide for the equitable apportionment thereof among the counties. The aggregate of the debts authorized by this section shall not at any one time exceed the sum of fifty millions of dollars. The payment of the annual interest on such debt and the creation of a sinking fund of at least two per centum per annum to discharge the principal at maturity shall be provided by general laws whose force and effect shall not be diminished during the existence of any debt created thereunder. The legislature may by general laws require the county or town or both to pay to the sinking fund the proportionate part of the cost of any such highway within the boundaries of such county or town and the proportionate part of the interest thereon, but no county shall at any time for any highway be required to pay more than thirty-five hundredths of the cost of such highway, and no town more than fifteen hundredths. None of the provisions of the fourth section of this article shall apply to debts for the improvement of highways hereby authorized. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the Legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the Constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 1, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 2, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER TWO.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the constitution in relation to the time within which debts of the state must be paid and striking from said section certain limitations.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section four of article seven of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VII. § 4. Except the debts specified in sections two and three of this article, no debts shall be hereafter contracted by or in behalf of this state, unless such debt shall be authorized by a law for some single work or object, to be distinctly specified therein; and such law shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax to pay, and sufficient to pay, the interest on such debt as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal of such debt within fifty years from the time of the contracting thereof. No such law shall take effect until it shall, at a general election, have been submitted to the people, and have received a majority of all the votes cast for and against it at such election. On the final passage of such bill in either house of the legislature, the question shall be taken by ayes and noes, to be duly entered on the journals thereof, and shall be: "Shall this bill pass, and ought the same to receive the sanction of the people?" The legislature may at any time, after the approval of such law by the people, if no debt shall have been contracted in pursuance thereof, repeal the same; and may at any time, by law, forbid the contracting of any further debt or liability under such law; but the tax imposed by such act, in proportion to the debt and liability which may have been contracted, in pursuance of such law, shall remain in force and be irrepealable, and be annually collected, until the proceeds thereof shall have made the provision hereinbefore specified to pay and discharge the interest and principal of such debt and liability. The money arising from any loan or stock creating such debt or liability shall be applied to the work or object specified in the act authorizing such debt or liability, or for the payment of such debt or liability, and for no other purpose whatever. No such law shall be submitted to be voted on, within three months after its passage or at any general election when any other law, or any bill, shall be submitted to be voted for or against. The legislature may provide for the issue of bonds of the state to run for a period not exceeding fifty years in lieu of bonds heretofore authorized but not issued and shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax for the payment of the same as hereinbefore required. When any sinking fund created under this section shall equal in amount the debt for which it was created, no further direct tax shall be levied on account of said sinking fund and the legislature shall reduce the tax to an amount equal to the accruing interest on such debt. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 21, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 22, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER THREE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the constitution in relation to justices of the appellate division of the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section two of article six of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VI. § 2. The legislature shall divide the state into four judicial departments. The first department shall consist of the county of New York; the others shall be bounded by county lines, and be compact and equal in population as nearly as may be. Once every ten years the legislature may alter the judicial departments, but without increasing the number thereof. There shall be an appellate division of the supreme court, consisting of seven justices in the first department, and of five justices in each of the other departments. In each department four shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of three shall be necessary to a decision. No more than five justices shall sit in any case. From all the justices elected to the supreme court the governor shall designate those who shall constitute the appellate division in each department; and he shall designate the presiding justice thereof, who shall act as such during his term of office, and shall be a resident of the department. The other justices shall be designated for terms of five years or the unexpired portions of their respective terms of office, if less than five years. From time to time as the terms of such designations expire, or vacancies occur, he shall make new designations. A majority of the justices so designated to sit in the appellate division, in each department shall be residents of the department. He may also make temporary designations in case of the absence or inability to act of any justice in the appellate division, or in case the presiding justice of any appellate division shall certify to him that one or more additional justices are needed for the speedy disposition of the business before it. Whenever the appellate division in any department shall be unable to dispose of its business within a reasonable time, a majority of the presiding justices of the several departments at a meeting called by the presiding justice of the department in arrears may transfer any pending appeals from such department to any other department for hearing and determination. No justice of the appellate division shall, within the department to which he may be designated to perform the duties of an appellate justice, exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court, other than those of a justice out of court, and those pertaining to the appellate division, or to the hearing and decision of motions submitted by consent of counsel, but any such justice, when not actually engaged in performing the duties of such appellate justice in the department to which he is designated, may hold any term of the supreme court and exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court in any county or judicial district in any other department of the state. From and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, the appellate division shall have the jurisdiction now exercised by the supreme court at its general terms and by the general terms of the court of common pleas for the city and county of New York, the superior court of the city of New York, the superior court of Buffalo and the city of Brooklyn, and such additional jurisdiction as may be conferred by the legislature. It shall have power to appoint and remove a reporter. The justices of the appellate division in each department shall have power to fix the times and places for holding special terms therein, and to assign the justices in the departments to hold such terms; [illegible] to make rules therefor. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 29, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 6, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FOUR.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to trial commissioners.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that section six of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 6. Circuit courts and courts of oyer and terminer are abolished from and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five. All their jurisdiction shall thereupon be vested in the supreme court, and all actions and proceedings then pending in such courts shall be transferred to the supreme court for hearing and determination. Any justice of the supreme court, except as otherwise provided in this article, may hold court in any county. Whenever and as often as the causes upon the trial term calendar of any county of this state, having a population according to the latest state enumeration of over five hundred thousand, shall have so accumulated that an unpreferred cause cannot be reached for trial in due course within one year after it has been placed upon the calendar, the appellate division of the department in which such county is embraced may, by a certificate signed by a majority of its members, certify the fact to the court of appeals, whereupon said court may by order authorize the appointment in said county of trial commissioners, stating in said order the number of commissioners to be appointed, and their terms of office, not exceeding six years. Such order shall be made in duplicate and one copy thereof filed in the office of the secretary of state, and one in the office of the clerk of the county in which said appointments are authorized. The appellate division of the department embracing said county shall thereupon appoint the number of trial commissioners authorized by said order, who must possess the qualifications required for a justice of the supreme court. They shall possess and exercise in the county for which they are appointed all the powers of a justice of the supreme court respecting the trial and disposition of causes upon said trial term calendar and the settlement of cases on appeal, but shall possess none of the powers of such a justice out of court or at special term. They may be removed in the same manner as is provided in case of a justice of said supreme court. They shall each receive an annual salary of twelve thousand dollars to be paid by the county for which they are appointed, and may not practice law. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 22, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 8, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FIVE.

Concurrent resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the constitution.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section seven of article seven be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Forest preserve.—The lands of the state, now owned or hereafter acquired, constituting the forest preserve as now fixed by law, shall be forever kept as wild forest lands, except as hereinafter provided. They shall not be leased, sold or exchanged, or be taken by any corporation, public or private, nor shall the timber thereon be sold, removed or destroyed. The legislature may authorize the removal of dead timber on burned areas so far as necessary for reforestation, through officers and employees of the state, but not by contract. The legislature may also authorize the sale of lands outside of the limits of the Adirondack park and the Catskill park as such parks are now established by law. The proceeds of such sales shall be set apart in a separate fund and used only for the purchase of lands in such parks. A violation of this section may be restrained at the suit of the people or with the consent of the supreme court on notice to the attorney-general at the suit of any citizen of the state. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 4, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 8, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State, at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section one of article two of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SIX.

Concurrent resolution, proposing amendment to section one of article two of the constitution relating to qualification of voters.

Resolved (if the senate concur), that section one of article two of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article II. Section 1. Qualification of voters.—Every male citizen of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a citizen for ninety days, and an inhabitant of this state one year next preceding an election, and for the last four months a resident of the county or of a city comprising more than one county, and for the last thirty days a resident of the election district in which he may offer his vote, shall be entitled to vote at such election in the election district of which he shall at the time be a resident, and not elsewhere, for all officers that now are or hereafter may be elective by the people, and upon all questions which may be submitted to the vote of the people, provided that in time of war no elector in the actual military service of the state, or of the United States, in the army or navy thereof, shall be deprived of his vote by reason of his absence from such election district; and the legislature shall have power to provide the manner in which and the time and place at which such absent electors may vote, and for the return and canvass of their votes in the election districts in which they respectively reside.

State of New York: In Assembly, Mar. 28, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section one of article two, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SEVEN.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to article six of the constitution in relation to providing additional justices of the supreme court and judges of the court of appeals.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section one of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 1. Supreme court; court of appeals; how constituted; judicial districts.—The supreme court is continued with general jurisdiction in law and equity, subject to such appellate jurisdiction of the court of appeals as now is or may be prescribed by law not inconsistent with this article. The existing judicial districts of the state are continued until changed as hereinafter provided. The supreme court shall consist of the justices now in office, and of the judges transferred thereto by the fifth section of this article, all of whom shall continue to be justices of the supreme court during their respective terms, and of twelve additional justices who shall reside in and be chosen by the electors of the several existing judicial districts, three in the first district, three in the second, and one in each of the other districts; and of their successors. The successors of said justices shall be chosen by the electors of their respective judicial districts. The legislature may alter the judicial districts once after every enumeration under the constitution, of the inhabitants of the state, and thereupon reapportion the justices to be thereafter elected in the districts so altered. The legislature may at any time, when it deems that the public interests requires it, increase the number of justices of the supreme court or of judges of the court of appeals as it sees fit, provided that the total number of judges of the court of appeals shall not exceed eleven, and provided also that any bill increasing the number of justices or judges as aforesaid shall receive the assent of two-thirds of the members elected to each branch of the legislature. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section seven of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Court of appeals.—The court of appeals is continued. It shall consist of the chief judge and associate judges now in office, and of such additional judges as the legislature may from time to time provide in accordance with section one of this article and as may be elected according to law, who shall hold their offices until the expiration of their respective terms, and of their successors, who shall be chosen by the electors of the state. The official terms of the chief judge and associate judges shall be fourteen years from and including the first day of January next after their election. The legislature may provide by law for the manner in which the court shall sit, whether in two divisions or one, and for the number of members of the court necessary to form a quorum in either instance and also for the number whose concurrence shall be necessary to a decision. The court shall have power to appoint and to remove its reporter, clerk and attendants. § 3. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 13, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to sections one and seven of article six, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER EIGHT.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That section six of article six of the constitution be amended by adding thereto the following: In any department in which supreme court commissioners have been appointed, the justices of the appellate division of the department, or a majority of them, are authorized from time to time to designate one or more of such supreme court commissioners to hold trial terms of the supreme court within such department and to remove [illegible] a trial term of the supreme court [illegible] pursuant to [illegible] of the supreme court [illegible] he may be assigned. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, to be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 15, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

Tramping in France.

One tramps because he likes to tramp, not to save money. Nevertheless in Normandy, and the same is true of nearly every other section of France except Savoy and the Cote d'Azur, one must make a distinct effort to spend while tramping more than 7 francs a day, or $1.40. Nearly all the auberges and many of the smaller hotels give comfortable rooms for 30 cents a night and no extra charges, the petit dejeuner for 10 cents and a prix fixe dejeuner and dinner for 30 cents each.

In a word, 7 francs ($1.40) a day represents luxury, 4 to 6 comfort and 3 to 4 the essential. To bring the average per day below 3 francs and keep moving it is necessary to go to the length of buying provisions at the stores and sleeping sometimes in the open air and in granges, a method which is not without its special piquancy, as I know from experience, but which it would be hazardous if not unpardonable to recommend.—Alvan F. Sanborn in Booklovers' Magazine.

THE MILK IN THE COCOANUT.

Editor Bradt of the Observer has been a professed Prohibitionist and is a candidate on the Prohibition ticket for county treasurer, yet he presumes in a modest yet majestic way to counsel the Republican electors in this county as to their duties and responsibilities.

The Prohibition party in nation, State and county has placed a ticket in the field, and Mr. Bradt helped to nominate Clarence E. Pitts for county judge.

Just preceding the Democratic County Convention, as the Times stated last week, the Hon. Charles N. Bulger, who is conceded to be the leader of the Democratic party in the county, began to negotiate with Mr. Pitts, offering him, it is alleged, if the Prohibition party would endorse Mr. Piper's candidacy for county judge, a contribution of $1,000 to the Prohibition campaign fund and also agreeing to endorse Mr. Bradt's candidacy for county treasurer next term.

To Mr. Bradt, Mr. Bulger is now the most "promising" politician in Oswego County, as he has bespoken the vote of the Oswego County Democracy for Mr. Bradt three years hence, providing Mr. Pitts can be induced to be disloyal to his party which has honored him with a place on its ticket. Mr. Pitts' refusal to turn his party over to Mr. Bulger has aroused the ire of Mr. Bradt and it is alleged that he has even gone so far in his wrath as to declare that he will not remain upon the Prohibition ticket unless Mr. Pitts resigns. He has persistently ignored the nominees of his own party and has been loud in his assertions that Mr. Pitts should endorse Mr. Piper.

Can it be possible that the sudden nipping in the bud of the Observer's support of the Prohibition ticket has been caused by personal spleen on the part of its editor? Not one word of commendation for any nominee on the Prohibition ticket could be found in last week's issue and the Prohibition ticket has never adorned its columns.

The Prohibitionists have full cause to resent the treatment they have received at the hands of their party organ, and it is safe to prophesy that Mr. Pitts will not be requested to resign from the ticket, even though Mr. Bradt, the Prohibition candidate for county treasurer, so demands.

Mrs. C. Angleman of Plainfield, N. J., is the guest of Mrs. Frederick Hall at No. 308 Erie street.

Dr. E. G. Fuller, who died in Sterling last week, was well and favorably known in this city.

Charles O. Lawton has sold to Isabella Alexander, property in Oswego Falls, consideration $2,000.

Mrs. A. H. Grant is visiting with friends in Yonkers. Mr. Grant will join her this week.

The city schools closed at noon today for the balance of the week that instructors and students might enjoy the Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Katz have returned from New York City where they spent a week purchasing goods for the Department store of M. Katz & Co.

The divorce proceeding of Maude M. Gibbons of this city against Clyde Gibbins of Niagara Falls has been adjourned until Oct. 1.

Mr. D. Lipsky returned last week from New York City, after having purchased a splendid line of clothing and men's furnishing goods for his Fall and Winter trade.

Assemblyman and Mrs. T. D. Lewis have been enjoying a brief sojourn at Atlantic City and New York City. They will return home after the State Convention.

Merchant F. P. Connell has returned from New York City where he spent several days selecting dry goods for the firm of F. P. Connell & Co. This firm expects to remove to their new store in Oneida street about Sept. 20.

Mr. J. C. O'Brien and Miss Mary O'Hare and trimmer have returned from New York City, where they purchased an unusually large line of dry goods, coats, suits, millinery goods &c., for the Fall and Winter trade.

Mr. and Mrs. Eber Hubbard, who have been spending the Summer months at Thousand Island Park, are located in Oswego at No. 74 W. Mohawk street for several months. Mr. Hubbard has a splendid position in that city.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society of the First Methodist church will hold its regular monthly meeting in the church parlors, Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 21, at half past three. The annual election of officers will occur at the meeting.

Mrs. C. M. Allen on Wednesday evening entertained at tea the young ladies who comprised the house party entertained by Miss Manette Webb two weeks ago at the Summer home of Mr. and Mrs. George Webb at Mexico Point. After tea, music was enjoyed.

Palladium: Pentheus Ingersoll of Fulton, who has been confined in the County Jail for about six weeks upon an order procured by Clarence E. Pitts adjudging him guilty of contempt of Court and fining him $56, last night settled the matter up and was liberated.

Glen, the 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Ford while playing in the attic of a house that is being constructed at the corner of Broadway and Seventh streets, fell to the cellar below on Friday, breaking his left leg and spraining the ankle. Dr. Hall was called to relieve the sufferer.

The Universalists at the Fair.

The lunch hall just North of the grove, and near the hardware exhibit, will be conducted by the ladies of the Universalist church. It is the only place on the grounds where the food sold is prepared and cooked in the people's homes.

European plan for serving meals is preferred. The price is attached to each article on the bill of fare. The clam chowder at this hall is especially famous.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hunter and Mr. Harry Hannis are in New York City attending the bankers convention.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Howe are enroute to the St. Louis exposition and Denver, Col.

Mr. John Hunter recently received word that a gun in their exhibit at the St. Louis exposition valued at $750, had been stolen. Later the gun was found in a pawn shop in St. Louis where it had been sold for $150. The thief has not been apprehended.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Turner and Mr. Turner's mother will leave this week for their future home in Corona, Cal. Mr. and Mrs. Turner will be missed greatly by their many friends in this city, all of whom wish them health happiness and success in their new home.

The Rev. Nelson Reynolds, while fishing in Lake Neahtawanta on Thursday, landed a 13-pound pickerel which attracted a great deal of attention while exhibited in the C. B. Boardman cafe window on Friday.

Excise Commissioner Cullinan has purchased the Guernsey bull, Ontario, which was awarded first prize at the State Fair. The animal will be exhibited at the St. Louis Exposition after which he will make his home on Mr. Cullinan's farm in Oswego Town.

The State Fair was a financial success and there is no doubt about its being a permanent institution. The attendance was over one hundred thousand. It is thought that the surplus will be devoted to improving the buildings and grounds. Last year the surplus was turned over to the Fair commission.

Prof. H. C. Howe writes The Time from Seal Rock, Oregon, that he and his family are enroute to their home in Eugene, Oregon, after two months of enjoyment at the sea shore. Prof. Howe expresses the generous wish that he might share some of the trout which he has caught, with the editor of The Times, in which the editor heartily concurs.

Master Jamie Hillick, son of City Chamberlain and Mrs. Hillick, while on a hunting expedition at Old Forge last week, accidentally shot a companion, a boy about his own age, in the leg, inflicting a wound that was painful but not dangerous. The boys were resting under a tree, cleaning their guns when the accident occurred.

The W. F. M. S. of the First M. E. church on Wednesday afternoon held its annual meeting and selected the following officers: President, Mrs. John Richards; vice-president, Mrs. Gardner; second, Mrs. D. E. Lake; third, Mrs. Amos Wolever; fourth, Mrs. Robinson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Justin Morrill; recording secretary, Mrs. M. Skeel; treasurer, Mrs. Richards.

The Times office has been removed from the Times block to the building directly across the street from its former location. The office is one door north of the engine house, on the ground floor. The facilities for the prompt executing of job work are improved and work will be done with neatness and promptness, whenever entrusted to the office.

Mr. John Hunter, who is engaged in soliciting money with which to buy a library site, received an answer on Monday morning to one of the many letters he had been sending to former residents, containing a check for $59. The donor was Mr. James H. Miller of Minneapolis. He is a brother of Mr. Lawrence Miller of this city.

The Bristol Buggy Company had one of the finest exhibits seen at the State Fair. Their display of open and top Stanhopes, extension and canopy top surries, No. 10 buggies, road wagons, Auburn Wagon Company's farm, coal and dump wagon's, and a splendid line of hand-made harnesses, made up an exhibit which received much attention and admiration.

Baldwinsville Gazette: B. C. Brown of Fulton was in town Monday.—Miss Dora Barker of Fulton is visiting Miss Veronica Dougherty.—Chas. Thompson and Miss Florence Beebe of Fulton spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Beebe of Genesee street—Dr. and Mrs. B. A. Loveless and daughters of Fulton have been spending a few days with relatives here.

Mr. Emmet Lamb last week exchanged his touring car for a valuable horse which was bred in California and had a record of 2.22. While enroute to his home in this city from Syracuse, Mr. Lamb had the horse fed and soon after it was taken sick and notwithstanding all that could be was done to save its life, the animal died. It is thought that the green oats with which it was fed caused its death.

DECADENCE IN ART

By AUTA POWELL

Copyright, 1904, by Auta Powell

Polly Anne Greenway's family thought her decidedly gifted, and that young lady's singular esteem for her relatives' opinions forced her to come to the same conclusion.

Nevertheless, when she announced her intention of studying art, her father demurred. It was one thing to have talent, but quite a different matter to depart from the beaten track, and Polly's family had other views for her.

"Let her marry and settle down," said her father.

But Polly's lips came together in a very firm line. There were plenty of women in the world. Let those who felt inclined marry and be given in marriage; as for her, she had a mission in life and she meant to perform it.

And she went about wearing such a set apart expression that parental objections gave way and she was allowed one meager but soul inspiring year in New York.

After that began the long battle with publishers and advertising bureaus. Discouragement she met at first with the joy of resistance, but that sort of joy weakens with use, and surely Polly's ill luck was phenomenal.

At last her cover for the Christmas number of a magazine was accepted and hope once more lit its lamp in her breast. But when a villainous lithographer transformed her designs so that nothing remained that she could call her own, her stoicism gave way utterly, and she folded her wings for a season.

It was just at this juncture that the Y. M. O. D. C. made his appearance. This title he acquired later on, when she discovered that he was a Young Man of Diabolical Cunning.

Polly had met him at more than one function, and he swelled the list of a large and uninteresting bowing acquaintance from which individuals were once in a long while selected to fill up vacancies made by removals and occasional misunderstandings.

Why should he call upon her? She ran rapidly over her scant knowledge concerning him as she came down to meet him. Rather stiff and expressionless. Rumored well off and on the point of marriage to some stranger. Nothing very decided, nothing particularly attractive.

The Y. M. O. D. C. rose before she had time to smile any "glad to see you" fibs.

"Good morning, Miss Greenway. Perhaps I should apologize for troubling you, but the truth is I am in a dilemma and have come to you for advice."

Polly settled herself and became all attention. A man may be most uninteresting, but the moment he asks for advice he becomes in the eyes of the woman he is consulting a most discerning individual and decidedly worth cultivating.

"You probably are not aware that I have been building a house on Lincoln street."

She believed she had heard it mentioned in connection with the homecoming of the stranger bride.

"It is completed," he continued, "and is now ready for the decorators. Just here is where I want your advice. There are lots of professional decorators, but none of my friends' houses satisfies me. Some of them have been done by well known decorators. I choose to think they show a lack of individuality. Now, I beg of you to undertake the management of the whole scheme of decoration and furnishing. Oh, pray don't veto it," as Polly's eyebrows went up to her pompadour, "till you have heard me out. I want each room in my house to be part of one scheme and the keynote of the whole thing to be simplicity. If you will undertake it you shall have all the help you wish—anything, everything you need to carry it out. It is well planned and well finished. I don't want it to be ostentatious or handsome or have any of those upholstery things, but to be quiet, restful, artistic—a home in every sense of the word."

"But I don't believe I'm competent," said Polly, to whom the idea began to appeal strongly—"in fact, I am sure I'm not."

"Does that mean that you wouldn't care to undertake it?"

"Oh, dear, no! I think I should like it above all things. I wish I had taken up that sort of thing at the art school."

"Then let us go at once and look at the house, and you can form your plans."

In five minutes they were on a car. Polly was carried off her feet. The whole undertaking grew momentarily more attractive, and, as she was an inveterate castle builder, by the time the car stopped at Lincoln street she had become a successful middle aged decorator.

She found the house a perfect gem in its way, beautifully laid out and with all sorts of possibilities in the way of decoration. As she went from room to room her delight and enthusiasm were good to see.

So the work was undertaken, and upon the whole everything went well. She did not often see the Y. M. O. D. C., but his appreciation and suggestions were always helpful, and a telephone message brought him immediately when he was needed to smooth out difficulties with stubborn or inefficient workmen.

It is hard to say just when Polly began to hate the bride elect, but the feeling reached its climax on that day when, everything being completed, the workmen gone and the owner out of town, she stole back for a last look before the key should have left her possession. She sat down on a high backed settle commanding a vista of three rooms. The sun threw stains and splashes of color on the inlaid floor, and outside a high wind whistled mournfully, the sort of wind that sings to sensitive ears of sorrow and desolation.

"I don't care how many houses I should decorate, there could never be another one just like this, and his wife will bring a whole lot of wedding presents and stuff and just ruin everything. I wish I had never seen the place. I wish I had never been born," she ended miserably. Then she wiped her eyes angrily. "No wonder I haven't been a success," she thought. "I am a weak minded simpleton anyway, and no doubt that fact is patent to every one but myself."

But notwithstanding her scorn of herself the tears continued to come from some inexhaustible source.

"Well, this is a success anyway," she mused a trifle more cheerfully, "and the color scheme and the plan are my own, and it cannot possibly turn into wretched, glaring pinks and blues or any old washed out things."

Then all at once the Y. M. O. D. C. stood before her horrified eyes, and she felt like a thief as she stood up weakly and tendered him the key.

"No; sit down. Let's talk about it," he said. "Great success, isn't it? I cannot flatter myself too much for my courage and wisdom in going to you."

He sat down beside her on the settle, looking so thoroughly contented and prosperous that she hated him from the bottom of her heart, or thought she did, which is just the same thing till we find out the difference.

"Everything is finished. When shall we move in?" he said. "It needs a woman in trailing robes handling delicate china and moving lightly from room to room to give the finishing touch and turn it into a home."

"It will need servants in the kitchen and provisions in the pantry and plenty of management," said Polly grimly, sick of the picture he drew and determined to cut short his rhapsody.

"Well," he said quizzically, "when shall we move in and begin the management?"

"I should think your fiancee would have some choice in the matter."

"Oh, I don't know," said he unconcernedly. "I think, perhaps, she will be satisfied."

"You take a good deal for granted," said Polly. "You must think a wife is a perfect nonentity."

"You will be a good deal together, I hope," he went on, ignoring her remarks. "I like the way you manage things."

"Do you, indeed?" thought Polly. Her lips quivered, and she made a mental resolution never again to cross the threshold.

There was a long silence while Polly looked at the rooms, and the Y. M. O. D. C. looked at her. Finally Polly stood up, but he took her hand and drew her down again.

"When are we going to be married, Polly?" he said.

"Who?" gasped Polly.

"We—you and I—Polly."

"We—and your fiancee—what do you mean?" she cried in distress.

"There isn't any one but you, Polly. I built the house just to get you to decorate it; then people had to provide a reason, and it really wasn't worth while contradicting them. I'm a dreadful sinner, Polly, but I couldn't interest you in any other way. Do forgive me and admit that you love the house—and me."

But Polly, wholly unprepared and too paralyzed for speech, sat back cold and pale. She shivered slightly.

A fire of driftwood had been laid in the quaint corner fireplace.

"Come, Polly," he said, taking her hand again; "we will light the fire and talk it over."

And they did.

Queer Fads of Smokers.

"Men who can afford to smoke really good cigars have more fads than other men you will meet in a day's walk," said a Broadway manufacturer who makes a good many cigars to order for his customers. "I know men who throw a cigar away the moment the ashes fall off. They believe the taste of it is ruined then. For such customers I make very close rolled cigars.

"Other customers like a cigar rolled so light that the ashes float off of their own accord. They like the red fire. Many men will never relight a cigar after it has gone out. Nothing could induce them to. Others relight a cigar five or six times before they discard it. Needless to say, they do not get the best of a good cigar.

"I have one customer who has a special brand of after dinner cigars made for him. They cost him $1 each net and are of medium size. It is his invariable habit to keep the cigar between his teeth half an hour before lighting it. His guests may light up with the coffee, but he never does. He likes to inhale the fragrance of the tobacco—to become permeated with it, so to speak—before he lights up. Then the cigar lasts him precisely one hour." —New York Times.

BORING INTO THE EARTH.

Engineer Parsons and His Plan For Penetrating Mysterious Depths.

There is room for a world of speculation as to what might be discovered if the scheme of the eminent English scientist and engineer, Charles Algernon Parsons, should be carried out. Mr. Parsons' idea is that a shaft bored twelve miles into the interior of the earth would bring to light many facts which the scientific world has long been eager to learn. Jules Verne and other writers of fiction have taken their readers on voyages of discovery to the center of the earth, but in the world of reality no human being ever penetrated it to the distance that Mr. Parsons proposes. The task of sinking a shaft twelve miles may seem an easy one when it is considered what great engineering feats have been achieved in other fields, but it is a stupendous undertaking, owing to the increase in the heat of the earth as one goes toward the center and to other obstacles to exploration in that direction. Mr. Parsons estimates that the job of boring a small shaft twelve miles in depth might be done in eighty-five years at a cost of $25,000,000. He is anxious to see the project undertaken and explained his ideas at some length before a recent meeting of the British Association For the Advancement of Science.

CHARLES ALGERNON PARSONS.

Mr. Parsons is no mere visionary. He is a practical man, and his inventions have been of great value in engineering and other branches of industry. He was born June 13, 1854, and is the fourth son of the third earl of Rosse. He was educated at St. John's college, Cambridge, and in 1884 married Katherine, daughter of the late William Bethell of Rise Park, Yorks. His father was the inventor of the famous Birr telescope. The son inherited the father's predilection for scientific investigation. His development of the steam turbine and his application of it to the generation of electricity and the propulsion of war and mercantile vessels are sufficient of themselves to win him enduring fame. For "the successful application of his invention of the steam turbine to industrial purposes and in navigation" the Royal society awarded him the Rumford medal.

Mr. Parsons is proprietor of the C. A. Parsons & Co. electrical engineering works at Heaton, Newcastle-on-Tyne, managing director of the Parsons Marine Steam Turbine company, limited, and an officer of several other electrical or engineering companies.

NELLIE GRANT SARTORIS.

Her Character Has Endeared Her to Americans.

The only daughter of General U. S. Grant, Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris, is now a well preserved woman of forty-seven. She has a face that is sweet and winsome, though no longer girlish. The American people have accorded her a warm place in their hearts from the time when she was the sunshine of the White House and a favorite with every one during her father's first term as president. Shortly after his second inauguration she fell in love with Captain John Algernon Sartoris, an Englishman, and, though only seventeen years old, married him and went away to England to live. Her father felt the separation very much. When her husband died, in 1893, she returned to America with her three children, Algernon, Vivian and Rosemary. Her first wish was to regain her citizenship in the United States and have her children become citizens, and to further her wishes in this respect congress passed a special act.

On her return to this country Mrs. Sartoris lived with her mother until the death of the latter. During the past year she has been much in St. Louis, where the days of her early childhood were passed and where, on the grounds of the world's fair, the old log cabin now stands which the great soldier of the civil war built for the shelter of his family in the days of his poverty and struggle.

LEGAL NOTICES.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage upon real property situated within the State of New York, whereby the power to sell has become operative, notice is hereby given that said mortgage, which is dated the 23d day of February, 1889, and is recorded in the office of the Clerk of the County of Oswego, at Oswego, N. Y., on the 23d day of February, 1889, at 8:30 o'clock a. m., in Liber 153 of mortgages at page 405, was given by John E. Cain and Hattie Cain, his wife, mortgagors to Orlando Howell, mortgagee, and the name of each assignee of said mortgage is as follows: 1st assignee, Fred O. Howell; 2d assignee, Maria A. Howell.

The sum claimed to be due upon the said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is sixteen hundred seventy-five dollars and forty-one cents, which is the whole amount secured by said mortgage.

The following is a description of the mortgaged property, contained in the said mortgage:

"All That Tract or Parcel of Land, situate in the Town of Granby, County of Oswego and State of New York, and being on Lot No. 72 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is described as subdivision Number One of said Lot according to Peter Schenck's map, made from his survey & dated Sept. 26, 1829, and is bounded on the N. & W. by the N. & W. lines of said lot; on the S. by the State Road running E. & W. through said lot & on the East by Subdivision No. 2 containing 19 acres of land more or less.

"Also all that certain tract or parcel of land situate in the said Town of Granby, N. Y., & being a part of the State's 100 acres of land on lot No. 62 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is bounded as follows: Beginning at the S. E. Corner of said Lot 62 and running West 21 chains & 62 links; thence N. 11 chains & 56 links; thence E. 21 chains & 62 links to the east line of said Lot, thence S. 11 chains & 56 links, to the place of beginning. Containing twenty-five acres of land, more or less.

"Also all that certain other tract or parcel of land, situate in the Town of Granby, N. Y., and being a part of Lot 71 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby) is bounded as follows: Beginning in the East line of said Lot in the center of the Fulton & Hannibal Plank Road (so called); thence Northerly along the E. line of said lot 71 about 25 rods & 6 links to a stone wall intersecting said line of Lot 71 from the East; thence Westerly in a direct line with the center of said stone wall One Hundred four & one-half (104½) feet to a stone set in the Earth indicating said corner; thence Southerly parallel with the East line to the center of said highway; thence Easterly along said Highway to the place of beginning. Containing about one acre of land."

Pursuant to the power of sale contained therein, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the said mortgaged property, or a part thereof, at public auction, at the law offices of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton, County of Oswego, New York, on the 29th day of October, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day.

Dated and subscribed at Fulton, N. Y., this 3d day of August, 1904.

ED. PINAUD'S
EAU DE QUININE
HAIR TONIC

A Positive Dandruff Cure!

is the only Hair Tonic I have in my shop. It's the best! I have used one hundred other sorts on a thousand different heads, but never with the wonderful results that Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine has given. At first sight you would think it to my advantage to use a cheap tonic, but when I tell you that one bottle of Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine goes as far as three bottles of any other preparation, you can see that after all this is the best value I can get for the money.

For women, men and children. It cleanses the roots—feeds the cells and strengthens the hair—holds its color and gives a beautiful gloss.

The Point of the Cape of Good Hope.

Cape point, which terminates the mighty headland known as the Cape of Good Hope, consists of a towering promontory of sandstone, which rises from the sea to an altitude of 840 feet. At the base of this stands a big solitary column which is known as Vasco da Gama's pillar. The lighthouse which here illuminates the meeting place of the Atlantic and Indian oceans is one of the most important and most useful of its kind. It is visible from a distance of thirty-six miles. The cliff scenery is wild and sublime, the rocks are magnificent, and the far reaching sea, with the fierce surf beating on the iron bound coast, is impressive. In the water directly beneath the cliff sharks are abundant. A traveler describing the scene says that on the occasion of his visit so numerous were the evil looking monsters that the sight as he descended the cliff was most unpleasant. A slip and a fall into the sea at this point would mean that the unfortunate would be torn instantly limb from limb by the ravening brutes.

Chess and a Battleship.

Admiral Charles E. Clark, who took the battleship Oregon around Cape Horn and into action at Santiago, owed his appointment as commander of that boat to his skill as a chess player. Captain Clark was at San Francisco in command of the gunboat Bennington. When ashore he spent much time in the chess room of the Mechanics' library, where he met some of the best players in the city. When the time came to appoint a man to command the Oregon, a friend of Clark's in the navy department at Washington put his name forward. "You should see that man play chess," said he and went on to describe his intense application and determination, adding, "And that's why I think he can bring the battleship around safely if any one can." Three hours later Clark received orders to assume command of the Oregon and take her at once to Cuban waters.—Argonaut.

The Nimble Paragraph.

It is a most extraordinary thing that some of our most successful novelists cannot turn out a newspaper paragraph to save their lives. In most novels there is some page or other on a suppositious clipping from a newspaper bearing upon the events under narration, and in ninety cases out of a hundred the matter that makes up the "clipping" is most unreal. The truth of the matter is that all the training in the world will not enable a man to write in this manner unless he has been through the mill and had all the nonsense deleted by the remorseless subeditor. Our novelists do not have their manuscript hacked and chopped about by this skillful executioner, and their pseudo newspaper clippings are models of what the real thing is not.—Journalist.

What's in a Name?

Everything is in the name when it comes to Witch Hazel Salve. E. C. De Witt & Co. of Chicago, discovered some years ago how to make a salve from Witch Hazel that is a specific for Piles. For blind, bleeding, itching and protruding Piles, eczema, cuts, burns and all skin diseases, De Witt's Salve has no equal. This has given rise to numerous worthless counterfeits. Ask for De Witt's—the genuine. Sold by H. C. Giesler and G. T. Boyington.

The Servant Problem.

"Preventing the good ones getting married."

The poor people of Barbadoes subsist principally on sugar cane, sweet potatoes and flying fish.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol cures indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does not only cure indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy cures all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

The French Archives.

The archives so magnificently housed in the Hotel de Rohan form one of the most interesting sights of Paris. Here, bound in white calf, thousands of folios contain the history of France, dating from the Capet and Valois kings, all documents being classified under four heads—administrative, historic, legislative and judiciary. Among minor objects of interest not shown to visitors without special permission is the table on which Robespierre, wounded, was placed in the Hotel de Ville on the eve of Thermidor and the inventory of Marie Antoinette's wardrobe, with patterns of her dresses, and also of Mme. Elizabeth's. Insignificant indeed would the collection appear beside that of a fashionable lady of today. In these historic premises, busy as bees, indefatigable searchers are continually at work.—Westminster Gazette.

Baltimore, Ireland.

Baltimore, in Maryland, gets its name from a small and unostentatious fishing village in Ireland. The word Baltimore signifies the "village that grew up about the big house," and the derivation is plain when one sees the ivy covered ruins of the very remarkable big house that was once the stronghold of the O'Driscolls. It is situated upon an imposing height, a sentinel over the numerous little dwellings that have sprung up and increased in the vicinity of its wrecked and deserted life. From the village of Baltimore enormous catches of mackerel are sent to America.—Exchange.

Read His Own Banns.

A distinguished English churchman tells this in M. A. P.: "The vicar of Swanscombe was a very eccentric man. I remember—indeed, who could ever forget it?—that he once read out his own banns of marriage with a lady who had not only not consented to marry him, but whom he had never asked to do so. He did this for two Sundays. On the third her father rose and formally objected to such a ridiculous proceeding."

Only Did His Duty as He Saw It.

"I deem it my duty to add a word of praise for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy" says J. Wiley Park, the well known merchant and postmaster at Wiley, Ky. "I have been selling it for three or four years, and it gives complete satisfaction. Several of my customers tell me they would not be without it for anything. Very often, to my knowledge, one single dose has cured a severe attack of diarrhoea, and I positively know that it will cure the flux (dysentery). You are at liberty to use this testimonial as you please." Sold by H. C. Giesler.

The Turnpike Era.

Between the years 1790 and 1840 innumerable plans were made for the creation of turnpikes in the United States. There had been one great success, the Lancashire turnpike in Pennsylvania, and then came countless other projects. In 1811 New York had 137 chartered roads, with a total length of 4,500 miles, and the sum required to build them amounted to $7,500,000. An era of canal digging and then of railroad building followed this period, but the canal promoters and railroad men had great difficulty in advancing their schemes. They were considered insane when they insisted that the mountains and plains could be conquered by these means of transportation.

Nature's Beauties.

Character is fed largely through the eye and ear. The thousand voices in nature, of bird and insect and brook, the soughing of the wind through the trees, the scent of flower and meadow, the myriad tints in earth and sky, in ocean and forest, mountain and hill, are just as important for the development of a real man as the education he receives in the schools. If you take no beauty into your life through the eye or the ear your nature will be hard, juiceless, unattractive.—Success.

In Praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

"Allow me to give you a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mr. John Hamlett, of Eagle Pass, Texas. "I suffered one week with bowel trouble and took all kinds of medicine without getting any relief, when my friend, Mr. C. Johnson, a merchant here, advised me to take this remedy. After taking one dose I felt greatly relieved, and when I had taken the third dose was entirely cured. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for putting this great remedy in the hands of mankind." For sale by H. C. Giesler.

Athletes and Consumption.

There must be no exercise as exercise for the consumptive patient. If you are able and feel like it, amuse yourself, but don't take exercise to build your system up. I know. I, too, have heard those stories about men given up to die who began work in a gymnasium and by violent exercise entirely recovered their health. When the lung tissue is attacked by tuberculosis it heals, if it heals at all, by fibrous scar material filling in the cavity. No new lung tissue is formed to replace what has been lost, and this scar material is useless for breathing. Suppose you had a deep cut in your hand and you kept working that hand violently, how long do you think it would take the cut to heal? When exercise is taken or you "expand the lungs" you have to work the lung tissue just as you work your hand, and if it is wounded there will be a much larger proportion of scar material useless for breathing when it does get well.—Everybody's Magazine.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists. Price 75 cents per bottle.

England's Underfed Children.

In every big town the children of the slums habitually go to school improperly fed. Many of them are not only improperly fed, but the food they do get is far too little in quantity. In the hard winter season, when the building trades are idle, many again go to school either with no food at all or having only stayed their hunger in the morning with a crust of dry bread. In sharp, frosty weather it is a common experience for teachers in the elementary schools of the poorer parts of our great towns—I have often seen it—to find children suddenly seized with vomiting. This is not so much caused by the fact that the stomach is upset as that it has revolted against the effect of the cold upon its empty condition. And not only is this state of things true of the poorer parts of the big towns. It is also true of many of the agricultural villages. Let a visitor to a village elementary school look closely at the children. They are in many cases flabby and pale. They need more nourishing food. A breakfast of "teakettle broth," a bit of bread and treacle and some abominably poor tea—these form the three meals daily.—Dr. T. J. McNamara, M. P., in Nineteenth Century.

A Power For Good.

The pills that are potent in their action and pleasant in effect are DeWitt's Little Early Risers. W. S. Philpot, of Albany, Ga., says: "During a billious attack I took one. Small as it was it did me more good than Calomel, blue mass or any other pill I ever took and at the same time the effect was pleasant. Little Early Risers are certainly an ideal pill." Sold by H. C. Giesler and G. T. Boyington.

Her Postscript.

"Dear Mr. Hicks," she wrote, "I am sorry that what you ask I cannot grant. I cannot become your wife.—Yours sincerely, Ethel Burrows." Then she added: "P.S.—On second thought, dear George, I will marry you. Do come up tonight and see your own true Ethel."

Consumption

The only kind of consumption to fear is "neglected consumption."

People are learning that consumption is a curable disease. It is neglected consumption that is so often incurable.

At the faintest suspicion of consumption get a bottle of Scott's Emulsion and begin regular doses.

The use of Scott's Emulsion at once, has, in thousands of cases, turned the balance in favor of health.

Neglected consumption does not exist where Scott's Emulsion is.

Prompt use of Scott's Emulsion checks the disease while it can be checked.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

A Kanaka Canoe.

The early Kanakas built their fast sailing canoes out of the body of a single tree, hollowing it out and staying the edges with strips of hard wood. These strips extended to the ends and covered a space at both stem and stern. The triangular sails were made of fine matting, and the little craft was steadied by an outrigger. The ruling chiefs and their families traveled in large double canoes, with a raised platform in the center for passengers.

The building of a canoe was a very serious business. Offerings were made to the gods, and prayers were especially addressed to the fisherman's tutelary saint. A priest finally stood with the owner at the bow of the canoe and recited the last prayer in unbroken silence; death and disaster were sure to follow if any extraneous noise disturbed the scene.—New York Times.

Sour Stomach.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, sour stomach is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food throughly. Let five hours elapse between meals, and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the sour stomach may be avoided. You will find this remedy a good friend when troubled with a cough or cold. It always affords quick relief and is pleasant to take. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

Method In Her Madness.

Clarissa—Why, you silly thing! What are you putting your damp hands out on the window sill for? You'll get them all rough and red. Annabel—Yes, I know. But Mr. de Million thinks that every woman ought to do all sorts of housework, and I'm getting my hands ready to show off tonight.

The Foolish Man

Learns by experience. The average man learns by his own experience. The wise man by the experience of others. Be wise. Save time, money and learn by the experience of thousands of others who say that the new "Easy draft Le Roy Plows" are the ones to buy. Every one sold on a positive guarantee. Sold by E. Quirk, Fulton.

The Horsefly.

The horsefly is the most cruel and bloodthirsty of the entire fly family. He is armed with a most formidable weapon, which consists of four lancets so sharp and strong that they will penetrate leather. He makes his appearance in June. The female is armed with six lancets, with which she bleeds both cattle and horses and even human beings.—Colman's Rural World.

Procrastination.

"One of the greatest evils in life," said the elderly woman, "is procrastination."

"I think so, too," replied the young married woman. "I don't see the sense of putting off your golden wedding anniversary till you are sixty or seventy years old."

From 148 to 92 Pounds.

One of the most remarkable cases of a cold, deep-seated on the lungs, causing pneumonia, is that of Mrs. Gertrude E. Fenner, Marion, Ind. who was entirely cured by the use of One Minute Cough Cure. She says: "The coughing and straining so weakened me that I ran down in weight from 148 to 92 pounds. I tried a number of remedies to no avail until I used One Minute Cough Cure. Four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me entirely of the cough, strengthened my lungs and restored me to my normal weight, health and strength." Sold by H. C. Giesler and G. T. Boyington.

The Confederate Cent.

There was only one complete die made for the purpose of coining money by the Confederate States of America—that for a one cent piece, which was made by Lovett, the Philadelphia engraver, in 1861. After he had finished the dies Mr. Lovett found that he was unable to send them to the persons who had ordered the work done, and, becoming alarmed, he "struck off" twelve nickel cents and then carefully secreted both coins and dies. For twelve long years the engraver kept his secret, which was finally revealed through an accident. One day in 1873 he went to the hiding place of the rare coins and selected one for a pocket piece and within the month passed it out unknowingly to Hazeltine, the Philadelphia restaurant keeper. This man, knowing the piece to be Lovett's work, sent it to J. C. Randall, the coin collector. After some little trouble Hazeltine and Randall succeeded in buying the die, and from it they struck fifty-five copper pieces, twelve in silver and seven in gold. This accomplished, they mutilated the die, and coin dealers now hold Confederate cents at a very high figure.

THREE DOLLARS BETTER THAN THOUSANDS.

Cal-cura Solvent, Dr. Kennedy's NEW Medicine, Did More than Many Doctors.

Your pocketbook as well as your health needs consideration, but often both suffer through ignorance of the right thing to buy. That was the case with the gentleman who wrote the following letter:

"Thousands of dollars have I paid to doctors during my life and I don't complain of the doctors; but Dr. Kennedy's new medicine, Cal-cura Solvent, beats them all. Three bottles of it cured me last spring of heart trouble and terrible pains in the side, back and head. Am better than for thirty years."—H. J. Brandow, Jewett Centre, N. Y.

For $3.00 invested in Cal-cura Solvent Mr. Brandow got what he had spent thousands for in vain. All druggists, [illegible]

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S LETTER OF ACCEPTANCE

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 12.—President Roosevelt's letter accepting the Republican nomination for the presidency has been made public. It is in part as follows:

It is difficult to find out from the utterances of our opponents what are the real issues upon which they propose to wage this campaign. It is not unfair to say that, having abandoned most of the principles upon which they have insisted during the last eight years, they now seem at a loss both as to what it is that they really believe and as to how firmly they shall assert their belief in anything. In fact, it is doubtful if they venture resolutely to press a single issue. As soon as they raise one they shrink from it and seek to explain it away.

The party now in control of the government is troubled by no such difficulties. We do not have to guess at our own convictions and then correct the guess if it seems unpopular. The principles which we profess are those in which we believe with heart and soul and strength. Men may differ from us, but they cannot accuse us of trickiness or insincerity. The policies we have pursued are those which we earnestly hold as essential to the national welfare and repute. Our actions speak even louder than our words for the faith that is in us. We base our appeal upon what we have done and are doing, upon our record of administration and legislation during the last seven years, in which we have had complete control of the government. We intend in the future to carry on the government in the same way that we have carried it on in the past.

So well has the work been done that our opponents do not venture to recite the facts about our policies or acts and then oppose them. They attack them only when they have first misrepresented them, for a truthful recital would leave no room for adverse comment.

Panama.

Panama offers an instance in point. Our opponents can criticise what we did in Panama only on condition of misstating what was done. The administration behaved throughout not only with good faith, but with extraordinary patience and large generosity toward those with whom it dealt. It was also mindful of American interests. It acted in strict compliance with the law passed by congress. Had not Panama been promptly recognized and the transit across the isthmus kept open in accordance with our treaty rights and obligations there would have ensued endless guerrilla warfare and possibly foreign complications, while all chance of building the canal would have been deferred certainly for years, perhaps for a generation or more.

Criticism of the action in this matter is simply criticism of the only possible action which could have secured the building of the canal as well as the peace and quiet which we were by treaty bound to preserve along the line of transit across the isthmus. The service rendered this country in securing the perpetual right to construct, maintain, operate and defend the canal was so great that our opponents do not venture to raise the issue in straightforward fashion, for if so raised there would be no issue.

The decisive action which brought about this beneficent result was the exercise by the president of the powers vested in him, and in him alone, by the constitution, the power to recognise foreign governments by entering into diplomatic relations with them and the power to make treaties which when ratified by the senate become under the constitution part of the supreme law of the land. Neither in this nor in any other matter has there been the slightest failure to live up to the constitution in letter and in spirit. But the constitution must be observed positively as well as negatively. The president's duty is to serve the country in accordance with the constitution, and I should be derelict in my duty if I used a false construction of the constitution as a shield for weakness and timidity or as an excuse for governmental impotence.

Foreign Policy.

Similar misrepresentation is the one weapon of our opponents in regard to our foreign policy and the way the navy has been made useful in carrying out this policy. Here again all that we ask is that they truthfully state what has been done and then say whether or not they object to it, for if continued in power we shall continue our foreign policy and our handling of the navy on exactly the same lines in the future as in the past. To what phase of our foreign policy and to what use of the navy do our opponents object? Do they object to the way in which the Monroe doctrine has been strengthened and upheld? Do our opponents object to what was done in reference to the petition of American citizens against the Kishineff massacre, or to the protest against the treatment of the Jews in Roumania, or to the efforts that have been made in behalf of the Armenians in Turkey? No other administration in our history, no other government in the world, has more consistently stood for the broadest spirit of brotherhood in our common humanity or has held a more resolute attitude of protest against every wrong that outraged the civilization of the age at home or abroad. Do our opponents object to [illegible] that the international tribunal [illegible] Hague was rescued from im[illegible] turned into a potent in[illegible] among the nations? [illegible] to the settlement of the Alaska boundary line? Do they object to the fact that after freeing Cuba we gave her reciprocal trade advantages with the United States, while at the same time keeping naval stations in the island and providing against its sinking into chaos or being conquered by any foreign power? Do they object to the fact that our flag now flies over Porto Rico? Do they object to the acquisition of Hawaii? Once they "hauled down" our flag there. We have hoisted it again. Do they intend once more to haul it down? Do they object to the part we played in China? Do they not know that the voice of the United States would now count for nothing in the far east if we had abandoned the Philippines and refused to do what was done in China? Do they object to the fact that this government secured a peaceful settlement of the troubles in Venezuela two years ago?

Do they object to the fact that American warships appeared promptly at the port of Beirut when an effort had been made to assassinate an American official, and in the port of Tangier when an American citizen had been abducted, and that in each case the wrong complained of was righted and expiated, and that within the last few days the visit of an American squadron to Smyrna was followed by the long delayed concession of their just rights to those Americans concerned in educational work in Turkey? Do they object to the trade treaty with China, so full of advantage for the American people in the future? Do they object to the fact that the ships carrying the national flag now have a higher standard than ever before in marksmanship and in seamanship as individual units and as component parts of squadrons and fleets?

Executive "Encroachments."

When our opponents speak of "encroachments" by the executive upon the authority of congress or the judiciary, apparently the act they ordinarily have in view is pension order No. 78, issued under the authority of existing law. This order directed that hereafter any veteran of the civil war who had reached the age of sixty-two should be presumptively entitled to the pension of $6 a month, given under the dependent pension law to those whose capacity to earn their livelihood by manual labor has been decreased 50 per cent and that by the time the age of seventy was reached the presumption should be that the physical disability was complete, the age being treated as an evidential fact in each case. This order was made in the performance of a duty imposed upon the president by an act of congress which requires the executive to make regulations to govern the subordinates of the pension office in determining who are entitled to pensions. President Cleveland had already exercised this power by a regulation which declared that seventy-five should be set as the age at which total disability should be conclusively presumed. Similarly President McKinley established sixty-five as the age at which half disability should be conclusively presumed. The regulation now in question in the exercise of the same power supplemented these regulations made under Presidents Cleveland and McKinley.

It is easy to test our opponents' sincerity in this matter. The order in question is revocable at the pleasure of the executive. If our opponents come into power they can revoke this order and announce that they will treat the veterans of sixty-two to seventy as presumably in full bodily vigor and not entitled to pensions. Will they now authoritatively state that they intend to do this? If so, we accept the issue.

The Currency.

So much for what our opponents openly or covertly advance in the way of an attack on the acts of the administration. When we come to consider the policies for which they profess to stand we are met with the difficulty always arising when statements of policy are so made that they can be interpreted in different ways. On some of the vital questions that have confronted the American people in the last decade our opponents take the position that silence is the best possible way to convey their views. They contend that their lukewarm attitude of partial acquiescence in what others have accomplished entitles them to be made the custodians of the financial honor and commercial interests which they have but recently sought to ruin. Being unable to agree among themselves as to whether the gold standard is a curse or a blessing and as to whether we ought or ought not to have free and unlimited coinage of silver, they have apparently thought it expedient to avoid any committal on these subjects and individually each to follow his particular bent. Their nearest approach to a majority judgment seems to be that it is now inexpedient to assert their convictions one way or the other and that the establishment of the gold standard by the Republican party should not be disturbed unless there is an alteration in the relative quantity of production of silver and gold.

We, on the contrary, believe in the gold standard as fixed by the usage and verdict of the business world and in a sound monetary system as matters of principle—as matters not of monetary political expediency, but of permanent organic policy. The record of the last seven years proves that the party now in power can be trusted to take additional action necessary to improve and strengthen our monetary system and that our opponents cannot be so trusted. The fundamental fact is that in a popular government such as ours no policy is irrevocably settled by law unless the people keep in control of the government men who believe in that policy as a matter of deep rooted conviction. Laws can always be revoked. It is the spirit and the purpose of those responsible for their enactment and administration which must be fixed and unchangeable. It is idle to say that the monetary standard of the nation is irrevocably fixed so long as the party which at the last election cast approximately 46 per cent of the total vote refuses to put in its platform any statement that the question is settled. A determination to remain silent cannot be accepted as equivalent to a recantation.

As for what our opponents say in reference to capital and labor, individual or corporate, here again all we need by way of answer is to point to what we have actually done and to say that if continued in power we shall continue to carry out the policy we have been pursuing and to execute the laws as resolutely and fearlessly in the future as we have executed them in the past.

The Trusts.

The action of the attorney general in enforcing the antitrust and interstate commerce laws and the action of the last congress in enlarging the scope of the interstate commerce law and in creating the department of commerce and labor, with a bureau of corporations, have for the first time opened a chance for the national government to deal intelligently and adequately with the questions affecting society, whether for good or for evil, because of the accumulation of capital in great corporations and because of the new relations caused thereby. These laws are now being administered with entire efficiency, and as in their working need is shown for amendment or addition to them, whether better to secure the proper publicity or better to guarantee the rights of shippers or in any other direction, this need will be met.

It is now asserted "that the common law as developed affords a complete legal remedy against monopolies." But there is no common law of the United States. Its rules can be enforced only by the state courts and officers. No federal court or officer could take any action whatever under them. It was this fact, coupled with the inability of the states to control trusts and monopolies, which led to the passage of the federal statutes known as the Sherman antitrust act and the interstate commerce act, and it is only through the exercise of the powers conferred by these acts and by the statutes of the last congress supplementing them that the national government acquires any jurisdiction over the subject. To say that action against trusts and monopolies should be limited to the application of the common law is equivalent to saying that the national government should take no action whatever to regulate them.

Undoubtedly the multiplication of trusts and their increase in power have been largely due to the "failure of officials charged with the duty of enforcing the law to take the necessary procedure." Such stricture upon the failure of the officials of the national government to do their duty in this matter is certainly not wholly undeserved as far as the administration preceding President McKinley's is concerned, but it has no application at all to Republican administration. It is also undoubtedly true that what is most needed is "officials having both the disposition and the courage to enforce existing law." This is precisely the need that has been met by the consistent and steadily continued action of the department of justice under the present administration.

Capital and Labor.

So far as the rights of the individual wage worker and the individual capitalist are concerned, both as regards one another, as regards the public and as regards organised capital and labor, the position of the administration has been so clear that there is no excuse for misrepresenting it and no ground for opposing it unless misrepresented. Within the limits defined by the national constitution the national administration has sought to secure to each man the full enjoyment of his right to live his life and dispose of his property and his labor as he deems best so long as he wrongs no one else. It has shown in effective fashion that in endeavoring to make good this guarantee it treats all men, rich or poor, whatever their creed, their color or their birthplace, as standing alike before the law.

Under our form of government the sphere in which the nation as distinguished from the state can act is narrowly circumscribed, but within that sphere all that could be done has been done. All thinking men are aware of the restriction upon the power of action of the national government in such matters. Being ourselves mindful of them, we have been scrupulously careful on the one hand to be moderate in our promises and on the other hand to keep these promises in letter and in spirit. Our opponents have been hampered by no such considerations. They have promised and many of them now promise action which they could by no possibility take in the exercise of constitutional power and which if attempted would bring business to a standstill. They have used and often now use language of wild invective and appeal to all the baser passions which tend to excite one set of Americans against their fellow Americans, and yet whenever they have had power they have fittingly supplemented this extravagance of promise by absolute nullity in performance.

The Tariff.

When we take up the great question of the tariff we are at once confronted by the doubt as to whether our opponents do or do not mean what they say. They say that "protection is robbery" and promise to carry themselves accordingly if they are given power. Yet prominent persons among them assert that they do not really mean this and that if they come into power they will adopt our policy as regards the tariff, while others seem anxious to prove that it is safe to give them partial power because the power would be only partial, and therefore they would not be able to do mischief. The last is certainly a curious plea to advance on behalf of a party seeking to obtain control of the government.

At the outset it is worth while to say a word as to the attempt to identify the question of tariff revision or tariff reduction with a solution of the trust question. This is always a sign of desire to avoid any real effort to deal adequately with the trust question. In speaking on this point at Minneapolis on April 4, 1903, I said:

"The question of tariff revision, speaking broadly, stands wholly apart from the question of dealing with the trusts. No change in tariff duties can have any substantial effect in solving the so called trust problem. Certain great trusts or great corporations are wholly unaffected by the tariff. Almost all the others that are of any importance have as a matter of fact numbers of smaller American competitors, and of course a change in the tariff which would work injury to the large corporation would work not merely injury but destruction to its smaller competitors, and equally of course such a change would mean disaster to all the wageworkers connected with either the large or the small corporations."

The Wilson Tariff Law.

There is little for me to add to this. It is but ten years since the last attempt was made by means of lowering the tariff to prevent some people from prospering too much. The attempt was entirely successful. The tariff law of that year was among the causes which in that year and for some time afterward effectually prevented anybody from prospering too much and labor from prospering at all.

The question of what tariff is best for our people is primarily one of expediency, to be determined not on abstract academic grounds, but in the light of experience. It is a matter of business. From time to time schedules must undoubtedly be rearranged and readjusted to meet the shifting needs of the country, but this can with safety be done only by those who are committed to the cause of the protective system. To uproot and destroy that system would be to insure the prostration of business, the closing of factories, the impoverishment of the farmer, the ruin of the capitalist and the starvation of the wageworker. Yet if protection is indeed "robbery," and if our opponents really believe what they say, then it is precisely to the destruction and uprooting of the tariff, and therefore of our business and industry, that they are pledged.

Reciprocity.

Our opponents assert that they believe in reciprocity. Their action on the most important reciprocity treaty recently negotiated, that with Cuba, does not bear out this assertion. Moreover, there can be no reciprocity unless there is a substantial tariff. Free trade and reciprocity are not compatible. We are on record as favoring arrangements for reciprocal trade relations with other countries, these arrangements to be on an equitable basis of benefit to both the contracting parties. The Republican party stands pledged to every wise and consistent method of increasing the foreign commerce of the country. That it has kept its pledge is proved by the fact that, while the domestic trade of this country exceeds in volume the entire export and import trade of all the nations of the world, the United States has in addition secured more than an eighth of the export trade of the world, standing first among the nations in this respect.

It is a matter of regret that the protective tariff policy, which during the last forty odd years has become part of the very fiber of the country, is not now accepted as definitely established. These forty odd years have been the most prosperous years this nation has ever seen; more prosperous years than any other nation has ever seen. Beyond question this prosperity could not have come if the American people had not possessed the necessary thrift, energy and business intelligence to turn their vast material resources to account. But it is no less true that it is our economic policy as regards the tariff and finance which has enabled us as a nation to make such good use of the individual capacities of our citizens and the natural resources of our country. Every class of our people is benefited by the protective tariff.

The farmer has benefited quite as much as the manufacturer, the merchant and the wageworker.

The Farmer and the Tariff.

The future of American agriculture is bound up in the future of American manufactures. The two industries have become under the economic policy of our government so closely interwoven, so mutually interdependent, that neither can hope to maintain itself at the high water mark of progress without the other. Whatever makes to the advantage of one is equally to the advantage of the other.

So it is as between the capitalist and the wageworker. Here and there there may be an unequal sharing as between the two in the benefits that have come by protection, but benefits have come to both, and a reversal in policy would mean damage to both, and while the damage would be heavy to all it would be heaviest and it would fall soonest upon those who are paid in the form of wages each week or each month for that week's or that month's work.

Conditions change, and the laws must be modified from time to time to fit new exigencies. But the genuine underlying principle of protection as it has been embodied in all but one of the American tariff laws for the last forty years has worked out results so beneficent, so evenly and widely spread, so advantageous alike to farmers and capitalists and workingmen, to commerce and trade of every kind, that the American people, if they show their usual practical business sense, will insist that when these laws are modified they shall be modified with the utmost care and conservatism and by the friends and not the enemies of the protective system. They cannot afford to trust the modification to those who treat protection and robbery as synonymous terms.

In closing what I have to say about the system of promoting American industry let me add a word of cordial agreement with the policy of in some way including within its benefits by appropriate legislation the American merchant marine. It is not creditable to us as a nation that our great export and import trade should be well nigh exclusively in the hands of foreigners.

The Army.

It is difficult to know if our opponents are really sincere in their demand for the reduction of the army. If insincere there is no need for comment, and if sincere, what shall we say in speaking to rational persons of an appeal to reduce an army of 60,000 men which is taking care of the interests of over 80,000,000 people? The army is now relatively smaller than it was in the days of Washington, when on the peace establishment there were 3,600 soldiers, while there were a little less than four millions of population; smaller than it was in the peaceful days of Jefferson, when there were 5,100 soldiers to 5,300,000 population. There is now one soldier to every 1,400 people in this country, less than one-tenth of 1 per cent. We cannot be asked seriously to argue as to the amount of possible tyranny contained in these figures. The army is now used as never before for aiding in the upbuilding of the organized militia of the country. The war department is engaged in a systematic effort to strengthen and develop the national guard in the several states, as witness among many other instances the great field maneuvers at Manassas, which have just closed. If our opponents should come into power they could not reduce our army below its present size without greatly impairing its efficiency and abandoning part of the national duty. In short, in this matter if our opponents should come into power they would either have to treat this particular promise of the year 1904 as they now treat the promises they made in 1896 and 1900—that is, as possessing no binding force—or else they would have to embark on a policy which would be ludicrous at the moment and fraught with grave danger to the national honor in the future.

"Extravagance of the Government."

Our opponents contend that the government is now administered extravagantly and that whereas there was "a surplus of $80,000,000 in 1900" there is a "deficit of more than $40,000,000" in the year that has just closed.

This deficit is imaginary and is obtained by including in the ordinary current expenses the sum of $50,000,000 which was paid for the right of way of the Panama canal out of the accumulated surplus in the treasury. Comparing the current or ordinary expenditures for the two years there was a surplus of nearly eighty millions for the year 1900 and of only a little more than eight millions for the year that has just closed. But this diminution of the annual surplus was brought about designedly by the abolition of the war taxes in the interval between the two dates. Since the close of the war with Spain there has been no substantial change in the rate of annual expenditures. As compared with the fiscal year ending in June, 1901, for example, the fiscal year that has just closed showed a relatively small increase in expenditure (excluding the canal payment already referred to), while the year previous showed a relatively small decrease.

The prime reason why the expenses of the government have increased of recent years is to be found in the fact that the people after mature thought have deemed it wise to have certain new forms of work for the public undertaken by the public. This necessitates such expenditures, for instance, as those for rural free delivery or for the inspection of meats under the department of agriculture or for irrigation. But these new expenditures are necessary. No one would seriously propose to abandon them. And yet it is idle to declaim against the increased expense of the government unless it is intended to cut down the very expenditures which cause the increase. Do our opponents grudge the $50,000,000 paid for the Panama canal? Do they intend to cut down on the pensions to the veterans of the civil war? Do they intend to put a stop to the irrigation policy or to the permanent census bureau or to immigration inspection? Do they intend to abolish rural free delivery? Do they intend to cut down the navy or the Alaskan telegraph system? Do they intend to dismantle our coast fortifications? If there is to be a real and substantial cutting down in national expenditures it must be in such matters as these. The department of agriculture has done service of incalculable value to the farmers of this country in many different lines. Do our opponents wish to cut down the money for this service? They can do it only by destroying the usefulness of the service itself.

The Philippines.

Our opponents promise independence to the Philippine Islands. Here again we are confronted by their irreconcilable differences of opinion among themselves, their proved inability to create a constructive policy when in power and their readiness for the sake of momentary political expediency to abandon the principles upon which they have insisted as essential. In their platform they declare for independence without qualification as to time, and indeed a qualification as to time is an absurdity, for we have neither right nor power to bind our successors, while if there is any principle involved in the matter it is just as wrong to deny independence for a few years as to deny it for an indefinite period. But in later and equally official utterances by our opponents the term self government was substituted for independence, the words used being so chosen that in their natural construction they described precisely the policy now being carried on. The language of the platform indicated a radical change of policy; the later utterances indicated a continuance of the present policy. But this caused trouble in their own ranks, and in a still later although less formal utterance the self government promise was recanted, and independence at some future time was promised in its place. They have occupied three entirely different positions within fifty days. Which is the promise they really intend to keep? If such ambiguity affected only the American people it would not so greatly matter, for the American people can take care of themselves. But the Filipinos are in no such condition. Confidence is with them a plant of slow growth. They have been taught to trust the word of this government because this government has promised nothing which it did not perform. If promised independence they will expect independence not in the remote future, for their descendants, but immediately for themselves. If the promise thus made is not immediately fulfilled they will regard it as broken and will not again trust to American faith, and it would be indeed a wicked thing to deceive them in such fashion. Moreover, even if the promise were made to take effect only in the distant future, the Filipinos would be thrown into confusion thereby. Instead of continuing to endeavor to fit themselves for moral and material advancement in the present they would abandon all effort at progress and begin factional intrigues.

If, on the other hand, our opponents came into power and attempted to carry out their promises to the Filipinos by giving them independence and withdrawing American control from the islands, the result would be a frightful calamity to the Filipinos and in its larger aspect would amount to an international crime.

During the last five years more has been done for the material and moral well being of the Filipinos than ever before since the islands first came within the ken of civilized man. We have opened before them a vista of orderly development in their own interest and not a policy of exploitation. Every effort is being made to fit the islanders for self government, and they have already in large measure received it, while for the first time in their history their personal rights and civil liberties have been guaranteed. They are being educated, they have been given schools, they have been given libraries, roads are being built for their use, their health is being cared for, they have been given courts in which they receive justice as absolute as it is in our power to guarantee. Their individual rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness are now by act of congress jealously safeguarded under the American flag, and if the protection of the flag were withdrawn their rights would be lost, and the islands would be plunged back under some form of vicious tyranny. Surely we had better await the results of this experiment—for it is a wholly new experiment in Asia—before we make promises which as a nation we might be forced to break or which they might interpret one way and we in another.

The Fourteenth Amendment.

Alarm has been professed lest the Filipinos should not receive all the benefits guaranteed to our people at home by the fourteenth amendment to the constitution. As a matter of fact, the Filipinos have already secured the substance of these benefits. This government has been true to the spirit of the fourteenth amendment in the Philippines. Can our opponents deny that here at home the principles of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments have been in effect nullified? In this, as in many other matters, we at home can well profit by the example of those responsible for the actual management of affairs in the Philippines. In our several commonwealths here in the United States we as a people now face the complex problem of securing fair treatment to each man regardless of his race or color. We can do so only if we approach the problem in the spirit of courage, common sense and high minded devotion to the right, which has enabled Governor Taft, Governor Wright and their associates to do so noble a work in giving to the Philippine people the benefit of the true principles of American liberty.

Our appeal is made to all good citizens who hold the honor and the interest of the nation close to their hearts. The great issues which are at stake and upon which I have touched are more than mere partisan issues, for they involve much that comes home to the individual pride and individual well being of our people. Under conditions as they actually are good Americans should refuse for the sake of the welfare of the nation to change the national policy. We who are responsible for the administration and legislation under which this country during the last seven years has grown so greatly in well being at home and in honorable repute among the nations of the earth abroad, do not stand inertly upon this record, do not use this record as an excuse for failure of effort to meet new conditions. On the contrary, we treat the record of what we have done in the past as incitement to do even better in the future. We believe that the progress that we have made may be taken as a measure of the progress we shall continue to make if the people again intrust the government of the nation to our hands.

REPUBLICANS ARE LOYAL TO TICKET

They Refuse to Aid Mr. Bulger in His Effort to Reduce Republican Majority in City and County—Explanation Due From County Agricultural Society—Collector Stranahan's Timely Warning.

The absurdity and injustice of the statements of a few men in this city, who have assumed the new and important role of reformers, have aroused a feeling of indignation among Republicans throughout the county. The assumptions of the agitators that their mission on earth was to "purify the judiciary and restore the county court to its former prestige," caused the electors to stare and wonder and then to treat their pretensions with contempt and derision.

These "reformers," who are working in the interest of Charles N. Bulger and the Democratic party, would have the electors believe that Judge Stowell, the Republican nominee for re-election for county judge, is unworthy of their suffrage. Representative Republicans of Fulton, in last week's Times, furnished indubitable proof, by their hearty endorsement of Judge Stowell's judicial ability, his sterling qualities and unimpeachable integrity—that he enjoyed their confidence and esteem, and that they would do their utmost to secure his re-election to an office he has filled with such eminent ability and satisfaction to his constituents.

It has occurred to the Republicans of this city and county that the Oswego County Agricultural Society overstepped the boundaries of decency when it permitted its officers and some of the members of its Executive Committee to lend aid and active support to such a movement. A tent was erected on the grounds and literature distributed by the promoters for the purpose of propagating their nefarious scheme, the purpose being to sever Judge Stowell's honorable and useful connection with the bench and the party whose confidence and esteem he enjoys.

The effort put forth has resulted in complete failure. It is an unpitied sacrifice in a contemptible struggle, and it deserved to fail. Reliable information is furnished that only about seventy names were secured by the vigorous and united efforts put forth, the signers being mostly strangers who were probably innocent of the wrong they were committing. How could it be otherwise? It is true that men acquire in such confederacies a narrow, bigoted and proscriptive spirit, and their efforts react on themselves. Certainly no more systematic method could have been conceived to kill politically any candidate whom they might advocate for office.

The list of representative Republicans who registered their protest against such a scheme was only a small percentage of those who were willing to go on record as being emphatically opposed to the measure advocated and in favor of the re-election of Judge Stowell.

Republicans should bear in mind that one void ballot in each of the election districts of this State means a loss to their party of about 4,800 votes—sufficient to carry the State in a close contest. One void ballot in each of the election districts of this county means a loss of about 80 votes.

COLLECTOR STRANAHAN'S EMPHATIC PROTEST AND ENDORSEMENT OF JUDGE STOWELL

Hon. N. N. Stranahan, collector of the port of New York, being asked by the TIMES for an expression of his views regarding the movement against Judge Stowell by the so-called Independent Judiciary League, said:

The sentiment favoring non-partisanship in the judiciary of the State is a constantly growing one, and properly so. It, however, has found its best expression at all times in the continuance upon the bench of tried and able judges, so much so that both parties have frequently united in renominating judges of experience and probity.

Judge Stowell has served continuously for upwards of twelve years on the Oswego County bench, and so far as I am informed, there has been no charge of partisanship against him in connection with his official acts.

If the Democracy of Oswego County and their allies in the Independent Judiciary League were anxious to promote the actual spirit of non-partisanship, they could best do so by endorsing the nomination of Judge Stowell, but I fear that this is not the actual purpose, but rather that it is an effort to injure the State and National tickets through spoiled ballots, as is invariably the case when voters attempt to split their ticket. No Republican should be misled by this ancient trick of the Democracy.

We have presented a ticket, from President to Coroner, which deserves the vote of every Republican.

The hearty support given by our best citizens to Judge Stowell's candidacy convinces me of his election by the usual satisfactory majority. I trust that it is hardly necessary to add that my vote and influence will be for the election of Judge Stowell.

BAND OF SWINDLERS

Located in Spain, But With Confederates in United States. They Make an Unsuccessful Effort to Swindle George J. Emeny of This City.

An organized band of swindlers in Spain has been victimizing credulous Americans. Recently they have been giving Mr. George Emeny of this city their undivided attention and have been carrying on an extensive correspondence with him. Their method of precedure is plainly outlined in the following letters which we publish for the purpose of warning people who might have some inclination to step into the trap.

Mr. Emeny led the swindlers on in order to obtain the fullest information regarding their plans. It is the old time-worn method of the death of a distant relative, who is desirous of securing a home for a daughter, and in order to do so, has made Mr. Emeny his legal heir and joint executor of a large sum of money, which lies hidden from the Spanish government officials, the owner being incarcerated in a military prison for political reasons.

The letters are in broken English and are reproduced as they were written. They are deserving of a place among the curiosities of literature. There is every reason for believing that the swindlers have many confederates in this country, and we learn almost victimized two residents of Syracuse, but were prevented from doing so by the vigilance of the postal authorities.

We believe the publication of these letters will serve a good purpose, and for that reason secured them from Mr. Emeny.

In reading the letter, it will be observed that the smallest detail of the nefarious plot is carefully worked out. It only required a little credulity on Mr. Emeny's part to make the plan success for the rascals.

Castle Fort of Villanueva de Geltru
29—6—1904.

Mr. G. J. Emeny,
My dear relative,

Having not the honor to know you but for the references which my dead wife, Mary Emeny, your relative, gave me, who mentioning the individuals of our family praised the honesty and good qualities that distinguished you, I address myself to you for the first time (and perhaps the last time considering the grave state of my health) explaining you my sad position and requesting your protection for my only daughter, your niece 13 years old, who I keep as a pensioner in the College Anglo-Spain at Santo Eleno.

As I am strictly watched for my enemies, I hope you will reveal to nobody the most insignificant detail of this letter.

Being a secretary and treasurer of the General Martinez Campos in the last war of Cuba, and deserving the confidence of such an illustrious gentleman, placing my capital in public funds transactions so that I might make a brilliant position for my daughter whom I ever loved with passion since when her mother died.

Now my fortune increase fast, would have been happy had my protector continued at the end of the campaign, as no sooner was he replaced by the General Weyler than my misfortune presented itself, as I could not succeed in making him company to Spain and not being in my power to see Cuba ruled by an adversary politic, I joined the rebellion in behalf of the republic, but as we were victims of the greatest treason, I was obliged to immigrate in English ground, taking along with me my money valued at 35,000 pounds sterling. After having resided some time in London I received the sad news my wife had died leaving my dear daughter in despair without help. In this sad situation I found myself in the necessity of coming back to Spain to help my daughter and bring her in my company to your country.

Before starting, considering as imprudent to take along with me this respectable sum of money, I decided to place it in the London bank, against a special private contract and only as a deposit as it appears in the security document payable to the bearer, that the bank gave me as a guarantee, which document I hidden in a concealed hollow of my portmanteau very well made, which the keenest eye cannot find out.

Then very satisfied that the money was in security, I started for Spain to help my daughter, when I was discovered by the militar authorities, brought immediately before the government militar of Cartegena and condemned to 18 years penal servitude, destined me to undergo my condemn at the Castle of Villanueva de Geltru, where I bitterly suffer, deprived of all communication outside even with my daughter.

When I was sentenced my equipage and the portmanteau have been confiscated, this embargo was made as a guarantee of the payment of the costs of my proc ss. Here I am amidst so many inflictions, not expecting any help from my enemies. I am only visited by the Chaplain of this castle, who being my confessor is my best friend. I owe to him to being able to write this letter being aware of my grave state of health which will be a fatal and prompt one. I trust in your discretion and induces me the noble wish of pretending your protection should you be kind enough to be the support of my daughter trying to make her happy as perhaps I may not be able to see her again.

My daughter will possess a fortune in money of £35,000 although my equipage is confiscated in Cartagena as no body knowing that dissembled secret will, you only know it. You are good to be the protector of my daughter. I expect you will let me know of return of post and when paying the costs of my process, the embargo will be raised and then I shall manage to send the respectable Chaplain with my daughter to your house, also the equipage. We will act then accordingly, for getting my capital will be granted to my daughter Emily in my testament, and a part beside for you and your family as a justly reward.

As it is prohibited for me to receive any direct public correspondence, I expect you will send the letter under two envelopes, the one inside to my name and the one outside to the name of the servant of my protector, the Chaplain of this Castle who is our confidential man.

Here is his address—Spain
Mr. Juan Severo,
Calle de Santa Eulalia No. 7,
Villanueva de Geltru,
Barcelona.

I trust in your discretion the future of my daughter, meantime I remain yours faithfully and relative,

LUIS CASTO.

In reply to the foregoing letter, Mr. Emeny wrote that he was much surprised to learn that he had a sister named Mary Emeny, or any relative residing in Spain. He requested further information regarding her. If it could be proven to his satisfaction that there was any truth in the statements, he would not only esteem it a duty, but a pleasure to become the guardian and protector of his niece.

Castle Fort of Villanueva de Geltru,
30-7-1904.

Mr. G. J. Emeny,
Dear relative,

Very agreeable has been to me just in these sad and trying moments your esteemed letter. Thanks to the goodness and soft heart of you. I will die satisfied relying upon the future of my daughter who will have a strong and kind protector with you to make her lead a happy life. Poor daughter of mine! For God's sake, I beseech you not to abandon the poor fatherless girl and this may be the worthiest action you may do in the world.

I feel my strength fail me just when I am most in want of it. I fear death will come to off her a father who so much loves her and who is so little valued to her at present. I am sorry to leave the life for fear the enemies I leave her will prosecute her. I ask to the Almighty strength to secure as far as possible her fortune, and to be able to reward the favors I expect from you and your family.

Availing myself of the influence enjoys Mr. Mariano Ripoll I will call in a notary to testify my last will in such a way as to be it permitted to me in the exceptional situation I find myself. You know already my secret, inside the smallest of the trunks keep the tribunal of Cartagena seized. There is a secret impossible to be found for any one ignorant of it, inside same is kept the bank document which the bank handed over to me as a guarantee payable to the bearer for the amount of 35,000 pounds. Once you in possession of this document it will be easy to you to realize the quantity I will dispose of in the testament, (but without mentioning the place where this quantity is deposited, neither its amount, as it is enought you should know it).

You may fully rely upon the honorable Chaplain who protects me leaving in mind that thanks to him I can write you and arrange everything.

Do not let yourself be known, neither engage anybody on your side to make steps in the tribunal for the raise of the embargo nor nothing concerning any person. Do not abandon your house for anything at all as it is advisable that the future retirement of my dear daughter should be unknown both for your tranquility and hers, only with the practical support of sending ever to my protector, the Chaplain the necessary amount to pay the tribunal, be will make the embargo to be raised, will lead to your honorable house my daughter and everything the tribunal has seized me. This being the only way to realize my future, as soon as the mentioned trunk be in your power, you will proceed to break carefully the bottom of the smallest one, and from a capacity keeping the bank document, you will pick it up.

I feel myself without strength just now when I am most in want of it, to insist upon beseeching to take daughter away from my powerful enemies [illegible] should they find out the existence of the quantity I leave to her.

Without any pretext whatever and in accordance with the law to raise the embargo of my property it is not necessary but to pay the costs which caused the condemn I suffer and as the Reverend Mr. Mariano Ripoll is poor I earnestly beg you to lend him the metallic help in the form which he will be obliged to solicit from you.

Be in every way and every thing the salver of my daughter. Nobody must know at yours who she is nor that she is my daughter, and never teach her to forget this unfortunate that will die trusting in her and relying upon you should my fate be to die from this illness that keeps me prostrated.

I beg to show you my gratefulness and my most hearty thanks which I give you for the comfort your letter give me.

Remaining yours respectfully,
LUIS CASTO.

It will be noticed that Mr. Emeny's alleged brother-in-law did not deign to reply to his request for information relative to his sister Mary. In lieu of the information desired he received the foregoing letter and an alleged official document from the Court stating that unless £172 sterling be paid within 40 days the baggage of Mr. Casto would be sold at public auction. About two weeks later, Mr. Emeny not having replied to the last letter, he received the following letter from the Chaplain referred to in Casto's letters, enclosing one written by the dying man as he was about to expire:

The sale of gas plates and ovens is still very heavy, no let up to it, dozens are being put in every week. $5.50 you know, at the rate of $1.00 a week, pays the bill—all ditching and piping free. Any wonder they sell—sell by hundreds?

The gas range, of course, is, and always will be, the housewife's darling. In it all is combined—double ovens, top burners, simmerer and everything; $13.50, payable $1.00 a week, buys one all set up ready to use. Ranges are selling as rapidly at present as at any time, and that's saying a great deal.

There is really only one good light and that's gaslight. Compare its softness, compare its steadiness, compare its brilliancy—not forgetting to compare its cost—and you too will pronounce it the "only good" light; good on account of its quality, good on account of its trivial cost. HARMONY IS RESTORED

Mr. Woodruff Moved Mr. Higgins' Unanimous Nomination.

NO FIGHT ON REST OF TICKET.

Mr. Woodruff's Action a Surprise to the Convention—Approximate Estimate of His Strength—Senator Depew Answered Congressman Cockran's Tammany Hall Speech.

Saratoga, Sept. 16.—The Republican state convention adjourned at 2:30 p. m. yesterday after nominating unanimously the following ticket for state officers:

For governor, Frank W. Higgins of Cattaraugus.

For lieutenant governor, M. Linn Bruce of New York.

For secretary of state, John F. O'Brien of Clinton.

For attorney general, Julius M. Mayer of New York.

For comptroller, Otto Kelsey of Livingston.

For state treasurer, John G. Wallenmaier of Erie.

For state engineer and surveyor, Henry A. Van Alstyne of Columbia.

For chief judge of the court of appeals, Edgar M. Cullen (Dem.) of Kings.

For associate judge of the court of appeals, William E. Werner (Rep.) of Monroe.

The unanimous action of the convention in the nomination of Lieutenant Governor Frank W. Higgins for the governorship was made possible by the withdrawal of former Lieutenant Governor T. L. Woodruff at the very last moment as the convention was preparing for the roll call by the individual delegates as called for in the resolution introduced in the interest of Mr. Woodruff's candidacy and at the demand of the Kings county delegates.

Mr. Woodruff's Withdrawal.

It was only when, as he himself said, it became "obvious to his practiced ear" that the convention was almost solidly against him; after his name had been placed in nomination in a speech by William A. Prendergast of Brooklyn in which the management of the Higgins campaign was bitterly attacked, that Mr. Woodruff took the platform, withdrew his name for the further consideration, moved that the nomination of Lieutenant Governor Higgins be made unanimous and pledged the fullest efforts of himself and his Kings county forces in aid of the ticket about to be nominated. There was no contest whatever over any other place upon the ticket.

Up to the very last moment when the chairman of the convention, State Senator George R. Malby of St. Lawrence county, announced the call of the roll in the individual delegates it was expected by the vast majority of the convention that there would be a definite alignment and individual count of the forces behind Higgins and Woodruff and the recognized importance of the bearing of the result upon the entire state organization produced a feeling of intense interest. If any one outside of Mr. Woodruff's immediate circle of personal confidants knew what he was about to do, they kept the secret well and to nearly every person in the convention it was a complete and dramatic surprise.

The second day of the convention opened with every evidence that the contest would be carried to the finish, although no one pretended to have any doubt what the outcome would be. Indeed, ever since the name of Insurance Superintendent Hendrick was positively withdrawn from consideration as a third or compromise candidate there has been no doubt of the nomination of Higgins. The Woodruff advocates, however, insisted to the last, even while they admitted the futility of their struggle, that there should be a "show down." They declared that the real sentiment of the convention was in favor of Woodruff's nomination, that the will of the individual delegates was being coerced by the Higgins leaders, and that the detailed rollcall which they demanded would show the individual feeling in the matter.

A protracted conference was held early in the day between Senator Platt and Mr. Woodruff and his immediate counsellors in the Platt quarters. At its close Senator Platt refused to be interviewed and Mr. Woodruff said: "There is no change in the situation. My name will be presented to the convention."

Immediately after Mr. Woodruff had left Senator Platt Governor Odell called upon the latter and remained with him about 10 minutes. When he came out of the senator's room he said:

"My call upon the senator was simply friendly. I know of no change in the situation. I understand Mr. Woodruff will go into the convention and get as many votes as he can."

Partial Showing of Strength.

In the convention the Woodruff faction was exceedingly enthusiastic and [illegible]. But the only thing approaching a showing of strength was [illegible] his name was first placed in nomination by William A. Prendergast of Brooklyn. Then one might [illegible] made an approximate estimate of [illegible] of the Woodruff movement [illegible] those who rose to cheer [illegible] stood in a body [illegible] Senator Platt's side [illegible] of Colonel [illegible] of the state committee, and some others joined in the uproarious demonstration. But the great majority of the convention sat silent.

FRANK W. HIGGINS.

There was no slight anywhere in the proceedings to Senator Platt, save in the refusal of the convention to accede to his declared wish for the nomination of Mr. Woodruff. Speakers on both sides paid glowing tribute to him, citing his long years of leadership and his participation in notable occasions and actions of his party. Every mention of his name was enthusiastically cheered; again and again the whole convention arose with deafening shouts and applause to do him honor.

Governor Odell, too, as governor and as chairman of the state committee was cheered at every turn.

Mr. Woodruff's withdrawal of his name and his motion to make unanimous the nomination of Mr. Higgins, removed the last evidence of discord from the convention and averted the pending roll call and alignment of forces. The remainder of the convention was of a more or less routine character save for the speech of United States Senator Chauncey M. Depew, who in presenting for renomination the name of Secretary of State John F. O'Brien took occasion to answer some of the Democratic arguments in the speech of Congressman Cockran at Tammany Hall.

The band of the Albany Unconditional club, accompanied by the members of the club, after the convention serenaded Senators Platt and Depew and several other prominent men. Speeches were made by Senator Depew, William Barnes, William Barnes, Jr.; Assemblyman Rogers, Judge Julius M. Mayer and Mr. Woodruff. The speeches all declared enthusiastically in favor of the ticket nominated and the affair partook of the character of a ratification.

Lieutenant Governor Frank Wayland Higgins, the Republican candidate for governor, is best known to the public by his record as state senator, especially through his chairmanship of the senate finance committee during several years prior to his election as lieutenant governor in 1902. He is 48 years old and a native of Rushford, Allegany county.

His father was Orrin T. Higgins, a successful business man, and his family has resided in his home county since 1818. Mr. Higgins received his education at the Rushford academy, the Poughkeepsie Military academy and a commercial college and at the age of 19 engaged in business at Stanton, Mich. Four years later he removed to Olean, where he entered the wholesale grocery business. Since then he has become interested in large enterprises in this state and in the West.

Mr. Higgins ran for office in 1893, when he was elected state senator from the 50th district. He was renominated and re-elected for three successive terms. During his service in the senate he was chairman of a number of important committees, the most important being the finance committee.

In 1902 he was elected lieutenant governor by a majority of about 10,000 votes over his opponent, Charles N. Bulger. Mr. Higgins is married and has three children.

tune which we ought to regret and ought to communicate to you, but trusting you will have resignation I will begin to fulfill the mission which was entrusted to me, informing you that on the 7th inst., at 2 o'clock a. m., after receiving the Holy Sacraments, died your relative, Mr. Luis Casto, in his bed of this penal fortress.

Yesterday afternoon I made a company to his body to his last abode. Let us pray that God may keep him in His holy glory as he has deigned to free him from this miserable and painful existence to which the men had blindly condemned him. The day before dying handed the mentioned Mr. Luis Casto to me the letter I enclose herewith which he wrote for you some moments after having made his will before the notary.

In his will he appoints you the guardian and testamentary executor of his daughter whom he makes his heiress of whatever belongs to him or might belong, leaving for you, providing you accept the guardianship, the fourth part of all bequeathed to the girl and besides the interest this capital will produce till she finishes being under age. He appoints me testamentary executor in order to have a legal representation to the fatherless girl before the Court, who is left quite alone without any support but yours and that insignificant care my useless self allow to give her.

In the inclosed letter he told me, he mentioned you the last deposition, but as soon as possible I shall send you a copy of his will. You will easily understand everything and judge how, in his sad position, and only with the aid of the feeble help I could tender him, he overcame the difficulties and impediments notwithstanding his being watched, to make a document in due form that should have a legal force in law, for whatever cases might come it was difficult not being able to state in the will the quantity he leaves to his daughter, and consequently neither the donations he makes to you and myself authorizing a document in which he states that which, as it cannot be publicly known, he was unable to mention in the will.

Although such document cannot be published for fear the law may take everything he possesses, investigated by the powerful enemies of the deceased, however it fulfilled the object the direct interference we both have on the inheritance, that Mr. Luis Casto left, saves us from a false judgment in a false manner. Said document is in my possession and I will hand it to you at our meeting as I was bid.

The deceased told me you knew where his fortune is deposited and to realize it he advised me you would require a document that lays ignored among the baggage seized.

As my mission as testamentary executor is limited only to make first about the court of law, to raise the seizure, then take the fatherless girl to you, together with the things, clothing and else just in same state that the court of law hands them over to me, so that you may take charge of all. Understanding that for the best success of this mission of mine there is no time to be lost, I have already got leave to absent myself from the place of my destination and will start for my journey tomorrow after visiting and consoling the fatherless girl in the college. I will go to Cartagena in order to present myself before the court of law, making myself known as testamentary executor of Mr. Luis Casto, in representation of the daughter and heiress of same. I shall open negotiations in due form requesting the raise of the seizure which I hope to obtain very soon, as it is just and lawful, so that the daughter may get back what belonged to her father.

Meanwhile believe that I will fulfill my mission without any sacrifice. I expect to know how to carry on all that is recommended me satisfactorily to the end, with the secret that has been entrusted to me not to let it be discovered that you are the guardian, and which is your residence, wherefore I am myself compromised to take or accompany to that honorable house of yours, the fatherless girl and all belonging to her.

Wishing you may enjoy good health and the God's grace, together with your family, I place myself your attentive and chaplain,

MARIANO RIPOLL SORNI.

Your answer to the same address of my servant you know.

Copy of Luis Casto's dying letter:

Mr. J. G. Emeny,

I feel that my life is going out and I address to you my last entreaty. I made my testament, in which I leave to my daughter as my only heiress.

I appoint you her guardian and testamentary executor, and should you accept and fulfill what I depose, I make you donation of the fourth part of my total fortune, which, as you already know.

To the chaplain, Mr. Mariano Ripoll, my protector, I bequeath £1,000 which I depose to hand over to him when in possession of the fortune, and I appoint him my executor so that he may deal with the tribunal in such a character for the transaction.

Adieu, that you may love Emily as nobody.

Your unhappy relative,

LUIS CASTO.

A few days after the receipt of the two last letters, Mr. Emeny received the following epistle from the supposed-to-be daughter of his supposed-to-be brother-in-law. The envelope was bordered with black and a Spanish child's photograph was enclosed with the letter:

My dear Oncle:

I write to you for tell to you my inconsolable sorrow what I have in this moment. My father he has leave this world for another better. The injury what the men they make with him, I believe he will got the reward with the God because is very just and good.

I have the pleasure to go with you but I regret to not could visit the tomb of my dear father.

The chaplain is now out is necessary for arrange some affair of my dead father. I am for that very sorry and unwell but Mr. Mariano Ripoll, he say I must take courage. When I change the country I should very well.

I will request to you that you will not forget me, and the holy mother of God would not forsake me.

I bless at all the family and to same accept a careful care of yours,

EMILY CASTO EMENY

I send you enclosed my photo.

Villanueva de Geltru,
Aug. 11, 1904.

Mr. G. J. Emeny,

Dear Sir,

On my return, and after filling some formalities before the court of law, I wrote to you, giving you particulars of everything and entreating you to keep an absolute reserve about the matter, as the deceased's enemies by one side and the court of law by the other, seek anxiously to find out where Mr. Luis Casto might have his fortune to get it, since the law allows them to do so, and over the payment he was condemned to. But be tranquil because you follow strictly my instructions, which are those I received from the deceased. We will be able to carry the affair to a good end.

Taking advantage of the influence I disposed of, I have been able to get the court of law that seized the baggage, and else things belonging to the deceased to own me as testamentary and representative of the girl, as it was disposed of by her father in his will of which I send you a copy.

Making use of the attributions which were bestowed upon me, I have solicited from the court of law the raise of the seizure of said things, having acceded to my supplications as you will know by the receipt for same when I send it to you. The court of law's expenses must be paid within 49 days or they will proceed to auction off the seized articles and should this happen, the fortune would be lost, remaining the fatherless girl in great penury and without getting you what is due you by the wish of the deceased.

Should you be interested in respecting and fulfilling in what the will is deposed, as guardian you must proceed immediately to send the quantity claimed by the court of law.

All the little savings I possessed have been spent in the burial expenses, procuring the fatherless girl's mourning clothes, pension fees and other petty things of which you may take note in due time to credit them to me. Having consequently been left exhausted of money to act by myself without applying to you, as was my desire, it is necessary for you to answer me by return post, sending me the amount mentioned in the court of law's certificate (£172 sterling) and in order to abreviate as far as possible and resolve promptly what is important regarding this affair, if it is convenient at the same time you send the corresponding amount to pay the law suits' costs and also traveling expenses of Emily, your niece, and myself, taking care to send it in a draft to my name, cashed to the place of London, England, or Paris, France.

Follow exactly the instructions which I give you and everything will happen with the greatest success.

Expecting you will not be late in replying me, I remain as ever yours and chaplain,

MARIANO RIPOLL,
Barcelona, Spain.

I send you translation in English language of the will and the court of law's certificate.

THIS is the day of the natural waisted woman. The W. B. Erect Form has changed the American figure. It has supplanted discomfort with ease—it has banished the impossible and exaggerated figure produced by the old corset idea. It removes the strain of lacing from the sensitive parts of the body and throws all pressure upon the hips and the strong back muscles, supporting the stomach within the corset and not forcing it below the garment. The Erect Form is made in more models than ever before. There are forty distinct styles of this popular make, each meant for a distinct type of woman. Dealers in all sized towns and cities the land over, sell the Erect Form. Prices range upward from $1.

Calculating the Distance of a Storm.

Although lightning and thunder occur always simultaneously an interval of shorter or longer duration is usually observed between these two phenomena, which is due to the fact that sound travels only at the rate of 1,100 feet per second, while the passage of light is almost instantaneous. Based upon this fact, it is an easy matter to tell, at least approximately, how many miles a thunderstorm is away. A normal pulse will beat one stroke to the second, and by counting the pulse beats during the interval of the lightning and the thunder the lapse of seconds is arrived at and consequently the number of feet, which can be reduced to miles.

For example, if thirty seconds elapse between the flash of the lightning and the crash of thunder the storm center is at a distance of 33,000 feet or about six and one-half miles. An almost [illegible] accurate calculation can be made by [illegible] a watch with a [illegible]

A FUTURE EMPRESS.

PRINCESS CECILIA, WHO IS TO WED CROWN PRINCE WILLIAM.

She Is a Talented Young Woman, Speaks Four Languages and Is Fond of Horses—The Love Affairs of Her Future Husband.

Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany, who is to wed Princess Cecilia Augusta Maria, sister of the reigning Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, has long led the matchmaking mammas of European royalty a merry dance and has also caused the kaiser and kaiserin many wakeful nights. A great many people envy a crown prince, and it is true that in a number of respects his lot seems to be a happy one, but his relations with little Dan Cupid are far from satisfactory. The humblest peasant may marry the woman he loves provided he can gain her consent, but a crown prince either has a wife selected for him by his royal papa or is limited in his choice to a few princesses who would be merely "also rans" in the first heat of a beauty show. In the case of Frederick William every available princess on the continent and in England has been considered. One positively refused to marry him, several others were not at all to his fancy, and still others were not considered desirable for reasons of state.

A story is told to the effect that one day the kaiser ordered the crown prince to marry Princess Thyra of Denmark. The young man refused.

"It is my will that you shall enter into this contract," said the emperor.

"Not for the whole German empire," was the younger man's retort.

"But I command you," persisted the emperor.

"No bargain can be made to sell me to a woman I do not love," shouted the prince, and he went out and kicked a fat caretaker on the shins. But he did not marry the Danish princess.

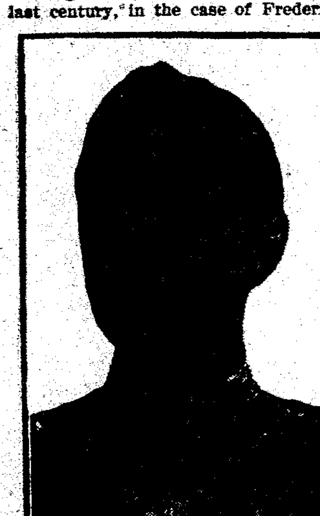
At one time or another Frederick William has been reported in love with fair women who were not of royal blood. One of the divinities was Miss Geraldine Farrar, an American singer; another was Miss Gladys Deacon, formerly of Boston.

The crown prince is twenty-two years of age and is four years older than Princess Cecilia. He is a clever young man, daring and impetuous, a splendid horseman and a crack shot. Not long ago he made such reckless and dangerous jumps with his favorite horse that he was severely reprimanded by the kaiser for needlessly risking his life. He is amiable and modest and is the idol of the army.

The emperor has thoroughly trained him in statecraft, and he is said to be well posted concerning governmental affairs.

Princess Cecilia, the future empress of Germany, is a brown eyed blond, tall and slender, with the rosy tint of health in her cheeks. She speaks German, French and English fluently, and is quite proficient in Russian. Like the crown prince she is exceedingly fond of horses and rides with ease and grace. Strong dynastic reasons for the marriage exist. Only once during the last century, in the case of Frederick



CROWN PRINCE FREDERICK WILLIAM OF GERMANY.

III., has a Prussian king taken a wife except from a German princely house. The emperor desires to bring the Cumberland, Danish and Netherlands courts into closer relations with the German court. The Princess Cecilia's brother, the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, married last June the Princess Alexandra, second daughter of the Duke of Cumberland, a sister of the future queen of Denmark. The Princess Cecilia is also a niece by marriage of the prince consort of Holland.

REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

Declaration of Principles Adopted by the State Convention.

The Republicans of the Empire State, the home of Theodore Roosevelt, in convention assembled, fifty years after the birth of the party, congratulate the country on the splendid results of the recent elections in Oregon, Vermont and Maine and the inspiration they have given to the cause of Roosevelt and Fairbanks.

We repeat and confirm the pledge made to President Roosevelt by our state convention two years ago of unfaltering confidence and unwavering support.

We again record our appreciation of his honesty, his wisdom, his courage and patriotism and of the satisfactory result of his administration, which has been one of performance unsurpassed in American history.

He has emphasized the fact that the Republican party has made the gold standard irrevocable as long as it has control in spite of vicious assaults by the opposing party in two successive presidential campaigns and its refusal to change its attitude on this question at its recent national convention. He has fortified the policy of protection to our industries and all engaged therein. He has strengthened and enforced the laws for the proper regulation of trusts and great corporations. He has settled forever, in our favor, the Panama canal question, opened the way for a system of national irrigation, improved our relations with the Philippines, secured justice to Cuba, extended the rural free delivery, sought peace by strengthening our resources for defense and made our flag respected abroad as well as honored at home. In his recent admirable letter of acceptance setting forth these facts he has challenged contradiction, a challenge which cannot be met.

We indorse the platform of the Republican national convention in Chicago in June last in all its declarations, particularly those in favor of the maintenance of the gold standard and protection to American workmen and the industries by which they thrive.

We appeal for support to the common sense of those who do not believe in change for the sake of making a change and who are willing to "let well enough alone," to those who believe in the kind of protection the Republican party has always stood for and not in the kind with which the Democratic party, with its free trade allies, is trying to delude industrial workers. The people appreciate that the party which formulated the protective tariff can better be intrusted with its revision, when revision becomes necessary, than a party that has never revised the tariff without endangering the welfare both of labor and capital.

The Republican party's safe guidance is evidenced by the fact that during the administrations of McKinley and Roosevelt wages reached the highest point on record and prosperity superseded adversity which resulted from Democratic policies just reaffirmed at St. Louis.

We commend the firm resolution, abiding common sense and strict integrity, unmoved by assaults from enemies or pleas from friends, with which Governor Odell has conducted the affairs of this state and safeguarded with zealous care its vast and complicated interests.

We believe in the policy of raising revenues for state maintenance by indirect taxation. The effective measures of the Republican party in this direction constitute the greatest step taken in the history of our commonwealth for the relief of taxpayers. If any taxes heretofore levied, especially such as affect the savings of the people, appear to be unjust or unnecessary, we favor such revision of the tax laws as will equitably correct such condition.

The people of the state have decreed that the canals shall be improved, and we reaffirm the position heretofore taken by the party in regard to good roads, for the construction of which the state has already paid or appropriated over $3,250,000.

We believe in increasing the effectiveness of the school system, greater appropriations for common schools and the extension of free tuition in high schools, and we favor the still further building up of the state's educational facilities wherever practicable. We claim credit for the legislation which unified the state educational departments and completely removed state educational activities from the field of politics.

We believe in maintaining the laws for safeguarding the interests of labor as well as of capital and in extending such laws whenever additional safeguards may be necessary.

We believe in the further purchase and preservation of forest lands in the Adirondack and Catskill parks by the state and in adequate appropriations therefor.

We congratulate the people of this commonwealth on the satisfactory condition of the state treasury.

The legislature to be chosen this fall will have the selection of a United States senator. Those who believe in sound money, a protective tariff and the administration of President Roosevelt will realize the need of electing a Republican majority in both branches of our legislature. National as well as state policies are involved in the outcome of our state election, and we commend to every citizen the faithful performance of his patriotic duty.

Calvary Clover.

Calvary clover, a flower strangely symbolic of the principles of Christianity, flourishes in Palestine. Calvary clover leaves, like those of other clovers, are trefoil, embodying the doctrine of the Trinity, the central truth of Christianity. Soon after the plant begins to appear above the ground a deep spot of redlike blood appears upon each division of the leaf, but this disappears after a few weeks.

During the day the tiny leaflets form themselves into the shape of a cross, and as the sun sinks to rest the leaves again fold together, it has been suggested, as if in prayer. In due time the blossom becomes a small yellow flower and then a spiral pod covered with thorns. In ripening the flowers interlace, and in their peculiar positions many persons think they can detect the outline of a crown. Tradition says that it is good fortune to plant the seed of the Calvary clover on Good Friday.

Odd Australian Animals.

Australia produces those lowest of the quadrupeds, the duck billed water mole and the echidna, or Australian porcupine ant eater. They, along with the kangaroos, may be described as the groundlings of the mammalian family, for in respect of their structure they are of a much lower grade than, say, a dog or a cat. This inferiority is seen not only in the brain, but in many other details of their bodily anatomy.

In zoological circles the prevalent opinion is that this mole is a link between birds on the one hand and mammals on the other. These "lowest" quadrupeds lay eggs like birds, the young being subsequently hatched from the eggs, whereas in the kangaroos and all higher mammals the young are born alive and nourished by means of milk.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS, 1904.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing amendment to article seven of the Constitution, relating to improvement of highways.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the seventh article of the Constitution be amended by adding thereto the following section: § 12. Improvement of Highways.—A debt or debts of the State may be authorized by law for the improvement of highways. Such highways shall be determined under general laws, which shall also provide for the equitable apportionment thereof among the counties. The aggregate of the debts authorized by this section shall not at any one time exceed the sum of fifty millions of dollars. The payment of the annual interest on such debt and the creation of a sinking fund of at least two per centum per annum to discharge the principal at maturity shall be provided by general laws whose force and effect shall not be diminished during the existence of any debt created thereunder. The legislature may by general laws require the county or town or both to pay to the sinking fund the proportionate part of the cost of any such highway within the boundaries of such county or town and the proportionate part of the interest thereon, but no county shall at any time for any highway be required to pay more than thirty-five hundredths of the cost of such highway, and no town more than fifteen hundredths. None of the provisions of the fourth section of this article shall apply to debts for the improvement of highways hereby authorized. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the Legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the Constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 1, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 2, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER TWO.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the constitution in relation to the time within which debts of the state must be paid and striking from said section certain limitations.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section four of article seven of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VII. § 4. Except the debts specified in sections two and three of this article, no debts shall be hereafter contracted by or in behalf of this state, unless such debt shall be authorized by a law for some single work or object, to be distinctly specified therein; and such law shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax to pay, and sufficient to pay, the interest on such debt as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal of such debt within fifty years from the time of the contracting thereof. No such law shall take effect until it shall, at a general election, have been submitted to the people, and have received a majority of all the votes cast for and against it at such election. On the final passage of such bill in either house of the legislature, the question shall be taken by ayes and noes, to be duly entered on the journals thereof, and shall be: "Shall this bill pass, and ought the same to receive the sanction of the people?" The legislature may at any time, after the approval of such law by the people, if no debt shall have been contracted in pursuance thereof, repeal the same; and may at any time, by law, forbid the contracting of any further debt or liability under such law; but the tax imposed by such act, in proportion to the debt and liability which may have been contracted, in pursuance of such law, shall remain in force and be irrepealable, and be annually collected, until the proceeds thereof shall have made the provision hereinbefore specified to pay and discharge the interest and principal of such debt and liability. The money arising from any loan or stock creating such debt or liability shall be applied to the work or object specified in the act authorizing such debt or liability, or for the payment of such debt or liability, and for no other purpose whatever. No such law shall be submitted to be voted on, within three months after its passage or at any general election when any other law, or any bill, shall be submitted to be voted for or against. The legislature may provide for the issue of bonds of the state to run for a period not exceeding fifty years in lieu of bonds heretofore authorized but not issued and shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax for the payment of the same as hereinbefore required. When any sinking fund created under this section shall equal in amount the debt for which it was created, no further direct tax shall be levied on account of said sinking fund and the legislature shall reduce the tax to an amount equal to the accruing interest on such debt. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 21, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 22, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER THREE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the constitution in relation to justices of the appellate division of the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section two of article six of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VI. § 2. The legislature shall divide the state into four judicial departments. The first department shall consist of the county of New York, the others shall be bounded by county lines, and be compact and equal in population as nearly as may be. Once every ten years the legislature may alter the judicial departments, but without increasing the number thereof. There shall be an appellate division of the supreme court, consisting of seven justices in the first department, and of five justices in each of the other departments. In each department four shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of three shall be necessary to a decision. No more than five justices shall sit in any case. From all the justices elected to the supreme court the governor shall designate those who shall constitute the appellate division in each department; and he shall designate the presiding justice thereof, who shall act as such during his term of office, and shall be a resident of the department. The other justices shall be designated for terms of five years or the unexpired portions of their respective terms of office, if less than five years. From time to time as the terms of such designations expire, or vacancies occur, he shall make new designations. A majority of the justices so designated to sit in the appellate division in each department shall be residents of the department. He may also make temporary designations in case of the absence or inability to act of any justice in the appellate division, or in case the presiding justice of any appellate division shall certify to him that one or more additional justices are needed for the speedy disposition of the business before it. Whenever the appellate division in any department shall be unable to dispose of its business within a reasonable time, a majority of the presiding justices of the several departments at a meeting called by the presiding justice of the department in arrears may transfer any pending appeals from such department to any other department for hearing and determination. No justice of the appellate division shall, within the department to which he may be designated to perform the duties of an appellate justice, exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court, other than those of a justice out of court, and those pertaining to the appellate division, or to the hearing and decision of motions submitted by consent of counsel, but any such justice, when not actually engaged in performing the duties of such appellate justice in the department to which he is designated, may hold any term of the supreme court and exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court in any county or judicial district in any other department of the state. From and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, the appellate division shall have the jurisdiction now exercised by the supreme court at its general terms and by the general terms of the court of common pleas for the city and county of New York, the superior court of the city of New York, the superior court of Buffalo and the city of Brooklyn, and such additional jurisdiction as may be conferred by the legislature. It shall have power to appoint and remove a reporter. The justices of the appellate division in each department shall have power to fix the times and places for holding special terms therein, and to assign the justices in the departments to hold such terms; or to make rules therefor. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 29, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 6, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FOUR.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to trial commissioners.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that section six of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 6. Circuit courts and courts of oyer and terminer are abolished from and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five. All their jurisdiction shall thereupon be vested in the supreme court, and all actions and proceedings then pending in such courts shall be transferred to the supreme court for hearing and determination. Any justice of the supreme court, except as otherwise provided in this article, may hold court in any county. Whenever and as often as the causes upon the trial term calendar of any county of this state, having a population according to the latest state enumeration of over five hundred thousand, shall have so accumulated that an unpreferred cause cannot be reached for trial in due course within one year after it has been placed upon the calendar, the appellate division of the department in which such county is embraced may, by a certificate signed by a majority of its members, certify the fact to the court of appeals, whereupon said court may by order authorize the appointment in said county of trial commissioners, stating in said order the number of commissioners to be appointed, and their terms of office, not exceeding six years. Such order shall be made in duplicate and one copy thereof filed in the office of the secretary of state, and one in the office of the clerk of the county in which said appointments are authorized. The appellate division of the department embracing said county shall thereupon appoint the number of trial commissioners authorized by said order, who must possess the qualifications required for a justice of the supreme court. They shall possess and exercise in the county for which they are appointed all the powers of a justice of the supreme court respecting the trial and disposition of causes upon said trial term calendar and the settlement of cases on appeal, but shall possess none of the powers of such a justice out of court or at special term. They may be removed in the same manner as is provided in case of a justice of said supreme court. They shall each receive an annual salary of twelve thousand dollars to be paid by the county for which they are appointed, and may not practice law. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 22, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 8, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FIVE.

Concurrent resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the constitution.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section seven of article seven be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Forest preserve.—The lands of the state, now owned or hereafter acquired, constituting the forest preserve as now fixed by law, shall be forever kept as wild forest lands, except as hereinafter provided. They shall not be leased, sold or exchanged, or be taken by any corporation, public or private, nor shall the timber thereon be sold, removed or destroyed. The legislature may authorize the removal of dead timber on burned areas so far as necessary for reforestation, through officers and employees of the state, but not by contract. The legislature may also authorize the sale of lands outside of the limits of the Adirondack park and the Catskill park as such parks are now established by law. The proceeds of such sales shall be set apart in a separate fund and used only for the purchase of lands in such parks. A violation of this section may be restrained at the suit of the people or with the consent of the supreme court on notice to the attorney-general at the suit of any citizen of the state. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 4, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 5, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State, at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section one of article two of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SIX.

Concurrent resolution, proposing amendment to section one of article two of the constitution relating to qualification of voters.

Resolved (if the senate concur), that section one of article two of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article II. Section 1. Qualification of voters.—Every male citizen of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a citizen for ninety days, and an inhabitant of this state one year next preceding an election, and for the last four months a resident of the county or of a city comprising more than one county, and for the last thirty days a resident of the election district in which he may offer his vote, shall be entitled to vote at such election in the election district of which he shall at the time be a resident, and not elsewhere, for all officers that now are or hereafter may be elective by the people, and upon all questions which may be submitted to the vote of the people, provided that in time of war no elector in the actual military service of the state, or of the United States, in the army or navy thereof, shall be deprived of his vote by reason of his absence from such election district; and the legislature shall have power to provide the manner in which and the time and place at which such absent electors may vote, and for the return and canvass of their votes in the election districts in which they respectively reside.

State of New York: In Assembly, Mar. 28, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section one of article two, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to sections one and seven of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SEVEN.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to article six of the constitution in relation to providing additional justices of the supreme court and judges of the court of appeals.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section one of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 1. Supreme court; court of appeals; how constituted; judicial districts.—The supreme court is continued with general jurisdiction in law and equity, subject to such appellate jurisdiction of the court of appeals as now is or may be prescribed by law not inconsistent with this article. The existing judicial districts of the state are continued until changed as hereinafter provided. The supreme court shall consist of the justices now in office, and of the judges transferred thereto by the fifth section of this article, all of whom shall continue to be justices of the supreme court during their respective terms, and of twelve additional justices who shall reside in and be chosen by the electors of, the several existing judicial districts, three in the first district, three in the second, and one in each of the other districts; and of their successors. The successors of said justices shall be chosen by the electors of their respective judicial districts. The legislature may alter the judicial districts once after every enumeration under the constitution, of the inhabitants of the state, and thereupon reapportion the justices to be thereafter elected in the districts so altered. The legislature may at any time, when it deems that the public interests requires it, increase the number of justices of the supreme court or of judges of the court of appeals as it sees fit, provided that the total number of judges of the court of appeals shall not exceed eleven, and provided also that any bill increasing the number of justices or judges as aforesaid shall receive the assent of two-thirds of the members elected to each branch of the legislature. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section seven of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Court of appeals.—The court of appeals is continued. It shall consist of the chief judge and associate judges now in office, and of such additional judges as the legislature may from time to time provide in accordance with section one of this article and as may be elected according to law, who shall hold their offices until the expiration of their respective terms, and of their successors, who shall be chosen by the electors of the state. The official terms of the chief judge and associate judges shall be fourteen years from and including the first day of January next after their election. The legislature may provide by law for the manner in which the court shall sit, whether in two divisions or one, and for the number of members of the court necessary to form a quorum in either instance and also for the number whose concurrence shall be necessary to a decision. The court shall have power to appoint and to remove its reporter, clerk and attendants. § 3. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 12, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to sections one and seven of article six, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER EIGHT.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That section six of article six of the constitution be amended by adding thereto the following: In any department in which supreme court commissioners have been appointed, the justices of the appellate division of the department, or a majority of them, are authorized from time to time to designate one or more of such supreme court commissioners to hold trial terms of the supreme court within such department and to remove such designation. A supreme court commissioner so designated shall have power to hold a trial term of the supreme court within such department and to perform the duties of a justice of the supreme court in the trial term to which he may be assigned. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, to be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

The Paradise of Umbrellas.

Surakarta is the paradise of umbrellas. They are carried proudly over the heads of every official and every nobleman, but invariably are shut at the approach of a person of higher rank, and inside the kraton no umbrella may be carried open except that of the emperor himself. The umbrella is the crown, the wand of office, the outward sign of rank and distinction. There are umbrellas of gold inside and out for the emperor, of gold outside only for the empress, with a stripe of yellow satin for the emperor's brothers, with a wider stripe of the same material for his illegitimate brothers, of white silk with a narrow gold stripe for the illegitimate sons of the legitimate brothers, and so on ad infinitum. Every official, every military officer, exhibits his rank in his umbrella, which is invariably held from behind by an attendant whenever he leaves his house in sunshine or cloudy weather. There is an official guide book to the umbrella labyrinth of Surakarta which contains not less than 300 various designs in all imaginable colors and ornamentation.—Century.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 21, 1904.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S LETTER OF ACCEPTANCE.

President Roosevelt, according to his vigorous and brilliant letter of acceptance, isn't quite sure what the issues are in the present campaign. It has been predicted that if the Republicans continue in power for another four years they will have absorbed all the issues. The President is quite right in assuming that if he is elected next November the people thereby endorse his administration, and he gives notice that he will continue right on in the future just as he has in the past. There is a ring of certainty and determination in his letter which is very reassuring, and which will go far to settle men's minds and enable them to forecast the future. The old world is informed, too, by inference that America is alive and fully prepared to safeguard her interests everywhere under the sun. In short, the letter is a shining light, set upon a hill, which will bring joy and hope to the persecuted and down-trodden wherever its contents are known. Certainty in regard to the future is a potent factor in the letter of acceptance, and all men know what the policy of the Republican party will be if a new lease of power is extended. Business men will be enabled to make plans as well as contracts.

The Republican party has no apology to offer. Its history since its birth in 1856 is the history of progress and prosperity. Its leaders have always had the welfare of the country at heart. It has never taken a backward step, but has always been the supporting pillar of the Government.

REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET.

The Republican party has placed an excellent State ticket in the field—one that will carry it to victory next Fall. There were some differences about the selection of a standard-bearer at the recent convention, but when the mantle fell on Mr. Frank W. Higgin's shoulders there was no hesitation on the part of Mr. Woodruff and his friends, who were somewhat disappointed over the result, to pledge their loyal support to the nominees. The guarantee of the delegates from Kingsborough left an excellent impression and the delegates returned to their homes in a happy and peaceful frame of mind.

The new laundryman at the Fulton Steam Laundry is convincing our residents that he is the first skilled laundryman ever employed by any laundry here. Have you seen the work he is turning out?

Mr. Bradt Resigns Prohibition Nomination.

Mr. A. P. Bradt has resigned his candidacy for county treasurer on the Prohibition ticket, owing to the fact that the party's candidate for county judge, Mr. C. E. Pitts, would not resign at the request of Mr. Bradt, when his united party wished him to remain at the head of their county ticket. It was a foregone conclusion that Mr. Bradt would resign after the merry haha that went up throughout the county at the ludicrous spectacle he presented last week, of working for the candidate of another party when he had already endorsed and promised to do all in his power to promote the election of the candidate on whose ticket he was also a nominee. Mr. Charles N. Bulger has a faculty for placing in most uncomfortable and unexpected positions, any and all who are willing to take his yoke upon themselves and Mr. Bradt's predicament—that of being a man without a party—is just one more exhibition of this fascinating trait of Mr. Bulgers'. Mr. Bradt will undoubtedly now endeavor to hold Mr. Bulger to his promise of the nomination for county treasurer on the Democratic ticket three years hence. Until he demands the fulfilling of pre-election promises, Mr. Bradt will continue to call his newly-found friends the finest ever. After he receives the retort discourteous he will return to the fold from which he wandered at Mr. Bulger's beck, and endeavor, by publishing editorials culled from the New York Journal—to persuade all men to advocate and support the principles of Prohibition. He will then divide the "czarship", and "bossism" of Oswego County equally between Judge Stowell and Mr. Bulger, whereas at present Judge Stowell and Mr. Pitts are his only aversion. Whiskey isn't in it. It must be awful to incur Mr. Bradt's displeasure.

Very desirable rooms for light house keeping, boarding or students wishing to board themselves, may be secured at the home of Mrs. C. H. Graves, West First street, Fulton. 14-tf

REPUBLICAN SEMI-CENTENNIAL

Veterans Attend an Enthusiastic Celebration Last Week at Saratoga.

A pleasing feature of last week's Republican State Convention, held at Saratoga, was Wednesday evening's celebration of the semi-centennial of the party. Fifty years ago, Aug. 16, at Saratoga, was held the first gathering, called for the purpose of obtaining an expression of opinion in relation to the growing aggression of the slave power. This meeting adjourned to the city of Auburn, Sept. 26, where was formed a new political party, named Republican, whose avowed object was to stop the further expansion of slave territory. More than two hundred delegates assembled. Oswego county, then composed of two Assembly districts, sent five delegates each.

Two years later, in 1856, the party nominated as its standard-bearer, the gallant "Pathfinder," John C. Fremont, little knowing what great deeds would be achieved under its standard in the half-century to come; little realizing the heroic figures who would march under its banner and uphold its policies. Of that band more than one hundred marched in a body last week to the convention hall and were seated on the platform.

Fully three thousand people assembled at the hall to listen to the speeches, Senator Charles W. Fairbanks, candidate for vice-president, making the principle address. Senator Depew, a veteran of '56 was the other orator. Hon. Murat Halstead, also a speaker in the first campaign, made a short address.

Frederick W. Seward of Montrose, presided, and Jesse Benton Fremont, son of the famous "Pathfinder," sat by his side, and later made some remarks.

The celebration was inaugurated by a committee of the surviving delegates to the first regular Republican State convention, held in 1854. The call for that convention and arrangements for this celebration originated with William Barnes, sr., of Albany, whose opening remarks went back to the time of Lincoln's assassination and attempts upon the lives of other prominent statesmen and generals. After recounting the efforts to kill William H. Seward, Mr. Barnes named as presiding officer, Frederick W. Seward, son of the then Secretary of State.

Senator Depew and Francis B. Fremont, son of John C. Fremont, conducted Mr. Seward to the chair. Chairman Seward introduced Senator Fairbanks as "the next vice-president of the United States." Senator Fairbanks received an enthusiastic welcome, and while the cheering was in progress and he arose to speak, a flash-light photograph was taken, and as the burning powder sent a great ring of smoke, moving slowly upward, Senator Depew leaped to his feet, and pointed his finger, while the audience as quickly caught sight, and when quiet was restored, Senator Fairbanks, stretching his hand upward, said: "That looks like a halo that crowns fifty years of patriotic service."

The veterans in attendance from Oswego and elsewhere were kindly cared for by Secretary Moore of New York, who occupied room 6 at the United States Hotel, Saratoga. Mr. Moore presented each delegate with a silk badge bearing a likeness of Fremont, which will be preserved as a valuable memento of the occasion. H. N. G.

Fall Styles and Samples.

Mrs. Harry Pilch opened her dress-making parlors on Monday, Sept. 19, after the Summer vacation. She has just received a large assortment of imported and domestic patterns in coats, suits, waists, evening gowns, &c., and she is showing the largest line of samples of the latest dress novelties, as well as the standard weaves, that can be found in Fulton. Especially attractive are the cravenettes in all colors and prices for rain coats, walking suits, &c. The Scotch tweeds and mixtures, Delchross, Airlie, Caithness and Denbigh mixtures in all shades and qualities. Every one should call and talk with Mrs. Pilch before purchasing anything in this line.

Sewerage System for the West Side.

The plans and maps for a system of sewers for the west side have been approved by the State Board of Health and are now in possession of the city authorities. As soon as the assessors turn over their books to the city clerk he will foot up the total amount and ascertain how much money can be devoted to this purpose, bonds will be sold and bids will be asked for the construction of a system of trunk sewers in the principal streets of that section of our city. In sparsely settled streets, property owners can, if they so desire, have the system extended at their own expense and at a later time receive reimbursements from the city. The system will be extended as fast as money can be secured for the purpose.

Womans Exchange.

The Womans Exchange at 161 S. Second St., is now open and if the people of this city support it as well as is done in other cities it will prove of great benefit to many a needy woman.

One of the many virtues of the Woman's Exchange will be its great help to gentlewomen—those who need assistance but who are not able to go into the world as wage-earners on account of either poor health or having a family dependent upon them for certain household duties. In this way they may turn their hand to whatever they do the best—needlework, fancy-work, &c. The Exchange will dispose of their work for them. They only have to pay $1 a year to become members of the Exchange and they can take as much of their product to the Exchange as they like.

All kinds of fancy-work, needlework is for sale and plain sewing and any special thing will be done by order. As the work enlarges the Exchange will be broadened out and more added as the demand increases.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

Board of Public Works—City of Fulton, N. Y., 1904.

For Constructing Sanitary Trunk Sewer and Appurtenances for the West Side in the City of Fulton, N. Y.

Sealed proposals for the above mentioned work, endorsed "Proposal for Constructing Sanitary Trunk Sewer," will be received at the office of the City Clerk, Fulton, N. Y., until 4 P. M., of the 7th day of October, 1904, and opened at the office of the Board of Public Works at 8 P. M., same date.

The following estimate of quantities is to be considered only as approximate and bidders are required to form their own judgment of the quantities and character of the work by personal examinations of the specifications and drawings relating to it, or such other means as they may prefer. Bidders must not assert any misunderstanding in regard to anything relating to the work.

The contractors shall have no claim against the City by reasons of any variation between the quantities of the approximate estimate and the quantities of the work as done, nor on account of any misunderstanding or misconception of the nature and character of the work.

The several bids will be computed, tested and canvassed by the quantities and qualities mentioned in the following estimate:

1450 Lineal feet trenching and backfilling under 8 feet.
1450 Lineal feet trenching and backfilling 8 feet or over and under 10 feet.
1750 Lineal feet trenching and backfilling 10 feet or over and under 12 feet.
1350 Lineal feet trenching and backfilling 12 feet or over and under 14 feet.
2100 Lineal feet trenching and backfilling 14 feet or over and under 20 feet.
1200 Lineal feet trenching and backfilling 20 feet or over and under 24 feet.
700 Lineal feet trenching and backfilling 24 feet or over and under 31 feet.
970 Lineal feet furnishing and laying 20 inches vitrified tile pipe.
2700 Lineal feet furnishing and laying 18 inches vitrified tile pipe.
4200 Lineal feet furnishing and laying 15 inches vitrified tile pipe.
680 Lineal feet furnishing and laying 12 inches vitrified tile pipe.
1450 Lineal feet furnishing and laying 8 inches vitrified tile pipe.
5 Manholes with covers complete, under 8 feet.
7 Manholes with covers complete, 8 feet or over and under 12 feet.
7 Manholes with covers complete, 12 feet or over and under 16 feet.
4 Manholes with covers complete, 16 feet or over and under 20 feet.
2 Manholes with covers complete, 20 feet or over and under 24 feet.
2 Manholes with covers complete, 24 feet or over and under 31 feet.

Each bid must be made out on the forms of proposal furnished by the City Clerk or Board of Public Works, and must be enclosed in a sealed envelope, addressed to the City Clerk of Fulton, N. Y.

The prices for which bidders will agree to execute and perform each class of work must be written in ink in both words and figures in the form of bid, and all bids will be considered informal which do not contain prices set opposite each and all of the items which are called for in printed forms for bids, or which are otherwise not in conformity with this notice. No bid will be allowed to be withdrawn for any reason whatever, after it has been deposited with the clerk of the Board.

Bidders are required to state in their bids, under oath, their names and places of residence, the names of all persons interested with them in said bids, also that the bid is made without any connection with any person making another bid for the same contract, and that the bid is in all respects fair and without collusion or fraud.

Contractors will be paid monthly, approximate estimates, 85 per cent. of the amount due for work at that time done.

Within thirty days after the fulfilling of the contract, the final estimate will be paid in full to the contractor, less amounts previously advanced, except $1,000.00, which will be retained six months not including December, January and February, for the purpose of keeping the work in good repair. The unexpended balance will be paid to the contractor.

The person or persons, whose bid shall be accepted, will be required to attend at the office of the Board of Public Works with the sureties offered him, or them, and execute the contract and bond within ten days from the date of the service of a notice to that effect, delivered to him in person, or mailed to the address given in the bid. In case of failure or neglect to do so, he, or they, will be deemed to have abandoned the contract.

The sum of $1,500 (currency or a certified check), payable to the order of the Chamberlain of the City of Fulton, N. Y., will be required to accompany each bid. All such deposits except that of the bidder whose bid shall have been accepted, will be returned to the person, or persons, making the same, within three days after the contract is awarded. If the successful bidder, whose bid shall have been accepted, shall refuse or neglect to execute the contract within ten days after the notice that it has been awarded to him, or them, the amount of deposit made by him or them will be forfeited to and be retained by the City of Fulton, N. Y., as liquidated damages for such neglect or refusal; but if he or they shall execute the contract and bond within the time aforesaid, the amount of his or their deposit will be returned to him or them.

A bond in the sum of $10,000 conditioned for the faithful performance of this contract, with sureties to be approved by the Board of Public Works will be required.

The Board of Public Works reserves the right to reject all bids not deemed for the interest of the City and also to increase or diminish any of the above named quantities.

Plans may be seen at the office of the Board of Public Works, and specifications, forms of proposals, etc., obtained from the City Clerk or Superintendent of Public Works.

By order of the Board of Public Works of the City of Fulton, N. Y.

W. M. HINSDALE,
City Clerk.

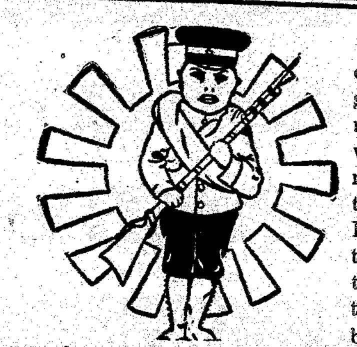
ACQUIRED LEADERSHIP



Winning a battle depends on the officers, the men, the guns, the ammunition. All must be the right kind, for weakness in any one point, may result in defeat. It is the same thing in business. Likening the management to the officers, the salesmen to the soldiers, the merchandise to the ammunition, it can be as truthfully said that every element in this business is right. We believe that you will find our goods right in every particular—that is what wins success for us and for you.

WHEN GREAT QUESTIONS WERE DISCUSSED.

Early Days of the Republican Party and Its Great Leaders.

Speech of Senator Chauncey M. Depew at the Mass Meeting of the Republican State Convention in Saratoga, N. Y., Wednesday Evening, Sept. 14, 1904, to Celebrate the First Republican National Campaign Under the Candidacy of John C. Fremont.

The Fremont campaign of 1856 is an inspiring theme. The Republican party was formed in 1854, and after two years of preparation it made its first national canvass under a leader whose adventurous career, initiative, courage and success had made him a popular hero. We who in these peaceful days are discussing the questions of the hour seem to be involved in controversies which are purely academic compared with the mighty issues of that period. The conscience of the country and its moral sense had frequently risen against the horrors of slavery to be bludgeoned into silence by the cry of "Disunion!" Now, however, the men who placed right and righteousness above everything had formed a compact and organization and could not be scared from their position by the threat that the Union would be dissolved or the Republic destroyed and the hope of the ages blasted. The demand of the party was strictly within the limits of the Constitution. It recognized the existence of slavery in that instrument, but it contended that the fugitive slave law and the carrying of slaves into new territories for the purpose of carving out of them slave states were unconstitutional. It was a contest which for the first time took the discussion of the iniquities of slavery from the small body of abolitionists who had been missionaries against the institution into every forum, including the pulpit. It was an educational campaign on the value of the Union, the blessings of liberty and the atrocities of slavery. It prepared the way for Lincoln, the Emancipation Proclamation and the preservation of the Union with slavery eliminated.

It may not be out of place for a first voter of 1856 to briefly narrate his personal experience. Westchester county was Democratic and proslavery. My father and his brothers and my grandfather were heartily and cordially with the overwhelming Democratic majority which believed that the Union could only be preserved with slavery and that its value was such that the price was not dear. As a student at Yale I listened to the marvelous eloquence of Wendell Phillips. I went to hear him, believing him to be the enemy of his country and a traitor to its constitution and preservation. I met him afterward in the house of Professor Chauncey Goodrich, one of the best loved of the Yale professors, and found this titanic force of the platform, this most vitriolic of speakers, the most cultured, refined and fascinating man I had ever been privileged to know. Following Phillips, William Lloyd Garrison and other leaders of the abolition movement came to New Haven and under its historic elms appealed to the young men of the college. I came home convinced that no sacrifice was too great to prevent the introduction of slavery into the new territories, that no enormity of legislation had equaled the fugitive slave law, that to surrender the constitutional rights of free men and free labor in new territories and to enforce the fugitive slave law in the states was to give the country to the slave power and ultimately to throttle liberty in our land. My life at home with my Democratic and proslavery family and associations was very unhappy. Two weeks after graduation the few Republicans there were in the village—and they were very few, all of them, my father said, "damned Yankees and dangerous pests"—had a meeting. Every campaign has a new and favorite orator. In the canvass of 1856 it was George William Curtis. The Committee came from the last train without him, and then I was called out simply to be committed. As I stood before those neighbors of my childhood all the pent up feelings which had become so acute from my position at home burst into a torrent of explanation as to why I had become a Republican. The news of the effort was carried to New York, and ten days afterward, under the auspices of the State Committee, I was stumping the state—and I am still at it. When I went upon that speaking tour I was a student wholly unfamiliar with audiences or with the machinery of political parties, but I was possessed with all the ardor and enthusiasm of an evangelist. The first time I was on a platform in a great meeting with one of the most distinguished members on the Republican side of the United States Senate his calm, reserved and rather platitudinous presentation of the constitutional argument seemed to my youthful mind to be unworthy of the occasion. Believing slavery was the curse of the country and that it was in danger of capturing and holding the government and that such was the secret purpose and conspiracy of James Buchanan, when my turn came late in the evening the effort I made was characterized more by vocabulary and epithet than argument. I lay awake that night wondering where I could get the evidence for a successful defense of the libel suit which I was sure Mr. Buchanan would bring against me, but received the next morning that lesson so valuable to the young enthusiast. The newspapers had not reported my speech.

Every survivor of that period who belonged, as most of the young men did, to Democratic families and lived in Democratic neighborhoods and who cast then his first vote for Fremont will recall similar experiences. The eloquence of Phillips is largely a tradition. I have heard all the great orators of my time, both in this country and abroad. None of them was capable of producing such immediate and marvelous effects upon hostile audiences. He rarely made a gesture, was conversational and familiar, in strong contrast to the impassioned oratory of that period. His sentences were crisp, short and epigrammatic, and he used Saxon words rather than Latin derivatives. His own self control while this flood of flaming wrath was flowing over the audience created more excitement than any passion could have done. The listener wondered if the cap on that volcano finally did blow off what might happen. The fear of the dissolution of the Union had made the Constitution and the Union too sacred to be discussed, too holy to be endangered, even to preserve liberty. Phillips in his famous oration described the arrest under the fugitive slave law of Anthony Burns and his return to servitude. Burns had escaped while very young to Boston. He had educated himself, demonstrated marked ability, had gained considerable property and owned a comfortable home, in which he was living happily with his wife and children, one of the most respected citizens of the neighborhood. His owner ferreted him out, and when he was carried to the court the feeling was so strong that United States troops had to be placed around the courthouse, which was also further protected by chains to keep out the populace, and the United States soldiers under the American flag escorted him to a United States man-of-war, which carried him back to his master and to slavery. Phillips' description of this scene was agonizing in the extreme. Women fainted, and the Puritan blood drove from the brains of this Puritan audience their political antagonisms and welded them into sons of liberty. It was at this supreme moment that Phillips paused and, rising higher and higher, finally lifted his hands in solemn invocation to heaven and said, "If such crimes against humanity and liberty, against home, wife and children, are to be perpetrated under the authority and by the power of the Constitution and the Union, may God damn the Constitution and the Union!" But God did not damn the Constitution or the Union. On the contrary, he created a party who were willing to give their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honors to the preservation of the Constitution and the Union, but adding, as Webster's immortal phrase expressed it, "Liberty and Union, one and inseparable, now and forever."

The remarkable story of the Republican party is its consistency with the principles enunciated in this its first national campaign. It declared then that the principles of the Declaration of Independence and the Federal Constitution together were essential to the preservation of republican institutions. It declared for the rights of the states, but also for the prohibition of slavery going into the new territories. It denounced the barbarism of polygamy and slavery. It declared for the construction of a railroad to the Pacific ocean, for the improvements of our rivers and harbors and for the promotion of our internal commerce.

In 1860 the Republican party again met in national convention, reaffirmed its platform of 1856 and added to it the protective tariff. In 1864 the Republican convention again affirmed the principles of 1856 and 1860, but also ratified Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation and demanded the utter and complete extirpation of slavery from the soil of the Republic. By the Republican success in 1868 the principles of the Republican party, unchanged from its foundation, were reaffirmed and its declaration for the extirpation of slavery was placed in the Constitution by the thirteenth and fourteenth amendments. From 1868 until the present canvass there has not been any change in the policies or principles of the party. Its foundation has been the preservation of the "Union and Liberty, one and inseparable, now and forever." It has maintained with unswerving fidelity the protective tariff of Washington and of Hamilton, of Fremont and of Lincoln. It has redeemed the currency from fiat money and placed the credit of the United States upon the sure foundation of a stable and unfluctuating standard of value. It has maintained the high ideals of the early days in its candidates for the Presidency. The historian will hardly say that Polk and Pierce and Buchanan met these ideals, but the historian of the future, when partisan passions have passed, will declare that Lincoln and Grant and Hayes and Garfield and Arthur and Harrison and McKinley and Roosevelt have all been worthy successors of Washington, of Jefferson, of Adams and of Madison.

I shall leave to our distinguished candidate for Vice President and the other orators the presentation at this historical celebration of the present issues which divide the two parties, but I call attention to this pregnant fact: In our brief history by natural death or assassination the presidency has become vacant and a succession under the Constitution necessary five times. It is a contingency always before us. If Judge Parker should be elected the respected and honored citizen who is the second on the ticket will enter upon its incumbency in his eighty-second year. That presents also the possibility of the Constitutional rule of succession coming into force. Under the law if the President and Vice President die the members of his Cabinet succeed in the order of creation of those ministries—first the Secretary of State, second the Secretary of the Treasury, third the Secretary of War. Every President must necessarily select the men who will fill these places from his most distinguished advisers and friends in the convention. This rule is inviolable and cannot be avoided. The two gentlemen who would thus be honored beyond all others would be Governor Hill and William J. Bryan. Then would come a southern man, and John Sharpe Williams would be entitled to consideration. A contingency, therefore, is possible, though it may be remote, that the people of the United States will have elected either one of these gentlemen indirectly for their Chief Magistrate. The voter must take into consideration in casting his ballot whether his choice would be either of these gentlemen as compared with Roosevelt, Fairbanks, John Hay, Leslie M. Shaw and William H. Taft. We have in Theodore Roosevelt a candidate so singularly free from official criticism that, though he has been in public life and in administrative and executive offices since he was twenty-four years old, the opposition can find no failure in ability and no flaw in integrity. They are opposing him in this canvass upon the one issue that he acts too quickly. But in all great positions quickness of judgment is frequently essential for the success of the enterprise and for the credit and glory of the country. We have as a candidate for Vice President a gentleman of tried experience who has won a foremost place in Federal affairs and who is also singularly free from any possible criticism of his public life or his capacity for the Presidency. There are few men in all our history who have won the distinction, accomplished the results and added so much to the position of the United States in the world and to the glory of American diplomacy as John Hay. Few finance ministers have attained such distinction and credit as Leslie M. Shaw. But if all these should die we have in the office of Secretary of War a man who in the most difficult position in our government has won the attention and commanded the admiration of the whole world, who rises to the best thought as to American citizenship and the highest ideals of American statesmanship, and that is Secretary Taft. Fellow citizens, here is a quintet any one of whom would receive the vote and confidence of every member of the Republican party, every one of whom is worthy of that greatest position in the world, the Presidency of the United States.

Compatriots who cast their first votes for "Fremont, Free Soil, Free Men, Free Press, and Free Speech," we have lived. In every age those who have rounded out fifty years of maturity and activity have experienced the pleasure of living, but to us of this last half century have come the thrill and inspiration of events unequaled in their importance in all other recorded time. It has been our glorious lot to witness and participate in the mighty revolutions and evolutions which have changed the destinies of nations and recreated the Republic. Invention and discovery and the subduing of the forces of nature to the service of man have limitlessly reduplicated energy and production. Education, science and art have kept pace with material progress, but it is in our privilege as citizens of the United States that we have gathered our richest harvest. The shock of battle broke the shackles of the slave; the purified wells of patriotism cleansed our people of sectional hate and the passions of a civil war. Righteousness of professions in the immortal Declaration of Independence enacted into recognition of the equal rights of man in our Constitution and laws placed us upon solid foundations for material development. The recital of the growth of our country in all which makes for liberty, opportunity, homes and happiness for the people and power and wealth for the Republic from the campaign for Fremont to the canvass for Roosevelt surpasses the hopes of the Fathers or the Utopian dreams of the wildest imagination. Its cold figures are at once both romance and history. We believe that with God's blessing most of these marvelous and beneficent results have come from the policies and measures of the Republican party. We have often won by the aid of Democratic voters, but it was the wisdom of our party and the folly of theirs which drew their patriotic support. Their leaders say our prosperity is due wholly to Divine Providence, but we answer with due reverence that, while "God gave the increase, it was Paul who planted and Apollos watered." We here today find the ardor of aspiration which moved us to march and carry the torch for Fremont, after fifty years of faith and works, has developed into the enthusiasm of realization. Himself born within and the product of our half century we hail and follow the best, the healthiest, the most ideal, product of this glorious period—Theodore Roosevelt!

Counting Postal Cards.

Two of the most interesting automata now working within the limits of the United States are those used by the government for counting and tying postal cards into small bundles. These machines are capable of counting 500,000 cards in ten hours and wrapping and tying the same in packages of twenty-five each. In this operation the paper is pulled off a drum by two "fingers," another finger dips in a vat of mucilage and applies itself to the wrapper in exactly the right spot. Other parts of the machine twine the paper around the pack of cards, and then a "thumb" presses over the spot where the mucilage is, and the package is ready for delivery.

LEGAL NOTICES.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage upon real property situated within the state of New York, whereby the power to sell has become operative, notice is hereby given that said mortgage, which is dated the 23d day of February, 1889, and is recorded in the office of the Clerk of the County of Oswego, at Oswego, N. Y., on the 23d day of February, 1889, at 9:20 o'clock a. m., in Liber 158 of mortgages at page 423, was given by John E. Cain and Hattie Cain, his wife, mortgagors to Orlando Howell, mortgagee, and the name of each assignee of said mortgage is as follows: 1st assignee, Fred O. Howell, 2d assignee, Maria A. Howell.

The sum claimed to be due upon the said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is sixteen hundred seventy-five dollars and forty-one cents, which is the whole amount secured by said mortgage.

The following is a description of the mortgaged property, contained in the said mortgage:

"All That Tract or Parcel of Land, situate in the Town of Granby, County of Oswego and State of New York, and being on Lot No. 72 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is described as subdivision Number One of said Lot according to Peter Schenck's map, made from his survey & dated Sept. 26, 1889; and is bounded on the N. & W. by the N. & W. lines of said lot; on the S. by the State Road running E. & W. through said lot & on the East by Subdivision No. 2 containing 19 acres of land more or less.

"Also all that certain tract or parcel of land situate in the said Town of Granby, N. Y. & being a part of the State's 100 acres of land on lot No. 62 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is bounded as follows: Beginning at the S. E. Corner of said Lot 62 and running West 21 chains & 62 links; thence N. 11 chains & 56 links; thence E. 21 chains & 62 links to the east line of said Lot, thence S. 11 chains & 56 links, to the place of beginning. Containing twenty-five acres of land, more or less.

"Also all that certain other tract or parcel of land, situate in the Town of Granby, N. Y., and being a part of Lot 71 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby) is bounded as follows: Beginning in the East line of said Lot in the center of the Fulton & Hannibal Plank Road (so called); thence Northerly along the E. line of said lot 71 about 25 rods & 6 links to a stone wall intersecting said line of Lot 71 from the East; thence Westerly in a direct line with the center of said stone wall One Hundred four & one-half (104½) feet to a stone set in the Earth indicating said corner; thence Southerly parallel with the East line to the center of said highway; thence Easterly along said Highway to the place of beginning, Containing about one acre of land."

Pursuant to the power of sale contained therein, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the said mortgaged property, or a part thereof, at public auction, at the law offices of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton County of Oswego, New York on the 29th day of October, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day.

Dated and subscribed at Fulton, N. Y., this 3d day of August, 1904.

IN HIS FATHER'S STEPS.

Charlie Gates Is Generally Lucky In Financial Games.

Whether it is cornering the corn market or riding in a pony race, Charles G. Gates, son of the famous financier, John W. Gates, generally has luck on his side. A short time ago there was unwonted excitement among the coterie of young millionaires at Saratoga. Charlie Gates, as he is generally known, and the race horse owner, H. M. Scheftel, were on the way to the race course when an argument arose as to the merits of the respective ponies they were riding. Gates offered to wager anything from a good dinner to $500 on his pony, and Scheftel took him up. The ponies made a hot spurt to the race course, and, with his usual luck, Gates got the start and held it, winning the race.

The younger Gates promises to have a career in the world of finance and industry as interesting as that of his father. He is now twenty-eight years old. His birthplace was West Chicago, and he attended college at Lake Forest university, Illinois. As soon as he graduated his father asked him whether he wished to go into business or a profession or take a year or so in travel before deciding what he would do. He answered without hesitation that he wanted to go into business and was ready to start. He became a clerk in the brokerage firm of Baldwin, Gurney & Co., Chicago, quickly mastered the details of the business and was taken into partnership. Later he became a member of his father's firm of Harris, Gates & Co. The big corner in corn by which the Gates interests are said to have gathered in several millions of dollars some years ago was the result of the manipulation of the youngest member of the firm. Mr. Gates was married six years ago to Miss Mary W. Edgar. He is short, stout and broad shouldered, with genial manner.

THEY CAN'T DODGE ISSUES.

Democrats of national prominence have announced that they propose to make the campaign one of personalities.

The economic issues, they say, are not to be discussed. They are going to tell the nation that Roosevelt is dangerous, that he is a violator of the constitution, that he is a usurper, that the foundations of the republic will be shaken if the American people elect him. That is all.

They have so many trust magnates managing the campaign that they dare not longer keep up their cry against trusts.

Parker having voted for free silver at 16 to 1, they dare not discuss the financial question.

Knowing that the people remember how hungry they were while the Wilson bill was on the books, they dare not in this state discuss their plank declaring the tariff a robbery.

Recognizing that even their own party favors the present policy of the Philippines, they dare not tell the truth on that point.

They dare not point to their own record for the last eight years.

They have no policy of their own to outline for the future.

They are going to try to hide the real issues with a cloud of mud and try to scare the American people on Roosevelt's personality. The voters will see through this Democratic trick.

CAN'T STAND PARKER'S BACKERS.

The Cattaraugus Union of Salamanca has bolted Judge Parker. It says in an editorial explaining its position that it proposes to do all in its power to aid in the election of President Roosevelt. One reason why it finds it cannot support Parker is that it does not believe the men behind him should be put in control. It says, "While we cannot agree with President Roosevelt in many things, we repeat that we believe him more imbued with the spirit of Democracy, of pure patriotism, than we have been able to discern in the candidate of Grover Cleveland, David B. Hill, Billy Sheehan, Pat McCarren and the rest of the self appointed Democratic leaders in this campaign."

Only Did His Duty as He Saw it.

"I deem it my duty to add a word of praise for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy" says J. Wiley Park, the well known merchant and postmaster at Wiley, Ky. "I have been selling it for three or four years, and it gives complete satisfaction. Several of my customers tell me they would not be without it for anything Very often, to my knowledge, one single dose has cured a severe attack of diarrhoea, and I positively know that it will cure the flux (dysentery). You are at liberty to use this testimonial as you please." Sold by H. C. Giesler.

A Thousand Ways of Lying.

There are a thousand ways of lying, but all lead to the same end. It does not matter whether you wear lies, tell lies, act lies or live lies, your character is ruined all the same.

There is no more demoralizing influence in modern life than the unnatural straining to seem other than we are. Nothing else so quickly lowers self respect, takes the fine edge off honor and blunts the conscience as the sense of being a sham, a gilded fraud or an unreality. It cheapens standards, lowers ideals, saps ambition and takes the spring and joy out of living. No man can make the most and the best of himself until he is absolutely honest with his own soul and unfalteringly true to his highest ideals, and this is impossible while he is living a lie.—Success.

Probably Not.

"Is Pickleby a manicure artist?"

"I don't know. Why?"

"I just saw him and he told me that he had charge of a hundred hands at his place of business."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

In Praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

"Allow me to give you a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mr. John Hamlett, of Eagle Pass, Texas. "I suffered one week with bowel trouble and took all kinds of medicine without getting any relief, when my friend, Mr. C. Johnson, a merchant here, advised me to take this remedy. After taking one dose I felt greatly relieved, and when I had taken the third dose was entirely cured. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for putting this great remedy in the hands of mankind." An Enormous Sundial.

A curious phenomenon is reported in the columns of a geographical publication. It is a large promontory in the Aegean sea, known as Hayon Horoo, which extends 3,000 feet above the level of the water. As the sun swings around, the shadow of this mountain touches one by one a circle of islands separated by regular intervals, which act as hour marks. It is the largest sundial in the world.

Judge Parker has not yet informed the country whether he believed he was right when he voted for 16 to 1 and the national dishonor or was simply regular at the expense of his convictions. The country wants no such trimming candidate. See Vermont returns.

Judge Parker, according to his organs, has decided that there is too much of the trusts in the management of his campaign. But he had not yet asked the trust representatives to get down and out. Maybe they are "irrevocably established" at headquarters.

Judge Parker has not yet published any information to the Constitution club which will let those respectable men know whether or not he voted to make Maynard, who helped steal a senate, a judge of the court of appeals.

If Judge Parker thinks the stars and stripes are the symbol of oppression in the Philippines, how about Porto Rico and the Hawaiian islands?

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists. Price 75 cents per bottle.

A Zuni Baby.

The Zuni child spends his early days in a cradle. But a cradle in Zuniland does not mean down pillows, silken coverlets and fluffy laces; it is only a flat board, just the length of the baby, with a hood like a doll's buggy top over the head. Upon this hard bed the baby is bound like a mummy, the coverings wound round and round him until the little fellow cannot move except to open his mouth and eyes. Sometimes he is unrolled and looks out into the bare whitewashed room, blinks at the fire burning on the hearth and fixes his eyes earnestly on the wolf and cougar skins that serve as chairs and beds and carpets in the Zuni home. By the time he is two or three years old he has grown into a plump little bronze creature, with the straightest of coarse black hair and the biggest and roundest of black eyes. He is now out of the cradle and trots about the house and the village. When the weather is bad he wears a small coarse shirt and always a necklace of beads or turquoise.—St. Nicholas.

A Power For Good.

The pills that are potent in their action and pleasant in effect are De-Witt's Little Early Risers. W. S. Philpot, of Albany, Ga., says: "During a billious attack I took one. Small as it was it did me more good than Calomel, blue mass or any other pill I ever took and at the same time the effect was pleasant. Little Early Risers are certainly an ideal pill." Sold by H. C. Giesler and G. T. Boyington.

The World, the Times, the Post and the Brooklyn Eagle are all calling out that Judge Parker give out "winged words" and "hard hitting blows;" that he show "virility" and "aggressive methods." If they are not careful they will be advising him to adopt a style as vigorous as Roosevelt's, and then what will they do for an issue? They have been criticising the president because he has red blood in his veins.

SOFT CORE

Like the running brook, the red blood that flows through the veins has to come from somewhere.

The springs of red blood are found in the soft core of the bones called the marrow and some say red blood also comes from the spleen. Healthy bone marrow and healthy spleen are full of fat.

Scott's Emulsion makes new blood by feeding the bone marrow and the spleen with the richest of all fats, the pure cod liver oil.

For pale school girls and invalids and for all whose blood is thin and pale, Scott's Emulsion is a pleasant and rich blood food. It not only feeds the blood-making organs but gives them strength to do their proper work.

A Tree Distillery.

On the Canary islands grows a fountain tree, a tree most needed in some parts of the islands. It is said that the leaves constantly distill a quantity of water that is sufficient to furnish drink to every living creature in Hiero, nature having provided this remedy for the drought of the island. Every morning near this part of the island a cloud of mist arises from the sea, which the winds force against the steep cliff on which this tree grows, and it is from the mist that the tree distills the water.

Society's Pleasures.

Since the magnificent times of the Roman empire there has never been a period when people have been so overfed, overamused and overstimulated as in the imperial London of today.—Lady's Pictorial.

Sour Stomach.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, sour stomach is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food throughly. Let five hours elapse between meals, and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the sour stomach may be avoided. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

When troubled with constipation try Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They are easy to take and produce no griping or other unpleasant effect. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

Proved It.

"My wife will bear witness," said the prisoner at the bar, "that at the very time I am accused of burglarizing Mr. Smith's premises I was engaged in walking the floor with my infant child in my arms, endeavoring to soothe it by singing 'Rock-a-by, Baby.'"

"The prisoner is discharged," remarked his honor. "He can prove a lullaby."

Has Sold a Pile of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for more than twenty years and it has given entire satisfaction. I have sold a pile of it and can recommend it highly. JOSEPH MCELHINEY Linton, Iowa. You will find this remedy a good friend when troubled with a cough or cold. It always affords quick relief and is pleasant to take. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

Waiting Instead of Going.

The art in life is to sit still and to let things come toward you, not to go after them or even to think that they are in flight. How often I have chased some divine shadow through a whole day till evening, when, going home tired, I have found the visitor just turning away from my closed door.—Arthur Symons in Saturday Review.

[illegible] of a Name.

Nelson, a thriving little English town, is a living instance of the value of a name. Not long after the battle of Trafalgar some tinker, tailor or other person established a tiny wayside inn and called it after the naval hero. There was nobody on the spot from whom to expect custom, but the road led to and from populous districts. Travelers stopped at the place, and presently a cottage or two began to rise, then more of them, and the name of the public house answered for the whole. That was the nucleus of the present town. Now 40,000 people live around the site which the old innkeeper chose and called after the name of his hero.

Passing Counterfeits.

Johnny—Say, papa, passing counterfeit money is unlawful, isn't it? Papa—Yes. Johnny—Well, papa, if a man was walking along the street and saw a ten dollar counterfeit bill upon the sidewalk and did not pick it up wouldn't he be guilty of passing counterfeit money and couldn't he be arrested and put in jail? Papa—More likely the lunatic asylum. Now you may go to bed, my son.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

From 148 to 92 Pounds.

One of the most remarkable cases of a cold, deep-seated on the lungs, causing pneumonia, is that of Mrs. Gertrude E. Fenner, Marion, Ind. who was entirely cured by the use of One Minute Cough Cure. She says: "The coughing and straining so weakened me that I ran down in weight from 148 to 92 pounds. I tried a number of remedies to no avail until I used One Minute Cough Cure. Four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me entirely of the cough, strengthened my lungs and restored me to my normal weight, health and strength." Sold by H. C. Giesler and G. T. Boyington.

Cut Off at Bargain Rates.

Percy—Young Rapidgait had hard luck. He was disinherited recently. Harold—Cut off without a dollar, eh? Percy—No. His mother did the disinheriting. He was cut off with 98 cents.—Pittsburg Post.

All the More Annoying.

"But his statement about you is a tissue of malicious lies, is it not?"

"No; it's a very substantial combination of malicious lies, with a tissue of malicious truth."—Philadelphia Ledger.

THREE DOLLARS BETTER THAN THOUSANDS.

Cal-cura Solvent, Dr. Kennedy's NEW Medicine, Did More than Many Doctors.

Your pocketbook as well as your health needs consideration, but often both suffer through ignorance of the right thing to buy. That was the case with the gentleman who wrote the following letter:

"Thousands of dollars have I paid to doctors during my life and I don't complain of the doctors; but Dr. Kennedy's new medicine, Cal-cura Solvent, beats them all. Three bottles of it cured me [illegible] spring of heart trouble and terrible pain in the side, back and head. Am better than for thirty years."—M. J. Brandow, Jewett Centre, N. Y.

For $3.00 invested in Cal-cura Solvent Mr. Brandow got what he had spent thousands for in vain. All druggists, $1.00.

Great Closing Out Sale

AT

The Fair

16 AND 18 EAST FIRST STREET
WALDHORN BLOCK, FULTON

I have rented my store to other parties and must give posession. This is the very heart of the season and we offer our ENTIRE STOCK, WHOLESALE AND RETAIL, AT GREAT SACRIFICE. Our intentions are to close out every dollar's worth of goods, as it is easier for us to handle the greenbacks than overloaded shelves. We will not consider cost, value or anything else. We must close out every dollar's worth of merchandise. This is just the right time to supply the household, as such a chance and such low prices might not rule in Fulton for a long time to come. THIS IS NO HUMBUG OR FAKE SALE as sometimes occur, but we are positively selling out. We do not wish to hire storeroom for unsold goods. We will not quote any prices, as it would require two full news papers and time, but come and ask for anything you want. We may have it. The prices you will get will certainly be below your expectations. We sincerely thank the people of Fulton and vicinity for the past ten years' of patronage.

The Fulton Times.

Established 1868. FULTON, OSWEGO COUNTY, N. Y., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1904. Vol. 37: No. 20.

KEEP "PURE" THE JUDICIARY

A supreme effort has been made by the Observer of this city, and those who are advocating the election of Attorney Giles S. Piper for county judge, to reflect discredit on the Times for the alleged inconsistent position it has assumed in supporting the Hon. Merrick Stowell for re-election on the Republican ticket.

Six years ago the editor of the Times was a comparative stranger in this vicinity and had not taken an active part in local political matters. Besides, there existed at that time, and since, business relations with the firm of Piper, Rice & Wilson. Mr. Piper accepted the regular Democratic nomination for county judge at the time mentioned. He asked the Times, in friendship, to support him, and it did so. In the heat of the campaign, many statements were made, based solely on information, furnished by a man who has been proven utterly partisan and prejudiced against Judge Stowell. These statements have been found to be gross exaggerations—small incidents that were magnified beyond every semblance of truth. The editor of the Times sincerely regrets that he ever permitted the columns of the paper to be used, even for friendship sake, to make statements derogatory to Judge Stowell, which were afterward revealed to be malicious and base.

Some time after the campaign, the editor of the Times had the pleasure of personally meeting Judge Stowell, and he found him to be the reverse of what his political enemies had described. He was affable and courteous, and a further acquaintance has revealed him to be strictly honorable in all his transactions—neither "boss" nor "czar." He was too broad-minded a man to even harbor animosity, although he would have been justified in doing so. The best index of the character of Judge Stowell—political and judicial—is the integrity of the men in this city who are sincerely and ardently urging and working for his re-election. This is also true throughout the entire county. Judge Stowell has grown gray, but not rich, in the service of the Republican party, and the party is proud of him.

There is a very marked distinction between Judge Stowell's friends—socially, mentally and morally—in this city, and his political enemies. It is presumably true that the same standard prevails throughout the county.

Since the contest mentioned, the Times has actively engaged in every campaign, standing for clean, progressive candidates. It has supported the Republican nominees in city, State, county and national affairs. Zealous in its endeavor to place men in office who have measured up to the standard of good citizenship and who could be relied upon to discharge their duty by the electors and taxpayers.

Having taken this position there was no inclination to retreat an inch. So when the Democratic party, by one of its time-worn schemes, endeavored to place an independent candidate in the field for the avowed purpose of cutting down the Republican majority in this city and county, the Times stood firm against the movement, and no man can truthfully say that a monetary consideration has ever influenced the decision of the paper on any subject.

Before the present campaign started, the Times was asked if it could render Mr. Piper any assistance. The reply was that it could not, the paper preferring to stand by the Republican candidates.

The Times predicts that Fulton will give Judge Stowell a tremendous majority.

AN EXPLANATION AND A STORY

A determined effort was made this week by the small but select coterie of this city, who are conducting a sham battle in the interests of a "pure judiciary," to eliminate the Times as a factor in the political campaign. This paper, under its present management, is on the side of clean politics and never fails to champion what it considers to be the best interests of the community. The men who are opposed to the Times and its policies have planned schemes which they have tried to work to their own pecuniary benefit. A feeling of bitterness exists on their part because they have been foiled in every instance, and there is a pardonable pride on the part of the Times in the knowledge that it has been first to sound the keynote of alarm.

The Times has always had the co-operation of the men who are at the head of this city's commercial and financial interests—men of honor and integrity—who are only politicians in the highest sense of the term, and who never fail to make paramount civic pride and municipal honesty.

There were two mortgages on the Times—one for $1,700, made payable to Allan Gilmour of Albany, whose interests in this city are in the hands of Giles S. Piper, and another for $2,500, held by the VanWagenen family, of which Mr. F. D. VanWagenen is the representative. Last Sunday, about 5 o'clock, Mr. VanWagenen sent word to the editor of the Times that he wished to see him at his home. On reaching there, Mr. VanWagenen stated that Mr. Piper had expressed a desire that the Gilmour mortgage, amounting to $1,700, should be paid immediately. He was asked how much time would be allowed, and he replied that a man would reach Fulton on Monday morning to look over the property, with a view of taking immediate possession; that negotiations had been pending between some parties in this city and the Democratic State Committee, who were anxious to secure control of the Times and make it a Democratic paper. But at all events, negotiations had gone so far that they were practically closed and that the next issue of the Times must support Mr. Piper's candidacy for county judge. The present editor could stay if he chose, but the policy of the paper must be reversed to conform to this plan.

The editor of the Times flatly refused to comply with the demand, and he was then told that the only alternative was to take up the mortgages, time was given until Monday afternoon to complete the transaction.

Mr. George Chauncey, a loyal Republican, was visited by the Times editor and the matter fully explained. He said that no such "freeze-out" would be permitted if he could in any way prevent it. He stated that the Times had always stood for Fulton's best interests; it had been conducted in a clean, capable manner and he was confident there was sufficient civic pride on the part of substantial citizens to meet the emergency. "Don't worry," he said. "We'll stand by you to the end."

Mr. Chauncey immediately called to his aid Mr. Thomas Hunter and the Hon. T. D. Lewis. Plans were discussed and it was decided to call into council on Monday Mr. E. R. Redhead, the Messrs. Hunter, Mayor Foster and other representative citizens. These gentlemen decided to take up the mortgages at the earliest possible moment.

On Monday afternoon, Mr. Luke McHenry of the Chittenango Times, a Democratic paper, was introduced to the editor of the Times. He looked over the plant and seemed pleased with the prospect of securing it.

It is only fair to state that Mr. Van Wagenen was not to blame for his attitude in the matter. He was desirous of securing the money on the investment, and he seized the opportunity. There were others behind him, however—the officers of the alleged pure and unadulterated judiciary league—who were anxious to obtain the support of the paper for Mr. Piper and the other Democratic nominees on the city, county, State and national tickets.

On Tuesday, Mr. VanWagenen called at the Times office and was met by Mr. E. R. Redhead and Mr. George Chauncey. The mortgages were taken up a full discharge given. These are now held by Mr. Redhead, as trustee, for the gentlemen who had civic pride enough not to permit the deal to go through.

The editor of the Times is grateful to his rescuers, and that the almost universal sentiment in the city, regardless of political differences, is one of satisfaction at the termination of the affair, is evidenced by the spontaneous expressions from all classes.

The Times will continue to be conducted as in the past, and its editor hopes that his friends and benefactors may never have cause to regret their generous action.

The wise men of antiquity loved to convey instruction under the covering of apologues; and though this practice of theirs is generally thought childish, we shall make no apology for adopting it on the present occasion, as it seems most appropriate:

A pious Brahmin, it is written, made a vow that on a certain day he would sacrifice a sheep, and on the appointed morning he went forth to buy one. There lived in his neighborhood three rogues who knew of his vow, and laid a scheme for profiting by it. The first met him and said, "Oh, Brahmin, wilt thou buy a sheep? I have one fit for sacrifice."—"It is for that very purpose," said the holy man, "that I came forth this day." Then the imposter opened a bag, and brought out of it an unclean beast, an ugly dog, lame and blind. Thereon the Brahmin cried out, "Wretch, who touchest things impure, and utterest things untrue, callest thou that cur a sheep?—"Truly," answered the other, "it is a sheep of the finest fleece, and of the sweetest flesh. Oh, Brahmin, it will be an offering most acceptable to the gods." —"Friend," said the Brahmin, "either thou or I must be blind."

Just then one of the accomplices came up, "Praised be the gods," said this second rogue, "that I have been saved the trouble of going to the market for a sheep! This is such a sheep as I wanted. For how much wilt thou sell it?" When the Brahmin heard this, his mind waved to and fro, like one swinging in the air at a holy festival. "Sir," said he to the new comer, "take heed what thou dost; this is no sheep, but an unclean cur."—"Oh, Brahmin," said the new comer, "thou art drunk or mad!"

At this time the third confederate drew near. "Let us ask this man," said the Brahmin, "what the creature is, and I will stand by what he shall say." To this the others agreed; and the Brahmin called out, "Oh, stranger, what dost thou call this beast?"—"Surely, oh, Brahmin," said the knave, "it is a fine sheep." Then the Brahmin said, "Surely the gods have taken away my senses,"—and he asked pardon of him who carried the dog, and bought it for a measure of rice and a pot of ghee, and offered it up to the gods, who, being wroth at this unclean sacrifice, smote him with a sore disease in all his joints.

Gas Heaters.

Now Is the Time For Gas Heaters.

The chilly morning and chilly evening season is with us—too early to start the furnace, too early to start the stove—a little heat is necessary, absolutely necessary to health. Nothing can take the place of the gas heater under such circumstances, nothing as quick, nothing as convenient, nothing as economical.

PUBLIC LIBRARY.

Solicitors Hard at Work to Secure Money for Library Site —Meeting of Library Trustees and Solicitors Called for Next Friday Evening.

Solicitors are hard at work, endeavoring to secure the amount necessary to obtain a site for our public library. This is a cause in which all should be interested and it is hoped there will be a generous and hearty response.

The patience of the generous donor, Andrew Carnegie, has been severely tried by what might seem to him to be an unnecessary delay, and should the people of this city fail to comply with the reasonable conditions exacted, it would be an extremely unfortunate occurrence. The present opportunity to obtain a superb building for our city and public library should not be permitted to go by default, and the Times is confident that there is public spirit in Fulton to stand by this splendid project.

A meeting of the Library Trustees and solicitors will be held next Friday evening, Sept. 30, at 8 o'clock, in the Public Library rooms, to look over the lists of subscriptions and to make plans for the prosecution of the work.

Fulton Strong for Piper.

FULTON, Sept. 24.—(Special)—But three of the testimonials of character given to Judge Stowell by Republicans of this city were signed as originally presented to them. All came from the Judge's bureau in Oswego, typewritten and ready for signatures. This is the first time in the political history of Oswego county when a candidate on the Republican ticket has been obliged to resort to such methods. It shows that he must regard himself as weak with his party.—Oswego Palladium.

The foregoing item appeared on Friday night. It is a fitting addition to the tissue of falsehoods, misrepresentations and intimidations which have composed the Democratic and the alleged Independent Judiciary League campaign in this county thus far. Every statement in it is false. Those who know the men who kindly consented to the interviews in question can readily understand what an insult it would be to their intelligence to present a typewritten document, purporting to be an expression of their opinion, for their signature. Without instructions from any one, the editor of the Times, evolved the plan. A page could have been filled of like expressions of opinion had time permitted, but there were sufficient to show the tenor of feeling in this city toward Judge Stowell and his candidacy.

Pocketbook Lost.

A pocketbook was lost last Friday on Fourth street, between Academy and Buffalo, containing keys and a small amount of money. The finder will be rewarded on returning same to 153 South Fourth street.

GRAND REPUBLICAN RALLIES.

The Hon. M. R. Sackett U. S. Consul at Prescott, Canada, and the Hon. F. G. Whitney of Pulaski will address a meeting of Citizens in Stewart's Hall, on the west side on Friday evening, Sept. 30 at 7:30 o'clock. All are invited to attend and hear an eloquent discussion on the questions of most vital interest to every voter. Music by the Fulton Campaign Glee Club. The Continental Drill Corps and the Granby Escort's will unite in a parade prior to the meeting.

Arrangements are being made for a big Republican rally at the Richardson Theatre, Oswego, Monday evening, Oct. 10th. The speakers will be Secretary of the U. S. Treasury Shaw and Col. Archie Baxter, clerk of the State Assembly.

FIRST AND ONEIDA STREETS

That "Independent" League.

From the Phoenix Register, Thursday, September 22, 1904.

It was one of the conditions of Giles S. Piper's acceptance of the Democratic candidacy for County Judge that he be presented with the signatures of a thousand implied Republicans who would support him at the polls. Those signatures have not been produced and Mr. Piper has not yet accepted the nomination, but his Democratic friends are hesitating at no effort to secure the signatures, and one of them is the so-called "independent" movement, but it so transparent a Democratic dodge that no self-respecting Republican will entertain it for a moment.

The most important officer to be elected in this County this fall is that of County Judge. Six years ago THE REGISTER was one of the few newspapers of the County that not only opposed the nomination, but the election of the Hon. Merrick Stowell. We then believed that the legal and judicial training of Judge Stowell was not up to the standard that a County Judge of the State of New York should possess. Into this erroneous view we were chiefly led by reason of the fact that Mr. Stowell entered upon the study and practice of the law late in life. However, we have been happily disappointed, for Mr. Stowell, during the past six years has not only demonstrated that he has a legal and judicial temperament of the highest order, but one that fits him for our higher courts, and, were there a vacancy in our Supreme Court, THE REGISTER would unhesitatingly support him for that position. It is with sincere gratification that the Judge is a candidate for reelection and he merits the earnest support of every loyal Republican.

The following expressions of representative Republicans and others demonstrate the popularity of Judge Stowell's candidacy :

The Oswego Palladium, Democrat.

"The entire Republican ticket, ASIDE FROM THE JUDICIARY, is a weak one."

F. L. Smith, Supervisor.

I cannot concieve why any Republican should seek to injure the Republican party by lending his influence or name to further the alleged independent movement. I am heartily in favor of the re-election of Judge Stowell and shall work to that end.

A. P. Merriam, President of Phoenix Board Trade.

Our local "reform" specialists are undoubtedly possessed of all the important knowledge regarding the duties and characteristics of the judiciary. Their pretentions, however, have only excited ridicule in this village. I have only words of the highest commendation to express regarding Judge Stowell, I consider him an honest and competent county officer and consider myself honored in supporting him for the positien he has so creditably filled in the past.

Sweet Brothers, paper manufacturers.

We deem it a privilege to approve the candidacy of Hon Merrick Stowell, and regard him as an able judge, a wise councelor and a stalwart Republican. Any opposition to his re-election we believe to have germinated in the minds of disaffected autocrats, encouraged by Democrats to further the interests of their candidate. We shall loyally support him at the polls and work for his election.

C. D. Bonsted, agent American Express Co.

The report that Republicans have started a movement against the election of Judge Stowell is without foundation, so far as I am able to discover. The only ones so interested are not considered closely identified with the Republican party, and I believe will have little influence with its vote. Judge Stowell is entitled to the full vote of the Republican party from both his record and nomination by that party, and I confidently expect it.

D. S. Burleigh.

I considered the rumored movement to bring about the reducing of Judge Stowell's majority at the coming election in Oswego County as a device of the Democrat party and any Republican who lends himself to such a movement, or is misled into supporting any but the regular Republican candidates is not doing his duty to himself, his nation, state or party. I shall take much pleasure in supporting all the nominees of the Republican party.

W. H. Merriam, Justice of the Peace and prominent merchant of Pennellville.

The candidacy of Judge Stowell meets my hearty approval. I am opposed to the alleged independent movement, as I believe it tends to injure the State and National ticket. I shall do everything in my power for the reelection of Judge Stowell.

W. W. Meredith, a prominent farmer of Schroeppel.

I know Judge Stowell to be a fearless and impartial judge, a conscientious Republican and the nominee of the Republican county convention. As such he should receive the support of his party. I am opposed to the recent movement started by alleged Republicans, and will do all I can to elect him.

M. C. Scott.

In my opinion Republicans of Oswego County will not endorse a movement promoted and engineered by a few "near Repubhcans" "take one to the polls for Republicans," who are endangering the success of the national and state ticket to gratify a personal enmity. Judge Stowell is an honest competent officer, and I shall take pleasure in supporting him for reelection.

Martin Chesbro, prominent farmer and member of Post Joe Gould, G. A. R.

I have known Judge Stowell for many years both as a comrade and a county officer and believe him to be an honest, impartial judge. I shall support him at the polls and do what I can to bring about his election. Comrades, stand by!

W. H. Spencer, one of the largest land owners in the town of Schroeppel

I believe every Republican should support Mr Stowell for county judge. Any opposition to him comes from wrong motives. He has proven himself to be an able and fearless judge and is entitled to reelection.

W. H. Wiggins, one of the original Republicans of 1856.

I have the pleasure of being a Freemont Republican and have voted the Republican ticket in Oswego county at every election since then. I am apposed to the alleged independent movement to defeat Judge Stowell and will work and vote for his election.

E T Jones, trustee of the village of Phoenix

I believe Judge Stowell to be an ideal candidate and shall do all in my power to make his majority the largest given in the town of Schroeppel.

A. C. Parker, Trustee of Phoenix.

While my acquaintance with Hon Merrick Stowell is brief I have formed a very favorable opinion of him as a man, and as a judge. I shall support his candidacy and believe him qualified and worthy of the loyal support of every Republican reelection.

C. J. Fuller, one of the leading jewelers and optician.

I wish to put on record my sincere admiration for Judge Stowell as a judge, a man, and a Republican. His unwavering fairness in his decisions, his loyalty to his party and his ability as a lawyer should and will recommend him to every Republican elector in Oswego county. I heartily disapprove of the alleged independent movement and shall use my every effort against it and for the election of Judge Stowell

H. W. Vischer insurance agent.

I am one of the younger of the Republican party here and it is hardly becoming in me to take too prominent a position in a matter of this kind. I can say this however, my Republican associates and myself without an exception that I know of will support the entire Republican ticket at the coming election.

N. A. Hughes, hardware merchant.

I have been interviewed by one of the alleged promoters of the so called independent movement. I see no reason why I should support any but regular nominees of the Republican party and expect to do so.

W. D. Thompson, village clerk.

I am opposed to the so called independent movement instigated by Democrats to lessen the Republican majority of the town on the judiciary, and will support the Republican nominees of the county convention.

D. C. Remington, village trustee.

I am a Republican and take pleasure in being identified with the local and county Republican organizations. The Hon Merrick Stowell was unanimously nominated at the Republican county contion for county judge and I shall support him and anticipate his reelection by the usual majority.

O. E. Ward, jeweller.

I have seen no indications of an "Independent Republican" movement in Schroeppel favoring Mr Piper, the Democratic nominee. I assisted in nominating the Republican county ticket at Pulask

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

Board of Public Works—City of Fulton, N. Y., 1904.

For Constructing Sanitary Trunk Sewer and Appurtenances for the West Side in the City of Fulton, N. Y.

Sealed proposals for the above mentioned work, endorsed "Proposal for Constructing Sanitary Trunk Sewer," will be received at the office of the City Clerk, Fulton, N. Y., until 4 P. M., of the 7th day of October, 1904, and opened at the office of the Board of Public Works at 8 P. M., same date.

The following estimate of quantities is to be considered only as approximate and bidders are required to form their own judgment of the quantities and character of the work by personal examinations of the specifications and drawings relating to it, or such other means as they may prefer. Bidders must not assert any misunderstanding in regard to anything relating to the work.

The contractors shall have no claim against the City by reasons of any variation between the quantities of the approximate estimate and the quantities of the work as done, nor on account of any misunderstanding or misconception of the nature and character of the work.

The several bids will be computed, tested and canvassed by the quantities and qualities mentioned in the following estimate:

1450 Lineal feet trenching and backfilling under 8 feet.
1450 Lineal feet trenching and backfilling 8 feet or over and under 10 feet.
1750 Lineal feet trenching and backfilling 10 feet or over and under 12 feet.
1350 Lineal feet trenching and backfilling 12 feet or over and under 14 feet.
2100 Lineal feet trenching and backfilling 14 feet or over and under 20 feet.
1200 Lineal feet trenching and backfilling 20 feet or over and under 24 feet.
700 Lineal feet trenching and backfilling 24 feet or over and under 31 feet.

2 Manholes with covers complete, 20 feet or over and under 24 feet.
2 Manholes with covers complete, 24 feet or over and under 31 feet.

Each bid must be made out on the forms of proposal furnished by the City Clerk or Board of Public Works, and must be enclosed in a sealed envelope, addressed to the City Clerk of Fulton, N. Y.

The prices for which bidders will agree to execute and perform each class of work must be written in ink in both words and figures in the form of bid, and all bids will be considered informal which do not contain prices es opposite each and all of the items which are called for in printed forms for bids, or which are otherwise not in conformity with this notice. No bid will be allowed to be withdrawn for any reason whatever, after it has been deposited with the clerk of the Board.

Bidders are required to state in their bids, under oath, their names and places of residence, the names of all persons interested with them in said bids, also that the bid is made without any connection with any person making another bid for the same contract, and that the bid is in all respects fair and without collusion or fraud.

Contractors will be paid monthly, approximate estimates, 85 per cent. of the amount due for work at that time done.

Within thirty days after the fulfilling of the contract, the final estimate will be paid in full to the contractor, less amounts previously advanced, except $1,000.00, which will be retained six months not including December, January and February, for the purpose of keeping the work in good repair. The unexpended balance will be paid to the contractor.

The person or persons, whose bid shall be accepted, will be required to attend at the office of the Board of Public Works with the sureties offered him, or them, and execute the contract and bond within ten days from the date of the service of a notice to that effect, delivered to him in person, or mailed to the address given in the bid. In case of failure or neglect to do so, he, or they, will be deemed to have abandoned the contract.

The sum of $1,500 (currency or a certified check), payable to the order of the Chamberlain of the City of Fulton, N. Y., will be required to accompany each bid. All such deposits except that of the bidder whose bid shall have been accepted; will be returned to the person, or persons, making the same, within three days after the contract is awarded. If the successful bidder, whose bid shall have been accepted, shall refuse or neglect to execute the contract within ten days after the notice that it has been awarded to him, or them, the amount of deposit made by him or them will be forfeited to and be retained by the City of Fulton, N. Y., as liquidated damages for such neglect or refusal; but if he or they shall execute the contract and bond within the time aforesaid, the amount of his or their deposit will be returned to him or them.

A bond in the sum of $10,000 conditioned for the faithful performance of this contract, with sureties to be approved by the Board of Public Works will be required.

The Board of Public Works reserves the right to reject all bids not deemed for the interest of the City and also to increase or diminish any of the above named quantities.

Plans may be seen at the office of the Board of Public Works, and specifications, forms of proposals, etc., obtained from the City Clerk or Superintendent of Public Works.

By order of the Board of Public Works of the City of Fulton, N. Y.

W. M. HINSDALE,
City Clerk.

Dated Sept. 19, 1904.

STEPHENS OPERA HOUSE.

The coming engagement of "Eben Holden," with Henry Horton in the title-role, at the Stephens Opera House Saturday, Oct. 1, has already aroused much interest among the theatre-goers of this city. Speaking of the play the critic of the New York Sun said: "It is full of fun, and its little love story is handled so prettily that the piece is scoring a success. Edward E. Rose certainly succeeded in making Eben Holden a very real and interesting character."

Herrick & Eldredge have engaged a very strong supporting company, and have made an entire new production for this season.

Bids For Postal Routes.

The Post Office Department has issued its schedule for the letting of about 800 postal routes in this State from July 1st, 1905, to June 30th, 1909. Messrs. Ely Bros.:—I have used Ely's Cream Balm in my family for nine years and it has become my family doctor for colds in the head I use it freely on my children. It is a Godsend to children.

Yours respectfully, J. KIMBALL.

Messrs. Ely Bros.:—I suffered greatly with catarah and tried different remedies without effect. After using one bottle of your Cream Balm I found relief and I cannot praise too highly such a remedy.

MISS CORA WILLARD, Albany, N. Y

Judge Parker wrote Mr. Milburn that he is in favor of telling the Filipinos now that the American flag shall be hauled down in the Philippines. Does he think that the forces of civilization will work better under some other flag than the stars and stripes? Does he think the cause of human liberty will be advanced better under some other flag? There are men in this country who have shed their blood because they thought otherwise.

Let me say I have used Ely's Cream Balm for catarrh and can thoroughly recommend it for what it claims. Very truly, (Rev.) H. W. Hathaway, Elizabeth, N. J.

I tried Ely's Cream Balm and to all appearances am cured of catarrh. The terrible headaches from which I long suffered are gone.—W. J. Hitchcock, late Major U. S. Vol. and A. A. Gen., Buffalo, N. Y.

PLATT SEES VICTORY

Senior Senator Discusses the Recent Doings of State Conventions.

Higgins Sincerely His Friend, and He Is Confident He Will Win.

Senator Thomas C. Platt has just made a public statement in which he predicts that Lieutenant Governor Higgins will be triumphantly elected. When asked for his opinion on the two candidates Senator Platt said:

In forecasting the result of an election an expression of opinion as to the probable influence of any Democratic nomination in determining such a result is not difficult of formulation to one who has had much to do with state and national politics for any considerable time. In fact, a forecast of reasonable accuracy can usually be made in advance of the action of that extraordinary party, a party that never fails to demonstrate its infinite capacity for performing the wrong thing at the right time.

There would appear to be no suggestion in the action of the Democratic state convention of a departure from pure factionism in their recent nominations. They have not only countenanced its existence, but have concretely emphasized it in a nomination for the governorship of a man who while a justice of the supreme court yet maintained his grasp upon the party machinery of his county, manifesting without semblance of reserve a wholly unjudicial, not to say an injudicious, political activity in which factionism was essentially its chief characteristic. Wherein such a nomination can be expected to be promotive of united party support or to entice the support of voters of independent proclivities, who covet broad gubernatorial administration and adhere tenaciously to the ideal of an untrammeled judiciary, will have to be left to Democratic harmonizers of the Hill-Murphy-McCarren stripe to explain.

The Inevitable Struggle.

It could have been assumed two weeks ago, with almost the scientific accuracy of an astronomical calculation, that a conjunction of the Hill and Tammany planets, if it took place at all, would be effected with so great an impact as to produce a generation of heat sufficient to consume the whole ticket before the public could really have made up its mind whether or not it were a civic dose that could be swallowed with safety. The inevitable struggle between Democratic factions usually becomes so strenuous as to leave the only semblance of unity in the party that which is faintly portrayed by two gladiators who expire simultaneously in each other's arms, while the sole suggestion of animation that a Democratic nomination ever exhibits in these palmy days of their ineptitude might be suggested by depicting their factions as contending bulldogs, one crippled beyond further efficiency, yet with the throat of its dead antagonist between its jaws.

I think a happy contrast may be drawn between the Democratic struggle at Saratoga and the action of the Republican convention held during the previous week. While there were sharp differences of opinion between Republican leaders at Saratoga from the moment that Governor Woodruff mounted the platform and in his frank and generous manner pledged to Mr. Higgins the votes of his delegates and bespoke of his followers a support of the Republican ticket more ardent and enthusiastic than he could have asked for himself—from that moment any doubts as to the existence of Republican harmony vanished, and it can be safely assumed that the ticket headed by Higgins and Bruce, even though the names of Roosevelt and Fairbanks were not inevitably linked with theirs, will sweep the state.

No Man's Man.

And why not? Can any disqualification be honestly alleged against our candidates that should rightfully tend to deprive them of a full and enthusiastic Republican support? I know of none. The silly claim that Mr. Higgins is any man's man or the candidate of any man will be effectually disposed of within a week after the active campaign is commenced, if any such thought is in the minds of the voters of our state. Mr. Higgins is not any man's man. He is every man's man. He has been and is just as sincerely my friend as any one in public life has ever been. Moreover, the delegates who voted to make him the Republican standard bearer are my friends, men with whom I have enjoyed the most cordial and friendly relations for many years.

It does not follow, either, that because a man may not have done some extraordinarily conspicuous thing he lacks ability and decision. The thinking population of this state—and it has been demonstrated that we have a thinking population—will recognize in the superb civic and personal records of all our candidates those qualities commanding support, qualities which if employed officially in the state's interest will insure prudent, safe and sane administration. This recognition, in my judgment, will assume the form of an aggressive support of our ticket which will result in its triumphant election.

To the achievement of this result, now almost predetermined, I purpose to exert myself to the utmost, and I unhesitatingly predict the election of Roosevelt and Fairbanks in the nation and of Higgins and Bruce and their associates in the state of New York.

TRUE WORDS.

Mr. Francis W. Higgins, who was nominated in Mr. Sheldon's place, is one of the most noted and respected Republicans in the public life of New York state. There is no worthier candidate in his party's circle.

The above comment was made by the New York Sun in 1892 after Mr. Higgins was nominated for lieutenant governor. What the Sun said of Mr. Higgins two years ago cannot be improved upon. "There is no worthier candidate in his party's circle."

THE JUDGE-BOSS.

[From the New York Times, Dem.]

Herrick on his appointment to the supreme court bench in 1886 did not resign his leadership, and he retained it after his election to his present position in 1891. He did, however, resign from the state committee on going on the bench and since then has never served on any committee or been a delegate to any convention. He has been, however, as absolute a boss as ever, and his followers have filled all the positions.

There will be a promiscuous dropping of H's on election day.

TAILORED WALKING GOWN.

A Necessity In the Wardrobe of Well Dressed Women.

The tailored walking gown is a necessity in the wardrobe of every well dressed woman, and the fall frock of this description is a particularly important consideration at this time of the year.

last year, with their full sleeves, bloused jackets and lace wrist ruffles. In their place has come a return to the strictly English tailored lines. Plain strapped skirts, tight about the hips and flaring around the feet, and the long, closely fitting coat with mannish collar, revers and plain, tight sleeves are much in evidence.

These gowns are made up in tweeds, cheviots and faced cloth in browns, a variety of different blues, a myrtle green and several shades of plum and dahlia.

The smart walking costume illustrated is fashioned from a mixed green and blue cheviot. The skirt is the regulation plain affair and the coat a jaunty modernized Norfolk jacket. The small turned down collar is of black velvet.

SIR WILLIAM RAMSAY.

The World's Greatest Chemist, Who Is Visiting America.

When Sir William Ramsay is asked what will come from the recent discoveries concerning radium, helium, thorium, etc., he makes this sententious reply: "Oh, what use is a baby? Let it grow up and see!"

In other words, the new light the world has gained concerning these elements merely shows that science is in its infancy thus far, but years of unceasing, conscientious study may develop an adult well worth knowing.

Sir William's principal claim to the profound admiration of scientific men doubtless rests upon his discovery, in collaboration with Lord Rayleigh, of argon, until then an unknown element of the atmosphere. The two scientists noted that the nitrogen of the atmosphere was heavier than the same gas prepared in the chemical laboratory. They concluded that this was due to the pressure of some gas in air heavier than nitrogen, and they finally succeeded in isolating argon.

Sir William later discovered neon, another gas, and xenon, only one part of which is to be found in 70,000,000 parts of air, a fraction so small that the whole quantity Sir William has been able to secure during all his experiments would only fill a lady's thimble. Krypton is another of his discoveries, and recently his investigations concerning the transmutation of metals have attracted wide attention. Among other things he has demonstrated that radium is constantly changing into helium, an entirely different substance. It is said that no one man has ever identified so many new elements as Sir William.

His visit to America is for the purpose of attending a series of important international conferences, and he heads a large British delegation of scientists. He is a Scotchman, president of the Society of Chemical Industry and professor of chemistry at the University college at Bristol, England. He believes that other great discoveries in chemistry will soon be announced to the world.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS, 1904.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State. Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing amendment to article seven of the Constitution, relating to improvement of highways.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the seventh article of the Constitution be amended by adding thereto the following section: § 12. Improvement of Highways.—A debt or debts of the State may be authorized by law for the improvement of highways. Such highways shall be determined under general laws, which shall also provide for the equitable apportionment thereof among the counties. The aggregate of the debts authorized by this section shall not at any one time exceed the sum of fifty millions of dollars. The payment of the annual interest on such debt and the creation of a sinking fund of at least two per centum per annum to discharge the principal at maturity shall be provided by general laws whose force and effect shall not be diminished during the existence of any debt created thereunder. The legislature may by general laws require the county or town or both to pay to the sinking fund the proportionate part of the cost of any such highway within the boundaries of such county or town and the proportionate part of the interest thereon, but no county shall at any time for any highway be required to pay more than thirty-five hundredths of the cost of such highway, and no town more than fifteen hundredths. None of the provisions of the fourth section of this article shall apply to debts for the improvement of highways hereby authorized. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the Legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the Constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 1, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 2, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER TWO.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the constitution in relation to the time within which debts of the state must be paid and striking from said section certain limitations.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section four of article seven of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VII. § 4. Except the debts specified in sections two and three of this article, no debts shall be hereafter contracted by or in behalf of this state, unless such debt shall be authorized by a law for some single work or object, to be distinctly specified therein; and such law shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax to pay, and sufficient to pay, the interest on such debt as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal of such debt within fifty years from the time of the contracting thereof. No such law shall take effect until it shall, at a general election, have been submitted to the people, and have received a majority of all the votes cast for and against it at such election. On the final passage of such bill in either house of the legislature, the question shall be taken by ayes and noes, to be duly entered on the journals thereof, and shall be: "Shall this bill pass, and ought the same to receive the sanction of the people?" The legislature may at any time, after the approval of such law by the people, if no debt shall have been contracted in pursuance thereof, repeal the same; and may at any time, by law, forbid the contracting of any further debt or liability under such law; but the tax imposed by such act, in proportion to the debt and liability which may have been contracted, in pursuance of such law, shall remain in force and be irrepealable, and be annually collected, until the proceeds thereof shall have made the provision hereinbefore specified to pay and discharge the interest and principal of such debt and liability. The money arising from any loan or stock creating such debt or liability shall be applied to the work or object specified in the act authorizing such debt or liability, or for the payment of such debt or liability, and for no other purpose whatever. No such law shall be submitted to be voted on, within three months after its passage or at any general election when any other law, or any bill, shall be submitted to be voted for or against. The legislature may provide for the issue of bonds of the state to run for a period not exceeding fifty years in lieu of bonds heretofore authorized but not issued and shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax for the payment of the same as hereinbefore required. When any sinking fund created under this section shall equal in amount the debt for which it was created, no further direct tax shall be levied on account of said sinking fund and the legislature shall reduce the tax to an amount equal to the accruing interest on such debt. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 21, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 22, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER THREE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the constitution in relation to justices of the appellate division of the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section two of article six of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VI. § 2. The legislature shall divide the state into four judicial departments. The first department shall consist of the county of New York; the others shall be bounded by county lines, and be compact and equal in population as nearly as may be. Once every ten years the legislature may alter the judicial departments, but without increasing the number thereof. There shall be an appellate division of the supreme court, consisting of seven justices in the first department, and of five justices in each of the other departments. In each department four shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of three shall be necessary to a decision. No more than five justices shall sit in any case. From all the justices elected to the supreme court the governor shall designate those who shall constitute the appellate division in each department and he shall designate the presiding justice thereof, who shall act as such during his term of office, and shall be a resident of the department. The other justices shall be designated for terms of five years or the unexpired portions of their respective terms of office, if less than five years. From time to time as the terms of such designations expire, or vacancies occur, he shall make new designations. A majority of the justices so designated to sit in the appellate division in each department shall be residents of the department. He may also make temporary designations in case of the absence or inability to act of any justice in the appellate division, or in case the presiding justice of any appellate division shall certify to him that one or more additional justices are needed for the speedy disposition of the business before it. Whenever the appellate division in any department shall be unable to dispose of its business within a reasonable time, a majority of the presiding justices of the several departments at a meeting called by the presiding justice of the department in arrears may transfer any pending appeals from such department to any other department for hearing and determination. No justice of the appellate division shall, within the department to which he may be designated to perform the duties of an appellate justice, exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court, other than those of a justice out of court, and those pertaining to the appellate division, or to the hearing and decision of motions submitted by consent of counsel, but any such justice, when not actually engaged in performing the duties of such appellate justice in the department to which he is designated, may hold any term of the supreme court and exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court in any county or judicial district in any other department of the state. From and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, the appellate division shall have the jurisdiction now exercised by the supreme court at its general terms and by the general terms of the court of common pleas for the city and county of New York, the superior court of the city of New York, the superior court of Buffalo and the city of Brooklyn, and such additional jurisdiction as may be conferred by the legislature. It shall have power to appoint and remove a reporter. The justices of the appellate division in each department shall have power to fix the times and places for holding special terms therein, and to assign the justices in the departments to hold such terms; or to make rules therefor. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 29, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 6, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FOUR.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to trial commissioners.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that section six of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 6. Circuit courts and courts of oyer and terminer are abolished from and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five. All their jurisdiction shall thereupon be vested in the supreme court, and all actions and proceedings then pending in such courts shall be transferred to the supreme court for hearing and determination. Any justice of the supreme court, except as otherwise provided in this article, may hold court in any county. Whenever and as often as the causes upon the trial term calendar of any county of this state, having a population according to the latest state enumeration of over five hundred thousand, shall have so accumulated that an unpreferred cause cannot be reached for trial in due course within one year after it has been placed upon the calendar, the appellate division of the department in which such county is embraced may, by a certificate signed by a majority of its members, certify the fact to the court of appeals, whereupon said court may by order authorize the appointment in said county of trial commissioners, stating in said order the number of commissioners to be appointed, and their terms of office, not exceeding six years. Such order shall be made in duplicate and one copy thereof filed in the office of the secretary of state, and one in the office of the clerk of the county in which said appointments are authorized. The appellate division of the department embracing said county shall thereupon appoint the number of trial commissioners authorized by said order, who must possess the qualifications required for a justice of the supreme court. They shall possess and exercise in the county for which they are appointed all the powers of a justice of the supreme court respecting the trial and disposition of causes upon said trial term calendar and the settlement of cases on appeal, but shall possess none of the powers of such a justice out of court or at special term. They may be removed in the same manner as is provided in case of a justice of said supreme court. They shall each receive an annual salary of twelve thousand dollars to be paid by the county for which they are appointed, and may not practice law. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 22, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 8, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FIVE.

Concurrent resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the constitution.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section seven of article seven be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Forest preserve.—The lands of the state, now owned or hereafter acquired, constituting the forest preserve as now fixed by law, shall be forever kept as wild forest lands, except as hereinafter provided. They shall not be leased, sold or exchanged, or be taken by any corporation, public or private, nor shall the timber thereon be sold, removed or destroyed. The legislature may authorize the removal of dead timber on burned areas so far as necessary for reforestation, through officers and employees of the state, but not by contract. The legislature may also authorize the sale of lands outside of the limits of the Adirondack park and the Catskill park as such parks are now established by law. The proceeds of such sales shall be set apart in a separate fund and used only for the purchase of lands in such parks. A violation of this section may be restrained at the suit of the people or with the consent of the supreme court on notice to the attorney-general at the suit of any citizen of the state. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 4, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 9, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section one of article two of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SIX.

Concurrent resolution, proposing amendment to section one of article two of the constitution relating to qualification of voters.

Resolved (if the senate concur), that section one of article two of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article II. Section 1. Qualification of voters.—Every male citizen of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a citizen for ninety days, and an inhabitant of this state one year next preceding an election, and for the last four months a resident of the county or of a city comprising more than one county, and for the last thirty days a resident of the election district in which he may offer his vote, shall be entitled to vote at such election in the election district of which he shall at the time be a resident, and not elsewhere, for all officers that now are or hereafter may be elective by the people, and upon all questions which may be submitted to the vote of the people, provided that in time of war no elector in the actual military service of the state, or of the United States, in the army or navy thereof, shall be deprived of his vote by reason of his absence from such election district; and the legislature shall have power to provide the manner in which and the time and place at which such absent electors may vote, and for the return and canvass of their votes in the election districts in which they respectively reside.

State of New York: In Assembly, Mar. 28, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section one of article two, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SEVEN.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to article six of the constitution in relation to providing additional justices of the supreme court and judges of the court of appeals.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section one of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 1. Supreme court; court of appeals; how constituted; judicial districts.—The supreme court is continued with general jurisdiction in law and equity, subject to such appellate jurisdiction of the court of appeals as now is or may be prescribed by law not inconsistent with this article. The existing judicial districts of the state are continued until changed as hereinafter provided. The supreme court shall consist of the justices now in office, and of the judges transferred thereto by the fifth section of this article, all of whom shall continue to be justices of the supreme court during their respective terms, and of twelve additional justices who shall reside in and be chosen by the electors of, the several existing judicial districts, three in the first district, three in the second, and one in each of the other districts; and of their successors. The successors of said justices shall be chosen by the electors of their respective judicial districts. The legislature may alter the judicial districts once, after every enumeration under the constitution, of the inhabitants of the state, and thereupon reapportion the justices to be thereafter elected in the districts so altered. The legislature may at any time, when it deems that the public interests requires it, increase the number of justices of the supreme court or of judges of the court of appeals as it sees fit, provided that the total number of judges of the court of appeals shall not exceed eleven, and provided also that any bill increasing the number of justices or judges as aforesaid shall receive the assent of two-thirds of the members elected to each branch of the legislature. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section seven of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Court of appeals.—The court of appeals is continued. It shall consist of the chief judge and associate judges now in office, and of such additional judges as the legislature may from time to time provide in accordance with section one of this article and as may be elected according to law, who shall hold their offices until the expiration of their respective terms, and of their successors, who shall be chosen by the electors of the state. The official terms of the chief judge and associate judges shall be fourteen years from and including the first day of January next after their election. The legislature may provide by law for the manner in which the court shall sit, whether in two divisions or one, and for the number of members of the court necessary to form a quorum in either instance and also for the number whose concurrence shall be necessary to a decision. The court shall have power to appoint and to remove its reporter, clerk and attendants. § 3. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 13, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to sections one and seven of article six, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER EIGHT.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That section six of article six of the constitution be amended by adding thereto the following: In any department in which supreme court commissioners have been appointed, the justices of the appellate division of the department, or a majority of them, are authorized from time to time to designate one or more of such supreme court commissioners [illegible] while such designation [illegible] a supreme court commissioner so designated shall have power to [illegible] a trial term of the supreme court within [illegible] department and to perform the duties of a [illegible] of the supreme court in the trial term to which he may be assigned. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, to be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 14, [illegible]—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 15, [illegible]—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

Indians and Cowards.

John Bradbury, who explored part of the Missouri river country in the early decades of the last century, tells of a unique Indian method of dealing with cowardice. The story is retold in the Early Western Travels Series, edited by R. G. Thwaites. Bradbury says: "In our walk we observed what on the first view appeared to be two squaws. I remarked that one of them had more the appearance of a man than a woman. I was then informed that it was a man and that there were several others in the village who, like the one we saw, were condemned for life to associate with the squaws, to wear the same dress and do the same drudgery. I now learned that when the Osages go to war they keep a watchful eye over the young men who are taking their first essay in arms, and such as appear to possess the necessary qualifications are admitted to the rank of warriors. But if any exhibit proofs of cowardice, on the return of the party they are compelled to assume the dress and character of women, and their doom is fixed for life and no opportunity afforded [illegible] retrieve their character."

WHOM THE GODS WOULD DESTROY, THEY FIRST MAKE MAD.

The boasts made by the promoters of the "lily white" purity league which was born of questionable parentage in this city a few weeks ago, and their threats against the Times and its friends when their boasts were rendered futile, have returned, boomerang like to the speeders.

Such men best serve a cause when they oppose it; as allies they are deadly.

As the political fence has been pretty well torn down it is difficult for a Democrat to determine upon which side he stands.

The American Banker's Association recently held a meeting in New York City. When the roll was called—north, east, south and west—encouraging accounts were given of the conditions of business in all parts of the country, represented by the bankers. It is fair to assume that the people as a whole will not vote to change these conditions.

Secretary Taft has been speaking his mind about President Roosevelt, He says "In all my experiense I never have met a man in authority who has less pride of opinion in the judgments that he has formed in respect to situations presented to him for action, than has Theodore Roosevelt. I have never met a man who was so amenable to reason, so anxious to reach a just conclusion, and so willing to sacrifice a previously formed opinion as the President of the United States. He is not a tyrant, but he is a leader. Does the American nation object to this?"

The present Presidential campaign is said to be quite unlike any heretofore known. The people do not express any curiosity; they appear to have made up their minds; the prairie grass fails to take fire. Everywhere there is an extraordinary calm. Even the assertion that Taggart is to "throw a big pot of money into Indiana," fails to astonish the Hoosiers. It will take a tremendous pot to induce them to [vo]te away their present commercial [pro]sperity, or even to change the [polic]y of the national government [wh]ich has so successfully safeguarded [its] interests during the past seven

READY NOW FOR COLDER WEATHER

No use disputing the fact—Each day sees colder weather. Each night is a trifle more chilly than its predecessor. Need, and immediate need—for Warmer Underwear, Furs, Jackets, Suits and the like—ready here. Stocks were never so large; economical price opportunities were never so abundant.

Warmer Underwear

Correct Fall and Winter Weights for Women, Men and Children

From year to year this store has built up a solid reputation on Underwear selling...... Our stocks represent a complete showing of the best known makes—each season seeing some improvements in the styles of the garments or the qualities of materials used. As a result of our buying direct from the mills we are enabled to offer at all times the most advantageous values.

Some of the good values:

WOMEN'S

25c Women's Medium or Heavy Weight Cotton Fleece-Lined Vests and Pants; crochet finish.

35c 50c Women's Extra Quality Fleece-Lined Vests and Pants, silk crochet finish.

75c $1 Women's Wool Rib Vests and Pants in Natural or White, hand crochet finish.

25c and up, according to size —Children's Natural Camel's Hair and White Wool Vests Pants and Drawers.

25c to $3.50—Complete lines of Children's Combination Suits.

FURS

Some Special Values.

In this opportunity we have made it our special aim to offer you furs of quality, which is an important factor when service and durability are considered. As a large share of the buying public know, the best skins are invariably made up by the manufacturers and offered first, then as the season advances and these become scarce, the poorer qualities necessarily have to be used. Under ordinary conditions it would be an advantage to buy furs at these prices. Owing to the fact that these garments are made from the first and choicest skins, our patrons will readily recognize that they are being offered an unusual opportunity.

There are all classes of garments—Scarfs, Stoles, Muffs, Sets, Capes, Coats, etc. Assortments include the choicest and most popular furs—Sable Fox, Isabella Fox, Alaska Sable, Alaska Fox, Mink, Hudson Bay Sable, Baum Marten, Blended Stone Marten, Ermine, Grey Siberian Squirrel, Persian Lamb, etc.

FOX BOAS, good length, two large brush tails, sable color only, $8.75.

SABLE FOX BOAS, extra length, strapped collar; $15.00 value, $10.00.

SABLE FOX BOAS, made of two large skins, brush tails, $12.50.

ISABELLA and SABLE AMERICAN FOX SCARFS of fine selected skins, $15 00.

SABLE and ISABELLA FOX BOAS, made of two large extra quality fox skins, very lustrous and silky, two fine brush tails, $35 00.

A VERY FINE LINE OF ALASKA FOX SETS (muffs and boas) in black sable and Isabella colors. Boas up to $47.50. Muffs, $12.50 to $25 00.

GRAY SIBERIAN SQUIRREL FOUR IN-HAND SCARFS. $8 50. Fine Flat Muffs to match, $10.00.

Besides their frugal diet of rice and vegetables with a little fish, the Japanese are teaching the world many new things connected with the carrying on of war. It is said that each soldier of the Mikado has a fish line in his belt; that he carries a small tea-kettle, and a fan. He takes a bath every chance he gets, and is making a very extensive use of the telephone. It is evident they have extracted all they can out of Western civilization and have determined to improve upon it.

ACQUIRED LEADERSHIP

Winning a battle depends on the officers, the men, the guns, the ammunition. All must be the right kind, for weakness in any one point, may result in defeat. It is the same thing in business. Likening the management to the officers, the salesmen to the soldiers, the merchandise to the ammunition, it can be as truthfully said that every element in this business is right. We believe that you will find our goods right in every particular—that is what wins success for us and for you.

GOV. ODELL REPLIES

The False Charges In Democratic Platform Effectually Disposed Of.

Economy In the State Government and Direct Taxes Abolished.

Governor Odell has met the charge of extravagance against his administration made in the Democratic platform with a reply that is clear and convincing. To the personal charges of Hill, Governor Odell says no reply is necessary, as that particular mud slinging was answered and disposed of in the campaign of 1902. Governor Odell said:

In making a comparison between the last Democratic administration in 1894 and the Republican administration for the year 1904 it would be well to bear in mind certain facts before reaching conclusions:

First.—That prior to 1899 every state department was in receipt of fees which were retained by the departments and did not pass directly to the state treasurer, because the custom was for the various departments to ask for amounts over and above such receipts. The appropriations did not therefore represent the total expenditures, which were smaller because of the retention by the departments of these fees. For instance, the state institutions for the insane were reimbursed for that year to the amount of $253,507.99. The actual appropriation for this department for that year as reported in the appropriation bill should have this amount added to it because of this fact. And so it was with almost every other department of the state government. This condition was changed by the adoption of the so called Higgins law, which required the payment into the state treasury of all such fees. The amount of fees received by the various departments in the year 1904 was $572,577.63.

The State Grows.

Second.—We must take into consideration the fact that in 1890 the population of the state was but 6,000,000, while in 1900 it had increased to 7,268,000, so that the ordinary expenses of government would be much larger owing to this increase.

Third.—By the adoption of the constitution of 1895 the people of the state provided for a larger number of supreme court justices as well as increased membership of the state legislature, thereby producing a corresponding increase of the expenditures of the state legislature and the state judiciary.

Fourth.—The adoption of the eight hour law by the state made larger expenditures necessary upon the canals and various public works outside of the lunacy and charities departments.

Fifth.—The state in 1894 passed a law which placed the insane entirely under state care and supervision. This not only did away with the abuses of the old county system, but relieved the localities of the direct charge and expense of caring for their insane.

Sixth.—The school population has increased from 1,083,000 with 25,000 teachers in 1894 to 1,256,000 with 34,000 teachers in 1904. This, of course, has produced greater expense, not only to the state but to the localities as well.

By the state care act of 1894 the population of the state charitable institutions and institutions for the insane has increased from 11,654 to 32,000.

The legislation for abolishing grade crossings was subsequent to the year 1894, and it is therefore an expense which did not appear in that year.

The expenses of the agricultural department have been increased because of the protection which it has sought to give against impure foods.

The Official Figures.

For the purpose of comparison the following figures, showing the appropriations for the years 1894 and 1904, are given:

	1894.	1904.
Judiciary	$629,303.27	$1,046,462.04
State charities	1,726,016.18	2,239,960.31
State insane	2,159,042.05	6,095,840.77
Education	4,676,484.00	6,538,045.41
State prisons	862,484.50	1,174,685.00
Good roads	Nothing	1,510,774.58
Grade crossings	Nothing	150,000.00
Legislature	500,138.25	642,650.00
Canals	1,581,775.00	1,746,339.50
While the excise department, which has contributed nearly $9,000,000 to the state annually and an equal amount to the localities, an amount much greater than under any preceding law, required for clerical force and repayment of unexpired licenses	Nothing	633,455.00
	$12,085,193.25	$21,778,162.61

If from this increase we deduct the fees which would have been retained by the departments except for the so called Higgins law of $572,577.63 we find the actual increase of these various departments has been $9,120,391.73.

Can any of the items enumerated above be reduced in any way if the next administration should be Democratic? The expenses of the judiciary and of the legislature are fixed by the constitution and by statute. The state's charities, lunacy and educational departments require ever increasing appropriations because of the increase in population in these institutions and schools. The good roads and grade crossings legislation has met with the approval of the people, and it is not possible to decrease expenditures for these purposes. Nor would our opponents dare repeal the revenue revisions of the liquor tax law, which adds so much to local and state revenues.

While these necessary expenditures have grown because of the facts recited, it should be also added to our credit that we have reduced direct state taxation by increasing the indirect revenues of the state from about $6,000,000 in 1894 to over $22,000,000 in 1904.

I am satisfied that if the people of the state study these facts and these figures, all of which have been taken from the official records of the state, they will reach the conclusion that our state government has not been expensive, extravagant or dishonest, but that it has served the people faithfully and has properly met the increasing demands of our growing commonwealth.

These official records in every state department are open to public inspection. Upon them, and not upon partisan misrepresentation and abuse, the judgment of the people will be based.

HERRICK A SCANDAL

Excoriated and Disowned by Party and Independent Press.

Hill, the Boss, Held Responsible For the Nomination of an Unfit Candidate.

He [Herrick] took an active part in politics after he had become a judge of the supreme court of the Third judicial district. * * * That was an impropriety; it was a scandal; it ought not to have been. Some persons have been inclined to take a lenient view of this dereliction because Judge Herrick has fought David B. Hill in Albany politics. We do not think that fact excuses; it certainly does not justify. For our part we shall not attempt to excuse or gloss over this part of the candidate's career.—New York Times (Dem.).

The Evening Post "cannot advise anybody to vote for D. Cady Herrick." It says:

Are we to preach judicial propriety while nominating a man who has been a local party boss though a judge? It will be said that Herrick was a useful organizer for Mr. Cleveland. So was the notorious Raisin of Baltimore. But that does not fit him to be governor. That Herrick has long been Hill's enemy will be brought forward as a conclusive argument, but that alone is not enough. No; earnestly desiring, as it does, the success of the Democratic national ticket, the Evening Post has its own character and consistency to sustain and will not support Herrick for governor. In passing by Jerome and Shepard to nominate him the Democratic convention deliberately threw away its great opportunity.—New York Evening Post (Dem.).

The nomination of Herrick was made after a conference at which Hill, McCarren and Sheehan were the leading spirits, and the above is what the leading papers of the party press think of the candidate and Hill's work.

The New York World (Dem.) of Sept. 14 thus pictures Hill:

The next year you proceeded from stealing a convention to stealing a state senate. You rewarded your accomplice in that theft [Maynard] with a nomination for the court of appeals and he was beaten by a plurality of 101,064, the largest ever cast up to that time against a Democratic candidate in the state of New York. * * * With no principles, no convictions, no real Democracy, you ventured to go before the people on this record of moral bankruptcy, and in November, 1894, the plurality against you for governor was 156,108, greater than that against your man Maynard the year before and establishing a new and previously unapproached record of Democratic disaster.

Of Pat McCarren the New York Journal (Dem.) on July 16, 1904, said:

Mr. McCarren is another gambling race track man, but of a lower stripe than Belmont. In the legislature of New York his role is notoriously that of a trust advocate. He is universally recognised at Albany as the spokesman and agent of the gas trust and any other trust wanting advice and assistance. Certainly when Judge Parker knows this he will not accept assistance or advice from that source.

The New York Times of April 18, 1893, in discussing Sheehan's behavior at Albany, said:

Nothing can repair the damage to Sheehan. He has shown himself such an unconscionable political blackleg that any claim upon the public confidence on his part hereafter can only excite derision. The colossal impudence of his making demands upon the national administration at the very moment he was executing this infamous scheme for humiliating the president's friends in Buffalo can only be explained by a true lack of moral sense and an incapacity for understanding the motives of honorable men.

Republican comment on ticket and the men who made it seems unnecessary.

Hill, who stole a senate, makes a loud call for the purity of the ballot in his state platform.

Sarah Bernhardt's Tact.

An illustration of Sarah Bernhardt's wonderful tact is shown in the following incident: During a performance of "Andromache" the hoots and hisses of many of the roughest men in the gallery led to their being ejected by the soldiers on guard. But, deaf to the objections of manager and secretary, Mme. Bernhardt insisted on the men being sent for between the acts. So freed from the hands of the police, the disturbers, to their surprise, found themselves in the beautiful, electric lighted, cream and gold rooms, redolent of the perfume of flowers, and faced by the lady they had insulted looking beautiful in the glittering gorgeous dress of the eastern princess. "Messieurs," said Mme. Sarah, with gracious dignity, "I have sent for you to say that the police are not to molest you. You are to go back to your places, and you are permitted to hiss as much as you like." The rough and motley crowd left the room in amazement and storms of applause burst from the gallery when the curtain fell after the next act.

Kerosene Oil.

A common kerosene lamp, with its chimney of glass, its varied forms of beauty, its shades modified to every grade of vision and of taste, suggests the relation of man to light. The oil, natural, cheap, brilliant and volatile, was long known to civilized humanity as a crude outflow from the earth. It was not until about 1845 that the iridescent scum seen floating on the surface of a stream near Pittsburg suggested to thoughtful men to dig for a greater supply. Indians came from a distance and soaked it from the water with their blankets, which they wrung out into vessels in order to secure a quantity for some secret purpose. It was not until 1860 that it passed into common use. Since that time it has driven every form of wax, grease, fluid, camphene and whale oil lamp from the common use of mankind.

Great Guns of Old.

We are accustomed to think of large cannon as a very recent invention. Yet as long ago as 1543 a certain Ralph Hogge of Buckstead, in Sussex, cast large guns, and a pupil of his, Thomas Johnson, in 1595 made for the Earl of Cumberland "forty-two cast pieces of great ordnance of iron." These weighed 6,000 pounds—three tons—apiece, and, we are told, showed very fine, smooth workmanship. All the smelting was done with charcoal, of which it took three tons to smelt each ton of iron. Also all the ore was carried from the mine on pack horses, which took a load of about 300 pounds each. The immense amount of labor and consequent expense may be imagined.

The Horseshoe as a Mascot.

The superstition that associates the horseshoe with good luck is very old. It is said to prevail not only among English speaking people, but in all races of Europe and Asia. Antiquaries are undecided whether its origin has to do with the material from which the horseshoe is made or with its shape. Some writers on this subject have surmised that the lucky qualities attributed to the horseshoe were derived from its fancied resemblance to the halo pictured about the heads of saints, but this connection is highly improbable, as it is known that the superstition certainly antedates Christianity.

How Baraboo Got Its Name.

Indians gave Baraboo its name, but the word is not Indian. Baribeau or Baribault was the name of an old Canadian French trader who at the age of seventeen sought the then wilderness of Wisconsin to secure pelts for the Hudson Bay company and later for the American Fur company. He established a post where the town of Baraboo now stands. Being the first white man in those parts, the Indians named the place after him, but as they had not had the advantages of a French education could not get the pronunciation of the name nearer than Baraboo, and Baraboo it remains to this day.

Lone Star States.

In the course of conversation at a club the other evening a man referred to "the Lone Star State."

"What state do you mean?" he was asked.

"Why, Texas, of course."

"Well," he was told, "do you know that there are no fewer than five independent sovereign states which use a lone star on their national flags today? They are Turkey, Chile, Cuba, Liberia and the Kongo Free State."

A Black Eye.

In the treatment of contusions where there is extensive discoloration of the skin if olive oil be freely applied without rubbing the discoloration will quickly disappear. Absorbent cotton may be soaked in the oil and applied. If the skin is broken a little boric acid should be applied over the abrasion. A black eye thus treated can be made normal in a few hours, especially if the oil be applied warm.

She Had Cause For Fear.

"Mamma," said the cannibal beauty to her maternal ancestor, "I am really alarmed at Mr. Kinkey's intense passion for me."

"Why, my dear?"

"Only last night he declared I was sweet enough to eat."—Buffalo Times.

Answered.

A physician finding a lady reading "Twelfth Night" said, "When Shakespeare wrote about Patience on a monument, did he mean doctors' patients?"

"No," she answered. "You don't find them on monuments, but under them."

The great bulk of the people are honest. If they were not, this would indeed be a poor world in which to live.—Boston Herald.

LEGAL NOTICES.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage upon real property situated within the state of New York, whereby the power to sell has become operative, notice is hereby given that said mortgage, which is dated the 22d day of February, 1889, and is recorded in the office of the Clerk of the County of Oswego, at Oswego, N. Y., on the 23d day of February, 1889, at 9:20 o'clock a. m., in Liber 156 of mortgages at page 422, was given by John E. Cain and Hattie Cain, his wife, mortgagors to Orlando Howell, mortgagee, and the name of each assignee of said mortgage is as follows: 1st assignee, Fred O. Howell, 2d assignee, Maria A. Howell.

The sum claimed to be due upon the said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is sixteen hundred seventy-five dollars and forty-one cents, which is the whole amount secured by said mortgage.

The following is a description of the mortgaged property, contained in the said mortgage:

"All That Tract or Parcel of Land, situate in the Town of Granby, County of Oswego and State of New York, and being on Lot No. 72 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is described as subdivision Number One of said Lot according to Peter Schenck's map, made from his survey & dated Sept. 26, 1839, and is bounded on the N. & W. by the N. & W. lines of said lot; on the S. by the State Road running E. & W. through said lot & on the East by Subdivision No. 2 containing 19 acres of land more or less.

"Also all that certain tract or parcel of land situate in the said Town of Granby, N. Y. & being a part of the State's 100 acres of land on lot No. 62 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is bounded as follows: Beginning at the S. E. Corner of said Lot 62 and running West 21 chains & 62 links; thence N. 11 chains & 56 links; thence E. 21 chains & 62 links to the east line of said Lot, thence S. 11 chains & 56 links, to the place of beginning. Containing twenty-five acres of land, more or less.

"Also all that certain other tract or parcel of land, situate in the Town of Granby, N. Y., and being a part of Lot 71 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby) is bounded as follows: Beginning in the East line of said Lot in the center of the Fulton & Hannibal Plank Road (so called); thence Northerly along the E. line of said lot 71 about 25 rods & 6 links to a stone wall intersecting said line of Lot 71 from the East; thence Westerly in a direct line with the center of said stone wall One Hundred four & one-half (104½) feet to a stone set in the Earth indicating said corner; thence Southerly parallel with the East line to the center of said highway; thence Easterly along said Highway to the place of beginning. Containing about one acre of land."

EAU DE QUININE HAIR TONIC
A Positive Dandruff Cure!

is the only Hair Tonic I have in my shop. It's the best! I have used one hundred other sorts on a thousand different heads, but never with the wonderful results that Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine has given. At first sight you would think it to my advantage to use a cheap tonic, but when I tell you that one bottle of Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine goes as far as three bottles of any other preparation, you can see that after all this is the best value I can get for the money.

For women, men and children. It cleanses the roots—feeds the cells and strengthens the hair—holds its color and gives a beautiful gloss.

ROOSEVELT TO HIGGINS.

The President's Indorsement of the Candidate For Governor.

President Roosevelt has written a letter to Governor Higgins, congratulating him on his nomination for governor and giving him his most enthusiastic indorsement. It has been said for a week, ever since Mr. Higgins was nominated, that there was no reason why or indication that any man who would vote for Roosevelt would not vote for Higgins. This is particularly true since the Democrats nominated the judge "boss" from Albany. Following is Mr. Roosevelt's indorsement:

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 15, 1904.

My Dear Lieutenant Governor—Can you come to see me on Wednesday? You know, without my needing to say it, how pleased I am at your nomination. While I was governor and you were chairman of the finance committee of the senate you and I were thrown very closely together, and I have never had the good fortune to be thrown with any public servant of higher integrity or of greater administrative ability. If you are elected, and I am confident you will be, the people of the state can rest in absolute confidence that the administration of affairs at Albany will be conducted on the highest possible plane of efficiency and honesty.

With all regard and with congratulations, less to you than to the people of the commonwealth, believe me, your friend, THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

The Raines law is denounced and excise reform demanded by the Democratic state platform. This is a sop to the liquor dealers, who are opposed to high license, but they will be quick enough to discern that no promise is made to reduce the tax. The Raines law yields an income which no future administration can do without unless it expects to resort to direct taxation on an extensive scale. The people will not permit it, and saloon men are not fooled by such meaningless assertions.

Aqueous Precipitation.

The general law of aqueous precipitation may be briefly stated. Whatever lowers the temperature of the air at any place below the dew point is a cause of rain. Various causes may conspire to effect this object, but it is chiefly brought about by the ascent of the air into the higher regions of the atmosphere, by which, being subjected to less pressure, it expands and in doing so lowers its temperature. These ascending currents are caused by the heating of the earth's surface by the sun's rays or, in fact, by anything which raises the temperature of the superincumbent air, and it is very obvious that the continual discharge of large pieces of ordnance will have a considerable effect in raising the temperature of the air lying on the earth's surface, which will ascend, expand and discharge in aqueous particles in the form of rain for the foregoing reasons.

What's in a Name?

Everything is in the name when it comes to Witch Hazel Salve. E. C. De Witt & Co. of Chicago, discovered some years ago how to make a salve from Witch Hazel that is a specific for Piles. For blind, bleeding, itching and protruding Piles, eczema, cuts, burns and all skin diseases, De Witt's Salve has no equal. This has given rise to numerous worthless counterfeits. Workhouse Museums.

Several of the great London workhouses have remarkable museums attached to them. In a south London union museum can be found a clergyman's letters of ordination (the owner died in the house) and a peculiar belt made of human teeth and brought from the west coast of Africa. But perhaps the most significant of all the things shown is a small pocket dice box. Upon the box is neatly cut, "This box and other wagering cost me £30,000 and brought me to the workhouse."—London Telegraph.

Be Cheerful.

Tribulation is a habit. Be brave and utter a cheerful word in place of the complaining one. Keeping silent in an atmosphere of discord attracts to you peace and serenity instead of pain and sorrow. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." No greater truth was ever uttered. As soon as a person stops thinking trouble and goes to thinking joy, then joy mill materialize.—Detroit Free Press.

A Soft Answer.

Actress (angrily)—Did you write that criticism which said my impersonation of "The Abandoned Wife" was a miserable failure? Critic—Ye-y-e-s. You see, you looked so irresistibly beautiful that it was impossible to fancy that any man could abandon you.

Unusual.

She (reading)—She folded her arms and looked the picture of scorn. He—How unusual! She—Why, pray? He—Scorn is always represented as pointing her finger at something or somebody.—Columbus Dispatch.

True Enough.

"Now, then, children," said the teacher, "what is it we want most in this world to make us perfectly happy?"

"De things we ain't got," shouted the bright boy in the back seat.—Catholic Standard and Times.

"Well, Pat, I heard your brother was sent to prison for life."

"Yis, but he's so delicate he'll never live to complete the sintince."—Chicago Journal.

Be wiser than other people if you can, but do not tell them so.

Only Did His Duty as He Saw It.

"I deem it my duty to add a word of praise for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy" says J. Wiley Park, the well known merchant and postmaster at Wiley, Ky. "I have been selling it for three or four years, and it gives complete satisfaction. Several of my customers tell me they would not be without it for anything Very often, to my knowledge, one single dose has cured a severe attack of diarrhoea, and I positively know that it will cure the flux (dysentery). You are at liberty to use this testimonial as you please." Sold by H. C. Giesler.

The Trial Heat.

Ethel (engaged a week)—George and I have never had a quarrel. Maud—Oh, I think you ought to have one before you are married. Otherwise you can't be quite sure whether you are going to have your own way or not!

Be Your Own Architect.

Do not govern your life, which is entirely individual to yourself, by another's outlook. Perhaps he could not accomplish what you have in mind Neither could you accomplish the task he sets for himself.—Commoner.

The Struggle Ended.

"Poor old Versely died last night."

"Indeed?"

"Yes; he turned over and died without a struggle."

"Well, he died easier than he lived then."—New Orleans Picayune.

Turned Down.

"Pardon me," said the masher, "but you look like a young lady I know."

"Pardon me," interrupted Miss Bright, "but you look like a man I don't know."—Exchange.

In Praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

"Allow me to give you a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mr. John Hamlett, of Eagle Pass, Texas. "I suffered one week with bowel trouble and took all kinds of medicine without getting any relief, when my friend, Mr. C. Johnson, a merchant here, advised me to take this remedy. After taking one dose I felt greatly relieved, and when I had taken the third dose, was entirely cured. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for putting this great remedy in the hands of mankind." For sale by H. C. Giesler.

Artemus Ward's Sarcasm.

Artemus Ward was traveling on a slow going southern road soon after the war. When the conductor was punching his ticket Artemus inquired, "Does this railroad company allow passengers to give it advice if they do so in a respectful manner?" The conductor replied in gruff tones that he guessed so. "Well," Artemus went on, "it occurred to me it would be well to detach the cowcatcher from in front of the engine and hitch it to the rear of the train, for, you see, we are not liable to overtake a cow. But what's to prevent a cow strolling into this car and biting a passenger?"

Eating One's Boots.

"Rawhide or even leather if boiled for hours will make nutritious soup," says a writer in Country Life In America on the subject of what a man lost in the woods may find to eat. "Many a man has bridged the awful gap by boiling his boots, whence the phrase to express the final extreme, 'I'll eat my boots first.' Mark Twain was once put to this final resort and recorded afterward that 'the holes tasted the best.'"

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists. Price 75 cents per bottle.

During a church convention in one of our large cities a lady well known as one of the prominent hostesses of the land was entertaining at her home a number of ministers, delegates to the convention. The second evening, being very tired, she proposed having two hours to herself while her guests were attending the religious meeting announced. One delegate, however, insisted on keeping her company. They sat for a time before the library fire, the minister talking on in a gentle stream, the lady growing more and more sleepy. A cricket was singing on the hearth, and presently a hymn from the neighboring church reached their ears. The clergyman, slowly rocking, slowly fitting the tips of his fingers to one another, commented:

How sweet the songs of Zion sound upon the evening air!

His hostess, almost asleep, was still responsive. She fancied he was referring to the cricket. "Yes," she replied; "I'm told they do it with their hind legs."—Harper's Weekly.

A Power For Good.

The pills that are potent in their action and pleasant in effect are DeWitt's Little Early Risers. W. S. Philpot, of Albany, Ga., says: "During a billious attack I took one. Small as it was it did me more good than Calomel, blue mass or any other pill I ever took and at the same time the effect was pleasant. Little Early Risers are certainly an ideal pill." Sold by H. C. Giesler and G. T. Boyington.

The Eternal Womanly.

"I must have a new gown and coat at once."

"Great thunderation, woman, how can you ask for a gown and coat when you have to testify in my bankruptcy hearing next week?"

"I simply have to have them. Do you think I can face the people in the courtroom when I am wearing my old clothes?"—Indianapolis Sun.

Alchemist's Alloys.

The alchemists of the middle ages were incessantly occupied with the endeavors to transmute metals. Many alloys were known to them which are lost to us, and their recipes contain many useful hints worthy of the attention of modern scientists. There is a curious book in the Bibliotheque Nationale entitled "Liber Sacerdotum" ("The Book of the Priests"). It is supposed to have been written by the Jewish priests, but probably dates from the eighteenth century. Here is one of the curious recipes contained in this book: Mix a quantity of iron filings with a quarter of its weight of red orpiment. Press the mixture in a linen cloth, inclose in a smelting pot and leave it for a whole night in a heated furnace. Next add some oil and natron and just as much copper filings as there is iron. Melt all together and the result will be a fine material for hammers.

Sour Stomach.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, sour stomach is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food throughly Let five hours elapse between meals. and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the sour stomach may be avoided. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

When troubled with constipation try Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They are easy to take and produce no griping or other unpleasant effect. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

Malay Superstitions.

You can scarcely ever get your money from a Malay on Friday because Malays believe that if they pay their creditors on a Friday they will be overtaken by penury. Malays never shave or cut their nails on Saturday or Tuesday because these are unlucky days, and if they do part with their hair or nails on these days they believe that they will be always in trouble or will die quickly.

Has Sold a Pile of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for more than twenty years and it has given entire satisfaction. I have sold a pile of it and can recommend it highly. JOSEPH MCELHINEY Linton, Iowa. You will find this remedy a good friend when troubled with a cough or cold. It always affords quick relief and is pleasant to take. For sale by H. C. Giesler,

The Charm of His Hamlet.

Concerning Hamlet as played by the late Wilson Barrett a little story is told in the greenrooms where the actor was known. One of the ancients was talking of the Hamlets he had seen on the stage. "Well," he said. "I've seen dozens of 'em, but of all the hactors wot played Hamlet give me Barrett. He was always done ten minutes afore any of the others."

Armour's Revenge.

One of Phil Armour's $25,000 men went into business on his own account on one occasion and built up a powerful opposition house. The man had remarkable ability, but his career shows that he had not Armour's conception of things nor his loftiness of character. And it shows, too, that despite his long and intimate association with his old employer the seceder had not thoroughly appreciated the quiet power of the originator. X, for we will call him so, rose to prosperous heights and then was seized with the desire to be thought a greater man than his old chief, against whom he began operations in the chosen way of corners and similar financial exercises known to the street. He said one day, "I used to work for Phil Armour, but before long Phil Armour will be working for me." He thought he had the old man squeezed, as the word goes, but Armour proceeded at 9 o'clock one morning to convince the complacent gentleman that he was sadly mistaken. By noon there was a rushing fall in prices, and the once jubilant merchant was a bankrupt. With the news he also received from Mr. Armour the offer of an instant and friendly loan of $500,000 in cash.

From 148 to 92 Pounds.

One of the most remarkable cases of a cold, deep-seated on the lungs, causing pneumonia, is that of Mrs. Gertrude E. Fenner, Marion, Ind. who was entirely cured by the use of One Minute Cough Cure. She says: "The coughing and straining so weakened me that I ran down in weight from 148 to 92 pounds. I tried a number of remedies to no avail until I used One Minute Cough Cure. Four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me entirely of the cough, strengthened my lungs and restored me to my normal weight, health and strength." Sold by H. C. Giesler and G. T. Boyington.

Napoleon's Height.

How tall was Napoleon? Bourrienne, who, according to a writer, had ample opportunities for observation, says that he was five feet two inches. Captain Maitland, who measured him on the Bellerophon, found his distinguished passenger to be five feet seven inches. Constant says that Napoleon was five feet one and a half inches. Bunbury insists that he was not less than five feet six inches. Napoleon chose short men invariably for difficult enterprises. He was convinced that Caesar and Alexander were men of diminutive stature. Speaking of the achievements of his generals, Napoleon said that Kleber had "all the qualities and defects of a tall man."

THREE DOLLARS BETTER THAN THOUSANDS.

Cal-cura Solvent, Dr. Kennedy's NEW Medicine, Did More than Many Doctors.

Your pocketbook as well as your health needs consideration, but often both suffer through ignorance of the right thing to buy. That was the case with the gentleman who wrote the following letter:

"Thousands of dollars have I paid to doctors during my life and I don't complain of the doctors; but Dr. Kennedy's new medicine, Cal-cura Solvent, beats them all. Three bottles of it cured me last spring of heart trouble and terrible pains in the side, back and head. Am better than for thirty years."—H. J. Brandow, Jewett Centre, N. Y.

For $3.00 invested in Cal-cura Solvent Mr. Brandow got what he had spent thousands for in vain. All druggists, $1.00.

MARRIED.

Last Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Holtz of West Second street, was consummated the marriage of Miss Hattie E. Holtz and Mr. Edward C. Fry, the Rev. G. R. Foster officiating. The wedding was exceedingly prettily arranged and the home decorations appropriate. Mr. and Mrs. Fry will reside at No. 215 Erie street after Oct. 20. Among the out of town guests present were Attorney and Mrs. C. E. Pitts of Oswego.

DIED.

The remains of the late Mrs. Norman E. Burdick, aged 81, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Florence Allen in Denver, Col., on July 4, 1904, were brought to this city for interment on Tuesday. They were conveyed to the home of Mrs. A. C. Livingston, and at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, after the committal service had been read by the Rev. W. L. Sawtelle, they were laid to rest in the family lot in Mt. Adnah.

The death of Robert Morley, aged 52 years, occurred at the hospital on Wednesday evening. The deceased was taken violently ill in his bed at the Oswego Falls hotel a week ago Friday, and he was not able to call any one to his assistance. His landlord on Monday became alarmed at his absence and broke down the door to the room and found the man unconscious on the bed. Dr. Wells was at once called and diagnosed the disease as Brights disease. He administered restoratives to the end that the sick man was revived and removed to the hospital, but he could not live. The funeral was held from the home of Mr. George Neusbaum on Friday, and burial was made in Mt. Adnah. The deceased had been employed as pump tender at Lake Neahtawanta for the American Woolen Company.

On Saturday, Sept. 24, T. Beekman Reynolds, aged 75, died after a long illness. The funeral service was held from his late home in Oneida street on Monday afternoon, the Rev. John Richards, pastor of the First M. E. church, of which the deceased was a member, officiating. Mr. Reynolds was the last of a large family who were closely allied with the pioneers of our county and who, by strength of character, ability and energy assisted in laying a firm foundation for the growth of our present generation. The late James G. Reynolds of Granby, and Mrs. R. F. Crossman of Oswego, were older members of the family. Mr. Reynolds was always interested in public and political affairs. He served for three years as assessor in our city. He was a kindly neighbor, a genial gentleman and a devoted husband and father. A widow and two daughters, the Misses Addie and Adelle Reynolds, survive.

Card of Thanks.

The friends of the late Robert Morley wish to sincerely thank Mr. J. Simons and all others who were so kind to him in his illness, and who rendered valued services after his death.

Resolutions of Respect.

At a meeting of Elizabeth Chapter 109, O. E. S., held Wednesday, Sept. 21, the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, we are again called upon to place the wreath of immortelles over the resting place of a loved one who has passed away, and to write "Faithful" o'er her tomb. The Worthy Grand Patron on high in His infinite wisdom has called from labor on earth, to that city not made with hands, eternal in the heavens, Sister Adella Brown. In the death of Sister Brown our order has lost an honored and most worthy member. In private life she was an edifying exemplar of the true woman, a firm and reliable friend, most happy when she could be of benefit to others. Her exalted virtues and exemplary life remain a legacy to her family and friends. As a member of Elizabeth Chapter she was held in the highest esteem, ever ready to faithfully perform every duty. Her wise counsel and her happy, cheerful disposition was an inspiration to every member of the Chapter.

Resolved, That we as members of Elizabeth Chapter deeply deplore our loss, and bow to the infinite wisdom of Him on high.

Resolved, That while we feel our loss so keenly, we realize the deeper meaning to the grief-stricken family, and to them extend our heartfelt sympathy.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent them and printed in each of the city papers.

K. of P. Smoker.

On Tuesday evening, Oct. 4, Pathfinder Lodge, K. of P., will give its first social and smoker for the season. The members have a privilege of inviting a limited number of their friends and the occasion promises to be an enjoyable one. A short program will be given, consisting of vocal solos by N. H. Gilbert and W. S. Hillick; also, songs by the K. of P. quartette. The feature of the evening will be a pie-eating contest, the participants being Dr. B. A. Loveless, Druggist E. A. Putnam and others. Each will be furnished a juicy blackberry pie and the one finishing first will be awarded the prize. This contest is not merely for amusement but to decide a controversy of quite long standing. After the program, an informal feed and smoker will occur.

CENTRAL NEW YORK'S GREATEST CLOTHING STORE.

L. VINNEY COMPANY

130, 132, 134 South Salina Street, Syracuse.

NEWNESS is the keynote of our display---in variety---in merchandise---in style.

THE SUPREME CLOTHING STORE

This store enjoys a larger patronage than any other clothing store in Central New York.

We are not egotistical enough to suppose that people trade with us through favoritism; neither are we unmindful of all we owe to their loyal support and patronage. The principal reason for our extensive business lies in the fact that we render them better service than any other stores do. Simply a case of cause and effect. For example.

A great volume of business shares the expense, minimizes the cost, provides a much wider range to assortments, eliminates delays and overcomes the all too frequent disappointments which accompany smaller stocks and limited facilities.

Thus it is you always find here the world's best clothing at most reaonable prices.

The perfection of our assortments and many exclusive showings of the world's finest makes bring this season's efforts well nigh the acme of clothing excellence.

MALICIOUS STATEMENTS DENIED.

Since F. D. Van Wagenen received $4,200 and signed a full release of all claims against the Fulton Times, he has been industriously engaged in a malicious attempt to destroy the credit and influence of the paper. His efforts have failed in this city and wherever the editor of the Times is known and has had business dealings. In letters published last week in the Palladium and Times of Oswego and the Observer, of this city, Mr. Van Wagenen makes statements and gives figures which are as untrue as were the statements and figures given by him when the paper was purchased ten years ago. There were legitimate claims against the plant at that time of which no mention was made in the transaction. The present editor, however, had to settle or lose the machinery. All money due the plant up to the time possession was given had been collected—the orange had been squeezed dry. The subscription list was padded and the paper had neither credit nor influence, despite the roseate tinge given by Van Wagenen. All outstanding obligations were met as rapidly as possible, and whenever a dollar could be spared from legitimate expenses it was applied on rent and interest.

The Times has gradually secured a standing in this community, but it has required the hardest, most patient and industrious effort. Its influence has never been bought and its readers have confidence in the opinions expressed. There is a pardonable pride in the consciousness that the Times has thrown the weight of its influence in favor of every move that has been made for the betterment of the city, and in every instance the efforts have been crowned with success. No cause it has championed has been defeated.

Mr. Van Wagenen now wears an air of injured innocence and appears before the public in the new and important role of philanthropist. This is a revelation to the men who have been familiar with his characteristics from boyhood, and who do not take the least stock in his hypocritical pretensions.

If such a condition existed as Van Wagenen describes for nearly ten years, was it not a reflection on his common sense and business judgment? He was willing, too, that it should continue provided the paper supported his candidate for county judge, Giles S. Piper. That was his proposition when the interview occurred. The exact language used by Mr. Van Wagenen was as follows:

"Hughes," he said, "Mr. Piper insists that the Gilmour mortgage be paid. If you can arrange to have it taken up I can wait a reasonable time for the payment of the Van Wagenen mortgage. Plans, however, have been perfected and the Times must support Mr. Piper's candidacy for county judge this week (Wednesday). I do not want you to go. You may continue on the paper, but I will assume charge, and the policy of the paper will be reversed in Mr. Piper's interest."

I replied that nothing could induce me to remain under such an arrangement; that as long as I was connected with the paper it would not recede from the position it had taken. It was supporting the nominees of the Republican party and it would continue to do so.

Mr. Van Wagenen replied that I was foolish to take that view of the matter, and that the only course left was to take up the mortgages. If I could arrange to take up both mortgages at once it would be a Godsend to him.

This conversation occurred on Sunday afternoon about 5 o'clock.

Mr. Van Wagenen was asked how much time would be given to effect a settlement, and the reply was that on Monday morning a man would arrive in Fulton from Chittenango to look the plant over with a view of taking immediate possession. The Democratic State Committee would furnish any needed balance to clear up the indebtedness.

It should be a sufficient refutation of the scurrilous and malicious statements published by Van Wagenen that the men who came to the rescue of the Times in this emergency comprise practically all the leading business men in this city; the endorsees representing property exceeding a million dollars in value, all of whom have had business dealings with the editor of the Times. They have confidence in his probity of character and believe that the paper under its present management is fair, impartial, honest and fearless, and can always be relied upon to do the proper thing whenever the city's interests are menaced by grafters who seek political control.

If there had never been one cent paid in interest or rent on the property—which is emphatically denied—Van Wagenen was fully compensated when he received $4,200, the face value of the mortgages, and gave a receipt in full for all claims against the paper.

The campaign issues are most important. The fight is against the alleged Independent Judiciary League—an organization composed of a few men who boldly assert that they are representative Republicans of this city, but who have always been considered a menace to the party. Their political judgment and method of campaign, however, has been most potential in the interests of the Republican party when they have opposed the nominees on the ticket, as they are doing in the present campaign.

No amount of personal abuse will divert the Times from the course it has outlined. The paper will continue to support the Republican nominees. Our friends, the enemy, have even gone so far as to threaten personal violence, but the editor has a clear conscience and reverently fears God only. When this campaign is over there will be ample time and opportunity to deal with the men who have begun this slanderous assault.

THE "TIMES" IS NOT THE CAMPAIGN ISSUE.

The Republican campaign issues in this county are clearly defined, and no amount of evasion, false representation nor personal abuse of candidates or supporters can alter it. The Times is not the issue, although the Independent Judiciary League, which has been driven to the wall, insists that it is.

The question is whether the Republicans in this city and county are willing to permit men who have been repudiated by both political parties to name an independent candidate for county judge, in opposition to the regular Republican nominee, who is in every respect worthy of and entitled to the high honor proferred, and then by every means known to low and petty politics compel them to support this independent candidate.

There is no reason why any Republican in this county should refuse to vote for the regular nominees of his party, especially this Fall. No sustained charge has been made against Judge Stowell by his political opponents. They have filled column after column of their party papers, and page after page of circulars, with the most childish personal abuse, but not one charge of neglect or abuse of his judicial office, not one claim against his public or private character has been proven. Personal abuse never proves a point nor strengthens an argument.

The insinuations and malicious statements which have been issued from the Independent Judiciary League's Literary Bureau, under the management of Frederick G. Spencer and F. D. Van Wagenen, and published in the Observer, will recoil on the heads of these "self-appointed purifiers."

GRANBY HEARD FROM.

EDITOR TIMES—At a meeting of the county and town committees and the officers of the Town of Granby, held September 27, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That we, the undersigned, committee and Town officers of the Town of Granby do oppose and condemn the so called Independent Movement, which we recognize to be an old trick of the Democrat party to cause some Republicans to split and deface their ballots, that they may reduce the Republican majority in Oswego County in County, State and National tickets. We know of no Republicans in the Town of Granby who opposed the nomination of Judge Stowell and we have every reason to believe that the Republicans throughout the town heartily endorse his candidacy and will loyally support him on November 8th, and we will do all in our power to aid in his reelection.

ARTIST FORD SAID NO.

He Could Not Be Hired to Do Anything Against Republican Nominee.

Artist L. W. Ford of the Syracuse Herald, who is a resident of Fulton, has been appealed to by Mr. Van Wagenen of the Independent Judiciary League, to draw cartoons for one of the local papers in the interest of Candidate Giles S. Piper. He has also been asked to give a "chalk-talk" on the same subject in one of the public halls on a date to be agreed upon later. The purpose was to ridicule and to insiduously cast reflection on the Republican nominee, Judge Merrick Stowell. Mr. Ford would not listen to the proposition, as he was not in sympathy with the movement. He refused a very substantial sum of money for the service and was then asked to name his own price Mr. Ford is one the many Republicans of this city who can neither be cajoled nor bought, and he most emphatically refused to devote his talents to such a questionable and dishonorable purpose. He "stands pat" for the entire ticket and will support the candidates of the party at the polls.

Grand Mass Meeting.

Next Monday evening at The Richardson in Oswego will be held a grand Republican mass meeting, which will be addressed by Secretary of the Treasury, Leslie M. Shaw, and Col. Archie E. Baxter of Albany. Music will be furnished by the Third Batallion band and the Oswego Campaign Glee club. A special train will leave the O. & W. station in this city at 7 o'clock and the Continentals and the Granby Escort, accompanied by the Continental drum and bugle corps will go to Oswego to participate in the torchlight procession before the meeting The price for round trip tickets has been placed at 25 cents. Special trains will run from Richland and other sections and the prospects are that the demonstration will be the finest ever made in this county. The speakers are familiar with the situation in State and Nation and will give convincing and entertaining resumes of vital points. No one should fail to hear them.

Republicans Advised Not to be Tricked By Democrats.

At a meeting of the Republican County Committee, held at Oswego, September, 28, 1904, the following was unanimously adopted:

To the Republican Electors of Oswego County:

Your committee call your attention to a movement to place Giles S. Piper in nomination as an independent candidate for county judge and respectfully advise every Republican not to sign the petition for that purpose.

It is a trick and artifice of the Democrats to get a few Republicans on various pretexts to vote for Mr. Piper, well knowing that he cannot be elected, but expecting that a large percentage of split ballots will be thrown out as void and so help the National and State Democratic ticket.

Statistics show that more than 50,000 ballots are thrown out at every State election, most of which are split tickets.

We ask every Republican to vote the entire ticket and not run the risk of losing his vote.

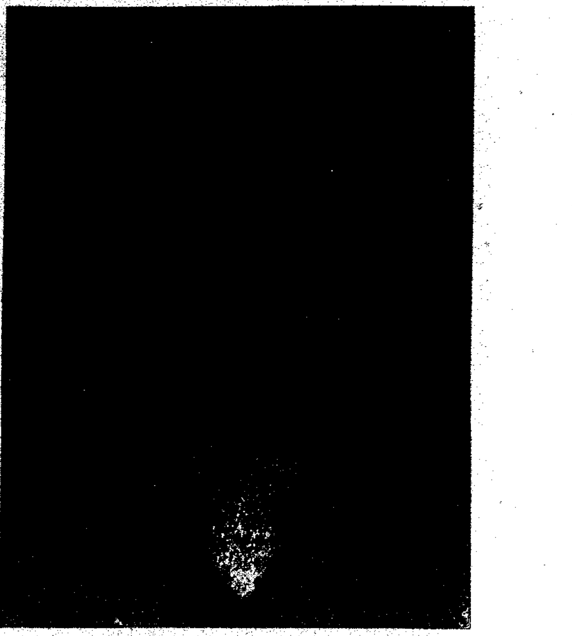
REPUBLICAN RALLY

Torchlight Procession of Uniformed Clubs. Eloquent and Convincing Arguments By Gifted Orators—Enjoyable Selections Rendered By Glee Club.



HON. FREDERICK G. WHITNEY OF PULASKI

Who Ably Presented the Issues of the Campaign.

An enthusiastic Republican rally was held last Friday evening, which was participated in by the Continental Club and the Granby Escort. At 7:30 o'clock the Continental Club, in full uniform, under the command of Captain S. B. Mead, marched from the City Hall to Republican headquarters; there they received and lighted torches, and accompanied by Hose Company No. 4 drum and bugle corps, marched up First street to Broadway, where they were met by the Granby Escort, also in full uniform, and escorted to the west side of the city. Interesting and picturesque evolutions were given by the uniformed ranks, which evoked constant applause and cheering from a vast concourse of people which lined the sidewalks.

At Stewart's Hall, an interesting program had been prepared. The Continental Quartette rendered several appropriate selections in excellent voice.

Mr. George Brooker, was chairman of the meeting and he introduced the speakers—the Hon. F. G. Whitney of Pulaski and the Hon. M. R. Sackett, United States Consul at Prescott, Canada.

Mr. Whitney stated that he appreciated the honor of speaking in the home city of the Hon. T. D Lewis, one of the most capable members of the Legislature, and also that of Collector Stranahan of New York City, whose renown was not local but national. Referring to the great questions presented by the two parties this Fall, he stated they did not differ in many respects. But the Republican party had formulated policies during the past fifty years which were epoch making. He mentioned the vast increase in population and resources during that period, and how the Republican party met every emergency and had made the many administrations they were responsible for the most progressive the Republic had ever known. Alton Parker's change of views on the monetary question were commented on and the Democratic cry of extravagance also came in for a full share of attention. The establishment of Rural Free Delivery; the efficiency of the army and navy were responsible for a large share of the expenditure, but the speaker did not believe that any true American would object to such a wise and patriotic course. The army and navy were in a high state of efficiency and the Rural Free Delivery was a blessing to the farmers.

The State, national and county nominees were dwelt upon and the issues described. The speaker warned Republicans against the folly of splitting their ballots in obedience to a request of the Democratic leaders It was a dangerous method, as statistics proved that at least 50 per cent. of void ballots were those which electors had evidently tried to "split." Roosevelt and Fairbanks needed no eulogy; Frank W. Higgins was a man of peerless integrity and was eminently qualified to be the chief executive of the great Empire State. Judge Stowell deserved the full strength of the party vote in this county. His political enemies were conducting a campaign full of innuendo, not daring to make specific charges. This was a cowardly method and deserved to fail.

After the quartette had favored the assemblage with a selection, Mr. Brooker introduced the Hon. M. R. Sackett of Gouverneur. Mr. Sackett is a most pleasing, logical and convincing speaker. He left the platform, and getting closer to the audience, began a heart-to-heart talk. No incident of the campaign was overlooked. The candidates, and their fitness for office, was emphasized, and a most interesting and instructive resume of the great accomplishments under Republican administrations was given. Although the audience was tired, and the seats not comfortable, no evidence of weariness was discernable. The truth was driven home in a convincing manner, and so logical were the conclusions reached, that all were profoundly interested, and when Mr. Sackett had spoken an hour and asked the assemblage if they desired him to stop, the unanimous and hearty response was "No!"

The meeting was a most pronounced success and can not fail to be productive of the best results.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

HOUSEHOLD EXPENSES.

Interesting Hints at Economy, Which Explains How All Housewives Can Save Money—Valuable and Useful Premiums.

In buying staple groceries and household supplies, every purchaser wants full value in attractive, honest goods. Only those firms with large capital and experience can handle this trade so as to fully satisfy their patrons. Now and then an old-established business concern with exceptional facilities is found at the head of the commercial column. They are there because they have uniformly given their customers the best value for the money and thus established their high character and integrity beyond question.

The C. R. Maltby Company of Corning, N. Y., are such a firm. They handle almost everything used or consumed by the household. They stand midway between the producer and consumer. By their capital and experience they work to best advantage of the consumer. Sound business methods enable them to operate at the least cost. They thus save to their patrons that large percentage other firms pay out to "expense" in doing business. This amounts to a big item to the average family during the course of a year. They are willing to further share their profits with customers; they have originated a line of "Signature Brands"—goods prepared by them and sold to consumers in sealed packages. In this list are teas, coffees, spices, flavoring extracts, flour, soap, matches and a general line of dry groceries. The signature of C. R. Maltby Company, Corning, N. Y., is written across their seal on all these "Signature Brands." This signature is valuable.

In addition to getting the very best goods possible for the money, one can save the signatures and the firm will redeem them according to the value of the purchase. There is a premium list of over 300 different articles to select from. This includes: Corning cut-glass; electric novelties; all kinds of silverware; table and pocket cutlery; toilet articles; razors; carving-sets; scissors; knife and scissors sharpeners; rocking-chairs; writing-desks; watches; chains; clocks; lockets; suspenders; umbrellas; pipes; coffee-mills; toilet sets; china and tea sets; food choppers; talking machines, etc.

Do not lose sight of the fact that all "Signature" goods are prepared, packed and sealed by this company and are uniform in honest weight and quality. Guaranteed absolutely clean and pure. Each signature is valuable regardless of what package it may be taken from. It is counted in at the face value on any article that may be selected from their catalog premium list. All these things are clearly explained in C. R. Maltby Company's premium catalog, illustrated—sent free on request. The premiums offered are as good value for the price as are to be found in the market. They are a part of the profits this firm divides with its patrons. Few concerns can do as much for the money and continue in business. It has required years of experience to enable them to make this statement and tell the truth. These premium goods are either made especially for C. R. Maltby Company of Corning, N. Y., or else they are selected from the largest and best houses, whose stamp stands for good value. Ask your grocer for C. R. Maltby Company's "Signature Brands" of coffee, tea, flour, spices, fruits, flavoring extracts and all brands of dry groceries. If your grocer cannot supply you, write the firm direct who will advise you where the goods may be obtained. They mean what they say and do what they promise.

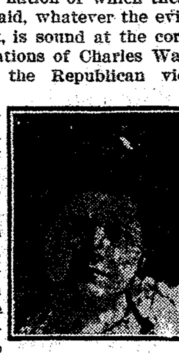
THE FAIRBANKS FAMILY

ONE of the most inspiring things in American life is the ideal domestic relations of practically all of our public men. If the home is the cornerstone of the state, then the republic certainly is builded on a rock, for never in the history of the world has the home life of the rulers and leaders of the people been as free from scandal or as much the occasion of approbative reference as in our own land. Of each candidate for the presidency or for the governorships, senatorships, congress and other nominations in the various states it is said with truth in almost all cases, "His home life is ideal." Here is a theme for the optimist—that in a civilization where there is so much talk of the divorce evil and kindred social blemishes there should be so little domestic scandal in the lives of those chosen for public office. A nation of which these things may be said, whatever the evils that surround it, is sound at the core.

The home relations of Charles Warren Fairbanks, the Republican vice presidential candidate, constitute a case in point. Senator Fairbanks owns two homes, one in Indianapolis and the other in Washington, and both are social centers in the respective cities. The senator is never so happy as when surrounded by a houseful of company and is as genial a host as Mrs. Fairbanks is a hostess. There are few more popular entertainers at the national capital than these two, and this fact is due more to a genuine kindliness than to any other cause. Mrs. Fairbanks shines quite as much as a social leader as she does in her more conspicuous public position as president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, a position she has held for two terms, the constitution of the order having been altered especially to permit the innovation of a second term in her favor.



MRS. FAIRBANKS.

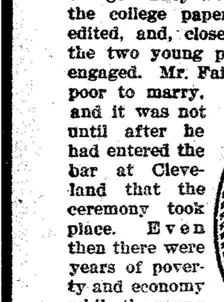
Though few women are better known socially all over the country than is this very tactful woman, she has still managed to subordinate herself in all things of which her husband has a part. Therefore, although she is a trained politician, it is not as an aggressive personality that she impresses one, but rather as sweet and gracious and one more likely to be interested in the newest modes than in political matters.

It is with Washington that Mrs. Fairbanks has become most closely identified since her husband was sent to congress, and in their beautiful home at 1800 Massachusetts avenue she has entertained constantly every season. While she gives no end of teas and receptions, it is as a dinner giver that she has the most enviable reputation, for she has the rare faculty of arranging her guests so that the right ones are together, and the chef is always above criticism. It was during the season of 1899 that she became conspicuous in this way, at the time when Senator Fairbanks was president of the Anglo-American commission. Her tact added greatly to his popularity and consequent usefulness.

W. M. FAIRBANKS.

Of medium height, with quiet though animated manner, Mrs. Fairbanks would give the uninitiated an impression of a woman whose thoughts would not wander far from her home and her children, but close observation changes this opinion. She has a broad forehead, indicating fine mentality, and a forceful mouth. This combination of strength is tempered by her eyes, which are large and soft, and a particularly sweet smile.

Before her marriage Mrs. Fairbanks was Miss Cornelia Cole, and she met her future husband when both were in Wesleyan university and the young man was working his way through college. They were both interested in the college paper, which later they edited, and, closely thrown together, the two young persons soon became engaged. Mr. Fairbanks was then too poor to marry, and it was not until after he had entered the bar at Cleveland that the ceremony took place. Even then there were years of poverty and economy while the young lawyer worked his way along, and Mrs. Fairbanks has today a practical knowledge of housework and makeshifts acquired at that time.

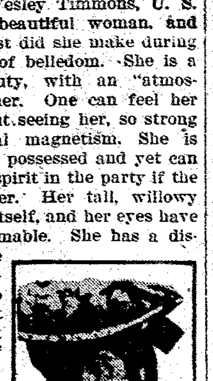


F. C. FAIRBANKS.

During the time that her five children—four boys and one girl—were tiny Mrs. Fairbanks had complete care of them, though never did she allow her home duties to prevent her from keeping up with outside matters and being fully in touch with her husband's professional life.

Mrs. Fairbanks is a most progressive woman and was one of the first in Washington to take to automobiling. She guides her own car and is a familiar figure during the season.

The only daughter of Senator and Mrs. Fairbanks, who was Miss Adelaide Fairbanks, is now the wife of Ensign John Wesley Timmons, U. S. N. She is a beautiful woman, and many a conquest did she make during her few years of belledom. She is a tall, dark beauty, with an "atmosphere" about her. One can feel her presence without seeing her, so strong is her personal magnetism. She is stately and self possessed and yet can be the liveliest spirit in the party if the notion takes her. Her tall, willowy figure is grace itself, and her eyes have depths unfathomable. She has a distinctive style and knows exactly what to wear and what suits her best in the matter of clothes.



MRS. J. W. TIMMONS.

From the time she was a little girl Adelaide was the pet of the household, and though still young she has had a slightly checkered time. As her mother had been before her, the girl was sent to Wesleyan and came back to her home at Indianapolis, when she was twenty years old, a beauty, popular and ready for a Washington debut, where it was expected she would make a sensation.

She made a sensation, but not the kind that was expected, for she left the house one morning and that noon was married to Mr. Horace R. Allen, Jr., who was then manager of the National Surgical institute. It was known that Mr. Allen was devoted to her, but the girl's parents opposed any engagement, thinking she was too young. Miss Fairbanks met Mr. Allen at noon, and while her father was paying a call on President McKinley, who was then in the city, the girl and Mr. Allen went to the house of a friend and were married. Mr. and Mrs. Fairbanks were immediately notified, and though they were frankly hurt by their daughter's action they welcomed the bride and her husband and made the best of it.

Nevertheless, in December, 1902, Mrs. Allen obtained a divorce from her husband and again astonished her friends. The Fairbankses were then in Washington, and a few weeks after the divorce wedding cards for Miss Fairbanks, who had resumed her maiden name, and Ensign J. W. Timmons were sent out, though not even their most intimate friends knew they were engaged.

R. M. FAIRBANKS.

Ensign and Mrs. Timmons had a romantic courtship. They were sweethearts at school, in the very same school in which Mrs. Timmons' father and mother had met, studied and courted. They had a misunderstanding, school closed, and they went in different directions. She married and after her divorce visited in the home of Senator Hanna in Cleveland. Timmons was a guest of the Hannas at the same time. It was only a matter of a few weeks when everything was adjusted, and the wedding day was set.

There are four sons of Senator and Mrs. Fairbanks—Warren, Frederick, Richard and Robert. Warren C., who recently married Miss Helen Ethel Cassidy of Pittsburg, is in business in Chicago. The young couple conquered society in Washington while there last winter and are doing the same in Chicago. "Mrs. Warren" is a lovely blond, who wears lovely clothes and pearls and a lovely smile. Warren is an alumnus of his father's alma mater at Delaware and is secretary and director of the Oliver typewriter works at Chicago.

Frederick C., the next son, is a graduate of Princeton, class of '03, and is now taking a law course in the Columbian university in Washington. ROBERT FAIRBANKS.

The Fairbanks family occupies a comfortable frame dwelling on North Meridian street, Indianapolis. In Washington they live in the old Van Wyck house at Massachusetts avenue and Eighth street. Both Senator Fairbanks and his wife are Methodists. The senator is a trustee of the Meridian street church in Indianapolis. While in Washington the family attends the Metropolitan church, which General Grant attended when he was president.

One of the most interesting side lights on the character of Mrs. Fairbanks is furnished by an incident of her D. A. R. presidency. It shows her a clever and astute tactician. Mrs. Desha of Kentucky, founder of the organization, questioned a ruling of the chair. "The motion was clearly out of order," promptly announced Mrs. Fairbanks. "But, Madam Chairman," protested the delegate, somewhat surprised, "it is in accordance with your ruling at the last congress." "I am simply following your ruling then." "That's where you erred," retorted the chair, with a smile. "You should never follow the chair when the chair is wrong."

CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS, 1904.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing amendment to article seven of the Constitution, relating to improvement of highways.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the seventh article of the Constitution be amended by adding thereto the following section: § 12. Improvement of Highways.—A debt or debts of the State may be authorized by law for the improvement of highways. Such highways shall be determined under general laws, which shall also provide for the equitable apportionment thereof among the counties. The aggregate of the debts authorized by this section shall not at any one time exceed the sum of fifty millions of dollars. The payment of the annual interest on such debt and the creation of a sinking fund of at least two per centum per annum to discharge the principal at maturity shall be provided by general laws whose force and effect shall not be diminished during the existence of any debt created thereunder. The legislature may by general laws require the county or town or both to pay to the sinking fund the proportionate part of the cost of any such highway within the boundaries of such county or town and the proportionate part of the interest thereon, but no county shall at any time for any highway be required to pay more than thirty-five hundredths of the cost of such highway, and no town more than fifteen hundredths. None of the provisions of the fourth section of this article shall apply to debts for the improvement of highways hereby authorized. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the Legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the Constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 1, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 2, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER TWO.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the constitution in relation to the time within which debts of the state must be paid and striking from said section certain limitations.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section four of article seven of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VII. § 4. Except the debts specified in sections two and three of this article, no debts shall be hereafter contracted by or in behalf of this state, unless such debt shall be authorized by a law for some single work or object, to be distinctly specified therein; and such law shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax to pay, and sufficient to pay, the interest on such debt as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal of such debt within fifty years from the time of the contracting thereof. No such law shall take effect until it shall, at a general election, have been submitted to the people, and have received a majority of all the votes cast for and against it at such election. On the final passage of such bill in either house of the legislature, the question shall be taken by ayes and noes, to be duly entered on the journals thereof, and shall be: "Shall this bill pass, and ought the same to receive the sanction of the people?" The legislature may at any time, after the approval of such law by the people, if no debt shall have been contracted in pursuance thereof, repeal the same; and may at any time, by law, forbid the contracting of any further debt or liability under such law; but the tax imposed by such act, in proportion to the debt and liability which may have been contracted, in pursuance of such law, shall remain in force and be irrepealable, and be annually collected, until the proceeds thereof shall have made the provision hereinbefore specified to pay and discharge the interest and principal of such debt and liability. The money arising from any loan or stock creating such debt or liability shall be applied to the work or object specified in the act authorizing such debt or liability, or for the payment of such debt or liability, and for no other purpose whatever. No such law shall be submitted to be voted on, within three months after its passage or at any general election when any other law, or any bill, shall be submitted to be voted for or against. The legislature may provide for the issue of bonds of the state to run for a period not exceeding fifty years in lieu of bonds heretofore authorized but not issued and shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax for the payment of the same as hereinbefore required. When any sinking fund created under this section shall equal in amount the debt for which it was created, no further direct tax shall be levied on account of said sinking fund and the legislature shall reduce the tax to an amount equal to the accruing interest on such debt. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 21, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 22, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER THREE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the constitution in relation to justices of the appellate division of the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section two of article six of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VI. § 2. The legislature shall divide the state into four judicial departments. The first department shall consist of the county of New York; the others shall be bounded by county lines, and be compact and equal in population as nearly as may be. Once every ten years the legislature may alter the judicial departments, but without increasing the number thereof. There shall be an appellate division of the supreme court, consisting of seven justices in the first department, and of five justices in each of the other departments. In each department four shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of three shall be necessary to a decision. No more than five justices shall sit in any case. From all the justices elected to the supreme court the governor shall designate those who shall constitute the appellate division in each department; and shall designate the presiding justice thereof, who shall act as such during his term of office, and shall be a resident of the department. The other justices shall be designated for terms of five years or the unexpired portions of their respective terms of office, if less than five years. From time to time as the terms of such designations expire, or vacancies occur, he shall make new designations. A majority of the justices so designated to sit in the appellate division, in each department shall be residents of the department. He may also make temporary designations in case of the absence or inability to act of any justice in the appellate division, or in case the presiding justice of any appellate division shall certify to him that one or more additional justices are needed for the speedy disposition of the business before it. Whenever the appellate division in any department shall be unable to dispose of its business within a reasonable time, a majority of the presiding justices of the several departments at a meeting called by the presiding justice of the department in arrears may transfer any pending appeals from such department to any other department for hearing and determination. No justice of the appellate division shall, within the department to which he may be designated to perform the duties of an appellate justice, exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court, other than those of a justice out of court, and those pertaining to the appellate division, or to the hearing and decision of motions submitted by consent of counsel, but any such justice, when not actually engaged in performing the duties of such appellate justice in the department to which he is designated, may hold any term of the supreme court and exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court in any county or judicial district in any other department of the state. From and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, the appellate division shall have the jurisdiction now exercised by the supreme court at its general terms and by the general terms of the court of common pleas for the city and county of New York, the superior court of the city of New York, the superior court of Buffalo and the city of Brooklyn, and such additional jurisdiction as may be conferred by the legislature. It shall have power to appoint and remove a reporter. The justices of the appellate division in each department shall have power to fix the times and places for holding special terms therein, and to assign the justices in the departments to hold such terms; and to make rules therefor. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 29, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 6, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FOUR.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to trial commissioners.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that section six of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 6. Circuit courts and courts of oyer and terminer are abolished from and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five. All their jurisdiction shall thereupon be vested in the supreme court, and all actions and proceedings then pending in such courts shall be transferred to the supreme court for hearing and determination. Any justice of the supreme court, except as otherwise provided in this article, may hold court in any county. Whenever and as often as the causes upon the trial term calendar of any county of this state, having a population according to the latest state enumeration of over five hundred thousand, shall have so accumulated that an unpreferred cause cannot be reached for trial in due course within one year after it has been placed upon the calendar, the appellate division of the department in which such county is embraced may, by a certificate signed by a majority of its members, certify the fact to the court of appeals, whereupon said court may by order authorize the appointment in said county of trial commissioners, stating in said order the number of commissioners to be appointed, and their terms of office, not exceeding six years. Such order shall be made in duplicate and one copy thereof filed in the office of the secretary of state, and one in the office of the clerk of the county in which said appointments are authorized. The appellate division of the department embracing said county shall thereupon appoint the number of trial commissioners authorized by said order, who must possess the qualifications required for a justice of the supreme court. They shall possess and exercise in the county for which they are appointed all the powers of a justice of the supreme court respecting the trial and disposition of causes upon said trial term calendar and the settlement of cases on appeal, but shall possess none of the powers of such a justice out of court or at special term. They may be removed in the same manner as is provided in case of a justice of said supreme court. They shall each receive an annual salary of twelve thousand dollars to be paid by the county for which they are appointed, and may not practice law. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 23, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 8, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FIVE.

Concurrent resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the constitution.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section seven of article seven be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Forest preserve.—The lands of the state, now owned or hereafter acquired, constituting the forest preserve as now fixed by law, shall be forever kept as wild forest lands, except as hereinafter provided. They shall not be leased, sold or exchanged, or be taken by any corporation, public or private, nor shall the timber thereon be sold, removed or destroyed. The legislature may authorize the removal of dead timber on burned areas so far as necessary for reforestation, through officers and employees of the state, but not by contract. The legislature may also authorize the sale of lands outside of the limits of the Adirondack park and the Catskill park as such parks are now established by law. The proceeds of such sales shall be set apart in a separate fund and used only for the purchase of lands in such parks. A violation of this section may be restrained at the suit of the people or with the consent of the supreme court on notice to the attorney-general at the suit of any citizen of the state. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 4, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 9, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State, at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section one of article two of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SIX.

Concurrent resolution, proposing amendment to section one of article two of the constitution relating to qualification of voters.

Resolved (if the senate concur), that section one of article two of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article II. Section 1. Qualification of voters.—Every male citizen of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a citizen for ninety days, and an inhabitant of this state one year next preceding an election, and for the last four months a resident of the county or of a city comprising more than one county, and for the last thirty days a resident of the election district in which he may offer his vote, shall be entitled to vote at such election in the election district of which he shall at the time be a resident, and not elsewhere, for all officers that now are or hereafter may be elective by the people, and upon all questions which may be submitted to the vote of the people, provided that in time of war no elector in the actual military service of the state, or of the United States, in the army or navy thereof, shall be deprived of his vote by reason of his absence from such election district; and the legislature shall have power to provide the manner in which and the time and place at which such absent electors may vote, and for the return and canvass of their votes in the election districts in which they respectively reside.

State of New York: In Assembly, Mar. 28, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section one of article two, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to sections one and seven of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SEVEN.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to article six of the constitution in relation to providing additional justices of the supreme court and judges of the court of appeals.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section one of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 1. Supreme court; court of appeals; how constituted; judicial districts.—The supreme court is continued with general jurisdiction in law and equity, subject to such appellate jurisdiction of the court of appeals as now is or may be prescribed by law not inconsistent with this article. The existing judicial districts of the state are continued until changed as hereinafter provided. The supreme court shall consist of the justices now in office, and of the judges transferred thereto by the fifth section of this article, all of whom shall continue to be justices of the supreme court during their respective terms, and of twelve additional justices who shall reside in and be chosen by the electors of, the several existing judicial districts, three in the first district, three in the second, and one in each of the other districts; and of their successors. The successors of said justices shall be chosen by the electors of their respective judicial districts. The legislature may alter the judicial districts once after every enumeration under the constitution, of the inhabitants of the state, and thereupon reapportion the justices to be thereafter elected in the districts so altered. The legislature may at any time, when it deems that the public interests requires it, increase the number of justices of the supreme court or of judges of the court of appeals as it sees fit, provided that the total number of judges of the court of appeals shall not exceed eleven, and provided also that any bill increasing the number of justices or judges as aforesaid shall receive the assent of two-thirds of the members elected to each branch of the legislature. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section seven of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Court of appeals.—The court of appeals is continued. It shall consist of the chief judge and associate judges now in office, and of such additional judges as the legislature may from time to time provide in accordance with section one of this article and as may be elected according to law, who shall hold their offices until the expiration of their respective terms, and of their successors, who shall be chosen by the electors of the state. The official terms of the chief judge and associate judges shall be fourteen years from and including the first day of January next after their election. The legislature may provide by law for the manner in which the court shall sit, whether in two divisions or one, and for the number of members of the court necessary to form a quorum in either instance and also for the number whose concurrence shall be necessary to a decision. The court shall have power to appoint and to remove its reporter, clerk and attendants. § 3. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 13, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to sections one and seven of article six, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER EIGHT.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That section six of article six of the constitution be amended by adding thereto the following: In any department in which supreme court commissioners have been appointed, the justices of the appellate division of the department, or a majority of them, are authorized from time to time to designate one or more of such supreme court commissioners to hold trial terms of the supreme court within such department and to revoke such designation. A supreme court commissioner so designated shall have power to hold a trial term of the supreme court within said department and to perform the duties of a justice of the supreme court in the trial term to which he may be assigned. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, to be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

When Railways Were New.

It was in 1830 that the opening of the railway between Liverpool and Manchester was celebrated. The Duke of Wellington's ideas concerning the iron road are thus described by Chaplain Gleig: "The Duke of Wellington was invited in his capacity of prime minister to take part in the opening journey. He declined, saying that no great or permanent good could come of the invention, because stagecoaches already traveled at the rate of eight or ten miles in the hour and if any attempt were made to exceed that pace the respiration of the passengers would become painful, perhaps impossible. The duke would listen to no remonstrances. He thought, as others did, that the experiment was risky and derided the idea of accelerating the pace, as was promised, to twenty miles an hour. Even a twelve mile pace he regarded as excessive, because difficult, if not impossible, to control and agreed in the opinion that the iron way would never, for general traffic, supersede our macadamized roads, then brought to perfection."

DIED.

Adam D. Dygert, of Phoenix, aged 72, died at a hospital in Syracuse on Monday, after a continuous residence of 63 years in Phoenix.

Mrs. Catherine Quick, aged 62, died on Saturday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Taylor in West First street. Mrs. Taylor and one son, Mr. Charles Quick of this city, survive.

The death of Capt. Ira Doane, aged 97, occurred at his home in Pulaski last week. The deceased was one of the best known men in this section of the County, where he had resided for the major portion of his life. He had held many public offices and offices of trust in his home town. He was a staunch Democrat, having voted for Andrew Jackson and every Democratic presidential candidate since. His widow is very ill at the home of her son in Syracuse.

Another of the old landmarks was removed from this vicinity with the passing away of Marcus J. Gere on Friday evening, at the age of 82 years. He was born in Camillus in 1822 and resided in that place until he was 22 years of age when he removed to South Granby, taking a large piece of land which was still, as was nearly all of the town, an unbroken forest. He cultivated the farm and on it made his home for forty years, retiring from active life to make his home in this city. The deceased was a member and constant attendant of the Presbyterian church in this city for twenty years, and previous to coming here he drove six miles each Sunday to attend divine service in Lysander. His education was received in the district schools and in the Academy in Camillus, and during several years of his life he taught school. He remained a close student up to the time of his death. The deceased was always a Republican and took a great interest in all local affairs. He was for several years Justice of the Peace in Granby and his advice in legal matters was eagerly sought until ill health prevented his serving. He had drafted many wills and administered many estates with great success. The deceased is survived by his widow, two daughters and three sons, the Misses Lovisa B., of New York City, Anna H., of this city and Messrs. Ira M., of Manlius, Robert H., of Syracuse and Justus T., of South Granby. The funeral which was largely attended, was held from the late home on Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, the Rev. Sawtelle officiating. Appropriate musical selections were rendered by Mrs. Thomas Hunter and Miss Mabel Hodges, with Mrs. Sawtelle as accompanist. The remains were laid to rest in Mt. Adnah.

A Tribute to the Memory of Mrs. Norman E. Burdick.

It was on the beautiful afternoon of Sept. 27, 1904, that a few of the close friends of Mrs. Elizabeth H. Burdick met at Mt. Adnah cemetery to witness the interment of their loved and cherished friend of many years. On the morning of that day the remains arrived from Denver, where she had been living for the past ten years with her only daughter, Mrs. Seward Allen. These were taken to the home of neices, Mrs. Livingston and Miss Franc French.

How vividly her personality came before us as we stood around that open grave. Her slight figure, pleasant, dark eyes; her warm and friendly greetings to all; her converse, always interesting and entertaining, pictures the friend, faithful and true, with the ever-ready helping hand and sympathetic heart. The intervening years seemed brushed aside, and she stood before us as in the years agone. Like a panorama, her life, as we knew it, was spread before us. From her lips we had learned of her early orphanage; her education, which was largely received at Fulton Falley Seminary; her marriage early in life to Norman E. Burdick, one of the rising young men of Fulton, and her long and happy life in this place, where her two daughters were born. Then came dark shadows, and the crushing sorrow in to that gentle life, when first, her youngest daughter, Millicent, was stricken with pneumonia and died in her home in Chicago, after a short illness. A year or two following, in 1894, her husband was very suddenly taken from her by heart failure, leaving her alone and helpless, like a clinging vine, bereft of its support. Her daughter, Florence, and husband came immediately from Denver, and after the burial of the loved father and husband, disposing of the home and attending to all the business details, and knowing she could not live here alone, but needed their care, gathered up the crushed and broken flower and transplanted it to their home in Denver, doing all that loving and devoted ones could do to make happy and comfortable her declining years. Though she tried heroically, for her daughter's sake, to rise above her sorrows and live, it was too late. The arrow had gone home; the vital forces were so weakened that with advancing age, recuperation was impossible. It was also a great trial to her to leave the home she had occupied so long and happily, and the many friends to whom she was so warmly attached and her life thereafter was a gradual decline until the 4th of last July the struggle ended, and the pure spirit was released and has found perfect rest after "life's fitful fever."

Mrs Burdick was naturally of a refined and sensitive nature, generous and sympathetic to all, especially to the poor and afflicted. Unassuming and home-loving; a devoted wife and mother. Her faith and trust in her Heavenly Father were unfaltering, though tried in many ways. A fine poem, a beautiful character, a choice work of art, appealed to her taste and were food to a mind of the finest fibre. To be loved by her was a privilege and honor. We miss the little white-winged messengers of love which came from Denver, often written under great physical difficulty, but we rejoice that she is free for her dear sake. To us life seems poorer, but we know that Heaven is so much the richer for its new occupant. She has emerged from this chrysylis life into the life glorious. We will patiently await the summons:

"There is a future, Oh! thank God,
Of life this is so small a part.
'Tis dust to dust beneath the sod,
But there, up there, 'tis heart to heart

Public Library Matters.

A meeting of the Public Library trustees and the solicitors for the new Library site, was held on Friday evening and plans were discussed for the perfecting of all detail so that when a sufficient sum should have been subscribed, no time need be lost in securing the site, selecting plans and erecting the building. The option on the Nelson property in First street expired on Oct. 1, but the trustees have secured a ten days extension. Nearly enough money has been secured to complete the transaction and as there are still many of our residents who have not yet contributed anything it is thought that by another week sufficient money may be secured to purchase the site. Do not wait to be called upon regarding the matter but notify a Library trustee, one of the solicitors or leave the amount you will donate with Mrs. Emens at the Library this week, and thus help expedite matters.

If you are thinking of buying a watch, you should look over the immense stock at G. B. Farley's, 21 First street.

Of Interest To Corn Growers.

Mr. Julius J. Lindsley, weather observer, at Oswego, N. Y., gives us the following information in reference to frosts in this locality:

The period of observation covers the past thirty-three years. The earliest day on which first killing frost occurred in Autumn was September 25, 1890. The average date on which first killing frost occurred in Autumn was October 13th. The first light frost in 1903 occurred on September 30th and the first killing frost on October 27, 1903.

If the average date as given above for the past thirty-three years, October 18th, holds true this season, it will insure a good crop of corn in this section.

The tributes of esteem bestowed upon the memory of the late Harold Metcalf of Groton, were numerous and most touching. The students in the schools at that place were excused that they might attend the funeral services. Six of his girl and six of his boy friends served as honorary and active pall bearers and the body was borne to the hearse between rows of grief stricken companions. Another exceedingly sad incident connected with the going out of this young life, was the fact that a day previous to the accident, the father had gone to the Adirondacks in the hope that the change might stay the ravages of disease in his lungs. He returned to the Adirondacks after the funeral to take up the battle for life, leaving Mrs. Metcalf doubly bereft. The sympathy of all in this city will go out to the afflicted family and their relatives.

THE VITAL ISSUE IN A SENTENCE

COLLIER'S WEEKLY PRINTS THE FOLLOWING FROM A READER:

Milwaukee Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen: Please stop your booming of Parker. I have been ruined once by that party and have not forgot it yet. J.

No Campaign Text Book, no document, no speech, could be stronger. And this Chicago man was only one of millions ruined by Democracy and Free Trade.

WATSON AT NASHVILLE.

Some Terse Comments on Parker and His Platform.

[Extracts from Thomas E. Watson's speech at Nashville.]

Who is pouring in the millions for Parker? The great corporations, with Belmont to represent them—Belmont, the American agent of the Rothschilds—and the Standard Oil crowd. What are those corporations pouring their wealth into Parker's campaign fund for? When a railroad stuffs a judge's pocket with free passes you know what they expect, don't you? You know they expect something in return. They expect a friendly disposition on the part of the judge, and very frequently it is quite friendly. [Laughter.] When the Standard Oil company and the Rothschild combination and the Louisville and Nashville railroad, represented by Belmont, who manages the Southern railway combine—when these men pour money into Parker's campaign don't you think they expect something too? Isn't that common sense? Oh, southern man, unshackle your brain and think for yourself! [Cheers.]

But if I believed in the Republican principles I could not vote for Judge Parker, although he comes so close to the Republican platform [laughter and applause] I see no reason why those two eggs might not have been taken out of the same nest. To me they are two drinks out of the same jug. [Laughter.] * * * Let's see about that. I would vote always for the genuine, original, simon pure article if that was the article I wanted. I wouldn't want an imitation. [Laughter.] I wouldn't want a copy; I would want the original. I don't want the counterfeit dollar; I want the real dollars. I don't want the "just as good;" I want the "real thing," because the "just as good" is always a liar and a hypocrite. [Applause.]

Now let us take Judge Parker's acceptation speech and find if we can where the difference is between him and Theodore Roosevelt. Is it on imperialism? Oh, how this country did ring with imperialism! We went to bed frightened at it, and we got up next morning surprised that it hadn't captured us and carried us off. Imperialism! Terrible things were going to rise up out of the islands of the sea and come in upon us and devour us. Mind you, I wish to God that our government never had meddled with a single one of the islands in those distant seas. But when I remember that the treaty of Paris was concluded at the urgent personal solicitation of W. J. Bryan himself it looks to me as if both the parties are committed to the proposition that the holding of the Philippines was a good thing to do, or at least a necessary evil. Both are committed to it. Now, having got them, what are you going to do with them? Roosevelt says, "We will give them self government whenever they are prepared for it." That's the substance of it. He doesn't set the time, the place or the manner. Judge Parker in his speech of acceptance says, "When they are ready for self government we will give it to them." There you've got it. * * * Upon imperialism there is no difference that you can figure out in plain English between the acceptance of Roosevelt and the acceptance of Judge Parker.

The Democratic platform declared that we needed new legislation against the trusts. Judge Parker in his speech of acceptance said: "No, we don't need any new legislation; the law as it stands is good enough; all you have got to do is to carry it out." Against whom? When? And how? Judge Parker upon that subject is gloriously indefinite and furnishes no bill of particulars. Therefore on the subject of the trusts there is absolutely no difference that you can state in plain English so that the common man can understand what it is.

Roosevelt and Parker.

[From the Cincinnati Volksblatt.]

Hoke Smith of Georgia, secretary of the interior in Cleveland's administration, has given the clearest statement of the reasons which in the opinion of the Democratic party justify and require a change of administration. He is silent about principles; not even the tariff, the inexhaustible theme of Democratic spellbinders, is urged as necessitating a change; only the dangerous personality of Mr. Roosevelt, with which is contrasted the judicial calmness and repose of Mr. Parker. If Mr. Roosevelt is such a restless and disquieting spirit as Mr. Smith charges it is strange that he has not communicated the least symptom of uneasiness to the country and to the nation. We find that the people pursue their several business interests and vocations with the same feeling of assurance that prevailed under Mr. McKinley's administration.

What the Democrats Want.

[From the Hornellsville Times.]

There is a growing impression that a silver standard, thinly plated with gold, is about what the Democratic party is looking for.

INVESTMENTS IN THE PHILIPPINES.

Plans For Improving and Safeguarding Opportunities.

Not until July, 1902, did the Philippine commission have authority to grant franchises, but even that is so limited as to discourage investment of capital. False reports of disorder have increased capital's natural timidity, while fear of the outcome of the presidential election, that might make uncertain the permanency of our sovereignty and destroy existing peace, at present prevents investment in railroad construction, so necessary for insular development, and in other beneficial enterprises. Except for the small extensions that the only road, built under Spain by English capital, which runs from Manila to Dagupan, has been authorized to make, there has been no construction of railroads. The Philippine commission has appreciated that transportation in the islands must be by rail and water and has planned a comprehensive system of railroads to be operated by steam or electricity. There is no authority for its construction by the civil government, and that is regarded as undesirable. Private construction is wanted, but a government guarantee is needed. Congress has been asked to authorize the insular authorities to guarantee a return of not more than 5 per cent on the actual capital invested in railroads, the total annual obligation of the islands not to exceed $1,500,000. Last spring the house passed a bill for that purpose, carefully guarding against fraud, but the opposition of the minority in the senate, which would hamper insular development through the fear that the investment of American capital will cause our longer control of the islands, prevented its enactment. That measure will, however, be passed next session.

ALBERT HALSTEAD.

STIRRING UP FILIPINOS.

Effect of Loose Talk of Independence Bad, Says Governor Wright.

[Washington dispatch to New York Tribune.]

The president has received a letter from General Luke E. Wright, governor of the Philippines, which is the occasion of some anxiety to those who have the best interests of the islands at heart, because it demonstrates that once more Democratic partisanship is having its effect in disturbing the peaceful conditions in the archipelago and retarding the work of the administration in preparing the Filipinos for the responsibilities of self government.

It appears that the loose arguments and almost thoughtless denunciations of the more virulent Democratic spellbinders are being transmitted to the Philippines, and are, as General Wright relates, making more difficult than would otherwise be the case the task imposed on the American officials in the Philippines. General Wright's letter is, in part, as follows:

"The continued discussion as to the capacity of the Filipino for self government and his immediate or ultimate independence is having its effect here and makes our task more difficult than it would otherwise be. The less a man is equipped with intelligence and those qualities which make for good citizenship the more easily can he be persuaded that he is the possessor of all these qualities. This people have their full share of ambition and vanity, and they also have their full share of reckless, half formed characters who are ready for intrigue in any direction which promises them profit or power. It is this class which has largely given force and direction to the Aglipayan movement and has recruited its ranks from the ignorant and dangerous elements.

"In this general connection I may say to you, as a matter of information, that the agitation in the United States for Filipino independence and the spoken and written utterances of prominent men there who are urging it are all brought here and published in the native newspapers and are being made the text for editorials insisting that the Filipino people are now ready to become an independent nation. The effect of all this is distinctly injurious Its tendency is to restore the influence of the old insurrection leaders and to make them active in preaching the old propaganda. This in turn has the effect of demoralizing and weakening the more conservative and thoughtful Filipinos, who fear that if they speak out as they really think they would be considered the enemies of their people and lose prestige with them. The more prominent and best educated Filipinos, who naturally have their ambitions, are inclined to join in the general cry."

"Tinkering, Patching, Propping."

[From the New York Mail.]

There is no spinal cord to the judge's political creed, and the whole effect of his letter is that of tinkering, patching and propping up a position which even yet is not fully vertebrate. The letter is another postscript. It gives us the judge's second and in many respects divergent thought on the matters to which he committed himself in his speech of acceptance.

A TRUE AMERICAN TYPE.

Theodore Roosevelt's Estimates of the Farmer Truthfully Given.

It remains true now, as it always has been, that in the last resort the country districts are those in which we are surest to find the old American spirit, the old American habits of thought and ways of living. Conditions have changed in the country far less than they have changed in the cities, and in consequence there has been little breaking away from the methods of life which have produced the great majority of the leaders of the republic in the past. Almost all of our great presidents have been brought up in the country, and most of them worked hard on the farms in their youth and got their early mental training in the healthy democracy of farm life.—Roosevelt at Bangor, Me., Aug. 27, 1902.

The countryman, the man on the farm, more than any other of our citizens today, is called upon continually to exercise the qualities which we like to think of as typical of the United States throughout its history, the qualities of rugged independence, masterful resolution and individual energy and resourcefulness. He works hard—for which no man is to be pitied—and often he lives hard—which may not be pleasant—but his life is passed in healthy surroundings, surroundings which tend to develop a fine type of citizenship. In the country, moreover, the conditions are fortunately such as to allow a closer touch between man and man than too often we find to be the case in the city. Men feel more vividly the underlying sense of brotherhood, of community of interest.—Bangor, Me., Aug. 27, 1902.

The man who tills his own farm, whether on the prairie or in the woodland, the man who grows what we eat and the raw material which is worked up into what we wear, still exists more nearly under the conditions which obtained when the "embattled farmers" of '76 made this country a nation than of any others of our people.—Roosevelt at Sioux Falls, S. D., April 6, 1903.

The true welfare of the nation is indissolubly bound up with the welfare of the farmer and the wageworker, of the man who tills the soil and the mechanic, the handicraftsman, the laborer. If we can insure the prosperity of these two classes we need not trouble ourselves about the prosperity of the rest, for that will follow as a matter of course.—Roosevelt at Opening of the Pan-American Exposition, May 20, 1901.

The success of the capitalist, and especially of the bankers, is conditioned upon the prosperity of both workingman and farmer.—"The Law of Civilization and Decay, American Ideals," Page 367.

In a country like ours it is fundamentally true that the well being of the tiller of the soil and the wageworker is the well being of the state.—Roosevelt, Sioux Falls, S. D., April 6, 1903.

Only Juggling.

[From the New York Sun.]

Judge Parker asserts that "a free people cannot withhold freedom from another people and themselves be free." This is a fine, metallic, epigrammatic sound. What is the sense of it?

It is only a play of words, only a juggling with an undefined meaning of "free" and "freedom."

In the sense of full political and civil rights the Indians have not been free. Alaska is not free. The negroes in most southern states are not free.

To tell the truth, this sentence in Judge Parker's letter is great nonsense. It must have been stuck in at the solicitation of some mugwump sentimentalist who believes that the United States is going to lose its liberties because the Moros have not yet been taken by the neck and made to adopt and appreciate jury trial and because the head hunters are not yet subject to the poll tax.

A Second Hague Conference.

[From the New York Evening Post, Parker.]

In acceding to the request of the interparliamentary union that he invite the nations to a second Hague conference President Roosevelt has taken a step worthy of all praise. It may be impossible to reassemble the peace congress soon. Russia and Japan could scarcely send representatives at present, and the unsettled questions may not be disposed of even when the delegates do find themselves at The Hague, but the president has, at any rate, shown his hearty good will and by so much officially committed the United States to disapproval of war.

The "Big Stick" Necessary.

[From the Louisville Herald.]

The American people have always approved the "big stick" when sanely and safely used. It was so used when Washington drove the British from our soil, when Jackson drove the English legions from New Orleans, when Zachary Taylor and Scott beat the Mexicans, when Grant overcame the forces of disunion and when McKinley drove the Spaniards from American soil. The "big stick" is necessary to uphold the flag.

LEGAL NOTICES.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage upon real property situated within the state of New York, whereby the power to sell has become operative, notice is hereby given that said mortgage, which is dated the 22d day of February, 1889, and is recorded in the office of the Clerk of the County of Oswego, at Oswego, N. Y., on the 23d day of February, 1889, at 9:20 o'clock a. m., in Liber 158 of mortgages at page 422, was given by John E. Cain and Hattie Cain, his wife, mortgagors to Orlando Howell, mortgagee, and the name of each assignee of said mortgage is as follows: 1st assignee, Fred O. Howell, 2d assignee, Maria A. Howell.

The sum claimed to be due upon the said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is sixteen hundred seventy-five dollars and forty-one cents, which is the whole amount secured by said mortgage.

The following is a description of the mortgaged property, contained in the said mortgage:

"All That Tract or Parcel of Land, situate in the Town of Granby, County of Oswego and State of New York, and being on Lot No. 72 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is described as subdivision Number One of said Lot according to Peter Schenck's map, made from his survey & dated Sept. 26, 1839, and is bounded on the N. & W. by the N. & W lines of said lot; on the S., by the State Road running E. & W. through said lot & on the East by Subdivision No. 2 containing 19 acres of land more or less.

"Also all that certain tract or parcel of land situate in the said Town of Granby, N. Y. & being a part of the State's 100 acres of land on lot No. 62 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is bounded as follows: Beginning at the S. E. Corner of said Lot 62 and running West 21 chains & 62 links; thence N. 11 chains & 56 links; thence E 21 chains & 62 links to the east line of said Lot, thence S. 11 chains & 56 links, to the place of beginning. Containing twenty-five acres of land, more or less.

"Also all that certain other tract or parcel of land, situate in the Town of Granby, N. Y., and being a part of Lot 71 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby) is bounded as follows: Beginning in the East line of said Lot in the center of the Fulton & Hannibal Plank Road (so called); thence Northerly along the E. line of said lot 71 about 25 rods & 6 links to a stone wall intersecting said line of Lot 71 from the East; thence Westerly in a direct line with the center of said stone wall One Hundred four & one-half (104½) feet to a stone set in the Earth indicating said corner; thence Southerly parallel with the East line to the center of said highway; thence Easterly along said Highway to the place of beginning. Containing about one acre of land."

Pursuant to the power of sale contained therein, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the said mortgaged property, or a part thereof, at public auction, at the law offices of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton County of Oswego, New York, on the 29th day of October, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day.

Dated and subscribed at Fulton, N. Y., this 3d day of August, 1904.

Rapid Spread of Plants.

It is marvelous how rapidly some plants will spread themselves over wide stretches of land. The writer was struck with the way in which the yellow charlock took possession of the line when the Meon Valley railway was being made. The very next spring after the embankments were thrown up their sides were clothed with this rampant and conspicuous crucifier. A line of yellow across the country marked in many places the course of the railway. Poppies, too, for some unknown reason, will occasionally appear in strange and wonderful profusion. The striking instance related by Lord Macaulay may be quoted by way of illustration. After the battle of Landen the ground, he tells us, "during many months was strewn with skulls and bones of men and horses and with fragments of hats and shoes, saddles and holsters. The next summer the soil, fertilized by 20,000 corpses, broke forth into millions of poppies. The traveler who, on the road from St. Tron to Tirlemont, saw that vast sheet of rich scarlet spreading from Landen to Neerwinden could hardly help fancying that the figurative prediction of the Hebrew prophet was literally accomplished—that the earth was disclosing her blood and refusing to cover the stain."—Longman's Magazine.

THE price of bread has gone up in England, owing to the belief that there is a shortage in the world's wheat crop. England will be forced to take all the surplus food stuffs the United States can spare, and pay for it, too, in gold. This will bring additional prosperity to the agriculturists of America, and will rapidly extinguish any deficit there may be in the treasury. For the Americans are lib ral buyers in the foreign markets, and imports will increase hand in hand with exports.

AN effort will be made during the coming session of Congress for the establishment of a department of Mining and Metallurgy. By reason of its great influence upon all other resources and industries and the advancement of the country, many men of influence think mining should receive equal consideration with agriculture and other pur suits. Certain it is that if it is worth while to keep a weather bureau running, the Government might recognize an important industry like mining.

A LEADER WHO FOLLOWS.

Parker a Month Behind In His Juggling With Figures.

Judge Parker is getting a reputation as "a leader who follows." He addressed the editors who called on him the other day. On that particular day the New York World called on him to be "a leader who leads."

Judge Parker said to the editors:

> Instead of a surplus in the annual receipts of about $80,000,000, which the present executive found on assuming control, there is now a deficit to be found of $42,000,000.

Judge Parker was a follower by a month in this instance, and he followed with an argument already exploded. The New York World in its issue of July 30 last said:

> You and the congress of your party have converted a surplus of $80,000,000 in 1900 into a deficit of more than $40,000,000 for the year just closed.

The judge had learned his lesson well, but his statement was a juggle, unworthy of a man who has been chief judge of the court of appeals in this state.

The surplus in 1900 was $79,527,060. The deficit in 1904 was $41,770,572. The apparent deficit in 1904 was caused entirely by the payment of $50,000,000 for the right of way of the isthmian canal. But for this payment there would have been a surplus in 1904 of $8,229,428. The purchase of the Panama right of way should not be treated as a current expenditure. The entire Panama project involves an expenditure of $180,000,000. The actual construction of the canal, estimated to cost $130,000,000, is to be met by the sale of bonds, and the cost of the right of way would have been met in the same manner but for the fact that there was in the treasury of the United States a large accumulated surplus. Under the Spooner law, therefore, congress provided that the right of way should be paid out of surplus and the construction of the canal provided for by a bond issue.

Excluding, therefore, the Panama item from the expenditures of 1904 the surplus shows a reduction from $79,000,000 in 1900 to $8,000,000 in 1904, but this reduction is more than accounted for by the reduction in taxation which took place in the meantime. The act of March 2, 1901, reduced internal revenue taxation by an amount estimated at $42,000,000 per annum. The act of April 12, 1902, further reduced internal revenue taxation by an amount estimated at $63,000,000 per annum. By abolishing taxes, therefore, amounting in the aggregate to $105,000,000 per annum, the surplus was reduced about $71,000,000 per annum.

Better Than Pills.

The question has been asked—In what way are Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets superior to the ordinary cathartic and liver pills? Our answer is—They are easier and more pleasant to take and their effect is so gentle and so agreeable that one hardly realizes that it is produced by a medi cine. Then they not only move the bowels but improve the appetite and aid the digestion. For sale at 25 cents per bottle by H. C. Geisler.

The Republican party can be trusted to enact such financial and tariff legislation as shall be required in the future. The Democratic party can't.

That speech of the temporary chairman of the Democratic state convention was merely Hornblowing.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol cures indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does not only cure indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy cures all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Salt Lake's Water.

"When once you understand the art of bathing in the great Salt lake of Utah it is the finest diversion on earth, but it is not apt to result pleasantly to the man who does not heed the advice of the experienced," said a citizen of Salt Lake City. "At any other bathing resort in the world, the swimmer can play in the waves, dive and disport himself as he pleases, but not so in this wonderful sheet of water in the west and all on account of its extraordinary saline qualities. So heavily is it charged with brine that unless the bather protects his eyes, nose and ears from liquid contact he will receive such stinging punishment as will make him bitterly regret having entered the water. To get even a little of it in the mouth is cause for grief. But when he knows enough to protect himself in sensitive places he will admit that nowhere in the world is the bathing so fine or so stimulating in its effects."—Washington Post.

The English Flag.

For over 500 years the red cross on a white field has been the emblem of England, and when in fullness of time the emblems of the neighboring kingdoms of Scotland and Ireland were joined with it the union flag came into being. But for nearly 200 years the union flag bore upon it two crosses only, the red cross of England and the white cross saltire of Scotland, "according to a forme made by our heralds," as King James said in his proclamation. The white saltire of Scotland was simply surmounted by the red cross of England, but this latter had to be "fimbriated" bordered—that is, with a narrow white edge, owing to the strict heraldic law that color can not be placed upon color nor metal upon metal.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

No one who is acquainted with its good qualities can be surprised at the great popularity of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It not only cures colds and grip effectually and permanently, but prevents these diseases from resulting in pneumonia. It is also a certain cure for croup. Whooping cough is not dangerous when this remedy is given. It contains no opium nor other harmless substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. It is also pleasant to take. When all of these facts are taken into consideration it is not surprising that people in foreign lands, as well as at home, esteem this remedy very highly and very few are willing to take any other after having once used it. For sale by H. C. Geisler.

A Blown Out Candle.

The only reason, it seems, that we don't die when we are in a room where a candle is blown out is that we don't get enough of the deadly composition that is eliminated from the burning wick, of which carbureted hydrogen, carbonic oxide and acroleine are some of the component parts. A medical journal tells of a company of jokers who tried a pleasantry on a boy sleeping in one corner of their room. They held to the boy's nose the smoke of a blown out candle. In a little while the boy fell into short breathing, trembling and cramps and died in three days.

Killing a Robin.

There are persons at the present day —and not all old women either—who believe that killing a robin will bring bad luck. According to ancient belief the stormcloud was a huge bird. The Arabians represented his wings as measuring 10,000 fathoms. This bird lived on worms, the latter being the streaks of lightning accompanying storms. The Germans remodeled the fiction by creating the god Thor, whose bird was the robin. Consequently to kill a robin first meant death by lightning, then bad luck.

If troubled with a weak digestion, try Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They will do you good. For sale by H. C. Geisler.

Judge Parker wrote Mr. Milburn that he is in favor of telling the Filipinos now that the American flag shall be hauled down in the Philippines. Does he think that the forces of civilization will work better under some other flag than the stars and stripes? Does he think the cause of human liberty will be advanced better under some other flag? There are men in this country who have shed their blood because they thought otherwise.

The Omnivorous Korean.

The Korean is omnivorous. Birds of the air, beasts of the field and fish from the sea—nothing comes amiss to his palate. Dog meat is in great request at certain seasons. Pork and beef with the blood undrained from the carcass, fowls and game—birds cooked with the lights, head and claws intact—fish sun dried and highly malodorous—all are acceptable to him. Cooking is not always necessary. A species of small fish is preferred raw, dipped into some piquant sauce. Other dainties are dried seaweed, shrimps, vermicelli, pine seeds, lily buds and all vegetables and cereals. The excesses make the Korean martyrs of indigestion.

A Mean Husband.

"I think old Kreezus has the queerest way of teasing his wife I ever heard of."

"I thought he was fond of her."

"He is, but he likes to get a joke on her. You know she is sensitive about her age. Well, he has let everybody know that when they were married he gave her a magnificent necklace of diamonds, each diamond representing a year of her age, and he adds one to the string every time she has a birthday. Imagine how the poor woman is torn between her desire to display the necklace and the fear that when she wears it everybody will be counting the diamonds."

A Very Remarkable Remedy.

"It is with a great deal of pleasure and satisfaction that I recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Druggist A. W. Sawtelle, of Hartford, Conn. "Recently a gentleman came into my store so overcome with colic pains that he sank at once to the floor. I gave him a dose of this remedy which helped him. I repeated the dose and in fifteen minutes he left my store smilingly informing me that he felt as well as ever." For sale by H. C. Geisler.

St. Andrew Undershaft.

In Leadenhall street, London, there is a church bearing the strange name of St. Andrew Undershaft, a name that would not be intelligible to any one without a knowledge of the history of the locality. It seems that some 400 years ago every May day a high shaft or pole was set up opposite the south door of St. Andrew's and adorned with flowers. So tall was the pole it was actually higher than the church steeple, which was therefore literally under the shaft. Now, there being several churches dedicated to St. Andrew, this one was further described as Undershaft to prevent it from being mistaken for any of the others. The old May pole having been denounced as an idol by an overzealous curate in the reign of the boy king, the inhabitants of the district sawed it in pieces for firewood. Thus is it that in the name of a still existing church is preserved an interesting bit of bygone history which otherwise would probably have passed away forever.

Cause of Lockjaw.

Lockjaw, or tetanus, is caused by a bacillus or germ which exists plentifully in street dirt. It is inactive so long as exposed to the air, but when carried beneath the skin, as in the wounds caused by percussion caps or by rusty nails, and when the air is excluded, the germ is roused to activity and produces the most virulent poison known. These germs may be destroyed and all danger of lockjaw avoided by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely as soon as the injury is received. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and causes such injuries to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. It is for sale by H. C. Geisler.

Early Rising.

"To be forced to get up early," says a physician, "grinds the soul, curdles the blood, swells the spleen, destroys all good intentions and disturbs all day the mental activities. Criminals are always recruited from the early rising class."—London Chronicle.

Proper Beginning.

Ascum—I hear your son is going in for a literary career? Mrs. Dreamer—Yes. He started in this very morning. Ascum—Indeed! What has he done? Mrs. Dreamer—He's sat for his photograph in two poses, one where he's reading a book and another with his brow resting on his hand.—Philadelphia Press.

Forgetful.

Jones—What have you got that string around your finger for? Brown—My wife put it on so that I would remember something. I forgot what it was. I'm keeping it on now to remind me to ask her what it was when I get home this evening.—Boston Transcript.

Many Mothers of a Like Opinion.

Mrs. Pilmer, of Cordova, Iowa, says, "One of my children was subject to croup of a severe type, and the giving of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy promptly, always brought relief Many mothers in this neighborhood think the same as I do about this remedy and want no other kind for their children." For sale by H. C. Geisler.

The Stomach's Lining.

How are children so often able without injury to swallow such sharp things as pins, needles, tacks and bits of glass? The secret as disclosed by a scientist of Vienna lies in the fact that, when a pointed or sharp edged body comes into contact with the lining of the stomach or intestine, the part touched contracts and puckers so as to thicken itself in that place. At the same time it withdraws itself in such a manner as to form a little pocket and gradually twists the object around so as to turn the edge or point away, pushing the thing along.

Pill Pleasure.

If you ever took De Witt's Little Early Risers for billiousness or constipation you know what pill pleasure is. These famous little pills cleanse the liver and rid the system of all bile without producing unpleasant effects. They do not gripe, sicken or weaken, but pleasantly give tone and strength to the tissues and organs of the stomach, liver and bowels. Sold by H. C. Geisler and G. T. Boyington.

Touchiness.

There is a disease called "touchiness," a disease which, in spite of its innocent name, is one of the gravest sources of restlessness in the world. Touchiness, when it becomes chronic is a morbid condition of the inward disposition. It is self love inflamed to the acute point. The cure is to shift the yoke to some other place; to let men and things touch us through some new and perhaps as yet unused part of our nature; to become meek and lowly in heart while the old nature is becoming numb from want of use.—Exchange.

Can You Eat?

J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Criesman, Texas, says, "I could not eat because of a weak stomach. I lost all strength and ran down in weight. All that money could do was done, but all hope of recovery vanished. Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefitted me, and after taking four bottles, I am fully restored to my usual strength, weight and health." Kodol Despepsia Cure digests what you eat and cures. Sold by H. C. Geisler and G. T. Boyington.

Spencer's Love Affair.

Herbert Spencer never married. When he was twenty years old he had something like a tender affair, and he tells about it in his autobiography. The young lady's affections had already been placed elsewhere, and she was only playing with the budding philosopher. One day her "young man" called, and they all went out for a walk. Spencer says: "She, taking his arm, looked over her shoulder smilingly and rather mischievously to see what effect was produced on me, there being an evident suspicion that I should not be pleased. The revelation was not agreeable to me, but still it did not give me a shock of a serious kind."

One of Many.

H. A. Tisdale, of Summerton, S. C., suffered for twenty years with the Piles. Specialists were employed and many remedies used, but relief and permanent good was found only in the use of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. This is only one of many, many cures that have been effected by this wonderful remedy. In buying Witch Hazel Salve it is only necessary to see that you get the genuine DeWitt's, made by E. C. DeWitt & Co., in Chicago, and a cure is certain. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cures all kinds of piles, cuts, burns, bruises, eczema, tetter, ring-worms, skin diseases, etc. Sold by H. C. Geisler and G. T. Boyington.

He Was Willing.

"I don't want to speak to you again about your reckless expenditure of money," said the stern parent.

"All right, dad," replied the incorrigible youth. "Hereafter it will be up to you to hand out the coin and say nothing."—Kennebec (Me.) Journal.

Good For Children.

The pleasant to take and harmless One Minute Cough Cure gives instant relief in all cases of Cough, Croup and La Grippe because it does not pass immediately into the stomach, but takes effect right at the seat of the trouble. It draws out the inflammation, heals and soothes and cures permanently by enabling the lungs to contribute pure life-giving and life-sustaining oxygen to the blood and tissues. Sold by H. C. Giesler and G. T. Boyington.

A Merger.

POPULAR FREE EXCURSIONS
ON ALL RAILROADS TO SYRACUSE

Thursday, Friday and Saturday, October 6, 7 and 8.

All persons coming from Fulton or intermediate points, purchasing goods to the amount of ten dollars ($10) or more on Thursday, Friday or Saturday of this week will have their rail-road fare (both ways) refunded upon presentation of their rail-road ticket at the transfer desk.

People living beyond Fulton will have their railroad fare both ways refunded up to a distance of 35 miles.

In order to save the time and trouble of paying for each purchase separately please ask for a transfer card when you make your first purchase. This will enable you to find and pay for all your purchases together at the Transfer Desk, where also you will receive your railroad fare both ways upon presentation of your railroad ticket.

The number of out-of-town people who took advantage of our free excursion offer during State Fair week was largely in excess of our most sanguine expectations.

We made that offer as an inducement to people to come here and get acquainted with this store, for we were confident that, when once they had experienced the comfort and convenience, the economy and the many other advantages of shopping here, they would come back just as our Syracuse customers do.

That expectation has been verified; and we have had hundreds of requests from new customers in all parts of Central and Northern New York to renew our free excursion offer

We have decided to do so and we make the offer for the last three days of the present week. In order to make it double worth your while to come and trade with us, we have selected some of the choicest and most seasonable merchandise in stock and marked it at prices far below its actual worth. You save big money on your purchases and it costs you nothing to come here and take advantage of these saving opportunities.

MARRIED.

Wednesday afternoon at the church of the Immaculate Conception occurred the marriage of Miss Marie Conley and Mr. Frederick Scanlon. The Rev. P. J. Kearney was the officiating clergyman. The bride was becomingly attired in a white eolian cloth gown and she carried brides' roses. Her bridesmaid was Miss Anna Mullin, who wore a blue cloth gown. Little Miss Helen Mullen acted as flower girl. Mr Daniel Westcott was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Scanlon will reside in this city.

Titusville (Pa.) Herald, Sept. 30: Mr. and Mrs. Clarence L. Landas were notified by telegraph yesterday of the marriage of Miss Adelaide Landas, formerly of Fulton, N. Y., to G. W. Granger. The ceremony was performed in Buffalo yesterday. The bride is a sister of Mr. Landas and made her home here for the greater part of her life. She is an expert jeweler and engraver and since leaving Titusville has been engaged in that work. Mr. Granger was formerly a resident of Titusvi le. He is the son of Mrs. L S. Clark. Womans Exchange.

The Womans Exchange at 161 S. Second St., is now open and if the people of this city support it as well as is done in other cities it will prove of great benefit to many a needy woman.

One of the many virtues of the Woman's Exchange will be its great help to gentlewomen—those who need assistance but who are not able to go into the world as wage-earners on account of either poor health or having a family dependent upon them for certain household duties. In this way they may turn their hand to whatever they do the best—needlework, fancywork, &c., The Exchange will dispose of their work for them. They only have to pay $1 a year to become members of the Exchange and they can take as much of their product to the Exchange as they like.

All kinds of fancy-work, needlework is for sale and plain sewing and any special thing will be done by order. As the work enlarges the Exchange will be broadened out and more added as the demand increases.

FAILURE OF AN IGNOBLE CAUSE.

The candidacy of the Hon. Merrick Stowell for County Judge is progressing as favorably as even his most ardent admirers might wish. Each day strengthens his cause, and even the alleged Independent Judiciary League, which started out, fierce as a lion to do him or die, has about made up its mind to die. The toughest proposition these alleged reformers ever tackled has been the attempted unseating of Judge Stowell in the confidence and esteem of his party. If he is one of his party's leaders in this county, his party has made him so, and his party will see to it that the last favor it will be able to grant him personally is granted by so flattering a majority that there will be no doubt in any mind as to the sincerity of its belief in him.

The Independent Judiciary League had its birth in this city, although Mr. Bulger, its progenitor, resides in Oswego. It was so apparent a trick to cut down the Republican majority in State and nation that it aroused every active member of the party, and many whose fealty had been rather questioned, rallied to the call to arms in defence of party and principle.

Judge Stowell was the apparent issue, but the real one was the head of the State and national tickets, and honor is due the staunch Republicans in this city who grasped the situation, and by their pledges of unqualified support and unshaken faith in Judge Stowell, nipped the independent movement in the bud. It was a tender plant, unable to withstand daylight or opposition, and it has died a premature death from the solar-plexus blow it received in the city of its nativity.

Mr. Bulger's plan might have worked to better advantage in a less intelligent community, but Oswego County voters are perfectly competent to decide for themselves wherein they are best served, and in Judge Stowell they repose all trust. Not once in the years of service to his party has he betrayed a trust; not once has he violated a principle; not once has any sustained charge against his public, private or judicial character been made, and since the motives of the men who originated the independent movement are fathomed, the opposition to him is one of [illegible]

In a letter to Editor Bradt of the Observer, Mr. Pitts, the Prohibition candidate for County Judge, states that Mr. Bulger told him last June, that "After carefully shaping things so that neither Mr. Piper nor myself (Pitts) can win, Judge Stowell has nothing to fear. * * The Democratic leaders are pushing Piper's boom as hard as possible, not to elect him, but to aid Parker and Davis, and they expect to achieve that result by hoodwinking the Republicans and Democrats, and also A. P. Bradt and the Observer, into supporting the Democratic ticket, hoping that the enthusiasm thereby engendered, while not hurting Stowell, will disrupt the Prohibition and Republican parties to some extent, and that many of the Prohibition people and Republicans will do as they did in the Rogers fight, vote the straight Democratic ticket to get Piper, not daring to split.

"Remember, Bradt, that Fulton is not Oswego county; there are, in addition, 31 towns and another city of 5,000 voters, where the Piper spirit is nil. Don't let your paper hurt our ticket by making a seeming split, which will make our people by the ears.

"The Democrats are simply using the Independent movement as a catspaw to help Parker and Davis, at the expense of us and our party, they are not sincere in this matter, as they were in the Rogers matter, and their treachery has made it impossible to elect Piper, impossible to endorse him, and I hope that Bradt and the Observer will not be fooled into aiding the Democratic ticket, as that is absolutely all the good you can do."

Any Republican who advocates the splitting of tickets this Presidential year is a traitor to his party and seeks its defeat.

After an exhaustive survey of all that the opposition has charged against Judge Stowell, the most vital, and to them the most damaging and dangerous one, is that he is a Republican and the choice of a majority for re-election to the high office of county judge.

When the ballots are counted on election night it will be found that the Independent Judiciary League has been relegated to oblivion and another ignoble and unsuccessful effort will be registered against them.

Many farmers who did not in the least understand the purport of the Independent petition presented them for their signature, have since learned the truth and have asked that their names be taken from the document. See to it that you understand thoroughly the proposition and have your name taken off at once if you are not in perfect sympathy with the movement.

FRANK W. HIGGIN'S PLEDGE

"The nomination at Saratoga came to me without solicitation and without pledge to any man or organization as to my future actions if elected Governor.

"I can, therefore, safely promise the people of the State that, if elected, I shall be Governor of the whole people, and shall devote my time and best efforts to the discharge of the duties of the office.

"I believe it to be the duty of the executive of a State to hold to strict accountability every officer of the State government, and I shall not be deterred by political or other considerations from a full and conscientious discharge of such duty.

"It shall be my aim to administer the affairs of the commonwealth in such a manner as shall secure the cleanest and best results, hewing always to the line, that the interests of all the people, whose servant I would be, are at all times conserved.

"Suggestions will be welcome, dictation repelled and in the end my individual judgment alone must determine my official actions." — From the speech of Frank W. Higgins accepting the nomination for Governor of New York State on the Republican ticket. (See pages 3 and 6.)

CITY POLITICS

Preliminary Skirmish Among Republicans Resulting in a Happy Termination.

There were many disquieting rumors in the local political field last week and a conference was held by F. J. Towse's friends, who were desirous of placing him in nomination for mayor of this city. The situation was viewed with alarm by a majority of the Republicans, [illegible] be elected and who could only see victory in the nomination of Mr. George W. Brooker of the Second Ward.

A conference was held in the Citizen's Club by leading Republicans on Saturday evening, and it was thought advisable to await the return of the Hon. T. D. Lewis from St. Louis on Monday morning before any definite action was taken.

On Monday morning there was an assemblage of prominent Republicans in the court room of the City Hall. Attorney Claude E. Guile was selected as chairman and W. E. Hughes became secretary.

Mr. George Chauncey, in stating the purpose of the gathering, said that it had been the history of political organizations in Fulton that after office had been held for two or three years and improvements had been inaugurated by the party in power, a revulsion of feeling occurred and the electors desired a change. He thought at this time that all factional differences among R publicans should be healed and that a loyal and hearty support be given to the nominees on the county, State and national tickets. A candidate for mayor of the city should be selected who would poll the full strength of the Republican vote. For this reason an invitation had been extended to the men who had previously opposed some of the nominees, in the hope that the breach might be healed and the party achieve a signal victory this Fall. Mr. Chauncey regretted the absence at the conference of those who had been specially invited.

Attorney Guile agreed with Mr. Chauncey that the contention would injure the State and national tickets, and the sooner harmony prevailed the better. He said he understood the First Ward was in favor of Mr. F. J. Towse for mayor.

Hon. T. D. Lewis said that in a recent conversation with Mr. W. F Hill of the First Ward, Mr. Hill had expressed a preference for Mr. Brooker. Mr. Towse was his second choice.

Mr. Chauncey stated that when Mr. Towse's name was mentioned many of the Republicans asserted that they would not vote for him because he had voted against Mr. Brooker last Fall. He (Chauncey) was most anxious for the safety of the Republican nominees, and he believed that to be the paramount idea in the minds of all.

Mr. Guile said that if Mr. Brooker would be a candidate he should support him. He had attended a conference on Saturday evening and found that with two exceptions all favored Mr. Brooker's candidacy.

Dr. H. L. Lake stated that Mr. Brooker was averse to accepting the nomination unless he could have the united support of all factions.

Mr. Thomas Hunter stated that if the Board of Public Works was the [illegible] from president to superintendent.

Mr. Lewis was confident in the belief that the faction which had opposed Mr. Brooker last year would be active in his support this Fall, because of the danger that might be incurred to the State and national tickets. He paid a fitting tribute to President Roosevelt and the Hon. Frank W. Higgins, whom he described as an exemplary and most fitting candidate for the position of chief executive of the Empire State.

It was Mr. Chauncey's judgment that some action should be taken to secure the co-operation of the opposition, and Messrs. Thomas Hunter and T. D. Lewis were made a committee for this purpose.

As it appeared to be the unanimous desire of those present to accord Mr. Brooker the nomination, Chairman Guile asked what was the further pleasure of the meeting.

Mr. B. W. Bennett asked that a petition be signed by all present tendering Mr. Brooker the nomination.

This was promptly done and the conference adjourned until 4 o'clock.

At 4 o'clock the conference re-assembled and Mr. Hunter stated that he had interviewed the gentlemen suggested; that they had withdrawn opposition and signed Mr. Brooker's petition.

Mr. Hinsdale said that he met Mr. Brooker at noon and was told by that if the members of the Board of Public Works would comply with Mr. Thomas Hunter's decision as expressed at the morning conference, he would accept the nomination.

Mr. Hunter stated that one-third of the money expended on sidewalk improvements had been spent on the west side. He had been deeply interested in the proposed sewerage system for the west side. Bids had been received and the contract was ready to be let.

A motion presented by Mr. T. D. Lewis was adopted to the effect that it was the sense of the Republicans of Fulton, assembled in conference, that Mr Brooker was the strongest candidate for the mayoralty nomination and that delegates from the several wards to the city convention be instructed for him.

G. W. BROOKER NOMINATED

The Republican City Convention met at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the City Hall and Mr. George W. Brooker of the Second Ward became the unanimous choice of the delegates for Mayor, to fill the unexpired term.

Dr. H. L. Lake called the convention to order and Attorney Arvin Rice became temporary chairman.

Messrs. George B. Fairman and Verner W. Shattuck became secretaries, and Messrs. A. A. Carr and E. P. Cole, tellers.

After the officers were sworn in by Mr. W. P. Hillick, on motion of Mr. J. W. Rigley the temporary organization became permanent.

The call for the convention was read and the following delegates responded to their names:

First ward—V. W. Shattuck, F. Bache, B. A. Loveless, F. W. Whittle, Edward Connelly.

Second ward—F. J. Switzer, J. W. Rigley, George R. Simons, George B. Fairman, Albert Brown.

Third ward—C. R. Bennett, C. E. Guile, Adelbert Ferguson, A. A. Carr, Irving Keller.

Fourth ward—Thomas Hunter, S. B. Mead, C. C. Benedict, Thomas Marvin, Arvin Rice.

Fifth ward—E. P. Cole, N. H. Gilbert, W. E. Hughes, Captain F. C. Mosher, F. M. Cornell.

Sixth ward—H. P. Allen, William P. Hillick, Percy Waugh, Charles Johnson, William Church.

On motion of Mr. Thomas Hunter the convention proceeded to nominate a candidate for mayor.

Mr. F. J. Switzer of the Second Ward said that it afforded him great pleasure to place in nomination a gentleman who was well fitted to discharge the duties of the office—one who would be most attentive to the interests of all classes. He held a most important and lucrative position, and if he were elected would bring to the office an administrative ability of rare excellence. He therefore wished to present the name of Mr. George W. Brooker, a candidate of the united Republican party of the city of Fulton.

Surrogate S. B. Mead reminded Republicans that they were in the midst of a great campaign, and while it might make little difference to the nation at large who was mayor of Fulton, it was most imperative that all factional differences be buried and a loyal and hearty support be given to the nominees [illegible] the State. He hoped the [illegible] of sight this Fall.

The secretary was instructed to cast one ballot for Mr. Brooker, and he became the unanimous choice of the convention.

Mr. Brooker was not present, having been prevented from attending by business reasons, but the following letter was presented by Mr. George Simons:

Mr. Chairman and Fellow Citizens:

I accept with much pleasure the high honor you have conferred upon me, and have a keen appreciation of its importance. If I am elected, I promise you a clean-cut, economical and business administration in every department, having in mind at all times the best interests of the city and its taxpayers.

I am convinced that an administration to be economically satisfactory should be officered by men thoroughly in harmony with the executive, and to this end I shall make such changes in the various departments as I believe will meet with your approval.

Very truly yours,

G. W. Brooker.

On motion of Attorney Guile, a committee was appointed, composed of Messrs. S. B. Mead, J. W. Rigley and Verner W. Shattuck, to fill any vacancy that might occur on the ticket, and the convention adjourned.

Mr. Carnagie's Gift of $15,000.

At a meeting of the Library trustees and solicitors held on Friday evening, it was found that practically sufficient money had been contributed to purchase the Willis Nelson property in First street on which is located the stone house, but it was deemed desirable to continue the soliciting until $500 more be secured with which to purchase furnishings for the Library. Several people have announced their intention of subscribing money who have not yet done so, and others have not yet been solicited. Either leave contributions this week with Mrs. Emens at the Library, one of the trustees or the solicitor for the district.

Mr. Carnagie's representative in New York City has written the Library trustees that as soon as the site has been purchased, all conditions have been complied with and the money will be forthcoming with which to erect the building. This letter makes secure that the Library building which will be valued at $15,000, will be erected.

It is the intention of the Library trustees to receive plans for the building, which will be carefully considered during the next two or three months, after which a contract will be made for the carrying out of the plan most desirable for Fulton. Work will be commenced as early in the Spring as climatic conditions will permit.

The Young Men are For Roosevelt.

In no previous campaign have the young men of the country, the so-called first voters, been so nearly unanimous on one side. The young voter of 1904 hardly without exception will cast his vote for Roosevelt and Fairbanks. Mr. Roosevelt is himself a young man and his energy, his honesty, his singleness of purpose to continue the policies which have made our young country the greatest nation of the earth, appeals to the young man who will cast his first presidential vote this year.

Then too the young man knows that Republicanism means opportunity. It means progress in science, progress in agriculture, progress in manufactures. And the young man of to-day is a progressive young man in whatever industry he may engage.

Nearly a million young men will vote for the first time next November and fully 90 per cent. of this vote will be cast for Roosevelt and Fairbanks.

The American Boy for October.

The October "American Boy," with its football cover and ninety illustrations, ought to make a boy's heart jump with pleasure. This number is especially attractive. Its stories are: Part one of "Jimmyboy's Commission"—a war story; chapter eight of the editor's "Three Yankee boys in Ireland"- a travel story; "A boy canvasser"—a business story; "The K. O. D.'s and the P. A. C.'s"—a football story; "The recollections of a boy and a rod"—a fishing story; "Why the Flinnegan Stock Company failed"—a humorous story; chapter two of "My four years at West Point," by a graduate; "Rob's self-sacrifice"—a business story; and "How General Morgan won his first shoulder-straps"—an Indian story. As leading articles fully illustrated there is "The boy who would go to sea;" "The famous children's crusade;" "Millions of frogs wanted;" "Halloween;" "The boy who dares;" "Training a football team;" "Baseball in the navy;" "Wonderful boy swimmers;" "Rowing, for boys;" "Bee trailing in the Blue Ridge;" "Hurdling;" "The United Amateur Press Association Convention;" "Bees for boys;" "Changes in football rules;" "Helen Gould's gift to boys;" "The orator's preparation;" "A noisy campaign," and the editor's talk with boys entitled "Just between ourselves." Under the general title of "How to do things," there are "Hints on conducting a school paper," "Clever work with a pocket knife," "The drawing room magician," "How to make a miniature theatre," How to make a goblet from a cocoanut." Besides there is a message from Governor Warfield of Maryland to the boys of America, a page devoted to the Order of the American Boy, books reviewed, directions for saving drowning persons, a page on stamps, coins and curios, one on amateur photography and one on puzzles. Published by The Sprague Publishing Company, Detroit, Mich. Subscription price, $1 per annum.

Society's New Game.

"Trail" has taken society by storm. It is something new, something different.

"Trail" as the name implies, is founded on a popular hunting sport, is played with fifty-three fine cards in four colors, representing a fox to be chased and caught, and four packs of hounds of thirteen each.

"Trail" has a constantly recurring interest for players as they perfect their playing from evening to evening, in marked contrast to certain recent boistrous games that bore the players at the end of an hour.

With the one pack six other splendid, new, copyright games can be played. Two educational games and two games of fun, making it suitable for all members of a family.

"Trail" can be had of dealers or sent post-paid, 75 cents gilt edge; plain 50 cents. Rules for the seven games free.

THIS is the day of the natural waisted woman. The W. B. Erect Form has changed the American figure. It has supplanted discomfort with ease—it has banished the impossible and exaggerated figure produced by the old corset idea. It removes the strain of lacing from the sensitive parts of the body and throws all pressure upon the hips and the strong back muscles, supporting the stomach within the corset and not forcing it below the garment. The Erect Form is made in more models than ever before. There are forty distinct styles of this popular make, each meant for a distinct type of woman. Dealers in all sized towns and cities the land over, sell the Erect Form. Prices range upward from $1.

Ringing Address of Republican Candidate For Governor When Notified of Nomination.

A Challenge to Those Who Are Denouncing Republican Administration.

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Committee—As representatives of the delegates to the Republican state convention I beg to assure you that I am profoundly grateful for the great honor of the nomination for governor of this state, the business relations of which pervade the continent and the political judgments of which have so frequently swayed the decision of the nation.

In the present year state and national interests are inseparably related. The prosperity of the state cannot continue unless the national administration is an efficient one; unless the policies which have brought prosperity and employment are continued and the principles of the Republican party are given full force and effect. The people of this state and other states, therefore, are to be congratulated in that the Republican party represented in national convention selected as its candidate for president Theodore Roosevelt.

It was my pleasure to serve with President Roosevelt when he was governor of New York state. Association with him at that time as well as the character of his administration since he was called upon to assume the duties of chief magistrate of the nation convinces me that he possesses those qualities and that courage and sincerity of conviction which the American people admire, which give to them the faith and hope that those principles of protection which have brought plenty and contentment shall be continued rather than the waste and destitution of the last Democratic administration.

A Democratic Plot.

Opposed to Theodore Roosevelt is a man whose chief claim for merit seems to be a telegram—sent too late to change the result of a convention that had almost adjourned—defining a position which was well known to those responsible for his nomination, but which they refrained from communicating to their fellow delegates—this for fear the nomination which they desired could not be obtained, and it could not have been except by the suppression of the newly formed convictions, which lack sincerity and are those of expediency only. Has the candidate for president upon the Democratic ticket changed his convictions? If so, why did his chief adviser, former Governor Hill, acquiesce in the decision of the committee on resolutions of the Democratic national convention, which decided by vote of thirty-five to fifteen against a declaration in favor of the gold standard? Is it not a fact that the Democratic party stands today for one thing in the east and another thing in the west; that behind it, in the state of New York at least, are those who have been discredited with acts of official wrongdoing, whose acts have met with the condemnation of the Democratic press and of the united bar of the state of New York? Is not their chief aim a desire to obtain control of national affairs for the purpose of rewarding and rehabilitating those who have thus been discredited rather than the betterment of government?

Needs No Apology.

The acts of Theodore Roosevelt require no apologies. As between the records of the two presidential candidates, having before it the results which have been accomplished by each, the Republican party in its convention at Saratoga did well to promise the support of the Republicans of the state of New York to the election of Theodore Roosevelt, and in furtherance of that pledge I promised my most hearty co-operation. Important as is Republican success in the state of New York, of far greater importance is Republican success in the nation.

A Challenge.

The Democratic party at its convention at Saratoga adopted a platform in which grave charges were made against the administration of the affairs of the state by the Republican party during the past ten years. Were such charges true I would not be here today to accept your nomination for governor. My experience in the state senate and as lieutenant governor places me in a position to know what has occurred in the state administration during this period of Republican government, and I emphatically deny the charges therein made. Our opponents dare not be specific in their allegations. They charge us with extravagance and then advocate policies calling for the expenditure of money which the Republican party inaugurated and expects, in case of victory at the polls, to continue. To what laws upon the statute books can the Democratic party point as evidence of maladministration, either in motive or results? Whatever legislation has come to the executive that has not met with popular approval has been promptly rejected by veto, which veto has never been overridden by the legislature. In their strictures upon Republican administrations since 1894 can the Democratic party point to a specific instance where valuable franchises of a city were dissipated through state legislation, as was the case in the infamous Huckleberry bill, which granted an exclusive and perpetual charter in the growing portion of New York city to a railroad corporation, by means of which those who are now prominent in the management of Democratic state and national affairs in the state of New York enriched themselves?

Corruption Exposed.

When we came into office we found a tax system of finance, with the necessity of an annual direct tax levied upon the people of the state of over $9,000,000; the comptroller's office, the chief financial office of the state, disposing of public lands contrary to law; records of corporation taxes kept in pencil, the books in said office showing without authority, in the interests of certain corporations; the treasury showing a deficit; many of the state's institutional officials resting under charges preferred by a Democratic governor, involving the purchase of and payment for supplies far in excess of market prices. Some of these facts were established by a committee of the senate, of which I had the honor to be a member.

To the correction of these evils and abuses the Republican party addressed itself. The weaknesses found in the financial system of the state were removed. By extending the principle of indirect taxation and by correcting the abuses in the collection of taxes from corporations the revenues of the state have grown from $6,000,000 annually in 1894 to nearly $23,000,000 in 1904. The Republican party, therefore, in pledging itself to the continuance of this system in its platform adopted at Saratoga is working in the interests of those who own the farms, the homes and the real estate of the commonwealth.

Party Pledges.

The Democratic platform claims that there is a popular suspicion as to the good faith of the entire Republican policy of special and indirect taxation because of the tax upon the surplus of savings banks. It is sound public policy to relieve from taxation when possible those of our citizens least able to bear the burden and to encourage in them thrift and frugality. While at the time the tax upon the surplus of savings banks was imposed the necessity for it seemed to exist. The additional tax upon the sale of liquor in the state renders it possible to forego the revenues received from this source, and I therefore pledge myself if elected to advocate and favor the repeal of this tax.

The Republican party in its platform and by legislation stands pledged to the policy of good roads. During the past seven years $5,000,000 has been expended by the state for this purpose and an equal amount by the localities thus benefited. Sound public sentiment favors a continuance of this policy. By recent legislation the state contributes 50 cents to every dollar of cash expended by the different townships which have adopted the money system in the improvement of their highways. This statute insures to every locality choosing to take advantage of its provisions practical and substantial state aid, thereby distributing the benefits of state assistance equally to all parts of the state. The Republican party takes no backward step upon the subject of good roads.

During the past eight years the acquirement of land in the Adirondack and Catskill parks has been continued. This policy should be maintained until all of the land within the area of these parks shall be the property of the state, thus insuring protection to the water supply of the state, while affording a park for the people and a refuge for the invalids of our commonwealth.

The people themselves at the polls have decreed the expenditure of a large sum of money for the improvement of the canals. While there is a difference of opinion as to the wisdom of this policy, great concern is felt by all, whether for or against the improvement, that the money shall be honestly expended, and that they shall have the full equivalent for every dollar spent. I pledge myself unreservedly to every citizen in the state that if elected, this result shall be achieved.

Care of the Insane.

During the past ten years millions of dollars have been expended in the construction of a sufficient number of hospitals and charitable institutions to properly care for our unfortunates. Over 32,000 helpless inmates are cared for by the state as compared with 11,264 in 1894. If elected governor I shall lose no opportunity to advise and co-operate with that great army of philanthropists who are so unselfishly and generously laboring to improve the condition of these unfortunates, keeping in mind always that niggardly economy should not prevail as against the health, well being and cure of these charges of our state.

Labor and Capital.

In a great state, with its vast commercial interests, it is important that at all times there should be full security and equality both as to labor and capital, which will tend to bring these two great elements of society into harmony. The state has recognized its duties in this particular. More and better laws have been placed upon the statute books under Republican administration to safeguard the interests of labor and capital than by our opponents. The policy of the Republican party toward labor has been one of performance rather than pretense. It has enacted the eight hour law for the benefit of those employed by the state. It has enacted similar laws for every municipality of the state. It sought to extend this beneficent provision to those laboring for contractors for municipalities.

We have realized that the interests of property and capital should be at all times protected, believing that in such

CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS, 1904.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing amendment to article seven of the Constitution, relating to improvement of highways.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the seventh article of the Constitution be amended by adding thereto the following section: § 12. Improvement of Highways.—A debt or debts of the State may be authorized by law for the improvement of highways. Such highways shall be determined under general laws, which shall also provide for the equitable apportionment thereof among the counties. The aggregate of the debts authorized by this section shall not at any one time exceed the sum of fifty millions of dollars. The payment of the annual interest on such debt and the creation of a sinking fund of at least two per centum per annum to discharge the principal at maturity shall be provided by general laws whose force and effect shall not be diminished during the existence of any debt created thereunder. The legislature may by general laws require the county or town or both to pay to the sinking fund the proportionate part of the cost of any such highway within the boundaries of such county or town and the proportionate part of the interest thereon, but no county shall at any time for any highway be required to pay more than thirty-five hundredths of the cost of such highway, and no town more than fifteen hundredths. None of the provisions of the fourth section of this article shall apply to debts for the improvement of highways hereby authorized. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the Legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the Constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 1, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 2, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER TWO.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the constitution in relation to the time within which debts of the state must be paid and striking from said section certain limitations.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section four of article seven of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VII. § 4. Except the debts specified in sections two and three of this article, no debts shall be hereafter contracted by or in behalf of this state, unless such debt shall be authorized by a law for some single work or object, to be distinctly specified therein; and such law shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax to pay, and sufficient to pay, the interest on such debt as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal of such debt within fifty years from the time of the contracting thereof. No such law shall take effect until it shall, at a general election, have been submitted to the people, and have received a majority of all the votes cast for and against it at such election. On the final passage of such bill in either house of the legislature, the question shall be taken by ayes and noes, to be duly entered on the journals thereof, and shall be: "Shall this bill pass, and ought the same to receive the sanction of the people?" The legislature may at any time, after the approval of such law by the people, if no debt shall have been contracted in pursuance thereof, repeal the same; and may at any time, by law, forbid the contracting of any further debt or liability under such law; but the tax imposed by such act, in proportion to the debt and liability which may have been contracted, in pursuance of such law, shall remain in force and be irrepealable, and be annually collected, until the proceeds thereof shall have made the provision hereinbefore specified to pay and discharge the interest and principal of such debt and liability. The money arising from any loan or stock creating such debt or liability shall be applied to the work or object specified in the act authorizing such debt or liability, or for the payment of such debt or liability, and for no other purpose whatever. No such law shall be submitted to be voted on, within three months after its passage or at any general election when any other law, or any bill, shall be submitted to be voted for or against. The legislature may provide for the issue of bonds of the state to run for a period not exceeding fifty years in lieu of bonds heretofore authorized but not issued and shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax for the payment of the same as hereinbefore required. When any sinking fund created under this section shall equal in amount the debt for which it was created, no further direct tax shall be levied on account of said sinking fund and the legislature shall reduce the tax to an amount equal to the accruing interest on such debt. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 21, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 22, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER THREE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the constitution in relation to justices of the appellate division of the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section two of article six of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VI. § 2. The legislature shall divide the state into four judicial departments. The first department shall consist of the county of New York; the others shall be bounded by county lines, and be compact and equal in population as nearly as may be. Once every ten years the legislature may alter the judicial departments, but without increasing the number thereof. There shall be an appellate division of the supreme court, consisting of seven justices in the first department, and of five justices in each of the other departments. In each department four shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of three shall be necessary to a decision. No more than five justices shall sit in any case. From all the justices elected to the supreme court the governor shall designate those who shall constitute the appellate division in each department; and he shall designate the presiding justice thereof, who shall act as such during his term of office, and shall be a resident of the department. The other justices shall be designated for terms of five years or the unexpired portions of their respective terms of office, if less than five years. From time to time as the terms of such designations expire, or vacancies occur, he shall make new designations. A majority of the justices so designated to sit in the appellate division, in each department shall be residents of the department. He may also make temporary designations in case of the absence or inability to act of any justice in the appellate division, or in case the presiding justice of any appellate division shall certify to him that one or more additional justices are needed for the speedy disposition of the business before it. Whenever the appellate division in any department shall be unable to dispose of its business within a reasonable time, a majority of the presiding justices of the several departments at a meeting called by the presiding justice of the department in arrears may transfer any pending appeals from such department to any other department for hearing and determination. No justice of the appellate division shall, within the department to which he may be designated to perform the duties of an appellate justice, exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court, other than those of a justice out of court, and those pertaining to the appellate division, or to the hearing and decision of motions submitted by consent of counsel, but any such justice, when not actually engaged in performing the duties of such appellate justice in the department to which he is designated, may hold any term of the supreme court and exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court in any county or judicial district in any other department of the state. From and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, the appellate division shall have the jurisdiction now exercised by the supreme court at its general terms and by the general terms of the court of common pleas for the city and county of New York, the superior court of the city of New York, the superior court of Buffalo and the city of Brooklyn, and such additional jurisdiction as may be conferred by the legislature. It shall have power to appoint and remove a reporter. The justices of the appellate division in each department shall have power to fix the times and places for holding special terms therein, and to assign the justices in the departments to hold such terms; and to make rules therefor. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 29, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 6, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FOUR.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to trial commissioners.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that section six of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 6. Circuit courts and courts of oyer and terminer are abolished from and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five. All their jurisdiction shall thereupon be vested in the supreme court, and all actions and proceedings then pending in such courts shall be transferred to the supreme court for hearing and determination. Any justice of the supreme court, except as otherwise provided in this article, may hold court in any county. Whenever and as often as the causes upon the trial term calendar of any county of this state, having a population according to the latest state enumeration of over five hundred thousand, shall have so accumulated that an unpreferred cause cannot be reached for trial in due course within one year after it has been placed upon the calendar, the appellate division of the department in which such county is embraced may, by a certificate signed by a majority of its members, certify the fact to the court of appeals, whereupon said court may by order authorize the appointment in said county of trial commissioners, stating in said order the number of commissioners to be appointed, and their terms of office, not exceeding six years. Such order shall be made in duplicate and one copy thereof filed in the office of the secretary of state, and one in the office of the clerk of the county in which said appointments are authorized. The appellate division of the department embracing said county shall thereupon appoint the number of trial commissioners authorized by said order, who must possess the qualifications required for a justice of the supreme court. They shall possess and exercise in the county for which they are appointed all the powers of a justice of the supreme court respecting the trial and disposition of causes upon said trial term calendar and the settlement of cases on appeal, but shall possess none of the powers of such a justice out of court or at special term. They may be removed in the same manner as is provided in case of a justice of said supreme court. They shall each receive an annual salary of twelve thousand dollars to be paid by the county for which they are appointed, and may not practice law. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 23, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 8, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FIVE.

Concurrent resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the constitution.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section seven of article seven be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Forest preserve.—The lands of the state, now owned or hereafter acquired, constituting the forest preserve as now fixed by law, shall be forever kept as wild forest lands, except as hereinafter provided. They shall not be leased, sold or exchanged, or be taken by any corporation, public or private, nor shall the timber thereon be sold, removed or destroyed. The legislature may authorize the removal of dead timber on burned areas so far as necessary for reforestation, through officers and employees of the state, but not by contract. The legislature may also authorize the sale of lands outside of the limits of the Adirondack park and the Catskill park as such parks are now established by law. The proceeds of such sales shall be set apart in a separate fund and used only for the purchase of lands in such parks. A violation of this section may be restrained at the suit of the people or with the consent of the supreme court on notice to the attorney-general at the suit of any citizen of the state. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 4, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 8, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State, at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section one of article two of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SIX.

Concurrent resolution, proposing amendment to section one of article two of the constitution relating to qualification of voters.

Resolved (if the senate concur), that section one of article two of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article II. Section 1. Qualification of voters.—Every male citizen of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a citizen for ninety days, and an inhabitant of this state one year next preceding an election, and for the last four months a resident of the county or of a city comprising more than one county, and for the last thirty days a resident of the election district in which he may offer his vote, shall be entitled to vote at such election in the election district of which he shall at the time be a resident, and not elsewhere, for all officers that now are or hereafter may be elective by the people, and upon all questions which may be submitted to the vote of the people, provided that in time of war no elector in the actual military service of the state, or of the United States, in the army or navy thereof, shall be deprived of his vote by reason of his absence from such election district; and the legislature shall have power to provide the manner in which and the time and place at which such absent electors may vote, and for the return and canvass of their votes in the election districts in which they respectively reside.

State of New York: In Assembly, Mar. 28, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section one of article two, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to sections one and seven of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SEVEN.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to article six of the constitution in relation to providing additional justices of the supreme court and judges of the court of appeals.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section one of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 1. Supreme court; court of appeals; how constituted; judicial districts.—The supreme court is continued with general jurisdiction in law and equity, subject to such appellate jurisdiction of the court of appeals as now is or may be prescribed by law not inconsistent with this article. The existing judicial districts of the state are continued until changed as hereinafter provided. The supreme court shall consist of the justices now in office, and of the judges transferred thereto by the fifth section of this article, all of whom shall continue to be justices of the supreme court during their respective terms, and of twelve additional justices who shall reside in and be chosen by the electors of, the several existing judicial districts, three in the first district, three in the second, and one in each of the other districts; and of their successors. The successors of said justices shall be chosen by the electors of their respective judicial districts. The legislature may alter the judicial districts once after every enumeration under the constitution, of the inhabitants of the state, and thereupon reapportion the justices to be thereafter elected in the districts so altered. The legislature may at any time, when it deems that the public interests requires it, increase the number of justices of the supreme court or of judges of the court of appeals as it sees fit, provided that the total number of judges of the court of appeals shall not exceed eleven, and provided also that any bill increasing the number of justices or judges as aforesaid shall receive the assent of two-thirds of the members elected to each branch of the legislature. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section seven of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Court of appeals.—The court of appeals is continued. It shall consist of the chief judge and associate judges now in office, and of such additional judges as the legislature may from time to time provide in accordance with section one of this article and as may be elected according to law, who shall hold their offices until the expiration of their respective terms, and of their successors, who shall be chosen by the electors of the state. The official terms of the chief judge and associate judges shall be fourteen years from and including the first day of January next after their election. The legislature may provide by law for the manner in which the court shall sit, whether in two divisions or one, and for the number of members of the court necessary to form a quorum in either instance and also for the number whose concurrence shall be necessary to a decision. The court shall have power to appoint and to remove its reporter, clerk and attendants. § 3. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 13, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to sections one and seven of article six, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions.—JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER EIGHT.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That section six of article six of the constitution be amended by adding thereto the following: In any department in which supreme court commissioners have been appointed, the justices of the appellate division of the department, or a majority of them, are authorized from time to time to designate one or more of such supreme court commissioners to hold trial terms of the supreme court within such department and to re-[illegible] when so [illegible] commissioner so designated shall have power to [illegible] a trial term of the supreme court within said department and to perform the duties of a justice of the supreme court in the trial term to which he may be assigned. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, to be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 15, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

Harmony and Reciprocity.

Oh, happy outcome—
Harmony
'Twixt William J.
And Alton B.;
The cross of gold
Held up today
By Alton B.
And William J.
It's mighty tough
On William J.,
But as he grunts
And tugs away
His soul may soak
In harmony
Poured out on him
By Alton B.
Oh, happy outcome—
Is there bliss
This side of heaven
More than this?
Breathes there a man
Who would have bet
They'd get together
With this get?
And still it is
No more than right,
Because in nineteen hundred's
Losing fight
A vote was cast
By Alton B.
For William J.
And harmony.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 12, 1904.

BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS BECOMES A WILLING SACRIFICE.

The members of the present Board of Public Works, from president to superintendent, are to be commended for the very manly attitude assumed in the selection of a candidate for mayor. A spirit of animosity had been engendered against the Board for mistakes which may have been made, probably in a too zealous desire to inaugurate improvements in our city. These improvements could not have been made without the expenditure of money, and this is one of the reasons that fault has been found. Of course the burden has fallen, perhaps heavily, on a class of taxpayers who could not afford the outlay, but the improvements are permanent and we believe will prove economical and beneficial in the end. New cement sidewalks have been constructed and streets have been macadamized. One-third of all the money spent on cement sidewalks has been spent on the west side. Plans for a sewerage system for that section of our city have also been approved, bids have been received and the contract will soon be let, so that within a short time sewers will be obtained.

There has been an honest administration of the affairs of this department by men who have given their time and services without hope or expectation of even commendation. They are now about to retire with a consciousness of duty performed.

As soon as the members of the Board of Public Works learned that they stood in the way of Republican success at the polls, they were ready to suffer immolation—to be offered as a sacrifice—to the cause. Mr. Thomas Hunter with the remaining members and superintendent, were ready to hand in their resignations to Mr. Brooker if he would accept the nomination for mayor, [illegible] that he would obtain a large [illegible]y.

[illegible] attitude of the outgoing Board [illegible] Works in the matter of the [illegible] sewer contract should [illegible] They took care of the [illegible] taxpayers and saved [illegible] of dollars.

[illegible] believe a calm and unprejudiced [illegible] of the service rendered will re[illegible] in praise, not censure. Our citi[illegible] are too fair-minded to do otherwise.

A Correction.

Editor Times: I desire to correct an article which appeared in your last issue regarding a conversation between Mr. Van Wagenen and myself. Mr. Van Wagenen asked if it were possible for me to make a few local cartoons against Judge Stowell. I replied that on account of my connection with "The Herald," I thought it unwise to do so. That settled it. No inducements whatever were offered by Mr. Van Wagenen.

Mr. and Mrs Herman Dernell of Athens, N. Y., are the guests of their sister, Mrs. J. C. Lang. Mr. and Mrs. Dernell are en route to the St. Louis Exposition, and from there to the Pacific slope, where they expect to spend a portion of the Winter.

Mr. H. C. Luddington has received a very desirable appointment in the O. & W., railroad office in Hamilton, Madison County, and will take up his new duties on Oct. 20. Mr. and Mrs. Luddington are well known in this city and have a large number of most sincere friends, all of whom will regret to learn that they are to leave. They took an active part in the First M. E., church work and they will be greatly missed by that society. They will go to their new home, followed by the very best wishes of all to whom they are know in this vicinity.

Second Deputy State Excise Commissioner Silas B. Lyman, nephew of the late H. H. Lyman, while in Pulaski on Friday was asked for his opinion of the political situation. Mr. Lyman, who is one of the young Republicans of the State, replied: "I believe the National, State and County Republican tickets will win. I do not believe the people of this country want to change President Theodore Roosevelt, with his common sense and great American enterprise for Judge Alton B. Parker, with his theories. The last Democratic President cost the country too dearly for that."

The Knights of Pythias "smoker" on Tuesday evening was the most enjoyable social function given by that very popular organization. An exceeding fine program was rendered by the musical Knights, and the friendly contests in games, narratives, and coffee consumption were heartily entered into, not only by the participants but spectators as well. The selections given by the Crescent Mandolin club were special features of the evening. An elaborate feast was served to which all did ample justice and all declared that they would come early and often, when the same committee was in charge of affairs.

Dr. A. L. Hall, while alighting from his carriage one day last week, slipped and fractured a bone in his ankle. He did not think much of the injury until a day or two later, when the pain became very intense and he submitted to an x-ray examination by Dr. Fox, when the fracture was discovered.

Four claims of residents of Granby have been filed against the State for damages to property from overflow, due to the raising of the upper Oswego Falls dam. The claimants and the amount of their claims are: Joseph O'Connor, $300; Mary Harrigan, $600; Ellen McCann and Maggie Harrigan, $200; William Hinsdale, $680.

The Common Council of Oswego have decided to enforce the ordinance demanding $700 per year from the management of the Richardson Theatre. Manager Joe Wallace says if the ordinance is enforced that the playhouse will have to close, as there is not sufficient profit in it to warrant the payment of such a sum. He offers to pay $25 to $50 per year.

Master Harold Reed on Friday evening very enjoyably entertained about twenty-five of his friends at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Reed. Games were played and during the evening a nice spread was served the guests. Many choice gifts were bestowed upon Master Harold, as the party was in celebration of his birthday.

Undoubtedly his experiences will be varied and would prove most entertaining reading for his acquaintances.

At the last meeting of the Fortnightly Shakespeare club which was held at the home of Mrs. E. H. French, the subject of joining the New York State Federation of Clubs was discussed and it was decided to federate. The annual session of the federation will be held in Syracuse on Nov. 1, 2, 3, when the local club will be represented. It is expected that other literary clubs in the city will also join the federation before the meeting.

The pole raising at the homes of Messrs. Lawton Beardsley and Noah Merriam in Granby on Saturday were quite features of a campaign in this county, which is not without features. There was a goodly number of voters present and they were addressed by Surrogate S. B. Mead of this city and the Hon. F. G. Whitney of Pulaski. The enthusiastic manner in which all reference to Republican nominees on State, national and county tickets was greeted, left no doubt in the minds of all present as to whether Granby would "stand pat" for the ticket or not. The speakers both paid high tribute to Judge Stowell. Music was furnished by Messrs. N. H. Gilbert, H. A. McFarland, B. W. Bennett and A. E. Kraus.

The Board of Public Works met on Friday evening and opened the bids that had been submitted for the construction of the west side sewerage system. The lowest bid was that of Frank Pidgeon of Saugerties, for $22,000. John Hendricks of Oswego submitted a bid for about $31,000, and Sullivan & Marraso of this city would undertake the job for $55,000. The Board deferred action upon the bids and took a recess.

The parlor lecture on "The evolution of Rome" which was given by Dr. A. C. Flick of Syracuse University before the Reading Circle at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Redhead on Wednesday evening, was one of the most delightful mental treats a Fulton audience has had the privilege of enjoying. Every ticket was sold and the parlors were filled with an enthusiastic and appreciative audience. The proceeds from the lecture will be applied on the Public Library fund. It is hoped that Dr. Flick may be heard in this city again during the approaching Winter.

The benefit dinner given on Friday for Mrs. Holmes at the Pathfinder club house was largely attended and Mrs. Holmes is grateful for the substantial return, which was a fitting recognition of her service to the club members and their friends during the season which will close on Friday next. The spacious porch surrounding the club house was enclosed to shut out the cold wind which prevailed all day, and during the evening dancing was thoroughly enjoyed by the numbers of young people present. A furious game of baseball was played during the afternoon between the Clifford and Pathfinder teams which resulted in a victory for Clifford by a score of 11 to 3. The Rev. W. L. Sawtelle and Mr. Stauring were batteries for the Pathfinder club, and Messrs. J. Fifield and W. Stroh for the Cliffords. Mr. G. Trimble of Palermo acted as umpire.

It is simply beautiful, easy to play, melodious, and a perfect adaptation of exquisite words to a beautiful melody. The publishers, J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music Co of Kansas City, Mo., are making a special price of 25 cents per copy.

For some unaccountable reason the members of the High school football team were seized with nervousness when they faced the Phoenix team on Van Buren's Island last Friday afternoon, and made bungling plays. The result was a score of 11 to 0 in favor of Phoenix. The local team must needs have complete confidence in their own ability to insure victory. They play a good game but lack that one essential. They will undoubtedly retrieve their lost record long before the season closes.

On Monday afternoon the first meeting of Kayendatsyona Chapter, D. A. R., since vacation was held at the home of Mrs. John Harvie in Fay street. About fifteen members were present and considerable business was tranacted. Four new members were accepted, Mrs. Augusta Eggleston, Mrs. Charlotte Foster Lewis and the Misses Georgetta Foster and Shirley Vincent. The new Year Books were distributed and much appreciation was expressed over their tasteful appearance and the able manner in which the subject matter had been compiled by Miss Alice Schenck. Regent, Mrs. Vincent and Mrs. W. M. Hinsdale were elected delegates to the State Convention, D. A. R., which will meet in Kingston, Oct. 25-26. Mrs. Charles Bacon read a paper upon the colonies in 1763, and also reviewed the American Monthly in an interesting matter. Mrs. Harvie served her guests with dainty refreshments and after the business has been concluded many rare antiquities which were in Mrs. Harvies possession, were admired by the Daughters. Among the number were silver tea spoons ever 125 years of age, and pewter plates over 150 years old.

GOOD NEWS AND TIMELY, TOO

You will hear a good deal about politics these days—about who to vote for, and why. You will be asked to "SAVE THE COUNTRY," and how to do it. But we tell you HOW TO SAVE MONEY—how to make your home happy, your family contented and satisfied to remain there—and that means good citizenship, too—just as important as voting right.

HIGGINS ACCEPTS

a course labor itself is deeply concerned. Republican legislatures have also enacted laws prohibiting child labor believing that childhood is sacred and should be spent in schools rather than in factories and shops.

Educational Efficiency.

The legislative act of last winter uniting the two departments for the supervision of our schools and changing a condition which had prevailed from the earliest times in the state met an intolerable situation, and met it wisely. This vexatious condition was handled in a way which reduced the number of employees and saved from thirty to forty thousand dollars each year in the expenses of the two offices, and, what is of more importance, this was accomplished in a way which stilled controversy in the schools and brought the educational forces of the state into effective co-operation; it set aside the divided educational administration peculiar to this state and substituted a system of educational efficiency; it opened the way for more rapid upbuilding of libraries, museums and other aids to general culture. Incidentally this act committed the Republican party, through the attitude of its members in the legislature, and now definitely commits them in the state platform, to the proposition that educational administration must be completely free from politics as well as from all phases of partisanship, and of this I am heartily glad. The allegation of our opponents that partisanship controlled the election of the new board of regents is well refuted by the facts. It was deemed necessary to reduce the number of the board. In doing away with the life tenure of the office it was not practical to bring in new regents while discontinuing the services of men of the highest standing who had been on the board a considerable time. In this election of new regents the two members affiliated with the Democratic party were continued. All that was done was thoughtfully and wisely done and promises well for the state. It seems to me to have been the most feasible treatment of an all important subject and of a trying situation. It only remains to be said in this connection that the declared purpose of our party to make ample provision for every legitimate interest of the schools and for every proper aid to general culture outside of the schools has my warmest approbation. If chosen governor it will give me unspeakable pleasure to take such part as may be possible to promote the educational development of our state.

Employees' Wage Scale.

The state has also been considering the question of wages of its employees. Employees of the state performing like service should receive like pay. With the hope that favoritism for purely personal or political reasons might be eliminated and the true spirit of the civil service law made effective, I drafted an act classifying the state employees (chapter 521 of laws of 1901) and succeeded in procuring its passage by the legislature and approval by the governor. I have great faith that this act will ultimately result in reducing excessive salaries and in giving to those who are deserving of it a fairer opportunity for just compensation.

The Excise Law.

The Democratic platform indulges in indiscriminate criticism of the excise law of the state. It is characterized as immoral and unduly centralizing power at Albany. It indulges in loose and flabby talk about excise reform, but does not declare for the repeal of the law or its amendment. The substantial result of this law, whatever may be its shortcomings, is shown by indisputable statistics to be a diminution of crime and drunkenness, a reduction of the number of places where liquor is sold and the production of an enormous revenue to the state and the localities thereof. The Republican party stands for the essential principle of the excise law and is ready to correct imperfections therein and to conform to the enlightened opinion of the people of the state. Would our friends of the opposition have us believe they would wipe away this law and go back to neighborhood government in excise matters and surrender the revenue now flowing into the treasury of the state, thereby placing an additional burden of $18,000,000 annually upon the homes of the people? If this be the issue, the Republican party is prepared to meet it.

Expenditures.

We are charged with being extravagant in the expenditure of the state funds; $9,000,000 increase is charged as between Democratic and Republican administrations. There has been a careful concealment of the fact that additional burdens have been assumed by the state, some of which, like the care of the insane and the charitable wards of the state, the respective counties having thus been relieved of their entire care, as well as other expenses made necessary through the adoption of the constitution of 1895 by the people, to say nothing of the increase of a million and a quarter in our population. The policy of the state has been to increase its educational facilities. The growth of litigation in the great commercial centers like the city of New York has made it incumbent upon our legislature to provide additional judges and means for affording prompt relief to litigants. The building of good roads, the abolition of grade crossings, the extending of instruction to the agricultural interests and the [illegible] erroneously exacted by the state under Democratic administration—all these facts and others explain the increase of expenditures. As well might one compare the expenditures of the Democratic period with those of today as to compare the cost of maintenance of a child with the expenses of one who has reached manhood. Surely if we are to be charged with this increase in state expenses, for which there is such ample justification, we might rightly call upon our Democratic brethren in the city of New York to explain the stupendous increase in the expenditures in that municipality over what was promised when their charter consolidating the greater city was given to them by a Republican legislature and a Republican governor.

The Old Democratic Crowd.

It would indeed be difficult to take seriously the utterances of the Democratic platform, characterized as they are by indiscriminate abuse, misstatement of facts and unfounded charges expressed in intemperate language worthy only of a common scold, were they not found in a serious proclamation of a great national party. It was their evident hope in promulgating it that the people of the state had forgotten the circumstances under which they were last driven from power. I am confident that the leadership of the Democratic party of the state of New York today is the same as when crimes against the elective franchise were committed, notably in Albany and Troy; when the senate of the state was stolen; when the courts, through Democratic judges, were obliged to declare the Democratic state canvassing board in contempt for refusing to obey the mandates of the courts directing them to canvass lawful returns made by election officers. Never in the lifetime of men now living can this leadership succeed before the people!

Will Serve the People.

The nomination at Saratoga came to me without solicitation and without pledge to any man or organization as to my future actions if elected governor. I can, therefore, safely promise the people of the state that, if elected, I shall be governor of the whole people and shall devote my time and best efforts to the discharge of my duties of the office. I believe it to be the duty of the executive of a state to hold to strict accountability every official of the state government, and I shall not be deterred by political or other considerations from a full and conscientious discharge of such duty. It shall be my aim to administer the affairs of the commonwealth in such a manner as shall secure the cleanest and best results, hewing always to the line, that the interests of all the people whom servant I would be are at all times conserved. Suggestions will be welcome, dictation repelled, and in the end my individual judgment alone must determine my official actions.

Gentlemen, I accept the nomination.

GARBLED QUOTATIONS.

How Parker Misused McKinley's Last Speech.

From Parker's letter of acceptance: "He pointed out in his last address to the people that we must make sensible trade arrangements if 'we shall extend the outlets for our increasing surplus.'"

What McKinley said: "By sensible trade arrangements which shall not interrupt our home production we shall extent the outlets for our increasing surplus."

Judge Parker quotes McKinley further as follows: "A system which provides a mutual exchange of commodities is manifestly essential to the continued healthful growth of our export trade." But he stops there without including the following last sentence of the paragraph: "We should take from our customers such of their products as we can use without harm to our industries and labor."

Who says the "most noble judge" could purposely misrepresent?

FUTURE OF THE PHILIPPINES

Republican Success Guarantees the Welfare of the Island Peoples.

When the presidential election is over and the status of the Philippines is more certain, if the danger of tyranny and chaos following our retirement or the disturbance of peace by any promise of independence has been obviated, millions of capital will flow to the islands to develop their great resources. The Republicans have made no declaration as to future independence, but the Democrats have promised it. The former left the question of the future relation of the islands to our government to a time when it can be better decided, refusing to listen to the theories of the inexperienced and following the advice of those who have on the spot sought to solve the problem. Having the responsibility of government the administration is content with governing the islands well, teaching the natives by example the art of government and permitting them to participate in the conduct of their affairs so far as they are capable. This gives the conservatives a sense of security and prevents the radicals from being agitated by a pledge of independence that cannot be near at hand. It brings peace with its accompanying good order.

We have only made the beginning but it is highly creditable. Further legislation is required to encourage commerce and to carry out the plans of development. We seem to have begun well, but we may have erred and should, perhaps, have followed the British policy. So far, however, there is nothing to indicate that we have erred or to warrant us in departing from the ideal of the "Philippines for the Filipinos," which guides our present work in the far Pacific.

HIGH OR LOW TAXES?

The Issue Clearly Defined For the Voters of the State.

Hill's Platform and Candidate Would Restore Direct Taxation.

The last year, 1894, the Democrats were in power the state tax rate was $2.18 on each $100 of real estate and personal property. Under Republican rule the rate has been reduced to thirteen one-hundredths of a mill.

Even this small direct tax would not be imposed if it were not for a constitutional provision regarding the interest upon the canal debt to be paid by a levy upon real estate and personal property.

More than that the Republican party has done. It has lifted the burdens of local taxation while it has obliterated the state tax.

Various charges upon counties have been made state charges.

The state is caring for the insane, which were formerly a charge upon and paid for by the counties.

The state helps localities to build good roads. Under Democratic rule not a dollar was appropriated for highway improvement.

Further, the state has enormously increased the appropriations for public schools, thus reducing the local school tax of taxpayers throughout the state. To quote the language of Lieutenant Governor Higgins:

"By extending the principle of indirect taxation and by correcting the abuses in the collection of taxes from corporations the revenues of the state have grown from $6,000,000 annually in 1894 to nearly $23,000,000 in 1904. The Republican party, therefore, in pledging itself to the continuance of this system in its platform adopted at Saratoga is working in the interests of those who own the farms, the homes and the real estate of the commonwealth."

TO DISFRANCHISE FARMERS

Democrats Want Personal Registration in Country Towns.

The New York city Democrats want control of the state government that they may put into effect their long standing dislike of the "hayseeders," as they are fond of calling the up state voters.

Just after his election as comptroller of New York Edward M. Grout, who was Pat McCarren's favorite for the Democratic candidate for governor this year, in discussing the programme for this year said in an interview in the New York Herald of Nov. 28:

"A Democratic governor will be sent to Albany, and a Democratic legislature will be there to support him. That will mean a new era for the state.

"Under Republican rule entirely too much relative power has been possessed by what are known as the agricultural counties.

"That will be remedied as soon as the Democrats take power. Registration and election laws have been passed for the benefit of New York city, while the farmers have been left alone, and the result has been some of the most crooked work ever known.

"It is right and proper that the entire state should have one law governing registration. Such a law will be passed, and then the agricultural voters will have to register just as do city voters.

"That will mean an end to much illegal voting in the country, and it will also have a tendency to greatly reduce the country vote.

"The farmer considers it a hardship to give up one day for the sake of his vote. When he has to register the hardship will be doubled, and thousands will refuse to sacrifice their interests even for the sake of the Republican party. After that is done it will be more than a decade before another Republican governor of New York state will be elected."

Tammany Senator George W. Plunkitt said in the New York Daily News, a Tammany organ, on Dec. 8, 1903:

"I am going to introduce a bill requiring that all voters up state be registered. I think that the time is now ripe for a change in the present methods of voting in the farming districts."

"I quite agree with you, senator," said Senator McCarren.

It will be well for any Republican who is thinking of splitting his ticket to consider these threats against those voters who live so far from the polling places that personal registration would practically mean disfranchisement.

We know what we mean when we speak of an honest and stable currency.—From President Roosevelt's [illegible]

LEGAL NOTICES.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage upon real property situated within the state of New York, whereby the power to sell has become operative, notice is hereby given that said mortgage, which is dated the 23d day of February, 1889, and is recorded in the office of the Clerk of the County of Oswego, at Oswego, N. Y., on the 23d day of February, 1889, at 9:20 o'clock a. m., in Liber 158 of mortgages at page 422, was given by John E. Cain and Hattie Cain, his wife, mortgagors to Orlando Howell, mortgagee, and the name of each assignee of said mortgage is as follows: 1st assignee, Fred O. Howell, 2d assignee, Maria A. Howell.

The sum claimed to be due upon the said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is sixteen hundred seventy-five dollars and forty-one cents, which is the whole amount secured by said mortgage.

The following is a description of the mortgaged property, contained in the said mortgage:

"All That Tract or Parcel of Land, situate in the Town of Granby, County of Oswego and State of New York, and being on Lot No. 72 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is described as subdivision Number One of said Lot according to Peter Schenck's map, made from his survey & dated Sept. 26, 18[illegible], and is bounded on the N. & W. by the N. & W. lines of said lot; on the S. by the State Road running E. & W. through said lot & on the East by Subdivision No. 2 containing 19 acres of land more or less.

"Also all that certain tract or parcel of land situate in the said Town of Granby, N. Y. & being a part of the state's 100 acres of land on lot No. 62 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is bounded as follows: Beginning at the S. E. Corner of said Lot 62 and running West 21 chains & 62 links; thence N. 11 chains & 56 links; thence E. 21 chains & 62 links to the east line of said Lot, thence S. 11 chains & 56 links, to the place of beginning. Containing twenty-five acres of land, more or less.

"Also all that certain other tract or parcel of land, situate in the Town of Granby, N. Y., and being a part of Lot 71 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby) is bounded as follows: Beginning in the East line of said Lot in the center of the Fulton & Hannibal Plank Road (so called); thence Northerly along the E. line of said lot 71 about 25 rods & 6 links to a stone wall intersecting said line of Lot 71 from the East; thence Westerly in a direct line with the center of said stone wall One Hundred four & one-half (104-½) feet to a stone set in the Earth indicating said corner; thence Southerly parallel with the East line to the center of said highway; thence Easterly along said Highway to the place of beginning. Containing about one acre of land."

Pursuant to the power of sale contained therein, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the said mortgaged property, or a part thereof, at public auction, at the law offices of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton County of Oswego, New York on the 29th day of October, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day.

Dated and subscribed at Fulton, N. Y., this 3d day of August, 1904.

Poisoning Trees.

A gardener discovered the fact that trees are often sent to an untimely death by poison, usually arsenic. The reason for this does not appear until one hears the man's explanation. Suppose a man has rented a house which has too much shade, the law will not allow him to have one or more of the trees cut down without the consent of the owner. As it often happens that tenants and landlords hold different views on the subject of shade, the trees remain as a bone of contention. It is then that the gardener is called to administer a dose of poison, for when a tree is dead the tenant may have it removed. Five cents' worth of arsenic is sufficient to kill a large tree. A hole is made in the trunk, arsenic dropped in, and nature does the rest. It never fails.—New York Herald.

ED. PINAUD'S
EAU DE QUININE HAIR TONIC

A Positive Dandruff Cure!

Is the only Hair Tonic I have in my shop. It's the best! I have used one hundred other sorts on a thousand different heads, but never with the wonderful results that Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine has given. At first sight you would think it to my advantage to use a cheap tonic, but when I tell you that one bottle of Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine goes as far as t.ree bottles of any other preparation, you can see that after all this is the best value I can get for the money.

For women, men and children. It cleanses the roots—feeds the cells and strengthens the hair—holds its color and gives a beautiful gloss.

Moon Phases.

The phases of the moon may be explained by the fact that the moon is a dark spherical body which shines only by reflected light. The new moon, popularly so called, is seen only when the sky is sufficiently dark to present a complete outline of the disk. This illumination is due to the light which comes first from the sun, is reflected to the earth and back to the moon and thence to the earth. What we really see is the earth light shining on the moon.

You Have No Friends

Y., as they have so much confidence in this remedy that they will cheerfully send you free of charge a trial bottle of Vernal Palmettona (Palmetto Berry Wine,) so that you can quickly convince yourself of the wonderful results to be obtained from its use. Sold by druggists everywhere, but don't hesitate to write for free trial bottle and booklet.

Which?

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

WHY A PROTECTIONIST?

Reasons Given For Their Faith by Prominent Publicists.

Hon. D. B. Henderson, former speaker of the house of representatives:

"First.—Because the civilized world substantially protects itself, thus forcing us to protect ourselves.

"Second.—Because all the conditions of men and of women in this country are better than in other countries, and protection is needed to preserve our happier conditions.

"Third.—Because I want labor to get the best possible wages for its efforts.

"Fourth.—Because I want agriculture to find a near, sure and rich market.

"Fifth.—Because I want to keep the capital and labor of this country all actively employed, each helping the other."

The late Hon. George F. Hoar, United States senator from Massachusetts:

"I am a protectionist because I think by that policy the workmen of America will be well paid and not underpaid.

"Because I think by that policy the variety of industry will be created here which will make America strong in peace and in war.

"Because the industries so fostered will develop the skill and brain power of my countrymen and raise the people of the United States to the first rank in intelligence among the nations of the earth.

"Because that policy has already made us the richest and strongest nation on earth, and under a properly restricted immigration will bring to us much that is most valuable in the population of other lands."

The Issue Remains.

[From the New York Globe.]

It is as true now as the campaign enters upon its closing month as it was at the outset that there is only one issue in the canvass. Shall we have a change? In other words, shall the country continue for four years longer in the policy it has pursued during the past eight years or shall it enter upon a new and uncertain policy? Nobody can say that there is anything experimental or uncertain about what the Republicans offer. They "stand pat," saying through their platform and candidate, "If you wish to know what our future will be, look at our past." Neither can anybody say that there is anything except uncertainty about what the Democrats offer. What their policy is they themselves do not know. All that they promise is a change, and that in itself is a pledge to unsettle existing conditions—that is, to bring about uncertainty.

The Friend of Labor.

[From the Post-Express.]

Will organized labor be wise enough and bold enough in its own cause to cast its influence for a president who has proved beyond peradventure that he is not the creature of organized capital and who in taking that course has put his political fortunes in jeopardy?

Better Than Pills.

The question has been asked—In what way are Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets superior to the ordinary cathartic and liver pills? Our answer is—They are easier and more pleasant to take and their effect is so gentle and so agreeable that one hardly realizes that it is produced by a medicine. Then they not only move the bowels but improve the appetite and aid the digestion. For sale at 25 cents per bottle by H. C. Geisler.

Mistakes Men Make.

If it be true that a man who never makes mistakes never makes anything at all it is equally true that an orator who never says an indiscreet thing may be confidently reckoned on never to say anything at all worth hearing. —London World.

HILL'S STRAW MAN.

The appointment of Judge Cullen to be chief judge of the court of appeals has been followed by a demand on the part of Judge Parker's supporters that the Democratic state convention unite with Republicans in nominating him for a full term for that position.

David B. Hill, these newspapers say, has decided to nominate Judge D. Cady Herrick for this place.

A considerable outcry has been raised that Hill proposes to do this in revenge against Judge Cullen for giving decisions adverse to Hill when he and his associates were stealing the senate in 1891.

Along with this outcry came a demand that Judge Parker interfere and insist on Cullen. If he did that Parker could get a lot of glory which might bolster up his sagging cause.

But now comes the New York Tribune and points out that this entire Herrick talk is simply a man of straw set up for the express purpose of being knocked down by Judge Parker.

Hill, it is declared, has all along intended to name Cullen, but it costs him nothing to let papers of his own party abuse him. He is used to that, and as he proposes to retire, he says, on the 1st of January, where was the harm in letting Parker get a little glory by posing as the real leader of the party? Hill rightly judges that decent people of the state would rather have Parker than himself as the big boss.

So it was "framed up" that a message should go from Esopus which would result in nominating Cullen, while Parker's glorifiers would put another halo on him.

But the Tribune story exposed the game, and there will be no occasion for Parker to come to the rescue.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

No one who is acquainted with its good qualities can be surprised at the great popularity of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It not only cures colds and grip effectually and permanently, but prevents these diseases from resulting in pneumonia. It is also a certain cure for croup. Whooping cough is not dangerous when this remedy is given. It contains no opium nor other harmless substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. It is also pleasant to take. When all of these facts are taken into consideration it is not surprising that people in foreign lands, as well as at home, esteem this remedy very highly and very few are willing to take any other after having once used it. For sale by H. C. Geisler.

Remedy For Burns.

For a dry burn, carron oil. Shake the bottle, saturate a soft cloth with the mixture and lay over the burn. Then cover closely with cotton batting or flannel to keep out every bit of air and secure the whole with a light bandage. Burns may also be treated by a thick application of any bland oil, vaseline, sweet oil, castor oil, butter, cold cream or any fat not rancid, excepting glycerin, which is too irritating. Soft powders may also be dusted on—flour, laundry or corn starch. For a burn by scald or steam apply a dressing of saturated soda.

Women Speakers.

Women speak best when they retain their seats at table, the very fact that they are standing and facing their audiences having a tendency to give the bravest of women stage fright. Women orators have the advantage over men in knowing that their attire will have much to do with keeping the attention of their audience. A pretty woman in a pretty gown, a fan, a muff, a jewel, will hold the eyes of the women listeners even if they do not care much for the speech.—What to Eat.

Keeping In Touch With Oneself.

It's good to have money and the things that money will buy, but it's good, too, to check up once in awhile and make sure you haven't lost the things that money won't buy. When a fellow's got what he set out for in this world he should go off into the woods for a few weeks now and then to make sure he's still a man and not a plug hat and a frock coat and a wad of bills.—Saturday Evening Post.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

She was tall, with wavy brown hair and rich, deep brown eyes, just like all brunettes in novels. He was undersized and impecunious, but impressionable and ardent. They lived at the same boarding house for a time. With her he was sentimental, tender, earnest, also inclined to be rash and extravagant with his small earnings in bringing gifts of candy and the like. It is whispered that in a moment of recklessness he bought her two ice cream sodas in succession. But this could never be verified. Circumstances over which she had no control caused her to leave the boarding house without bidding him goodby. Carelessly, too, she neglected to leave her address. He applied to the boarding house mistress in grave distress of soul.

"Do you know," he asked, "where Miss Jones has gone?"

"Now, look here, Mr. Blank," said the kindly woman, "let me advise you not to worry too much about Miss Jones. She's engaged. Didn't you see that ring?"

"Engaged!" he gasped, backing toward the mantel and blindly grabbing at a bunch of cattails for support. "Engaged, did you say? And, great heavens, she let me buy her peanut brittle!"—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Very Remarkable Remedy.

"It is with a great deal of pleasure and satisfaction that I recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Druggist A. W. Sawtelle, of Hartford, Conn. "Recently a gentleman came into my store so overcome with colic pains that he sank at once to the floor. I gave him a dose of this remedy which helped him. I repeated the dose and in fifteen minutes he left my store smilingly informing me that he felt as well as ever." For sale by H. C. Geisler.

A Vegetable With a Pedigree.

Of all the plants used for food there is none which has been so long known or has had, so to say, so distinguished a lineage as asparagus. Its record, in fact, reaches back to almost the commencement of authentic history, as it is mentioned by the comic poet Cratinus, who died about 425 B. C., and was a contemporary of though slightly older than Aristophanes.

Among the Romans also the tasty vegetable was held in high esteem. Cato the elder—not the gentleman who was of opinion that Plato reasoned well, but his great-grandfather, who insisted upon the destruction of Carthage and who was born 243 B. C.—wrote a work, which is still extant, "De Re Rustica," and in it he treats at length of the virtues and proper cultivation of asparagus. Pliny also in his "Natural History" (about 60 A. D.) has much to say on the subject. "Of all the productions of your garden," he feelingly observes, "your chief care will be your asparagus," and he devotes several chapters and parts of chapters to its many beneficent qualities and the best modes of raising it.—Chambers' Journal.

Cause of Lockjaw.

Lockjaw, or tetanus, is caused by a bacillus or germ which exists plentifully in street dirt. It is inactive so long as exposed to the air, but when carried beneath the skin, as in the wounds caused by percussion caps or by rusty nails, and when the air is excluded, the germ is roused to activity and produces the most virulent poison known. These germs may be destroyed and all danger of lockjaw avoided by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely as soon as the injury is received. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and causes such injuries to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. It is for sale by H. C. Geisler.

The Parisian Cafe Caricaturist.

Among other Parisian types described by a recent observer is the cafe caricaturist. "He is a youth with a pale face and very long hair. He looks the type of the bohemian and he is. He offers to draw caricatures for 50 centimes (10 cents). His luncheon is frequently a myth, nor is he always sure of his dinner. But, no matter what the state of his finances, he will have his absinth, to which he adds but little water. The cafe caricaturist is invariably an 'artist who has not succeeded.' He has either been at the Beaux Arts or has studied under some famous painter. Somehow or other he has come to grief and has swelled the ranks of those whom fortune has disinherited."

How to Walk.

There is no virtue in a dawdling saunter. The slow and languid dragging one foot after the other, which some people call walking, would tire an athlete; it utterly exhausts a weak person, and that is the reason why many delicate persons think they cannot walk. To derive any benefit from the exercise it is necessary to walk with a light, elastic step, which swings the weight of the body so easily from one leg to the other that its weight is not felt and which produces a healthy glow, showing that the sluggish blood is stirred to action in the most remote veins.—Family Doctor.

Lamar's Scheme.

The late Senator Lamar of Mississippi was habitually forgetful of everything and everybody except his friends. For years he suffered untold afflictions because of constantly mislaying his eyeglasses and suspenders. While an associate justice of the supreme court he one day beamingly confided to a friend that all of those troubles were over and that his eyeglasses and suspenders never more would trouble him. "How did you manage it?" inquired his friend. "Oh, I had a pair of eyeglasses sewed to every one of my vests and a pair of suspenders to every pair of trousers."

One of Many.

H. A. Tisdale, of Summerton, S. C., suffered for twenty years with the Piles. Specialists were employed and many remedies used, but relief and permanent good was found only in the use of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. This is only one of many, many cures that have been effected by this wonderful remedy. In buying Witch Hazel Salve it is only necessary to see that you get the genuine DeWitt's, made by E. C. DeWitt & Co., in Chicago, and cure is certain. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cures all kinds of piles, cuts, burns, bruises, eczema, tetter, ring-worms, skin diseases, etc. Sold by H. C. Geisler and G. T. Boyington.

Before and After Taking.

Dr. Quackly—Ah—um—you say the medicine I prescribed hasn't stopped the chills! Did you shake well before taking? Dummager—Yes, and afterward too.—Life.

Good For Children.

The pleasant to take and harmless One Minute Cough Cure gives instant relief in all cases of Cough, Croup and La Grippe because it does not pass immediately into the stomach, but takes effect right at the seat of the trouble. It draws out the inflammation, heals and soothes and cures permanently by enabling the lungs to contribute pure life-giving and life-sustaining oxygen to the blood and tissues. Sold by H. C. Giesler and G. T. Boyington.

The Only Way.

"Why is Mrs. Scrappley always sitting down on her husband?"

"Because that's the only way she can get him to support her."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

I never wonder to see men wicked, but I often wonder to see them not ashamed.—Swift.

THIS IS UNSOLICITED.

People Should Know How Mr. Miller Was Cured of Kidney and Bladder Trouble by Dr. Kennedy's NEW Medicine, Cal-cura Solvent.

MATTEAWAN, N. Y., Sept. 28, 1901.

Dr. David Kennedy Estate,
Kennedy Row, Rondout, N. Y.

Gentlemen:

I have been troubled with my Kidneys and Bladder for three or four years and doctored with many physicians without obtaining any help.

A few months ago I decided to try Cal-cura Solvent, Dr. Kennedy's latest medicine, and am thankful to say I am now practically cured. You have not asked me for a testimonial but I wish to tell you what Cal-cura Solvent has done for me and hope that others may be so happily relieved. Yours truly,

WILLIAM H. MILLER.

FALL OPENINGS

J. C. O'Brien

Aside from the tasteful arrangement of new and seasonable goods, this large store did not make any especial effort for the Fall opening which occurred last week. Mr. Smith exercised excellent taste in the arranging of goods in the different departments and he is deserving of compliment for the artistic result obtained. An especially fine display was made of new dress fabrics in black and colors, and there was an endless assortment of fabrics, weaves, colors and prices. Among the newest black goods shown were foulards, Maxilla, Rhodessa, Peruvian, and Victoria cloths. In colors there was a wide variety of Coverts, mannish suitings, Scotch tweeds, zibelines, granite cloth and Venetians. The new Repel-rain cloths for suits, coats and skirts were also shown. There were many exquisite silks and new velvets in this department and a full line of the celebrated Skinner satins for lining outer garments.

The new dress trimmings, braids, beads, buttons, laces, &c, were displayed in fuller assortment than ever before, and they found many buyers.

There was a splendid line of coats, suits, tourist and rain coats, separate skirts, separate waists, and petticoats in silk and novelty goods noted.

The carpet, rug, linoleum, matting and oil cloth department was especially interesting to a goodly number of buyers, and the stock of staple dry goods was never more complete.

The millinery department was replete with the choicest of the season's offerings in trimmed hats, trimmings, untrimmed hats, and ready-to-wear hats. Miss O'Hare and her trimmer, Miss Lubey, are exceedingly well satisfied with the manner in which their creations were complimented, and also with the sales in that department during the three days. Mrs. Walker's dressmaking parlors were of interest too, to the ladies who were out on those days, as she was showing a splendid line of foreign and domestic patterns secured by her in New York city. The most extreme styles were shown as well as the modified, and they were greatly admired.

W. H. Patterson.

W. H. Patterson did not attempt the usual elaborate decorations for this Fall's opening which occurred last week, but the seasonable fabrics, wraps, trimmings, silks, waists, separate skirts, etc, were most attractively arranged and many compliments were bestowed upon the taste that had been used in selecting and the moderation that had been used in pricing the different articles. Among the newest things in dress goods noted were: Kerseys, in black and colors; Panama suitings; English broadcloths; Imperial serge; meltons, coverts, agawana suitings; voiles.

The silks were most attractive in black and colors and the newest crushed velvets for suits, coats, etc., were in all shades and qualities. Laces, buttons and all novelties were also to be found at this store.

The hats were more attractive than ever before and the sales were correspondingly large. Many of those exhibited were reproductions of imported hats seen by Mrs. Hubbard while in New York City and copied by her for her Fulton patrons. The hats of her own designing too, came in for a large meed of praise.

The line of staple dry goods, carpets, upholstery goods, curtains, etc., carried by this firm, is larger than ever before and a customer must be critical indeed who cannot satisfy taste here.

F. P. Connell & Company.

This firm did not attempt to hold a formal opening because they had been disappointed in not getting into their new store in Oneida street, but they made a creditable display of Fall and Winter goods, which is indicative of what they will do in the line of desirable dry goods when they are settled in their new quarters next week.

M. Katz & Company.

The department store of M. Katz & Co. was elaborately decorated on the Fall opening days of last week, when they put their recently purchased stock on exhibition for the inspection of their patrons. Many of the newest things in dress goods, silks, velvets, trimmings, suits, coats, skirts, waists, etc., were noted here, and all had been arranged temptingly and priced reasonably. This firm not only carries dry goods and millinery, but a large line of furniture, rugs, carpets, etc., which is well worth inspecting before going out of town to shop.

M. E. Young

The display of hats at this store was fully up to the high standard of skill and taste always displayed, and many compliments were bestowed upon the handiwork of Miss Van Slyke who has been Miss Youngs trimmer for several seasons. This store will receive a large share of patronage this season if all indications do not fail.

Mrs. F. K. Jones

Mrs. Jones has a new trimmer this season and that her work will give excellent satisfaction to the stores' numerous patrons was evidenced during the opening days last week, by the ready sales that were made. Mrs. Jones has a very complete stock of new millinery goods and invites her friends to inspect it.

Grangers, Attention.

Through a typographical error last week, the Times stated that Worthy Master Hartson, of Oswego County Pomona Grange, had offered prizes of $5 for the best essays on "How can $1 be expended in my school district so as to be of the most benefit to the public?" It should have read, "How can $100 be expended." All papers must be in the hands of the secretary, John McKinley, Central Square, N. Y., before Nov. 20, 1904.

BRISTOL HILL.

The new forty-inch bell has been placed in the belfry of the church, and next Sunday morning, at 10:30 o'clock a special service will be held, at which the bell will be dedicated. It is expected that Dr. P. W. Emens of Syracuse will preach the sermon. Other clergymen also may be present. The bell is a memorial to friends of former years, and at this service the names of the contributors will be read.

The Ladies' Aid Society will meet with Mrs. Charles Parker on Wednesday afternoon.

Cottage prayer meeting at Mr. Delbert Baldwin's home on Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Teachers' meeting at the close of the prayer meeting.

The L. A. S. are planning to hold their annual harvest sale and supper in Mr. James Vant's new barn on Oct. 28th.

Register on Friday.

MARRIED.

At the Congregational parsonage in New Haven, on Oct. 3, by the Rev. Samuel Johnson, Mr Ernest LaPointe and Miss Lizzie Stuber, both of Fulton, were united in marriage.

On Tuesday evening, Oct. 4, at the home of the bride's sister in Syracuse, occurred the marriage of Miss Nora A. Blaiser of Utica and Mr. Elwyn Johnson of this city. The Rev. John Richards was the officiating clergyman. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson are occupying a portion of Miss Boardman's house, 419 Oneida street.

On Sunday, at the home of the bride, No. 208 Seneca street, Miss Maude F. Stoughtenger was united in marriage with Mr. Asa Rice, the Rev. John Richards officiating.

The marriage of Miss Mary F. Calkins of Oswego and Mr. Elmer I. Bradley of this city, which occurred in Oswego on Sept. 7, has just been announced. Mr. and Mrs. Bradley will make this city their home.

On Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Coe, in Scriba, occurred the marriage of Miss Ina Coe and Mr. Leonard Cliff. There were about two hundred guests present.

This Wednesday evening at 5 o'clock at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, will occur the marriage of Miss Margaret Sullivan, and Mr. John Goss, both residents of this city. The bride who will be gowned in blue silk, with white silk and lace waist garnature, will be attended by her sister, Miss Jennie Sullivan as maid. The groomsman will be Mr. Thomas Goss. At the conclusion of the ceremony a dinner will be served at the home of the bride's mother in West Third street, and the young couple will leave on the evening train for a short wedding trip.

This Wednesday afternoon, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs Joseph Albring in Hannibal, N. Y., occurred the marriage of their daughter, Addela D., to Mr. William H. White of this city.

At the appointed hour of three o'clock, the bridal party, to the strains of Mendelesshon's wedding march rendered by the bride's cousin, Mrs. A. J. Stafford of Red Creek, proceeded to the parlor which was decorated with ferns and evergreens, where the ceremony was performed under a floral arch of green and white, the Rev. Paul Brown of Rochester, N. Y. officiating.

The Episcopal ring service was used, the ring being carried on a silver tray by Miss Gaynell Albring, a niece of the bride.

The bride was prettily gowned in white mull over silk, ornamented with medallions of point d' esprit, and she carried a shower boquet of white roses. She was attended by Miss Mabel Whitaker of this city, who wore a gown of gray crepe de chine over taffeta and carried pink roses. Mr. Frederick A. White, brother of the groom, acted as best man.

The Misses Georgia and Helen VanSanford of Fulton, cousins of the bride, received the guests and Mr. Glenn Streeter was usher.

A wedding dinner was served after which the young couple will leave on a short bridal trip. They will be "at home" to their friends at No. 415 Erie street, this city, after Nov. 1. Mr. and Mrs. White are well known in this city and their many friends extend hearty congratulations.

Mr Maurice M. Conley Selected as Member of the Board of Education

On Tuesday afternoon Mr. Maurice Conley received the following letter from Mayor Foster:

Mr. Maurice M. Conley, Fulton, N. Y.

Dear Sir: I hereby appoint you a member of the Board of Education for the Fifth ward, to fill the unexpired term of Dr. Marsh, who has removed from the ward.

I trust this will be as acceptable to you as it is a pleasure to me to make the appointment, believing, as I do, that you look broadly upon the school question, which is one of our most important duties.

Yours respectfully,
J. A. FOSTER, Mayor.

Mr. Conley's friends are heartily congratulating him upon this important and responsible appointment. He will very capably represent the educational interests of the ward.

DIED.

Bernice E., the 15-year old daughter of Mr and Mrs E. S. Jacobs, died at their home three miles south of this city on Sunday. The funeral services will be held from the late home this Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock, the Rev. John Richards officiating. Interment in Mt. Adnah.

John Cole, aged 64, died at his home in South First street on Tuesday, after a brief illness. The funeral services were held from his late home on Thursday morning. Interment was made in Wolcott. The funeral was attended by Post Schenck, G. A. R., in a body.

Clark Wheeler, the infant son of Dr. and Mrs. H. L. Lake, died at their home in Fourth street on Wednesday. The funeral services were held from the parent's home on Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, the Rev. W. L. Sawtelle officiating. Interment was made in Mt. Adnah.

The remains of Edward Elliott, who died at his home in Buffalo last week, were brought to this city on Wednesday and taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Gardner in Eighth street where the funeral services were held on Thursday, the Rev. John Richards officiating. The deceased is survived by his widow and two sisters, Mrs. G. E. Simons and Mrs. Gardner.

Women's $10.00 and $12.00 Suits

These suits are the sample line of a prominent manufacturer. Only a few of each, and each a beauty. Wool cheviots, elegantly made and in every way worth the $10 and $12 that it was intended to sell them for. On sale this week at........ $5

$12.50 to $18.00 Suits at $7.50

$15.00 to $22.50 Suits at $9.98

One lot of ladies' wool cheviot suits in blue and black; garments which ordinarily we could not sell to you at less than $12.50 to $18.00. While they last our price will be.......$7.50

Sounds like too big a saving to be true, but the suits are here to back up the statement, and that's the best possible proof that could be advanced. These garments equal in every way our $15 to $22.50 suits, and if bought in the ordinary way would have to be sold at those prices.

We advise early selection, as the garments advertised cannot be duplicated later at these prices. You can save one-third on all higher-priced suits here.

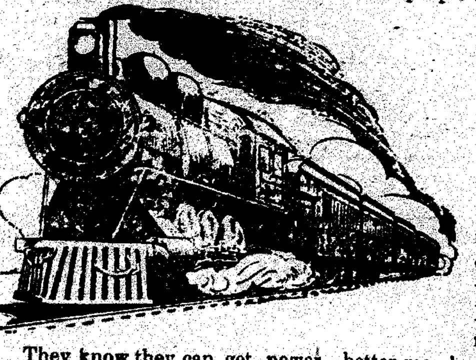
Rosenbloom's Free Railroad Excursion Again This Week

Thursday, Friday and Saturday, October 13, 14, 15

Railroad fare both ways will be refunded to people coming from Fulton and intermediate points and purchasing in this store goods to the value of $10 or more. Return railroad ticket to be shown at Transfer Desk.



People living at points beyond Fulton will have railroad fares refunded up to a distance of 35 miles.

Ask for a transfer ticket when making your first purchase. It will save you time and trouble.

Last week's Free Excursion offer met with a more numerous acceptance even than our offer during State Fair week. In September people visiting the Fair came incidentally to this store. Now, having got acquainted with the store, they make it their business to come here.

They know they can get newer, better merchandise for less money than they would have to pay elsewhere, while in addition they get the benefit of our Free Railroad Excursion.

This week's specials represent the greatest bargains offered by any store during the present year.

Public Library

TO THE "PURE" JUDICIARY LEAGUE

NICENESS AD NAUSEAM!

O Purity, Purity, covered with shame
Thou must be at the things that are done in thy name!
How thy face must oft flush with the fierceness of fire,
As thy cloak is bespattered and dragged through the mire!
How thy fingers must itch 'those self-seekers to brand
Who so shamelessly speak in thy name through the land—
All those self-advertisers who, deaf to thy plea,
Would attempt to make Prurience pass off for thee!

Say, what can your thoughts be when men are misled
And the path of the Prurient readily tread!
How best can we show how we loathe and despise
Such spiteful, malevolent, deceitful Paul Prys?
What words can we use our opinions to utter
Of the fellows who hunt with their nose in the gutter,
And who, if they can but some notice annex,
Are so willing in public to libel their sex?

We fear that men who are so nastily nice,
Will be little inclined to give ear to advice,
But still we would counsel them, if they indeed
Are inspired by the excellent motives they plead,
To discover forthwith some more manly way
In which their hysterical zeal to display;
Some mode less suggestive in which to express
That love for the "pure" they so loudly profess.

If they want to do good there's no need for parade;
The best of all deeds can be done in the shade.
They will find all around them—the harvest is ripe—
There are sorrows to soothe, there are eyes they can wipe;
There are mourners and outcasts for comfort who crave,
There are brothers in trouble to succor and save;
There are wounds to bind up, there are victims to shield;
There are scandals to cure that can not be concealed.

But when "to do good" these "reformers" set out
They begin with a shrill, introductory shout;
They take, never fear, most inordinate care
Their "purifying" is worked in publicity's glare.
The good deed done by stealth 's small attraction for them,
Unsensational kindness they sternly contemn.
Against imaginary wrong they have had but one plan—
To produce as much hubbub as ever they can.

The manly instinct which shrinks from display
Has been stifled by them for full many a day,
Their modesty—attribute far above cost—
In their dragon-like virtue is hopelessly lost.
Their charity, if it were ever possessed,
Has been only too thoroughly curb'd and repress'd;
Whilst their plain common-sense, like a too tender plant,
Has been choked by the growth of unlimited cant.

Still worse, to accomplish their prejudiced end,
To libel and slander they glibly descend.
The men who 'gainst their decrees dare to stand,
With an impudent charge of unchasteness they brand;
And withal they're so dense in their crass self-conceit
That they even are able their conscience to cheat.
Thus they little imagine that they, in their way,
Are as weak as the charges 'gainst which they inveigh.

For them and the parts they now do essay
We can only our strongest abhorrence display,
'Tis a slur on the qualities men chiefly prize
That attention is paid to such dastardly spies;
'Tis a shame to our manhood that men such as they Should a role so debased be enabled to play;
'Tis a scandal such creatures as these to permit,
In the ears of the public their venom to spit.

MARRIED.

On Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Wood on the west side, occurred the marriage of Mrs. Lena A. Dann and Mr. William White of Lysander, the Rev. John Richards officiating. Mr. and Mrs. White will make their home in Lysander.

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Johnston, on Wednesday evening occurred the marriage of their daughter, Miss Edith V. Johnson to Mr. James G. Hawthorne, the Rev. S. D. Robinson officiating. After a brief bridal trip Mr. and Mrs. Hawthorne will make their home in this city.

On Wednesday evening, Oct. 12, at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride, No. 13 East Thirty-second street, Bayonne, New Jersey, was solemnized the marriage of Mr. Leon Horace Schenck, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Schenck of this city, and Miss Sarah Letitia Hawkes, the Rev. Henry J. Johnston of the M. E. church, Bayonne, officiating. The sacred words which united the young couple were spoken beneath an arch of autumn leaves and goldenrod and the home decorations were of the same seasonable foliage and flowers. The bride who is one of Bayonne's society favorites and a most accomplished pianist, was gowned in white messaline over white taffeta, with a waiste garnature of Dutchess lace bertha and stock. The gown was elaborately shirred. A tulle veil was worn and brides' roses carried. The maid of honor was Miss Florence Marian Schenck of Cornell University, who wore an exceedingly becoming gown of white silk, made 1830 style, with lace yoke and pearl collar. She carried white chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids were the Misses Francis Craig Hawkes and Eleanor Urcilla Hawkes of Camden, N. J., nieces of the bride. They were gowned in white chiffon, lace trimmed, and wore yellow girdles. They carried yellow chrysanthemums. The best man was Mr. Herbert Lee Cowing of Brooklyn, a college chum of the groom, and the ushers were Mr. Mahlon Freeman of Fulton and Mr. Lewis Parker Remyon of Perth Amboy, N. J. The bride was given away by her father. Mrs. Hawkes wore a beautiful gown of black peau de soie with ribbon and lace trimmings. Mr. Schenck is a graduate of Fulton High school, Western University of Alleghany, Pa., and Cornell University. He was a draughtsman for the Central railroad of New Jersey for three years and at present holds a superior position in the Engineering department of the American Locomotive Co., at Schenectady. He is a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and is also a member of the New York Railroad Club. Mrs. Schenck is secretary of the Featherweight Eyeshade Co., of Bayonne. Mr. and Mrs. Schenck are enjoying an extended bridal trip among the mountains of New Jersey, and to Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. Mr. Schenck's boyhood friends in this city will extend sincere congratulations and best wishes.

Mr. Brooker's Statement.

Mr. George W. Brooker, who is the unanimous nominee of the Republican party for mayor of this City, makes the following statement:

"In order to make my position entirely plain to the citizens of Fulton, who have a right to know the intentions of a candidate for mayor, with reference to appointments for the different boards, I desire to state that if I am elected I pledge my word that I will not appoint any member of the present Board of Public Works to any position nor permit the present superintendent of Public Works to be re-appointed; that I will appoint competent and acceptable men to every city office; that I will enforce all of the provisions of the city charter in accordance with my oath of office, and that I will use my best endeavors to give the city a straight, clean and economical administration.

Each of the members of the Board of Public Works and their superintendent have voluntarily assured me and the public generally that under no circumstances would they accept a re-appointment, but to prevent the possibility of a misunderstanding, I make the foregoing statement."

JUDGE STOWELL'S ARMY RECORD.

S. E. Chandler Revives Incidents Which Occurred During the Stormy Days of the Rebellion.

EDITOR TIMES: Four years ago the Minnesota State Legislature enacted a primary election law enabling members of each party to nominate men for the various offices by ballot, thereby doing away with caucuses and county and congressional conventions.

Any one desiring to run for any office in the State (except State offices) could, by paying $10, have his name placed on the primary ticket of his party. All names must be in the hands of the county auditor before the 1st of September, after which the tickets were printed, and on the Tuesday nearest the 20th of September the primary election is held.

Before election, the candidates put in the time in getting out and hustling, visiting every manufacturing plant in the city, where they will hold forth to the workmen (during the noon hour), telling them how much they love them, passing 'round a box of cigars, distributing their cards containing a picture of themselves, with a brief history of what great things they have done for the city, and in "looking pleasant." And at night a few of them club together and hire a hall and try to convince the people that the affairs of the county, city or ward will be safe only if they are nominated.

The law has been amended once, and it gives fairly good satisfaction. It is here to stay, as the people would not go back to the old method "primaries," with their system of "packing."

Judge Stowell's Army Record

I often see the name of the Hon. Merrick Stowell in The Times, in connection with the judgeship of Oswego County. I remember him very distinctly as a member of Company B, of the Twenty-fourth New York Volunteers. He and his brother, George, enlisted in the same company and were among the best men of the [illegible] company in the regiment.

He went out as private and "stayed by" until the regiment returned home. He was promoted to first sergeant, which position he held until the close of his enlistment, participating in the battles of Falmouth, April 17, 1862; Second Bull Run, August 29 and 30, 1862; South Mountain, September 14, 1862; Antietam, September 17, 1862; Fredericksburg, December 12, 13 and 14, 1862, and Chancelorsville, May 1, 2, 3 and 4, 1863.

At the battle of Antietam the regiment was commanded by Captain O'Brien of Company A, who was wounded by a grape shot, when Sergeant Merrick Stowell assumed command, he being the senior officer at the time. He held the little band together throughout the rest of that never-to-be-forgotten day, which was reduced in killed and wounded so that when they were relieved at the close of the battle there were but seventeen left of the Twenty-fourth Regiment. None who were with Sergeant Stowell at that time will ever forget the close feeling of true comradeship that existed between the members of that little band, as they fought side by side, with their comrades dropping one by one.

Later, at the battle of Fredericksburg, Sergeant Stowell commanded the left wing of the regiment, which was protecting the left of the army below the city.

During his service he could always be relied on in all emergencies to faithfully perform his duty in a fearless manner, and from what I have learned of his subsequent life I think he has maintained that same devotion to duty and strict integrity in civil life that characterized him while fighting for the old flag.

S. E. CHANDLER.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 12, 1904.

CAPABLE, SAFE AND SANE.

The selection of Mr. George W. Brooker for the office of mayor of this city by the Republican convention last Wednesday, was an exceeding happy choice. Mr. Brooker is eminently qualified for the duties of the office, having had a great deal of experience as president of the Common Council during the period of transition from village to civic form of government. He has a thorough knowledge of the charter and also of the needs of the city. The interests of the taxpayers will be well taken care of, should Mr. Brooker be elected, and the Times sincerely hopes he will be.

There will be many improvements inaugurated within the next year. The west side sewerage system is certainly the most important and the one involving the greatest outlay. New sidewalks; street improvements and the extension of the water system, are all matters of the gravest moment and will receive the earliest attention consistent with a wise and economical administration. In the matter of street improvements, it should not be forgotten that the limitations of the Board of Public Works are prescribed by the charter. They have no power except that which is delegated to them by owners of adjacent property where improvements may be desired.

There is certainly great necessity for economy, and Mr. Brooker, from his experience and practical knowledge of financial matters, will be equal to every emergency.

We therefore urge every Republican to vote for Mr. Brooker. He will give the city a clean and business-like administration.

Letter From O. J. Jennings.

The following letter from Mr. O. J. Jennings of Port Royal, Va., a respected resident of this city for years, was clipped from the Oswego Times of last week. It bears so directly on a subject which so vitally interests Republicans that The Times reproduces it. The sentiments it expresses are in accord with the belief of the large majority of Republicans in this city.

"Thinking it may be proper for me to say a few words regarding your candidate for County Judge, I write to say I know Merrick Stowell more thoroughly than most any other man in Oswego County. Forty-two years ago, when he wore the blue and carried a musket in the old 24th Regiment of Volunteers, I watched with interest his sterling qualities as a soldier and was so favorably impressed with him that I asked to have him transferred to the company I commanded that he might be promoted.

"As a soldier he was [illegible] Civil War I have known him well and I believe the same spirit of uprightness and good faith to every trust has governed all his relations with his fellowmen. I do not believe him capable of doing an injustice to any person either as a County Judge or as a private citizen

"Merrick Stowell is an honest man and I trust every veteran of the Civil War now living in Oswego County irrespective of party affiliations will vote for him for County Judge."

Late Capt. Co. E. 24th N. Y. Vol.

PARADE OF UNIFORMED CLUBS.

Grand Republican Rally and Address by Hon. Charles Emery Smith.

The Oswego Marching club will participate in the parade this evening prior to the speech by the Hon. Charles Emory Smith, in Stephens Opera House. The Continentals, Guard Escort and Continental Drum Corps will also participate and the [illegible] Escort has been invited. The parade will form at 7 o'clock. Vocal selections will be rendered by the Continental Glee club at the meeting.

Line of march—First street to Broadway; Broadway to D. L. & W. station; D. L. & W. station back to east Third; Third to Academy; Academy [illegible] Fourth; Fourth to [illegible] Third; Third to [illegible] Hannibal; [illegible] Third street [illegible] First [illegible]

Revival of an Old But Fascinating Game—Women Equestrians Use Divided Skirts—Cemetery and Waterworks on Paying Basis.

[Special Correspondence.]

An old, old game is being played in the West that on account of the added accessories has almost the fascination of something just discovered. It is very popular, and in its new dress is sure to gain in favor whenever introduced. One disadvantage though exists, inasmuch that it is for lovers only, but as this old world is still full of lovers, and every one loves them, they should not be deprived of its advantages. The Western young man when he calls upon his best girl takes along a nice medium-sized red apple. At the proper time he begins to toss the apple into the air. Every time it comes down he can kiss her, but every time it stays up he is not allowed to kiss her.

Young Eve can now reverse the words of the Bible relating to the apple by saying, "Man tempted me and I did eat."

The oft debated subject, "Shall ladies ride horseback astride or not?" has been settled as far as this section is concerned at least, by the ladies—riding astride. We see them every where now, and have ceased to stare as they pass in their semi-cowboy (or cow-girl) outfits.

Divided skirts of course are used, and bloomers underneath. The skirts are very full and my lady may dismount and walk along the streets without attracting undue attention, but in the saddle, and at a short distance, she looks not unlike a cowboy, for she has appropriated his saddle, his hat, and the color of his clothes. She wears sombrero, gauntlets, tight fitting waist, full divided skirt and tan shoes. The suits are made of khaki or courderoy, and the favorite colors are brown or tan. People not used to the new horse-woman will stand and stare at her, but after a few more pass they accept her the same as all innovations are accepted, and the gazer passes on in search of something new and startling.

Sioux City owns her own system of water works and also the largest cemetery here. Both institutions are on a paying basis, and its a wonder to me that all towns and cities do not own or acquire their public utilities. A capitalist has just offered the city $750,000 for the water works system, and the matter is now under consideration. None of the citizens are in favor of selling, and the opinion now is that the proposition will be rejected. In less than ten years the city will be reaping a handsome revenue from the system, and as the rates are now low and the service first-class, there is no [illegible] private capital should [illegible].

CHOICE GROCERIES—USEFUL PREMIUMS.

A Corning Concern Has Arranged to Supply Every Household With Both—Novel and Economic Plan Explained.

Every household in the land uses more or less groceries every week. The housewife's constant aim is to get the best edibles for the least money. This effort is closely connected with the practical side of life. It is a ruinous practice in domestic matters, to pay 75 cents for an article that might be bought for 50 cents. The difference between buying right and careless purchasing, may be turned into a competency for a "rainy day," or old age. A little saved on each item of groceries bought will amount to a considerable sum each year. Now, when is this saving to be accomplished?

The C. R. Maltby Co. of Corning, N. Y., is one of the oldest and most successful business houses in the country. It has been dealing in groceries for more than forty years. Possessing larger capital, goods are bought in enormous quantities from producers, at the lowest possible price. Selling direct to retail grocers no extra charges are incurred for brokers, jobbers, or middlemen. Only by doing business in this way can any concern actually sell choicest goods for a price attractively less than any and all competitors. The Maltby Co. has arranged to sell its entire list of "Signature Brands" of choice family groceries, in sealed packages of various sizes. Included in this list are: Teas, coffees, spices, fancy fruits, cocoa and chocolate, rice, sliced beef, tapioca, rolled oats, mincemeat, popcorn, saleratus, condensed milk, crackers, flour, flavoring extracts, soap, matches—in fact, all kinds of groceries.

All articles are prepared and packed by the company or under its supervision. This means always highest quality and uniform, full quantity, also perfect and pure groceries. You can buy these goods in the smallest grocery and be equally assured of cleanliness and quality. The price is fixed at less than goods of the same quality and weight are sold for by any other firm. In addition the Maltby Co. facsimile signature is on every package. These are valuable. Here's where this concern shares additional profits with its patrons. These signatures are redeemed by a list of their hundreds of useful and valuable articles for wear and household purposes. Among these are: Corning cut-glass, all kinds of silverware, cutlery, watches and chains, toilet articles, razors, carving-sets, furniture, desks, rocking-chairs, electric novelties, pipes, purses, suspenders, umbrellas, sadirons, all kinds of crockery and chinaware, dinner and tea sets, sausage-mills, talking-machines, food-choppers, etc. The value of each signature is based on the price paid for the package on which it is written. Its worth is counted and applied on any article desired, in the entire list. For the purpose of giving each signature a specific value, what is called the point system has been adopted. Each signature is worth a certain number of points. The entire premium list is valued at "points" instead of dollars. So it is that so many signatures, representing so many points will purchase a premium valued at an equal number of points.

These "Signature Brands" of choice groceries are for sale at all grocers. A free illustrated catalogue of premiums can be had for the asking. Remember the C. R. Maltby Co. is a wealthy concern of the highest business standing. It can and will keep its word to the letter. As long as you have to buy groceries why not serve yourself and purse the best? Buy "Signature Brands" and you will use no other.

STATE TAX WIPED OUT

The Amount Saved in This County Under Republican Administration.

Concrete Argument In Favor of the Indirect System of Raising Revenues.

The state tax rate this year is thirteen one-hundredths of a mill, the same as last year. All the revenues needed for the maintenance of the state government come to the treasury from indirect sources.

This makes the third year that the old time burden of direct taxation has been lifted, and the policy of thus raising revenues has become the settled policy of the Republican party in this state.

A study of just what this means to taxpayers is of particular interest at this time because of the threat of the Democrats that they will return to the old form of direct taxation if they elect their state candidates this year.

Of the amount now raised by indirect forms of taxation about $9,000,000 is from the sale of liquor tax certificates under the existing excise law, which Judge Herrick and his party have attacked. Without reference to the decrease in the number of saloons under this law and the lessening of crime, the revenue feature is one which is of especial interest to all citizens.

The issue of direct taxes or freedom from them is directly raised.

In 1893, under Democratic administration, the tax rate was 2.58 mills, and the amount thus levied on property owners was $9,155,742.

The amount levied under the thirteen one-hundredths levy this year is only $968,041.

The individual taxpayer can easily compute the direct benefit to himself under the Republican policy.

A taxpayer this year who has property assessed at $1,000 pays of state tax 13 cents. If his property is valued at $5,000 his state tax will be 65 cents. In 1893 the $1,000 valuation would have paid $2.58 and the $5,000 valuation would have paid $12.90.

The saving to the several counties in the state under the present Republican system amounts in each case to many thousands of dollars and in the larger counties to hundreds of thousands. It affects the purse of the large and the small taxpayer alike. The man whose farm and other property is assessed at $5,000 gets a direct benefit of $12.35, and the factory which is assessed at $50,000 has a lighter tax bill by ten times that amount, or $123.50.

The facts present a concrete argument which appeals to all.

It is doubtful if the taxpayers of the state will decide to return to the old system.

The saving to every township in every county is of interest to all who are in any way concerned in the business affairs of their own locality.

The rate this year being the same as last, the tax will be the same, except for slight differences due to variation in the assessed valuation.

The showing made for this county is a striking one. Here are the figures under the old Democratic system and under the present system, showing the amounts saved by the county in the aggregate and how it was divided among the towns in 1903:

OSWEGO COUNTY.

	State tax 1893; rate 2 58-100 mills.	State tax 1903; rate 13-100 mills.	Amount saved.
Albion	$1,084.82	$52.22	$1,032.60
Amboy	436.15	22.31	413.84
Boylston	414.58	18.88	395.70
Constantia	1,067.58	51.26	1,016.32

AVARICIOUS OF POWER.

[From the New York Evening Mail.]

The World takes Herrick's nomination as another triumph of "an independent, watchful and fearless press," and yet its account of his life says that "after becoming a justice he continued to be the political boss of Albany;" "his long association with low and disreputable ward politicians has puzzled many lawyers;" he is "avaricious of power," "dictatorial" and "seldom forgives a foe;" he "was the master of a political organization which knew no law but the law of success," and "men on every street corner in Albany will declare that if there is a trick in the political trade that Judge Herrick does not know it is not worth knowing." Such is the portrait of the man painted by his party friends and supporters.

The man who stole a state convention and then a state senate is Governor Odell's accuser.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS, 1904.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing amendment to article seven of the Constitution, relating to improvement of highways.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the seventh article of the Constitution be amended by adding thereto the following section: § 12. Improvement of Highways.—A debt or debts of the State may be authorized by law for the improvement of highways. Such highways shall be determined under general laws, which shall also provide for the equitable apportionment thereof among the counties. The aggregate of the debts authorized by this section shall not at any one time exceed the sum of fifty millions of dollars. The payment of the annual interest of such debt and the creation of a sinking fund of at least two per centum per annum to discharge the principal at maturity shall be provided by general laws whose force and effect shall not be diminished during the existence of any debt created thereunder. The legislature may by general laws require the county or town or both to pay to the sinking fund the proportionate part of the cost of any such highway within the boundaries of such county or town and the proportionate part of the interest thereon, but no county shall at any time for any highway be required to pay more than thirty-five hundredths of the cost of such highway, and no town more than fifteen hundredths. None of the provisions of the fourth section of this article shall apply to debts for the improvement of highways hereby authorized. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the Constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 1, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 2, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER TWO.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the constitution in relation to the time within which debts of the state must be paid and striking from said section certain limitations.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section four of article seven of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VII. § 4. Except the debts specified in sections two and three of this article, no debts shall be hereafter contracted by or in behalf of this state, unless such debt shall be authorized by a law for some single work or object, to be distinctly specified therein; and such law shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax to pay, and sufficient to pay, the interest on such debt as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal of such debt within fifty years from the time of the contracting thereof. No such law shall take effect until it shall, at a general election, have been submitted to the people, and have received a majority of all the votes cast for and against it at such election. On the final passage of such bill in either house of the legislature, the question shall be taken by ayes and noes, to be duly entered on the journals thereof, and shall be: "Shall this bill pass, and ought the same to receive the sanction of the people?" The legislature may at any time, after the approval of such law by the people, if no debt shall have been contracted in pursuance thereof, repeal the same; and may at any time, by law, forbid the contracting of any further debt or liability under such law; but the tax imposed by such act, in proportion to the debt and liability which may have been contracted, in pursuance of such law, shall remain in force and be irrepealable, and be annually collected, until the proceeds thereof shall have made the provision hereinbefore specified to pay and discharge the interest and principal of such debt and liability. The money arising from any loan or stock creating such debt or liability shall be applied to the work or object specified in the act authorizing such debt or liability, or for the payment of such debt or liability, and for no other purpose whatever. No such law shall be submitted to be voted on, within three months after its passage or at any general election when any other law, or any bill, shall be submitted to be voted for or against. The legislature may provide for the issue of bonds of the state to run for a period not exceeding fifty years in lieu of bonds heretofore authorized but not issued and shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax for the payment of the same as hereinbefore required. When any sinking fund created under this section shall equal in amount the debt for which it was created, no further direct tax shall be levied on account of said sinking fund and the legislature shall reduce the tax to an amount equal to the accruing interest on such debt. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 21, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 22, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER THREE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the constitution in relation to justices of the appellate division of the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section two of article six of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VI. § 2. The legislature shall divide the state into four judicial departments. The first department shall consist of the county of New York; the others shall be bounded by county lines, and be compact and equal in population as nearly as may be. Once every ten years the legislature may alter the judicial departments, but without increasing the number thereof. There shall be an appellate division of the supreme court, consisting of seven justices in the first department, and of five justices in each of the other departments. In each department four shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of three shall be necessary to a decision. No more than five justices shall sit in any case. From all the justices elected to the supreme court the governor shall designate those who shall constitute the appellate division in each department; and he shall designate the presiding justice thereof, who shall act as such during his term of office, and shall be a resident of the department. The other justices shall be designated for terms of five years or the unexpired portions of their respective terms of office, if less than five years. From time to time as the terms of such designations expire, or vacancies occur, he shall make new designations. A majority of the justices so designated to sit in the appellate division, in each department shall be residents of the department. He may also make temporary designations in case of the absence or inability to act of any justice in the appellate division, or in case the presiding justice of any appellate division shall certify to him that one or more additional justices are needed for the speedy disposition of the business before it. Whenever the appellate division in any department shall be unable to dispose of its business within a reasonable time, a majority of the presiding justices of the several departments at a meeting called by the presiding justice of the department in arrears may transfer any pending appeals from such department to any other department for hearing and determination. No justice of the appellate division shall, within the department to which he may be designated to perform the duties of an appellate justice, exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court, other than those of a justice out of court, and those pertaining to the appellate division, or to the hearing and decision of motions submitted by consent of counsel, but any such justice, when not actually engaged in performing the duties of such appellate justice in the department to which he is designated, may hold any term of the supreme court and exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court in any county or judicial district in any other department of the state. From and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, the appellate division shall have the jurisdiction now exercised by the supreme court at its general terms and by the general terms of the court of common pleas for the city and county of New York, the superior court of the city of New York, the superior court of Buffalo and the city of Brooklyn, and such additional jurisdiction as may be conferred by the legislature. It shall have power to appoint and remove a reporter. The justices of the appellate division in each department shall have power to fix the times and places for holding special terms therein, and to assign the justices in the departments to hold such terms; or to make rules therefor. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 29, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 6, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FOUR.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to trial commissioners.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that section six of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 6. Circuit courts and courts of oyer and terminer are abolished from and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five. All their jurisdiction shall thereupon be vested in the supreme court, and all actions and proceedings then pending in such courts shall be transferred to the supreme court for hearing and determination. Any justice of the supreme court, except as otherwise provided in this article, may hold court in any county. Whenever and as often as the causes upon the trial term calendar of any county of this state, having a population according to the latest state enumeration of over five hundred thousand, shall have so accumulated that an unpreferred cause cannot be reached for trial in due course within one year after it has been placed upon the calendar, the appellate division of the department in which such county is embraced may, by a certificate signed by a majority of its members, certify the fact to the court of appeals, whereupon said court may by order authorize the appointment in said county of trial commissioners, stating in said order the number of commissioners to be appointed, and their terms of office, not exceeding six years. Such order shall be made in duplicate and one copy thereof filed in the office of the secretary of state, and one in the office of the clerk of the county in which said appointments are authorized. The appellate division of the department embracing said county shall thereupon appoint the number of trial commissioners authorized by said order, who must possess the qualifications required for a justice of the supreme court. They shall possess and exercise in the county for which they are appointed all the powers of a justice of the supreme court respecting the trial and disposition of causes upon said trial term calendar and the settlement of cases on appeal, but shall possess none of the powers of such a justice out of court or at special term. They may be removed in the same manner as is provided in case of a justice of said supreme court. They shall each receive an annual salary of twelve thousand dollars to be paid by the county for which they are appointed, and may not practice law. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 23, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 6, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FIVE.

Concurrent resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the constitution.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section seven of article seven be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Forest preserve.—The lands of the state, now owned or hereafter acquired, constituting the forest preserve as now fixed by law, shall be forever kept as wild forest lands, except as hereinafter provided. They shall not be leased, sold or exchanged, or be taken by any corporation, public or private, nor shall the timber thereon be sold, removed or destroyed. The legislature may authorize the removal of dead timber on burned areas so far as necessary for reforestation, through officers and employees of the state, but not by contract. The legislature may also authorize the sale of lands outside of the limits of the Adirondack park and the Catskill park as such parks are now established by law. The proceeds of such sales shall be set apart in a separate fund and used only for the purchase of lands in such parks. A violation of this section may be restrained at the suit of the people or with the consent of the supreme court on notice to the attorney-general at the suit of any citizen of the state. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 4, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 9, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State, at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section one of article two of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SIX.

Concurrent resolution, proposing amendment to section one of article two of the constitution relating to qualification of voters.

Resolved (if the senate concur), that section one of article two of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article II. Section 1. Qualification of voters.—Every male citizen of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a citizen for ninety days, and an inhabitant of this state one year next preceding an election, and for the last four months a resident of the county or of a city comprising more than one county, and for the last thirty days a resident of the election district in which he may offer his vote, shall be entitled to vote at such election in the election district of which he shall at the time be a resident, and not elsewhere, for all officers that now are or hereafter may be elective by the people, and upon all questions which may be submitted to the vote of the people, provided that in time of war no elector in the actual military service of the state, or of the United States, in the army or navy thereof, shall be deprived of his vote by reason of his absence from such election district; and the legislature shall have power to provide the manner in which and the time and place at which such absent electors may vote, and for the return and canvass of their votes in the election districts in which they respectively reside.

State of New York: In Assembly, Mar. 23, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section one of article two, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to sections one and seven of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SEVEN.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to article six of the constitution in relation to providing additional justices of the supreme court and judges of the court of appeals.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section one of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 1. Supreme court; court of appeals; how constituted; judicial districts.—The supreme court is continued with general jurisdiction in law and equity, subject to such appellate jurisdiction of the court of appeals as now is or may be prescribed by law not inconsistent with this article. The existing judicial districts of the state are continued until changed as hereinafter provided. The supreme court shall consist of the justices now in office, and of the judges transferred thereto by the fifth section of this article, all of whom shall continue to be justices of the supreme court during their respective terms, and of twelve additional justices who shall reside in and be chosen by the electors of, the several existing judicial districts, three in the first district, three in the second, and one in each of the other districts; and of their successors. The successors of said justices shall be chosen by the electors of their respective judicial districts. The legislature may alter the judicial districts once after every enumeration under the constitution, of the inhabitants of the state, and thereupon reapportion the justices to be thereafter elected in the districts so altered. The legislature may at any time, when it deems that the public interests requires it, increase the number of justices of the supreme court or of judges of the court of appeals as it sees fit, provided that the total number of judges of the court of appeals shall not exceed eleven, and provided also that any bill increasing the number of justices or judges as aforesaid shall receive the assent of two-thirds of the members elected to each branch of the legislature. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section seven of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Court of appeals.—The court of appeals is continued. It shall consist of the chief judge and associate judges now in office, and of such additional judges as the legislature may from time to time provide in accordance with section one of this article and as may be elected according to law, who shall hold their offices until the expiration of their respective terms, and of their successors, who shall be chosen by the electors of the state. The official terms of the chief judge and associate judges shall be fourteen years from and including the first day of January next after their election. The legislature may provide by law for the manner in which the court shall sit, whether in two divisions or one, and for the number of members of the court necessary to form a quorum in either instance and also for the number whose concurrence shall be necessary to a decision. The court shall have power to appoint and to remove its reporter, clerk and attendants. § 3. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 13, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to sections one and seven of article six, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER EIGHT.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That section six of article six of the constitution be amended by adding thereto the following: In any department in which supreme court commissioners have been appointed, the justices of the appellate division of the department, or a majority of them, are authorized from time to time to designate one or more of such supreme court commissioners to hold trial terms of the supreme court within such department and to revoke such designation. A supreme court commissioner so designated shall have power to hold a trial term of the supreme court within said department and to perform the duties of a justice of the supreme court in the trial term to which he may be assigned. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, to be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 15, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

LABOR'S SHARE OF PROSPERITY.

Savings of Labor Increase Faster Than General Savings.

Our foreign born citizens are sometimes told that the protective policy of the Republican party is for the benefit of manufacturers and employers and not for the benefit of labor. They hear it said that the "rich are growing richer and the poor are growing poorer."

That is not true. Every sensible workingman knows that it is the protective policy which keeps up wages. He knows that if protection were defeated, as the Democratic party proposes, wages in the United States would go down toward the level of wages in Europe. Protection benefits labor more than any other interests.

This can be plainly shown. Everybody knows that when labor prospers it puts its savings in savings banks and in life insurance benefit associations. The savings banks represent the savings of labor. In 1880 the total amount of deposits in savings banks in the United States was $819,000,000, in 1890 it was $1,525,000,000 and in 1903 it was $2,935,000,000. In other words, in 1903 it was nearly twice as much as it was in 1890 and three and a half times as much as it was in 1880.

Now, the whole wealth of the United States in 1903 was only a little over half as much again as it was in 1890 and only a little over twice what it was in 1880—that is to say, while the savings of labor increased three and a half times the general wealth only doubled.

This shows that the growth of labor savings was faster than the general growth of wealth. It shows that the workingmen were steadily increasing their share in the general prosperity. It completely answers the untrue statement that "the rich are growing richer and the poor are growing poorer." What is true is that the whole body of the people are growing better off, and the working people with the rest.

This can be shown in another way. England is a free trade country. The United States under Republican rule is a protection country. Take the same eight leading industries in both, such as iron and steel, cotton, woolen, boots and shoes, earthenware and glass, etc. In England from 1880 to 1900 the number of workers in these industries increased only 6 per cent, while the population during the same time increased 25 per cent. In the United States in the same period the number of workers increased 56 per cent and the population 52 per cent—that is to say, in free trade England the number of workers in the leading industries increased only one-quarter as fast as the population, while in protection United States they increased just as fast as population.

The Democratic party seeks to establish here through the election of Parker the policy of free trade England. The Republican party through the election of Roosevelt would maintain the policy of protection United States. The naturalized citizens who have come here to enjoy the benefits of the United States cannot fail to stand with Roosevelt.

Bishop Thinks America Has Mission in Philippines.

[From the Washington Post.]

"As to the Philippines, speaking for myself alone, I believe that we, as a people, are in the Philippine Islands in harmony with the will of God, which is working to the redemption of the uttermost parts of the earth. Things are best as they are, first, for what we shall do for the Filipinos; second, for what they shall do for us; third, because we have reached that day in the history of the world when the orient is waking up, and I believe God wants the American nation to have a part in that great development."

The speaker was the Rev. Bishop F. W. Warne of Lucknow, India, one of the three Indian bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church, who preached recently at Foundry church in Washington to a large congregation.

MONEY FOR SCHOOLS

More Liberal Provision by Republicans Than by Democrats.

High School Tuition Given Free by the State In Rural Counties.

The appropriations for public schools of the state have been much more liberal under Republican administration than they were under the preceding years, when the Democrats had control of the state government.

For the common schools the increase has been $558,897.15.

The state has also increased the appropriations for academic departments and has made provision whereby pupils in remote districts may receive free tuition in high schools.

In addition to the figures above named, the state appropriated in 1904 for academic departments $342,000 as compared with $106,000 in 1894. In 1894 the state appropriated nothing for nonresident pupils, while in 1904 the appropriation was $260,000.

The total increase for the benefit of public schools in 1904 over 1894 is $1,053,657, not including an increase of $45,000 for school libraries, which makes $1,098,657 as the total increase of appropriations for educational purposes.

The following is a summary of the principal appropriations made by the legislatures of 1894 and 1904 for the benefit of schools:

	1894.	1904.	Increase.
Support of common schools	$3,745,000	$4,095,000	$350,000
Support of normal schools	364,984	484,650	119,666
Support of teachers' institutes	30,000	70,000	40,000
Teachers' training classes and schools	60,000	107,991	47,991
Aid of academic departments	106,000	342,000	236,000
Nonresident tuition	......	260,000	260,000
Total	$4,305,984	$5,359,641	$1,053,657

The following shows the aid given to academic departments in the years 1894 and 1904 by counties:

The state constitution requires a reapportionment of the senate and assembly in 1906. If Herrick wins this year he and Tammany Hall will make the apportionment, which will give Tammany larger power than it has yet had and result in the election of Democratic United States senators for ten years.

It is up to the voters.

CAMPAIGN "ISMS."

One hears so much about "ism" these days that it behooves us to look "ism" squarely in the face and see what it is. It appears most frequently in the opposition newspapers and it is bestowed only upon these men in political life whom their party have honored with preference. In national affairs, Democracy shudders at Roosevelitism; in State affairs, Odellism causes it to shiver and quake, while in county affairs, Stowellism strikes terror to Democracy's heart. Were all men fools, this "ism" might mislead them and cause Demoracy, with its reign of terror of the Cleveland period, to be re-enacted; but as it is, "ism" is taken for what it stands—a lack of a better issue—and Republicans are reminding each other that but a few years since the same newspapers were declaring that McKinleyism was to be shunned as the plague; Hannaism was the deadliest foe that confronted our Nation, etc. William McKinley and Marcus Hanna have been taken away and the same newspapers, figuratively, wept at their biers and hailed them as heroes, martyrs, saviors of their country and highest American ideals of manhood. When the present leaders in our nation, State and county shall have passed away, Democracy will find that they deserve a niche with the "isms" just mentioned, and will acknowledge through their editorial columns that the Republican party with its magnificent leaders, was always "safe and sane," in entrusting to such capable hands the government of its affairs. It is always safe to trust the majority in this grand Republic, and Republicanism will prevail for at least four years more.

INTEREST on the goverment debt was $9,000,000 less last year than it was under Cleveland's administration. Extravagance?

THE Republican party invites judgment on its record. The Democratic party asks power on the strength of promises.

AMERICA has gone farther than any other nation of this or any other day in the cause of international peace. Honest Democrats admit this.

THE Democratic position regarding the Isthmian canal seems to be that tney are mighty glad to get it, but want to hit Mr. Roosevelt with a brick for giving it to them.

JUDGE PARER appeals for "the rule of the people." Might try it first in some of the Southern States which are Democratic only because they do not have a rule of the people.

THE convicted postal officials will have difficulty in understanding what the Democrats mean by accusing the administration of lack of energy in the prosecution of grafters.

Sewer Contract Awarded.

DIED.

Ann Flynn, aged 83, died on Thursday at the home of her son, Mr. Thomas Flynn in Hannibal street. The funeral was held from the Catholic church on Wednesday morning at 9.30 o'clock. The deceased is survived by three sons, Messrs. Thomas, Michael and Patrick of this city, and one daughter, Mrs. Bidwell of Albany.

Ellen M. Swan, aged, 79, widow of the late John Swan, died at her home in Corning on Saturday. The remains were brought to this city and funeral services will be held from the Presbyterian church this Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, the Rev. W. L. Sawtelle officiating. Interment in Mt. Adnah.

Nancy J., aged 84, wife of Charles L. Spencer, died at her home at Gilberts Mills, Wednesday morning, Oct. 12. Besides a husband, the deceased leaves two sons and a daughter, Mason Blodgett of Gilberts Mills, Monroe Blodgett of Fulton and Mrs. A. Bidwell of Sterling. Funeral services were held from the Baptist church at Gilberts Mills, Friday morning. Interment at Hannibal cemetry.

Ellen E. Swan, aged 79, entered into rest on Sunday, Oct. 16, at the home of her son, John Swan, at Corning, N. Y. The deceased was well known and highly respected in Fulton. She was the daughter of John I. Walrath and the widow of John W. Swan. The remains were brought here for interment. Services were held in the Presbyterian church chapel this Wednesday afternoon. Interment in the family burial plot at Mount Adnah.

The death of the Rev. Richard Redhead, aged 81, came suddenly and unexpectedly on Tuesday noon although he had been in ill health for several years. The deceased who was at one time pastor of the First M. E. church in this city, is survived by one son, Mr. E. R. Redhead of this city, and one daughter, Mrs. Willis, of Syracuse. The funeral arrangements have not been made.

Mrs. H. Lawrence on Saturday received word that her sister, Mrs. A. M. Seeley, had died at the home of her son in Buffalo, where she went two months ago for a visit. The deceased had been a life-long resident of this city and had made her home for several years with Mrs. Lawrence. She was a member of the Free Methodist church and a consistant, earnest christian. The funeral was held from the home of the son in Buffalo on Tuesday afternoon.

Sarah Leavenworth Warner, aged 62 of this city died on Wednesday evening at the House of the Good Shepherd in Syracuse, to which she was removed last week.

Miss Warner was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Warner and was born in the town of Clay She went to Phoenix with her parents fifty years ago, and after residing there for a few years they removed to Fulton.

Miss Warner was a graduate of Falley seminary, the Oswego Normal school, and of Mrs. Anna Randall Diel's school of elocution in New York. Her whole life, except one year spent abroad and four years as preceptress of the schools at Glens Falls, was spent in the schools in Phoenix and Fulton. she was a teacher of unusual ability and strength, and her strongest characteristic was thoroughness, which she not only practiced herself, but required of her pupils. In the early days of the Phoenix Academy and High school Miss Warner did much to improve the school and bring it to its present high standard. She organized the Irving society, the first literary society connected with the school, and it was through her efforts that rhetoricals and the study of elocution was introduced into the school.

The deceased is survived by several nephews and nieces. Funeral services were held from her late home on Friday afternoon and she was laid to rest beside her parents in Mt. Adnah cemetry.

You will not be allowed to vote if you do not register on Friday or Saturday, Oct. 21, 22.

Prohibition Adjourned Meeting.

The adjourned meeting of the Prohibitionists was held in the City Hall on Thursday evening. The Rev. C. J. Taft was chairman and Mr. W. H. Klein secretary. There were ten delegates present out of thirty elected. Six of the ten voted to endorse Mr. Thompson for Mayor, rather than to nominate a candidate of their own, despite the fact the thirty delegates in convention assembled, had adopted a resolution endorsing a straight Prohibition ticket Chairman C. J. Taft announced that Dr. W. H. Crane of Boston would address a Prohibition Mass meeting in Stephen's Opera House before election.

Pastors' Association.

The Ministerial Association of this city will hold their regular monthly meeting in the Baptist church on Monday, Oct. 24, at 10:30 a. m, when an address will be delivered by the Rev. Dr. Pope, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, on Anti-Saloon League work. Laymen from the various churches are invited to this meeting.

REPUBLICAN WARD MEETINGS

Vigorous Campaign will Be Waged Throughout the City.

Arrangements are being perfected by the Republicans of this city for rousing meetings in the several wards. It is hoped to begin next Monday evening in the First Ward. The Continentals, with the drum and bugle corps, and the Granby Escort, will march throughout the ward, and addresses will be delivered on the flat-iron lawn by Attorney S. B. Mead, Mr. George Brooker and others. The Second Ward will be visited the next night, and it is hoped, if the weather permits, other wards in succession. As a fitting close, a grand rally will be held in the park, when Collector Stranahan will speak.

Church Bell Dedication.

The Bristol Hill Congregational church was well filled last Sunday morning upon the occasion of the dedication of the new forty-inch bell which had just been hung in the tower. This is one of the oldest churches in the county, having been erected in 1831. thus being about to celebrate its seventy-fifth anniversary. Strange to say however during all these years it has been without a bell. So when last Sabbath the new bell sounded forth on the quiet morning air for the first time calling the people to worship, its appeal was hailed with joy and responded to quite generally. Many Fulton people were present, also some from Phoenix and other neighboring points. Mr. Charles W. Cander of Phoenix the man who drew the lumber for the belfry 75 years ago was there with his wife

The pastor, Rev. Clinton J. Taft, preached the sermon, using as a text Ps. 89:15: "Blessed is the people that know the joyful sound." Rev. W. G. Bassett of Fulton, who was born and brought up near Bristol Hill, followed with some interesting remininscences of the early history of the church. He stated that years ago they had discussed the advisability of securing a bell but never had put forth a definite effort to get one, and that the new bell should mark the beginning of a new era in the history of the church. The pastor stated that on one side of the bell was cast the following inscription: "To the memory of friends of former years," the money having been given by those who formerly attended church at Bristol Hill and are now scattered to all parts of the country. A list of the donors was read, showing that about forty had donated. Among them were people living in Wichita, Kan., Chicago, Ill., LaPorte, Ind., Yonkers, N. Y., Syracuse, Oswego, Baldwinsville, Phoenix and many in Fulton and vicinity. Rev. W. G. Bassett offered the dedicatory prayer. The choir rendered special music and Dr. Robert Simpson sang a solo. Altogether it was a most interesting service and many were the expressions of delight by those present at its close. Just before the last hymn was sung, Mr. J. H. Mace, the church clerk, read resolutions thanking the pastor for the effort he had put forth in securthe bell. They were adopted by a rising vote.

W. C. T. U.

The first meeting of the new year was held at the home of Mrs. Edna Moore on Friday afternoon, Oct. 7, Mrs. Wesley McCully, the new president, presiding.

Mrs. Moore read an excellent article on "Wearing of the white ribbon." It was voted to have an entertainment in the near future to raise money for the hospital. Dainty refreshments were served to about thirty ladies, including three guests. At the close an executive meeting was held and the superintendents of the different departments appointed.

Registration in Fulton.

There was a phenominal increase in the registration in this city during the first two days—last Friday and Saturday:

Ward.	Friday.	Saturday
First	124	111
Second	170	140
Third	85	87
Fourth	121	75
Fifth	179	108
Sixth	144	114
Totals.	823	635

The total for the entire city for the first two days was 1,458, against 1,079 for the corresponding two days two years ago.

TAMMANY TO RULE

Ring Control at Albany Again if Herrick Is Elected.

Repeal of Excise Law and Return to Direct Taxation Promised.

The programme of the Herrick-Hill-Sheehan - Murphy - Belmont - McCarren combination has been made known through Edward M. Grout, comptroller of the city of New York. The plan is to Tammanyize the state if the ring wins. It is proposed to reapportion the senate and assembly districts, which the constitution provides shall be done in 1906, so as to give Tammany greater strength in the senate and largely increased representation in the assembly. Thus intrenched in power, there will be a return of the carnival of graft when Sheehan was speaker and lieutenant governor and the giant Huckleberry railroad and Queen City gas grabs were snapped through by trickery. These charters gave away without compensation privileges worth millions of dollars to a gang of political ringsters who were then, as now, associated with Sheehan in politics for the control of the state.

Unequaled Since Tweed.

When Sheehan as lieutenant governor tricked the legislature into passing the Buffalo police bill the New York World said of him on April 14, 1893:

"Lieutenant Governor Sheehan has demonstrated that as a cunning legislative manipulator he has been unequaled in this state since the days of Boss Tweed."

With him in close connection are Hill, who stole a senate and who has been discredited and defeated by the people in every campaign since then; Croker, who is spending his loot as Tammany boss in England; "Pat" McCarren, the sugar trust and Standard Oil representative in Albany; "Charlie" Murphy, from whom the Pennsylvania railroad secured immunity against Tammany blackmail by giving his firm the contract for its $50,000,000 tunnel, the same Murphy for whom Mayor McClellan approved the Remsen gas grab, in which was to have been another $3,000,000 contract for Murphy's firm; "Ed" Murphy of Troy, who was one of the chief beneficiaries of the Huckleberry graut.

Would Repeal Excise Law.

These are the men who want to rule the state. The country voters may also take warning from Mr. Grout's statement that if the Sheehan combine gets the offices it will repeal the excise law, which produces a revenue of $18,000,000 a year. The result would be a return to direct taxation.

POINTS TO BE SEEN.

Those who are insisting that David B. Hill is the Democratic party's Old Man of the Sea are kindly requested to bear in mind that the party does not need one in this campaign. It is its own burden.—Boston Journal.

An Esopus boy swallowed a Parker button the other day and suffered intensely until it was removed. There is at least one person in this country who now knows exactly how Mr. Bryan must feel.—Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle.

The average number of failures during the last Democratic administration was about 14,000 annually. Since 1897, with a large increase in the number of business concerns, the average has been between 10,000 and 11,000 annually.—Vallejo Chronicle.

Of course, if Judge Parker is incompetent to measure swords with the alert and daring Roosevelt, or if the Democratic party is incapable of sinking its differences and afraid of making a front attack on the enemy's intrenchments lest for lack of cohesion and discipline it may break in pieces again, it might as well retire from the contest at once and become a dishonored reminiscence.—Boston Herald.

"Stand pat!" is a good cry. We prefer it and all that it means—open mills, good wages for the workingmen, protection for American citizens when abroad, new markets in the far east, the Panama canal and a navy capable of defending it—to the uncertain administration of a party whose capacity for governing in the future can be measured only by its utter incapacity and failures of the past.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Irish sentiment will naturally preponderate in favor of Theodore Roosevelt, whose personality and most marked traits are strikingly akin to what we most glory in the Irish character. He has personal independence, pluck, impulsiveness, athletic ability and physical courage. Mr. Roosevelt has a strong current of Irish blood in his veins, and it bubbles over sometimes, strongly resembling a real Irishman. Nor has he forgotten what he owes to the Irish traits in him. He is a member of the Irish Historical society and takes a pride in many other things with an Irish side to them. He has always extended the courtesies of his great office to the representatives of our race who have visited this country from time to time. No man can point a finger of suspicion at the honesty of his official career. Judge Parker may be a very nice man, but what has he ever done to appeal to us as Theodore Roosevelt does?—Irish-American Advocate.

Did His Own Toting.

In her new book, "A Story of the Red Cross," just issued by the Appletons, Clara Barton tells the following recollection of an encounter she had with Theodore Roosevelt in Cuba:

"Early in the day there came to our improvised headquarters an officer in khaki uniform showing hard service and a bandanna handkerchief hanging from his hat to protect the back of his head and neck from the fierce rays of the sun.

"It was Colonel Roosevelt, and we were very glad to meet the gallant leader of the rough riders. After a few moments' conversation he said:

"'I have some sick men with my regiment who refuse to leave it. They need such delicacies as you have here, which I am ready to pay for out of my own pocket. Can I buy them from the Red Cross?'

"'Not for a million of dollars,' Dr. Gardner replied.

"'But my men need these things,' he said, his tone and face expressing anxiety. 'I think a great deal of my men. I am proud of them.'

"'And we know they are proud of you, colonel. But we can't sell Red Cross supplies,' said Dr. Gardner.

"'Then how can I get them? I must have proper food for my sick men,' he said.

"'Just ask for them, colonel,' replied Dr. Gardner.

"'Oh,' he said, his face suddenly lighting with a bright smile, 'then I do ask for them.'

"'All right, colonel. What is your list, and when will you send for these supplies?' asked Dr. Gardner. 'They will be ready any time.'

"'Lend me a sack and I'll take them right along,' he answered, with characteristic decision.

"Dr. Gardner at once looked up a sack, and when filled it must have held a good many pounds of supplies. Before we had recovered from our surprise the incident was closed by the future president of the United States slinging the big sack over his shoulders and striding off and out of sight through the jungle."

SENATOR DEPEW'S STORY.

Told at Reception at New York Republican Club to State Candidates.

It seems hard lines to say that the Democratic brother is not competent to conduct the business of this great state and ought not to be instructed with these larger responsibilities which come with the construction of the barge canal, but I can tell you the reason why.

We all wondered during the Spanish-American war why it was that when the fleet at Santiago was about equal to ours it was sunk in twenty minutes, while ours received only one shot, and we all wondered that while the fleet at Manila was about equal to ours it was sunk in nineteen minutes and we received no shot.

People all over the world could not explain it, and the naval people at Washington had difficulty in finding out how it could have occurred. But coming on from Washington at the close of the last great victory I had as my fellow companion that delightful wit and most charming man and actor, old Joe Jefferson, and I said to him:

"I have been in Washington, and the naval experts cannot tell why it is that Cervera's fleet should have been lost in twenty minutes and not a shot hit our fleet, and the same thing happened at Manila bay."

And Mr. Jefferson said to me, "As an actor of fifty years' experience I can tell you—the Spaniards had not rehearsed."

The trouble with our Democratic brethren is that in the forty-four years since the war, having been in power only four years and in our state not having seen power for the last ten years, they have not rehearsed. [Applause.] And so the performance is not one upon which the people of the state of New York will lift the curtain to hiss the actors off the stage.

Ears of Lobsters.

Most curious are the ears of lobsters. Each is a sack or bag containing fluid and "ear stones," these last being particles of mineral matter, or, in some cases, particles of sand. They increase the vibrations set up by sound waves, which in due season impinge on the delicate cells of the ear, which contain the ends of the nerve of hearing. These last in turn convey the impressions to what serves the lobster by way of a brain, and a very respectable nervous mass it is.

LEGAL NOTICES.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage upon real property situated within the state of New York, whereby the power to sell has become operative, notice is hereby given that said mortgage, which is dated the 22d day of February, 1899, and is recorded in the office of the Clerk of the County of Oswego, at Oswego, N. Y., on the 23d day of February, 1899, at 9:20 o'clock a. m., in Liber 158 of mortgages at page 422, was given by John E. Cain and Hattie Cain, his wife, mortgagors to Orlando Howell, mortgagee, and the name of each assignee of said mortgage is as follows: 1st assignee, Fred O. Howell, 2d assignee, Maria A. Howell.

The sum claimed to be due upon the said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is sixteen hundred seventy-five dollars and forty-one cents, which is the whole amount secured by said mortgage.

The following is a description of the mortgaged property, contained in the said mortgage:

"All That Tract or Parcel of Land, situate in the Town of Granby, County of Oswego and State of New York, and being on Lot No. 72 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is described as subdivision Number One of said Lot according to Peter Schenck's map, made from his survey & dated Sept. 26, 1839, and is bounded on the N. & W. by the N. & W lines of said lot; on the S. by the State Road running E. & W. through said lot & on the East by Subdivision No. 2 containing 19 acres of land more or less.

"Also all that certain tract or parcel of land situate in the said Town of Granby, N. Y. & being a part of the State's 100 acres of land on lot No. 62 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is bounded as follows: Beginning at the S. E. Corner of said Lot 62 and running West 21 chains & 62 links; thence N. 11 chains & 56 links; thence E 21 chains & 62 links to the east line of said Lot, thence S. 11 chains & 56 links, to the place of beginning. Containing twenty-five acres of land, more or less.

"Also all that certain other tract or parcel of land, situate in the Town of Granby, N. Y., and being a part of Lot 71 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby) is bounded as follows: Beginning in the East line of said Lot in the center of the Fulton & Hannibal Plank Road (so called); thence Northerly along the E. line of said lot 71 about 25 rods & 6 links to a stone wall intersecting said line of Lot 71 from the East; thence Westerly in a direct line with the center of said stone wall One Hundred four & one-half (104½) feet to a stone set in the Earth indicating said corner; thence Southerly parallel with the East line to the center of said highway; thence Easterly along said Highway to the place of beginning. Containing about one acre of land."

Pursuant to the power of sale contained therein, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the said mortgaged property, or a part thereof, at public auction, at the law offices of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton County of Oswego, New York on the 29th day of October, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day.

Dated and subscribed at Fulton, N. Y., this 2d day of August, 1904.

ED. PINAUD'S
EAU DE QUININE HAIR TONIC
A Positive Dandruff Cure!

is the only Hair Tonic I have in my shop. It's the best! I have used one hundred other sorts on a thousand different heads, but never with the wonderful results that Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine has given. At first sight you would think it to my advantage to use a cheap tonic, but when I tell you that one bottle of Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine goes as far as three bottles of any other preparation, you can see that after all this is the best value I can get for the money.

For women, men and children. It cleanses the roots—feeds the cells and strengthens the hair—holds its color and gives a beautiful gloss.

Webster on Debt.

Once when Daniel Webster was riding along a New England road in a stagecoach, so the story runs, he was annoyed by the jolting and poked his head out of the window to yell at the driver: "Hey! Can't you drive a little slower?" "No," responded the coachman; "the horses are running away, sir." "Run 'em into a fence corner," advised Daniel. "Can't, sir," said the driver reluctantly and despairingly. "They've got the bit between their teeth, sir!" "Well, run them into debt then!" thundered Daniel. "That'll stop anything!"

Sleep.

To sleep is to strain and purify our emotions, to deposit the mud of life, to calm the fever of the soul, to return into the bosom of maternal nature, thence to reissue, healed and strong. Sleep is a sort of innocence and purification. Blessed is he who gave it to the poor sons of man as a sure and faithful companion of life, our daily healer and consoler.—M. Amiel.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

ANOTHER BOOMERANG.

Attorney General Cunneen's Attack on the Good Roads Manual.

Attorney General Cunneen for partisan effect asserts that the act of the last legislature providing for the compilation, publication and distribution of the state highway manual is unconstitutional. The attorney general seems to be ignorant of the fact that chapter 536 of the laws of 1904 is, so far as the legal aspect is concerned, identical with chapter 655 of the laws of 1893, passed by a Democratic legislature and signed by Governor Flower, and that the state highway manual is of Democratic origin, and in criticising the law Mr. Cunneen is passing strictures upon a Democratic legislature, upon a Democratic governor, Roswell P. Flower, and a Democratic statutory revision commission that passed upon the constitutionality of the law. Mr. Cunneen's statement is another boomerang.

The facts relative to the highway manual of this state may be briefly summarized as follows: In 1893 the Democratic legislature passed an act providing for the compilation, publication and distribution of a state highway manual. The bill was signed by Governor Roswell P. Flower. Professor Charles A. Collin, head of the statutory revision commission and legal adviser to Governor Flower and Governor Hill during their terms, was appointed as one of the compilers and publishers of the highway manual under said act. This was in 1893, when the question of good roads had hardly begun to be discussed. The Democratic statutory revision commission passed upon and approved its constitutionality.

Professor Charles A. Collin, who was at the head of the revision commission, not only passed upon the constitutionality of the act, but accepted an appointment under it as one of the compilers and publishers of the highway manual. His Democratic associates on the statutory revision commission, Judge John J. Linson and Daniel Magone, concurred in his opinion of the law's constitutionality and also received an appointment under the act. This distinguished Democratic authority is in direct conflict with the opinion expressed by Attorney General Cunneen. Charles H. Betts, who is at the head of the revision department in the assembly, was designated to compile, publish and distribute the highway manual under the act of 1904, precisely the same as Professor Charles A. Collin was designated under the act of 1893, who at the time of his appointment was at the head of the statutory revision commission.

Since the highway manual was issued in 1893 nearly all of the good roads laws have been passed, and nearly 100 new statutes have been enacted on the subject, all of which, together with all of the highway laws of the state, are contained in the new manual together with the latest scientific information on good road building.

Better Than Pills.

The question has been asked—In what way are Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets superior to the ordinary cathartic and liver pills? Our answer is—They are easier and more pleasant to take and their effect is so gentle and so agreeable that one hardly realizes that it is produced by a medicine. Then they not only move the bowels but improve the appetite and aid the digestion. For sale at 25 cents per bottle by H. C. Geisler.

The Last Thing He Did.

It was said of Lord Palmerston that he never grew old and was as lighthearted as a boy to the very end. When he was on his deathbed and the doctors told him that his time had come he brightened up for a final jest. "Die, my dear doctor! That's the last thing I shall do!" It was.

Discomforts in Venice.

Venice is not a desirable place of residence in summer for the ordinary mortal. The moisture in the air, caused by the steady prevalence of the sirocco, takes the starch, so to speak, out of men's minds as much as out of their collars, and it is only the artistic, the lazy and the unemployed who can rightly enjoy the summer in Venice. The colors in air, in sky and sea are of a nature to provide perpetual delight and occupation to the eye and hand of the painter, while the abundance and variety of the fruits to be had will equally content his meaner appetite, for fruit in Venice is beautiful and almost oriental in its quality and quantity. But there are drawbacks to be set against the lotus eating kind of existence, and not the least of these is that of hot nights, when sleep is almost an unknown quantity and is driven away by one subtle foe after another, the mosquito being the fiercest and most aggressive.

Waiter Couldn't Help Them Out.

A well known Baltimore society man was once spending a few days with his wife at Atlantic City, and in connection with his visit he told the following story: When he seated himself in the dining room on the evening of his arrival he discovered that he could not read the menu, as he had left his glasses in his room, and his eyes were useless without them. When he passed it to his wife she exclaimed that she was in the same predicament. At a loss to know what to do, the gentleman called the waiter to him and, pointing to the menu, said:

"Read that to me and I will give you a dollar."

Quick as a flash the waiter replied:

"Scuse me, boss, but I ain't had much ejication maself!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

No one who is acquainted with its good qualities can be surprised at the great popularity of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It not only cures colds and grip effectually and permanently, but prevents these diseases from resulting in pneumonia. It is also a certain cure for croup. Whooping cough is not dangerous when this remedy is given. It contains no opium nor other harmless substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. It is also pleasant to take. When all of these facts are taken into consideration it is not surprising that people in foreign lands, as well as at home, esteem this remedy very highly and very few are willing to take any other after having once used it. For sale by H. C. Geisler.

Self Respect.

Self respect is at the bottom of all our love of life. Lessen our self respect and man is willing to throw his life away in debauchery and the worst kind of dissolute living. Self respect is the bond that holds all his powers together, that makes him able to act, to bear, to endure. Now, nothing but ceaseless striving for conduct, for morality, for principle, can give you self respect. Every man who deliberately does wrong and does not strive to put it beneath his foot as he would an assassin seeking to take his life loses self respect, and his power will pass away little by A Poacher's Ruse.

A poacher, writing in the Country Gentleman of London, says: "When I left home at night to go poaching I always left an end of a candle burning in a saucer of water in my bedroom. This was arranged so that it would splutter out about 10 o'clock, just as if I had extinguished it and retired for the night. This I did because I discovered that the keepers were given to watching my house for signs of my leaving, and it was a long time before they found that a candle could go out without human agency."

If troubled with a weak digestion, try Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They will do you good. For sale by H. C. Ge

The Yorkshireman's Coat of Arms.

Allow me to submit to you the Yorkshireman's coat of arms as it was given to me many years ago by a Yorkshireman. It runs thus: A flea, a fly, a magpie and a flitch of bacon—a flea, because he will bite his best friend; a fly, because he will drink from anybody's cup; a magpie, because he will chatter with anybody; a flitch of bacon, because he is no good until he is hung.—London Spectator.

The Seven ... in Disease.

Mention is made by Professor Hilton in his lectures on "Rest and Pain" of the seven varieties of the former obtainable in the treatment of disease—namely, mental rest, bodily rest, a combination of those two, as in that most perfect state of rest called sleep; organic rest, as evidenced in the avoidance of exertion in cardiac disease, of talking in affections of the respiratory tract, and in limiting, so far as possible, the act of deglutition in affections of the alimentary tract by the substitution of enemata; local rest, as secured by change in the position of body or limb; the use of pillows, cushions, etc.; dietetic rest, by avoiding the too frequent use of food and drink; lastly, medicinal rest, in the relief of spasm by inhalations and the not too frequent administration of medicine to the prejudice of nutrients or stimulants. Professor Hilton lays it down as a rule that by a consideration of the manner in which these principles of rest may be best applied in each special case of disease are relief and comfort to be brought to the sufferer and diseased action arrested.—London Lancet.

A Very Remarkable Remedy.

"It is with a great deal of pleasure and satisfaction that I recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Druggist A. W. Sawtelle, of Hartford, Conn. "Recently a gentleman came into my store so overcome with colic pains that he sank at once to the floor. I gave him a dose of this remedy which helped him. I repeated the dose and in fifteen minutes he left my store smilingly informing me that he felt as well as ever." For sale by H. C. Geisler.

Soldier's Sense of Humor.

A high naval official, now dead, often cited as an example of ghastly humor an incident that befell a young woman during the civil war.

"She was good and kind," he would say, "and during the war she visited the hospitals daily, distributing fruits and flowers and tracts.

"One morning on her rounds a young soldier, immediately after she had passed him, set up a loud laugh.

"She turned and looked at him in surprise. His seemed a pitiful case. Nothing of him but his face was visible on the little white bed, and this young face was sadly thin and pale. Nevertheless he laughed like one possessed. His mirth resounded through the grewsome room.

"The visitor returned to him.

"'Will you tell me what amuses you?' she said.

"'Why, ma'am,' said he, 'here you have given me a tract on the sin of dancing when I've got both legs shot off.'"—Baltimore Herald.

A very wise man once said that when he began to feel too important he got a map of the universe and tried to find himself on it.

Cause of Lockjaw.

Lockjaw, or tetanus, is caused by a bacillus or germ which exists plentifully in street dirt. It is inactive so long as exposed to the air, but when carried beneath the skin, as in the wounds caused by percussion caps or by rusty nails, and when the air is excluded, the germ is roused to activity and produces the most virulent poison known. These germs may be destroyed and all danger of lockjaw avoided by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely as soon as the injury is received. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and causes such injuries to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. It is for sale by H. C. Geisler.

She Knew.

A certain old lady always knew everything before anybody else. One day her niece saw her passing the house and ran out to meet her. "Do come in, aunty," she begged, "and help us. We are making charades."

"Certainly I will," answered the old lady. "I knew you were making them because I smelled them as I came along."

BONE FOOD

Soft and crooked bones mean bad feeding. Call the disease rickets if you want to. The growing child must eat the right food for growth. Bones must have bone food, blood must have blood food and so on through the list.

Scott's Emulsion is the right treatment for soft bones in children. Little doses every day give the stiffness and shape that healthy bones should have.

Bow legs become straighter, loose joints grow stronger and firmness comes to the soft heads.

Wrong food caused the trouble. Right food will cure it.

In thousands of cases Scott's Emulsion has proven to be the right food for soft bones in childhood.

Benjamin Franklin's Wife.

A very unflattering description of Benjamin Franklin's wife is taken from the diary of Daniel Fisher, who was Franklin's secretary for a short time. "She sat on the floor at a neighbor's. She assumed the airs of extraordinary freedom and great humility, lamented heavily the misfortunes of those who are unhappily infected with a too tender or benevolent disposition, said she believed all the world claimed the privilege of troubling her pappy—so she usually calls Mr. Franklin—with their calamities and distress, giving us a general history of many such wretches and their impertinent applications." He mentions "the turbulence and jealousy and pride of her disposition" and the violence of her invectives. Pointing to Franklin's son one day, she exclaimed, "There goes the greatest villain upon earth!"

Many Mothers of a Like Opinion.

Mrs. Pilmer, of Cordova, Iowa, says, "One of my children was subject to croup of a severe type, and the giving of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy promptly, always brought relief. Many mothers in this neighborhood think the same as I do about this remedy and want no other kind for their children." For sale by H. C. Geisler.

French Soldiers' Handkerchiefs.

The cotton handkerchiefs provided for French soldiers have printed upon them a number of sanitary precepts to be observed on the march and during a campaign and are further decorated with medallions containing pictures of officers of all grades, the different uniforms being so distinctly portrayed that a French private can tell at a glance to what grade any officer he may see belongs.

Pill Pleasure.

If you ever took De Witt's Little Early Risers for billiousness or constipation you know what pill pleasure is. These famous little pills cleanse the liver and rid the system of all bile without producing unpleasant effects. They do not gripe, sicken or weaken, but pleasantly give tone and strength to the tissues and organs of the stomach, liver and bowels. Sold by H. C. Geisler and G. T. Boyington.

Flirting in Japan.

A Japanese woman flirts—as far as she knows the meaning of the word—with her sleeves and fan and not with her eyes and smiles. By the different movements of the ends of her kimono sleeves she manages to convey to her admirers all sorts of unspoken messages, and by the opening and shutting of her fan to the right or to the left she can reject or accept the most weighty offers. Her code signaling with her sleeves and fan is quite an item of her social education.

Can You Eat?

J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Criesman, Texas, says, "I could not eat because of a weak stomach. I lost all strength and ran down in weight. All that money could do was done, but all hope of recovery vanished. Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefitted me, and after taking four bottles, I am fully restored to my usual strength, weight and health." Kodol Despepsia Cure digests what you eat and cures. Sold by H. C. Geisler and G. T. Boyington.

Well She Might.

An old German historian of Tubingen describes an attack by the French in 1674 during which eighteen persons were killed by the exploding of a mine. A soldier's wife was thrown the distance of an acre. She was not hurt, the chronicler adds quaintly, "but she scolded terribly and was in a very bad humor."

After the Quarrel.

She—There is just one little bit of millinery that I desire more. He (crossly)—You needn't say any more. I won't buy it for you. She—Don't be afraid. You'll never get the chance for it. It's a widow's bonnet.

One of Many.

H. A. Tisdale, of Summerton, S. C., suffered for twenty years with the Piles. Specialists were employed and many remedies used, but relief and permanent good was found only in the use of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. This is only one of many, many cures that have been effected by this wonderful remedy. In buying Witch Hazel Salve it is only necessary to see that you get the genuine DeWitt's, made by E. C. DeWitt & Co., in Chicago, and a cure is certain. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cures all kinds of piles, cuts, burns, bruises, eczema, tetter, ring-worms, skin diseases, etc. Sold by H. C. Geisler and G. T. Boyington.

KIDNEY DISEASE CURED

A Typical Letter to Dr. David Kennedy's Son About Dr. Kennedy's NEW Medicine, Cal-cura Solvent.

Gilbert F. Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., makes public the following letter from one of the most prominent men in Utica, N. Y., but who does not wish his name used publicly:

My Dear Sir: I received a sample bottle of Dr. Kennedy's new medicine, Cal-cura Solvent, a few months ago. I was greatly pleased with it, and decided to try a large bottle. I therefore purchased three bottles of Mr. Sheehan, and I am pleased to inform you that I have been greatly benefited by it and consider myself cured. If my kidney trouble ever asserts itself again (and I am sure it will not) I will not hesitate to continue the use of this grand medicine. I wish you would send some samples to the parties on the enclosed list. All are suffering from kidney trouble. Yours ...

BROWN & HUNTER

Are now talking to the people of this vicinity on a subject that is of vastly more importance than either—they are preaching the doctrine of "Home Cheerfulness." A noted writer truly said "Make home cheerful and attractive for the family and the moral and patriotic safeguards of the nation are established, impregnable to every peril." Now that house cleaning is in full swing, we wish to say that the refurnishing of the house is "the question of the hour," and we are prepared to assist with

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sikes are staying at G. B. Cook's.

REGARDING TOWN HALL OF VOLNEY.

EDITOR TIMES: As the location of the Town Hall of Volney will be determined by the electors at the next general election, I desire to say to the voters that if they will decide in favor of Mount Pleasant there are parties in that place who have agreed to donate a site for the building. In my judgment Mount Pleasant is the most central of any place in the town and the Town Hall should be located there.

"PURE" JUDICIARY LEAGUERS AT WORK

The TIMES has been permitted to see a verbatim report of the speeches made at Central Square on Thursday night by Attorneys Udelle Bartlett of Sandy Creek and Fred'k G. Spencer of this city. The speeches were made under the auspices of the alleged Independent Judiciary "Purity" League, and were the worst concoctions of personal abuse of Judge Stowell, Assemblyman T. D. Lewis and Mr. John Hunter, that even the most perverted mind could conceive. If these attorneys and their assistants imagine for one instant, because their hearers live in the rural districts, that they are fools and incompetent to decide political questions for themselves, they will find on Nov. 8 that they were vastly mistaken.

Mr. Bartlett made a casual reference to the State and National tickets. Mr. Spencer did not; the tedious hours were taken up with slandering and libeling Judge Stowell, Messrs. Lewis and Hunter—and there was not the slightest foundation of truth in any of their statements. These attorneys apparently enjoy the distinction of being the only two legal practitioners in the county who have ample time to devote to the schemes of the "purity" league. It is said that a certain reptile, when cornered, will sting itself to death rather than submit to annihilation by man. When some men see friends and influence departing from them, they, in desperation, turn to means as violent.

It will be recalled that Udelle Bartlett was district attorney for seven years, and not until a majority of Republicans in Oswego county had relegated him to political oblivion did he utter one word of criticism of Judge Stowell. In his harangue on Thursday night he made charges against the judge, which, were they true, would stamp the ex-district attorney as being the most incompetent official Oswego county has ever known. This ex-district attorney should have exposed these alleged irregularities at once and demanded "purity in the judiciary" while he was yet in office, to have made the charges effective. Could he prove any one of his statements, he would be proving himself equally guilty. He cannot prove them, as a TIMES representative has taken pains to fully inform himself as to the facts, but it shows to what heights of infamy and depths of degradation men will go in an attempt to soothe their wounded pride. Oh, no! ex-district attorney, it was your own townsmen—your own associates—who placed the iron heel of disapproval on your political head and crushed out your political life—not Judge Stowell, who more than any one, raised you from obscurity and assisted in placing you in a position of trust and responsibility. Now you turn in your viciousness and bite the helping hand which was proffered you in kindliness, and attempt by all the means known [illegible] lowest politics, to bring discredit upon the man who has [illegible] a father to you. Who might have, were he the [illegible] him to be, left you [illegible] you are [illegible] stranger. Your neighbors and fellow-townsmen know you and know Judge Stowell. You cannot harm him there.

It was with difficulty that Attorney Spencer curbed his impatience until his co-laborer in the "purifying" had had his innings, and when his turn to "purify" arrived, his fury at being an ever-defeated candidate for some political office overcame him, and throwing reason, decency and truth to the winds, he ejected at his audience a perfect tirade of abuse of Judge Stowell. The Oswego Palladium the next night described the meeting as having been "a ripper," whatever that may mean. Assemblyman Lewis and Mr. John Hunter were evidently under the ban of this "purifier's" displeasure as they also came in for a goodly share of abuse in the matter of the excise cases which had been presented to Judge Stowell for adjudication during the period of no-license in this city. Mr. Hunter was president of the Law and Order League, and an earnest, consistent, conscientious worker for it, but the worst possible construction was placed upon his every act by the speaker, and charges of connivance on the part of Messrs. Hunter, Lewis and Judge Stowell, to save from penalty the convicted violators of the law, were freely made. It is a disgraceful fact that our most reputable citizens and officials were bitterly, untruthfully and without cause, attacked by this representative of the Independent Judiciary League, after they had discharged their whole duty—fearlessly and without favor. The law-abiding citizen, whatever his line of business, has found no fault with them. The good citizens of Central Square who had gathered to hear the political issues of the day discussed, were at first amazed and then disgusted at the unseemly exhibition of unbridled passion on the part of two alleged men, and realizing that they had been imposed upon, they dispersed to their homes as Mr. Spencer raved. It is passing strange that Mr. Spencer is not billed to appear in either Mexico (his former home) or Fulton, his present home, and enact his farce before audiences who know his past and present political history. Usually one's words carry more weight where one is known, and Mr. Spencer should not permit his innate modesty to prevent his appearing before home audiences in behalf of his candidate for County Judge. It would be an excellent plan for the Republicans in this city to tender Messrs. Bartlett and Spencer the use of a hall, the services of a band and a carriage to convey them to and from their destinations—just like real campaign speakers—if they will deliver the same speeches they delivered in Central Square. They would prove splendid vote-getters for Judge Stowell.

The Oswego Times, in its report of the meeting, says:

"The temper of Mr. Spencer is best shown by his altercation with W. J. Dempsey, which occurred at the Ontario & Western railroad station after the meeting. Both were waiting for the train and Mr. Spencer continued his abuse of Judge Stowell and wound up by calling the judge "an old, gray-headed —— of ——." He also said in his characteristic fashion: 'I have been AFTER Judge Stowell for years and I will continue AFTER him.'

"The above remarks were made by Mr. Spencer in the presence of witnesses, and we believe that the most bitter enemy of Judge Stowell does not approve of such language or violent utterances."

INDEPENDENT (?) JUDICIARY PETITION.

After all the trumpet blowing by the officers of the alleged Independent Judiciary League, a petition has been filed with the County Clerk, asking that Attorney Giles S. Piper of this city be placed on an independent ticket for the office of County Judge.

It was stated by Mr. Piper that unless 1,000 Republican signatures were obtained to the petition he would not accept the nomination.

We have secured a copy of the petition purporting to have been signed by the citizens of Fulton. It is true there are a few Republicans on the list, but four-fifths of the signers are men who are known to be active workers in the ranks of the Democratic party, and who might have voted for Mr. Piper as soon as he became the nominee of their party.

The small percentage of Republicans on the petition from other sections of the county indicates that they have been suspicious of the movement and have no inclination to assist the Hon. Charles N. Bulger to cut down the Republican majority and thereby help the Democratic State and national tickets.

The signatures of two men who have taken some pride in being officers of the alleged Independent Judiciary League, are conspicuously absent from the petition. The men referred to are Attorney Fred'k G. Spencer and Mr. F. D. VanWagenen.

We are pleased to state that the result of the entire proceeding—the hubbub—has been to rally and inspirit the marshalled Republican forces behind Judge Stowell, making them determined to fight on relentlessly and resolutely until victory has been achieved.

The petition contains 203 names of Fulton electors, twenty of whom are men who have sometimes voted the Republican ticket and ten are ostensibly Republicans. The remainder of the signatures we publish so that our readers may see what proportion are Democrats and workers in the ranks of the Democratic party. Many of the signers are deeply chagrined because they have been descsibed by the Oswego Palladium as "staunch Republicans (?) who are weary of Republican rule" in this county and who are anxious to "purify the judiciary and restore the county court to its former prestige:"

A Big Pile

Compared with a ton of coke, a ton of coal makes but a small pile; besides, the pile of money it takes to buy the small pile of coal is much larger than the pile necessary to buy the big pile of coke.

Coal (the small pile) costs $6.25 per ton.
Coke (the big pile) costs $5.00 per ton.
Difference in favor of coke $1.25 per ton.

JUDGE PARKER apparently believes that language was made to conceal thought.

THE people of the United States have over $8,000,000,000 in the savings banks. They know that a Democratic administration means the withdrawal of their deposits to tide over hard times.

JUDGE PARKER'S letter of acceptance demands that the work of tariff revision should be commenced at once. Remember the result of the tariff tinkering under the last Democratic administration?

DUNN and Bradstreet report that business conditions are better than at any corresponding season of the year for some years past. The country knows that there is to be no change of administration, no upsetting of trade conditions.

DESPITE the heavy payments for the Panama canal and other improvements the Treasury receipts are now in daily excess of the disbursements In other words, the Treasury Department is not going Democratic.

"WE denounce Republican protection as a fraud," declared the Democratic platform in 1892. The American workman remembers what happened when that party tinkered with the tariff.

AFTER November 8, Judge Parker will be in a position to write a telegram announcing that the Republican tariff system, like the gold standard, is irrevocably established.

For Member of Congress.

The Hon. Charles L. Knapp of Lowville will represent this Congressional district for the ensuing term. His nomination was without opposition, so satisfactory to both parties has been his administration of affairs and so approachable has he been to whoever came with approval, suggestion, request or disapproval—and the latter were few indeed. Mr. Knapp personally familiarizes himself with the several needs of his district and personally sees that they are laid before the proper officials and committees to secure attention. He has taken much interest in the subject of a federal building for Fulton and is hopeful that at a not far distant date an appropriation may be secured for the purpose. The improvements in course [of] construction at Fort Ontario, [illegible] are another evidence of Mr. [Knapp's] interest in this locality.

[For] Senator.

[The Hon. Fran]cis H. Gates of Chittenango was the unanimous choice of the Republicans in his district, for Senator to succeed himself and he will be elected to the position which he has so ably filled for two years, by an increased majority. Mr. Gates is a business man of wisdom and integrity and he uses the very best of his ability in the interests of his constituency. He has been a member of the following committees during the past year: Chairman Committee on Military Affairs, member of committees on Taxation and Retrenchment, Canals, Commerce and Navigation and Agriculture.

For Member of Assembly.

The Hon. Thomas D. Lewis will be returned to the Assembly by a larger majority than ever before, and that his fitness to represent his district in the Legislature is appreciated, not only in Oswego County but elsewhere, is evidenced by the fact that Madison County has bespoken Mr. Lewis to succeed the Hon. Francis H. Gates as senator two years hence. That Oswego County heartily endorses the selection is beyond dispute. Mr. Lewis has served his constituents wisely and well during his terms as their representative, and he has guarded their interests jealously, looking to it that no good thing to which they were entitled was withheld from them; even surmounting such difficulties as the opposition of majorities, and compelling recognition of his district by the earnestness of his endeavor. In 1904 Mr. Lewis was a member of the following committees: Chairman of Insurance Committee and member of the committees on Revision and Railroads.

For County Treasurer.

"Honest Tom Moore," has been the "watch dog" of the Oswego County treasury for three terms because no better man became a candidate for the office. The veterans wanted him; the several fraternities wanted him; the grangers wanted him; the farmers wanted him; the business men wanted him; the taxpayers wanted him; his party wanted him, and half of the Democrats in the county wanted him, so he has been renominated by the Republicans to succeed himself in the responsible office. It will be recalled hat last Spring the Oswego official Democratic organ heaved huge sighs and bitterly lamented that "Honest Tom Moore was to be relieved of his office and succeeded by no one knows who," at the coming convention. That paper protested that he was unqualifiedly fitted for the office and deserved re-election as a tribute to his efficiency and faithful discharge of duty. The Republicans in the county thought so too and proceeded to nominate Mr. Moore to succeed himself. It is confidently expected that he will run ahead of his ticket even, so popular and capable has been his service to all, regardless of party affiliation.

For Special Surrogate.

Attorney Clayton I. Miller of Mexico became the unanimous Republican choice for the office of Special Surrogate to succeed himself. He is a well-known member of the legal profession in this county and he enjoys a splendid practice in his home village. He brings to the important office a well-trained mind and a thorough knowledge of the duties which he will intelligently discharge. His election by an increased majority is confidently expected.

For Coroner.

LeRoy F. Hollis, M. D., of Sandy Creek, the Republican nominee for coroner, comes from a long line of staunch Republicans and he is a fitting representative of his ancestry. He is young in years but mature in mind and will faithfully discharge the duties of the office to which he will be elected by the largest majority ever given a candidate for coroner in this county. Dr. Hollis enjoys a large practice and acquaintance in Oswego County and his friends, regardless of party, will support him at the polls, Nov. 8.

REGISTRATION FOR "THE FARMERS"

Democrats Propose to Require Personal Registration in Country Districts.

This, They Think, Would Disfranchise Enough to Give Them State.

Judge Herrick in his speeches has been declaring for changes in the ballot law of the state. He said at Jamestown that one of his chief concerns, if elected, would be a remodeling of this statute.

This, in connection with the declarations of other Democrats of prominence, reveals the programme of that party if it can get control of the state.

It is proposed to enact a law requiring personal registration in every village and township, with the intent of imposing such hardship upon those who live far from the voting places as to practically disfranchise them.

The Democrats are preaching "split" tickets for this very purpose.

A vote for Herrick is a vote to put this scheme into effect.

Edward M. Grout, comptroller of the city of New York, who is high in the councils of his party, made a prediction just after his last election as to what would happen if the Democratic party came into power as the result of the election this year.

The New York Herald of Nov. 28, 1903, quotes Mr. Grout as follows:

"Under Republican rule entirely too much power has been possessed by what are known as the agricultural counties. That will be remedied as soon as the Democrats take power. It is right and proper that the entire state should have one law governing registration. Such a law will be passed, and then the agricultural voters will have to register just as do the city voters. The farmer considers it a hardship to give up one day for the sake of his vote. When he has to register the hardship will be doubled, and thousands will refuse to sacrifice their interests even for the sake of the Republican party. After that is done it will be more than a decade before another Republican governor of New York state will be elected."

Tammany Favors It.

Senator George W. Plunkitt, one of the Tammany senators from New York city, at the same time said he proposed to introduce a bill to carry out the scheme which Mr. Grout had advocated.

Patrick H. McCarren, who is the boss of Kings county and who will have much to say at Albany if the Democrats win this year, in an interview in the New York Daily News, which is a Tammany organ, on Dec. 8, 1903, said, "I shall give it my heartiest support."

This has reminded many of Mr. Croker's old idea of carrying the state in order to put upon the up state counties a greater proportion of the state tax than they now pay. In November, 1898, the suggestion was made that Mr. Croker was trying to get control of the state government for the purpose of compelling the rural counties to pay a larger proportion of the state's taxes, and when Mr. Croker was asked about it he said, "We are trying to get possession of the legislature for that very purpose."

TAMMANY WANTS STATE.

The Hill-Murphy-Sheehan Crowd Struggling to Make Reapportionment.

The state constitution says (article 3, section 4):

"An enumeration of the inhabitants of the state shall be taken under the direction of the secretary of state during the months of May and June in the year 1905, and in the same months every tenth year thereafter, and the said districts (the senate districts) shall be so altered by the legislature at the first regular session after the return of every enumeration," etc.

This means that a reapportionment will be made in 1906. New districts for both senate and assembly will be made.

It is the privilege of making these new districts that the Democrats are struggling for this year. They want to give increased representation to the Democratic strongholds and thus hold control of the state for ten years. Tammany Hall has for years been trying to seize the capitol at Albany. It was Croker's dream.

If Herrick wins and Hill, Herrick, Tammany Hall and Pat McCarren reapportion the state it might mean Democratic United States senators for ten years. It will mean the complete carrying out of the Tammany programme, the wiping out of the revenues from the excise law for the benefit of the saloon keeper. It will replace the burden of direct taxation on the farms and homes of the state; it will mean that Croker's dream has come true.

When Murphy of Tammany cries "Fraud!" honest men must be getting [illegible]

CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS, 1904.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing amendment to article seven of the Constitution, relating to improvement of highways.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the seventh article of the Constitution be amended by adding thereto the following section: § 12. Improvement of Highways.—A debt or debts of the State may be authorized by law for the improvement of highways. Such highways shall be determined under general laws, which shall also provide for the equitable apportionment thereof among the counties. The aggregate of the debts authorized by this section shall not at any one time exceed the sum of fifty millions of dollars. The payment of the annual interest on such debt and the creation of a sinking fund of at least two per centum per annum to discharge the principal at maturity shall be provided by general laws whose force and effect shall not be diminished during the existence of any debt created thereunder. The legislature may by general laws require the county or town or both to pay to the sinking fund the proportionate part of the cost of any such highway within the boundaries of such county or town and the proportionate part of the interest thereon, but no county shall at any time for any highway be required to pay more than thirty-five hundredths of the cost of such highway, and no town more than fifteen hundredths. None of the provisions of the fourth section of this article shall apply to debts for the improvement of highways hereby authorized. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the Constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 1, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 1, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER TWO.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the constitution in relation to the time within which debts of the state must be paid and striking from said section certain limitations.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section four of article seven of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VII. § 4. Except the debts specified in sections two and three of this article, no debts shall be hereafter contracted by or in behalf of this state, unless such debt shall be authorized by a law for some single work or object, to be distinctly specified therein; and such law shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax to pay, and sufficient to pay, the interest on such debt as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal of such debt within fifty years from the time of the contracting thereof. No such law shall take effect until it shall, at a general election, have been submitted to the people, and have received a majority of all the votes cast for and against it at such election. On the final passage of such bill in either house of the legislature, the question shall be taken by ayes and noes, to be duly entered on the journals thereof, and shall be: "Shall this bill pass, and ought the same to receive the sanction of the people?" The legislature may at any time, after the approval of such law by the people, if no debt shall have been contracted in pursuance thereof, repeal the same; and may at any time, by law, forbid the contracting of any further debt or liability under such law; but the tax imposed by such act, in proportion to the debt and liability which may have been contracted, in pursuance of such law, shall remain in force and be irrepealable, and be annually collected, until the proceeds thereof shall have made the provision hereinbefore specified to pay and discharge the interest and principal of such debt and liability. The money arising from any loan or stock creating such debt or liability shall be applied to the work or object specified in the act authorizing such debt or liability, or for the payment of such debt or liability, and for no other purpose whatever. No such law shall be submitted to be voted on, within three months after its passage or at any general election when any other law, or any bill, shall be submitted to be voted for or against. The legislature may provide for the issue of bonds of the state to run for a period not exceeding fifty years in lieu of bonds heretofore authorized but not issued and shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax for the payment of the same as hereinbefore required. When any sinking fund created under this section shall equal in amount the debt for which it was created, no further direct tax shall be levied on account of said sinking fund and the legislature shall reduce the tax to an amount equal to the accruing interest on such debt. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 21, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 22, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER THREE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the constitution in relation to justices of the appellate division of the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section two of article six of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VI. § 2. The legislature shall divide the state into four judicial departments. The first department shall consist of the county of New York; the others shall be bounded by county lines, and be compact and equal in population as nearly as may be. Once every ten years the legislature may alter the judicial departments, but without increasing the number thereof. There shall be an appellate division of the supreme court, consisting of seven justices in the first department, and of five justices in each of the other departments. In each department four shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of three shall be necessary to a decision. No more than five justices shall sit in any case. From all the justices elected to the supreme court the governor shall designate those who shall constitute the appellate division in each department; and he shall designate the presiding justice thereof, who shall act as such during his term of office, and shall be a resident of the department. The other justices shall be designated for terms of five years or the unexpired portions of their respective terms of office, if less than five years. From time to time as the terms of such designations expire, or vacancies occur, he shall make new designations. A majority of the justices so designated to sit in the appellate division in each department shall be residents of the department. He may also make temporary designations in case of the absence or inability to act of any justice in the appellate division, or in case the presiding justice of any appellate division shall certify to him that one or more additional justices are needed for the speedy disposition of the business before it. Whenever the appellate division in any department shall be unable to dispose of its business within a reasonable time, a majority of the presiding justices of the several departments at a meeting called by the presiding justice of the department in arrears may transfer any pending appeals from such department to any other department for hearing and determination. No justice of the appellate division shall, within the department to which he may be designated to perform the duties of an appellate justice, exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court, other than those of a justice out of court, and those pertaining to the appellate division, or to the hearing and decision of motions submitted by consent of counsel, but any such justice, when not actually engaged in performing the duties of such appellate justice in the department to which he is designated, may hold any term of the supreme court and exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court in any county or judicial district in any other department of the state. From and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, the appellate division shall have the jurisdiction now exercised by the supreme court at its general terms and by the general terms of the court of common pleas for the city and county of New York, the superior court of the city of New York, the superior court of Buffalo and the city of Brooklyn, and such additional jurisdiction as may be conferred by the legislature. It shall have power to appoint and remove a reporter. The justices of the appellate division in each department shall have power to fix the times and places for holding special terms therein, and to assign the justices in the departments to hold such terms; or to make rules therefor. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 29, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 6, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FOUR.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to trial commissioners.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that section six of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 6. Circuit courts and courts of oyer and terminer are abolished from and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five. All their jurisdiction shall thereupon be vested in the supreme court, and all actions and proceedings then pending in such courts shall be transferred to the supreme court for hearing and determination. Any justice of the supreme court, except as otherwise provided in this article, may hold court in any county. Whenever and as often as the causes upon the trial term calendar of any county of this state, having a population according to the latest state enumeration of over five hundred thousand, shall have so accumulated that an unpreferred cause cannot be reached for trial in due course within one year after it has been placed upon the calendar, the appellate division of the department in which such county is embraced may, by a certificate signed by a majority of its members, certify the fact to the court of appeals, whereupon said court may by order authorize the appointment in said county of trial commissioners, stating in said order the number of commissioners to be appointed, and their terms of office, not exceeding six years. Such order shall be made in duplicate and one copy thereof filed in the office of the secretary of state, and one in the office of the clerk of the county in which said appointments are authorized. The appellate division of the department embracing said county shall thereupon appoint the number of trial commissioners authorized by said order, who must possess the qualifications required for a justice of the supreme court. They shall possess and exercise in the county for which they are appointed all the powers of a justice of the supreme court respecting the trial and disposition of causes upon said trial term calendar and the settlement of cases on appeal, but shall possess none of the powers of such a justice out of court or at special term. They may be removed in the same manner as is provided in case of a justice of said supreme court. They shall each receive an annual salary of twelve thousand dollars to be paid by the county for which they are appointed, and may not practice law. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 23, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 8, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FIVE.

Concurrent resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the constitution.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section seven of article seven be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Forest preserve.—The lands of the state, now owned or hereafter acquired, constituting the forest preserve as now fixed by law, shall be forever kept as wild forest lands, except as hereinafter provided. They shall not be leased, sold or exchanged, or be taken by any corporation, public or private, nor shall the timber thereon be sold, removed or destroyed. The legislature may authorize the removal of dead timber on burned areas so far as necessary for reforestation, through officers and employees of the state, but not by contract. The legislature may also authorize the sale of lands outside of the limits of the Adirondack park and the Catskill park as such parks are now established by law. The proceeds of such sales shall be set apart in a separate fund and used only for the purchase of lands in such parks. A violation of this section may be restrained at the suit of the people or with the consent of the supreme court on notice to the attorney-general at the suit of any citizen of the state. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 6, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 9, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State, at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section one of article two of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SIX.

Concurrent resolution, proposing amendment to section one of article two of the constitution relating to qualification of voters.

Resolved (if the senate concur), that section one of article two of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article II. Section 1. Qualification of voters.—Every male citizen of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a citizen for ninety days, and an inhabitant of this state one year next preceding an election, and for the last four months a resident of the county or of a city comprising more than one county, and for the last thirty days a resident of the election district in which he may offer his vote, shall be entitled to vote at such election in the election district of which he shall at the time be a resident, and not elsewhere, for all officers that now are or hereafter may be elective by the people, and upon all questions which may be submitted to the vote of the people, provided that in time of war no elector in the actual military service of the state, or of the United States, in the army or navy thereof, shall be deprived of his vote by reason of his absence from such election district; and the legislature shall have power to provide the manner in which and the time and place at which such absent electors may vote, and for the return and canvass of their votes in the election districts in which they respectively reside.

State of New York: In Assembly, Mar. 28, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section one of article two, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to sections one and seven of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SEVEN.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to article six of the constitution in relation to providing additional justices of the supreme court and judges of the court of appeals.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section one of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 1. Supreme court; court of appeals; how constituted; judicial districts.—The supreme court is continued with general jurisdiction in law and equity, subject to such appellate jurisdiction of the court of appeals as now is or may be prescribed by law not inconsistent with this article. The existing judicial districts of the state are continued until changed as hereinafter provided. The supreme court shall consist of the justices now in office, and of the judges transferred thereto by the fifth section of this article, all of whom shall continue to be justices of the supreme court during their respective terms, and of twelve additional justices who shall reside in and be chosen by the electors of, the several existing judicial districts, three in the first district, three in the second, and one in each of the other districts; and of their successors. The successors of said justices shall be chosen by the electors of their respective judicial districts. The legislature may alter the judicial districts once after every enumeration under the constitution, of the inhabitants of the state, and thereupon reapportion the justices to be thereafter elected in the districts so altered. The legislature may at any time, when it deems that the public interests requires it, increase the number of justices of the supreme court or of judges of the court of appeals as it sees fit, provided that the total number of judges of the court of appeals shall not exceed eleven, and provided also that any bill increasing the number of justices or judges as aforesaid shall receive the assent of two-thirds of the members elected to each branch of the legislature. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section seven of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Court of appeals.—The court of appeals is continued. It shall consist of the chief judge and associate judges now in office, and of such additional judges as the legislature may from time to time provide in accordance with section one of this article and as may be elected according to law, who shall hold their offices until the expiration of their respective terms, and of their successors, who shall be chosen by the electors of the state. The official terms of the chief judge and associate judges shall be fourteen years from and including the first day of January next after their election. The legislature may provide by law for the manner in which the court shall sit, whether in two divisions or one, and for the number of members of the court necessary to form a quorum in either instance and also for the number whose concurrence shall be necessary to a decision. The court shall have power to appoint and to remove its reporter, clerk and attendants. § 3. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 12, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to sections one and seven of article six, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER EIGHT.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That section six of article six of the constitution be amended by adding thereto the following: In any department in which supreme court commissioners have been appointed, the justices of the appellate division of the department, or a majority of them, are authorized from time to time to designate one or more of such supreme court commissioners to hold trial terms of the supreme court within such department and to [illegible] such designation. A supreme court commissioner so designated shall have power to hold a trial term of the supreme court within said department and to perform the duties of a justice of the supreme court in the trial term to which he may be assigned. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, to be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

DIED.

[From the Knoxville (Tenn.) Journal and Tribune, Sept. 26.]

Rev. Isaac Emory lost his life in the railroad wreck of Saturday. There will be a brief service at his recent home in Arlington Tuesday morning at ten o'clock. The funeral services will be in the Second Presbyterian church at 10:30 o'clock, Rev. R. L. Bachman, pastor of the church, will officiate. The interment will be in Old Gray cemetery.

Rev. Isaac Emory was well known to the Christian world of Tennessee as the organizer of Sunday-schools. For about forty years he has been employed by the American Sunday-school Union of America as missionary and his work has been carried on over the entire State. Not a section scarcely has not been benefitted by the good he has accomplished. Ministers of the gospel, irrespective of church connection, have experienced his needful help in building up weak Sunday-schools. The little children were his special charge and nothing delighted him more than to have the childish voices sing the glad songs of Zion. The terrible wreck in which he lost his life may have taken many a noble soul, but none was truer to the cause of Christ than he. "To die with his harness on," "to cease to work and live" were his favorite expressions and his wish was gratified for the last journey he took was at the call of sorrow. He was on his way to New Market to conduct the funeral over the remains of his friend, W. R. King, when he, too, was called to death.

So great has been the influence of this good man that the American Sunday School Union has printed a pamphlet telling of his work in Tennessee. In his labor of forty years he has organized over 1000 Sunday schools, has aided 2,290 others, has been instrumental in bringing over 54,000 children into the Sunday schools. Besides this, he has conducted a large number of evangelistic services bringing many souls to Christ. He was born at Fulton, N. Y., in 1830, and was married at Syracuse, N. Y., October 3, 1854, to Miss Amelia Morgan. Had he lived until next Monday he would have celebrated his fiftieth marriage anniversary. He was licensed to preach in the year 1865 in the city of Cincinnati, Ohio, by the Congregational church, but his health failed and he came south, locating at Nashville, where he resided one year. In 1865 he came to Knoxville where he has made his home since. He was appointed by the American Sunday School Union as missionary and had been engaged in the work up to the time of his death. He was ordained a Presbyterian minister at Washington Church but never held any regular charge. He was also state statistical secretary of the American Sunday School Union for a number of years. He was one of the original thirteen charter members of the order of the Golden Cross and took great delight in its fraternal workings attending state conventions when he could.

He often expressed a wish that the children be permitted to sing at his funeral and this wish will be gratified. The children of the Lincoln Park Presbyterian Sunday school went over to his late home yesterday afternoon and took bouquets as a tribute to his memory. They gathered on the lawn and under the direction of Miss Beth Merritt sang, "Just as I Am Without One Plea." They will sing this song again tomorrow at the grave in old Gray cemetery.

Rev. Emory left a wife and two sons to mourn his loss. Mr. Charles Emory, who owns a farm and conducts a large green house at Arlington, the other son being Dr. Myron H. Emory, a practicing dentist located at Manzanillo, Cuba, who was recently appointed United States consul at that place.

The pall bearers will be three members of the Golden Cross order and three elders of the Second Presbyterian church. The church choir will have charge of the music. The interment will be in old Gray cemetery.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 26, 1904.

VIGOROUS CAMPAIGN BEING WAGED.

The Republican rally and parade last Wednesday evening was witnessed by enthusiastic crowds of people. Many of the residences along the principal thoroughfares were illuminated, while red fire and cheers greeted the several uniformed marching clubs as they performed difficult military evolutions en route.

The Republican Marching Club of Oswego, with fife, drum and bugle corps, arrived on a special train, accompanied by a number of prominent Republicans from that city—Messrs. J. H. Cooper, John Parsons, Frederick Bishop and Capt. Dempsey being included in the list.

The procession formed on Oneida street. It consisted of the Oswego club, the Granby Escort and the Continental Club, carrying the national ensign, and accompanied with drums, fifes, trumpets and torches, they paraded the principal streets of the city and made a most imposing display.

Hon. Charles Emory Smith was the speaker of the evening at Stephens Opera House. When Chairman Amos Youmans called the assemblage to order there was not a vacant seat to be seen. A pleasing feature was the singing of the Oswego and the Continental Glee clubs, which were cheered to the echo.

Mr. Smith's address was a masterly effort. Every phase of the vast interests involved in the present Republican campaign were elucidated and the importance of the success of the party to these interests clearly set forth. The audience paid the closest attention to the speaker for nearly two hours, frequently interrupting with vigorous applause.

The Citizen's Band gave a concert in front of the opera house before the speaking began.

The campaign this week is being conducted with old-time vigor in the several wards. On Monday night the First ward was visited. The Granby Escort, in their picturesque uniforms, with torches, fifes and drums, accompanied by the Continental drum and bugle corps, paraded on East First street to the lower bridge, and on reaching the west side, paraded through the First ward. Mr. A. E. Langdon's house, opposite the flat-iron lawn, was very generously placed at the disposal of the ward committee. The spacious veranda's were artistically draped with bunting and Chinese lanterns, while the house was brilliantly illuminated.

Mr. Taggert was master of ceremonies and introduced the speakers, who were Mr. George W. Brooker and Attorneys S. B. Mead and W. S. Hillick.

Mr. Brooker spoke exceedingly well. As a candidate on the Republican ticket for Mayor, he promised, if elected, to give the city a clean, business-like administration.

Mr. Hillick followed in a general discussion of campaign issues.

Surrogate Mead urged Republicans to be loyal to the nominees of the party and to vote straight. He also dwelt at some length on national and State issues, and predicted a tremendous majority for all the candidates.

The Continental Campaign Glee Club sang several appropriate selections.

Rally in Second Ward Thursday Night.

A mass meeting will be held in the Second Ward tomorrow, Thursday evening. Messrs. G. W. Brooker, John Hunter and Claude E. Guile will speak. The Granby Escort, Continentals, Drum and Bugle Corps and Glee club will be present.

NEXT GOVERNOR OF STATE WILL VISIT FULTON.

Frank W. Higgins, the Republican nominee for Governor of the Empire State, will address a mass meeting in the Richardson theatre, Oswego, on Saturday at 12:30 o'clock. Mr. Higgins and other prominent Republicans will pass through Fulton on the noon train from Syracuse, and will be met at the Cayuga street station by the Granby Escort, the Continentals and the Continental drum and bugle corps, who will accompany the distinguished speaker to Oswego.

REPUBLICAN NOMINEES.

For County Judge.

The Hon. Merrick Stowell will succeed himself in the office which he has filled so fairly, so impartially and with such eminent satisfaction to the law abiding citizens of Oswego County. His election will be by a greatly increased majority, and he will continue to be in the future as he has been in the past, an equitable dispenser of justice; never permitting political considerations for one instant to taint his decisions, despite the futile efforts of the Independent Judiciary League, to prove to the contrary.

For Mayor.

Mr. George W. Brooker is the unanimous choice for Mayor of the united Republican party in this city. He has had wide experience in the governmental workings of this municipality and his administration will be business like, practical and clean. He made an ideal presiding officer in the Common Council during the first two years of our history as a city, standing always for the best interests of the city and her taxpayers, and he will not swerve from that course when he i elected to the mayoralty.

The twenty second session of the Oswego County Educational Council will be held in Oswego on Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock, when the following program will be carried out: The study and teaching of history, Prof. W. H. Mace, Ph. D., Syracuse University. Discussion, Supt. J. R. Fairgrieve, Fulton, Miss Lina L. Loveridge, Oswego Normal practice school, and Principal C. M. Bean, Pulaski High school.

Boston Record, Oct. 22: The engagement is announced to-day of Miss Julia Glenton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Glenton of Nashua, N. H., to Shelley D. Vincent of Boston. Miss Clenton is the niece of the late Prof. Brown of Tufts College. Mr. Vincent graduated from Tufts in '99, B. U. Law School with a summa cum laude in '01, and is now an enterprising young attorney with a growing civil practice. [Attorney Vincent is the eldest son of Dr. and Mrs. James Vincent of this city and his many friends in this vicinity will extend congratulations.]

Thanksgiving in New England.

Everybody has heard this expression but only a few northern New Yorkers have tasted the joys of a New England Thanksgiving. Everyone will have an opportunity this year to be there on Thanksgving Day, as the New York Central will run its tenth annual excursion to Boston, Springfield, Palmer, Worcester and South Framingham on November 22. Tickets from all principal stations to any one of these points will be $9 for the round trip and will be good ten days. Convincing reasons why you should go on this excursion will be published in this paper from now until the day of the excursion. Watch for them and read them.

MARRIED.

On Tuesday evening, Oct. 18, Miss Cora Almeda Wright and Mr. George Hosler, both of this city, were united in marriage at the First M. E. parsonage by the Rev. John Richards.

Mr. Clement Thompson and Miss Josie Brady, both residents of this city, were united in marriage on Wednesday evening at the Catholic parsonage by the Rev. P. J. Kearney.

On Thursday evening at the Universalist parsonage, Miss Bertha Tallman and Mr Herbert M Guyer, both of this city, were united in marriage by Dr. James Vincent. Mr. and Mrs. Guyer will continue to make Fulton their home.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bradley in Fourth street on Wednesday evening, Miss Florence Amy Randall was united in marriage to Mr. Byron Clayton Distin, by the Rev. John Richards. The bride, who was tastefully gowned in white crepe-de chine over taffeta and carried brides roses, was attended by Miss Jessie Bradley, as bride's maid. Miss Bradley was becomingly gowned in cream crepe de chine and she carried cream roses. Mr. Frank Earl was groomsman. The house had been elaborately decorated, green and white predominating in all the rooms except the dining room, where the color scheme was pink and green. An elaborate collation was served to over one hundred and fifty guests at the conclusion of the ceremony and congratulations. Buell's orchestra furnished delightful music throughout the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Distin are visiting Saratoga and eastern cities.

One of the noteworthy weddings in New Brunswick, N. J., on Wednesday of last week, was that of Mr. Charles Henry Ware and Miss Margaret Janet Hamilton. The ceremony was solemnized at the home of the bride, No. 58 Welton street, the Rev. T. Beekman officiating. The brides gown was of lace over white satin and she carried bride's roses. Her bridesmaid was her sister, Miss Minnie Hamilton, who was gowned in white lace over canary silk, and carried white roses. The groom was attended by Mr. Robert Armstrong, jr., of Yonkers as groomsman. The home had been elaborately trimmed with palms, ferns, and chrysanthemums and presented a very pleasing appearance. The groom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ware of Oswego Falls, will be recalled as one of Fulton's most exemplary young men. He left this city about three years ago and at present holds a most lucrative position in Jamaica, L. I. After a two weeks' wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Ware will be "at home" to their friends at No. 99 Union Hall, Jamaica. The gifts showered upon the young couple were most exquisite and costly; silver, china, cut glass, rugs and furniture predominating.

DIED.

Harry A., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Barnes, died at their home in Chestnut street on Friday, at the age of 26. The funeral services were held from the parents home on Monday afternoon, the Rev. A. H. Grant officiating. Interment was made in Mt. Adnah.

On Tuesday, Oct. 11, Sarah E., aged 65, wife of Oliver Payne, died at her home in South Granby after a long and painful illness. The funeral services were held from her late home on Friday afternoon and interment was made in Jacksonville. The deceased is survived by two children, Mrs. V. W. Shattuck of this city and Mr. Frederick Payne of South Granby, and five sisters.

Last week Tuesday Mr. Austin Kellar noticed a slight swelling of his right arm and consulted a physician, but it was not until Thursday that the real nature of the disease was found to be blood poisoning. It spread rapidly and death came as a relief from pain on Sunday. The deceased was a highly respected resident of this city, and his sudden death is regretted by a large circle of friends. He is survived by his widow, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Kellar of Volney, a son, Norman, a daughter, Bessie, and a brother, Fay. The funeral was held from his home in Emory street on Tuesday afternoon, the Rev. John Richards officiating. Burial was made in Mt. Adnah.

The death of the Rev. Richard Redhead, last week at his home in Syracuse, removes a minister of the gospel who was a most loyal, consistent and energetic member of the M. E. Conference. Mr. Redhead preached in this city during the years 1860-61, in the First M. E. Church, when two years was the limit of the pastorate. He enjoyed the reputation of being an extremely vigorous and effective preacher, a close biblical student and theologean, his verbal correctness and readiness in scriptural quotation was phenomenal when he was in active service, and even after he became superannuated, he took the keenest pleasure in reading and pondering over the new and old theological doctrines and controversies, having accumulated an excellent library. Mr. Redhead was also an earnest advocate of the temperance cause. Although he was 82 years old,

Time laid his hand
Upon his heart, gently, not smiting it,
But as a harper lays his open palm
Upon his harp, to deaden its vibrations.

The deceased is survived by a widow, son and daughter—Mr. E. R. Redhead of this city and Mrs. N. R. Willis of Syracuse. The remains were interred in Liverpool cemetery.

Chauncey M. Depew in Syracuse.

Special train service will be provided for Fultonians next week Thursday evening, Nov. 3, to Syracuse and return, at half fare for round trip. The Hon. Chauncey M. Depew and Senator Spooner will address a mass meeting. The Continentals and Granby Escort will be the guests of the Syracuse Escort on that occasion.

The law requires that a ballot shall be marked with a pencil having a black lead. The pencil which will be found in each voting booth should be used.

To vote a straight Republican ticket put an X mark inside the circle under the Republican emblem—a ballot box surmounted by an eagle.

Any other mark than the X used for the purpose of voting, or any erasure made on the ballot, makes it void, and no vote can be counted thereon.

If you tear or deface or wrongly mark your ballot return it and obtain another.

Many Republican voters walk into the election booths every year and think they are exercising their right of franchise. They mark their ballots in divers and sundry ways and after depositing them with the ballot clerk walk away in the belief that they have voted. In reality they disfranchise themselves by not marking their ballots properly. All voters who favor Roosevelt and prosperity should place just one X mark inside the circle under the eagle, as shown in the cut, and not touch the pencil to the ballot any where else. By so doing they will cast a vote which is certain to be counted for Roosevelt and the continuance of American prosperity and the entire Republican ticket.

Remarkable Investment Proposition—$450 Pianos Given Away.

The opportunity offered in the advertisement on another page of this paper for a choice real estate investment in that magnificent growing city of Syracuse, is an opportunity that comes to people, in small places like Fulton, very seldom.

As will be seen by the advertisement, it is a most unusual offer. Christmas is coming and a magnificent $450 upright piano obtained absolutely free would be a welcome Christmas gift in any home. Besides this, the property which these parties offer is the most exceptional real estate proposition ever offered. The growth of the city of Syracuse, the extremely handsome houses surrounding the property, the high prices at which lots in the neighborhood have always been held, make this sale the opportunity of a life time.

It is an opportunity also for the poor man, as the lots are offered on very easy terms, only $10 down and $5 a month. Any man, however moderate his means and however meagre his income, can afford to make such an investment, indeed cannot afford to neglect such an opportunity.

Mr. James Robinson on Saturday evening celebrated his twenty-first birthday in a most pleasing manner at the home of his mother in Cayuga street. There were a large number of guests invited and they all responded with their presence. The young ladies presented their host with two handsome pictures and the young men, pitying his bachelor loneliness, presented him with a meerschaum pipe and case. Mr. Robinson invited his guests into the dining room soon after their arrival where they found a country fair in full swing. A fortune teller was a special feature, as were the red lemonade, popcorn balls, hot Coney Island sandwiches, &c. After the guests had exhausted the resources of the fair, music, dancing and games were enjoyed. Sherbet and cake were served later in the evening. The event will long be remembered as one of the most enjoyable ever attended by those present.

ADVICE TO FIRST VOTERS

A Young Man Who Values His First Vote "Next to His Life" Wants Help In Deciding.

The Answer Gives Six Good Reasons Why He Should Be a Republican and Stay One.

The Question.

23 Water Street,
Newburg, N. Y., Sept. 23, 1904.

Dear Sir—I write hoping you will find time to answer and enlighten me as to how I should vote this coming election. It will be my first vote for president, and I value it next to my life, for it means either a full or empty dinner pail to me. I have tried hard to find some sound conviction by reading the daily journals, but apparently they are striving to see which one can lie most sordidly in their criticisms of party and candidate; therefore I appeal to you for some sound reasons why I should vote the Republican ticket, and wish to add that with all my strength and mind I indorse your president in maintaining the army and navy and the progressive government we have enjoyed for the past eight years.

Hoping the best candidate will win, I remain sincerely.

JOSEPH L. COLEMAN.

The Answer.

Oct. 6, 1904.

My Dear Sir—Your favor of recent date stating that at the coming election you will cast your first presidential vote and asking for some good reasons why you should vote the Republican ticket has been referred to me for answer.

The reasons are many and strong why you should "start right" by voting the Republican ticket, yet it is impossible within the limits of an ordinary letter to state even briefly all of them. Here are a few of them:

First.—You should vote the Republican ticket because the record of that party for the fifty years of its existence has been so uniformly honorable and consistent that it is today a crown of glory to every man to say that he was one of its founders and has continued to act with it to this day. It is a privilege to any young man to come into such an inheritance. No other party has existed in our country for that length of time but its honorable members have at some time or other been obliged to admit that its principles were vicious and its candidates unworthy of their support.

Second.—You should vote the Republican ticket because that party was organized to make this the land of free men, free soil and free speech. Having accomplished its purpose, it is the party best fitted to preserve them.

Third.—You should vote the Republican ticket because the party is opposed to free trade and free silver and has consistently stood for protection to both labor and capital.

Fourth.—You should vote the Republican ticket because a man is known by the company he keeps, and no man is in bad company who is a member of the party of Fremont and Lincoln and Grant and McKinley and Roosevelt. All good men are not Republicans, nor are all Republicans good men, but the vast majority of Republicans are men of good repute. Look about in your own community and see whether this it not true.

Fifth.—You should vote the Republican ticket because its candidates now, as in the past, are honest, able and courageous men. As has been said, what more could any mother and father ask than that their son should follow the same high ideals as Theodore Roosevelt has followed and live the same honorable, loyal, pure life as his has been?

Sixth.—You should vote the Republican ticket because that party is distinctly the young man's party, for its future offers so much of promise for the upbuilding of the honor and glory of our country. If you wish to take part in this work, if you like to be doing things, if you are progressive, if you are ambitious for your own betterment and that of your native land, if you wish the world to be better for your having lived, then you should line up with the Republican party. If, on the other hand, you are always looking backward, always carping at what others do and afraid of the future and fearful that our country may become too great, then there is no place in the Republican party for you.

Vote the Republican ticket from top to bottom, and then on election night when the returns are announced you can throw up your hat and say, "I helped win the day." Sincerely yours,

CHARLES H. DUELL.

Mr. Joseph L. Coleman, 23 Water Street, Newburg, N. Y.

Pure Buncombe.

[From the New York Tribune.]

The Democratic party's promise to enforce "economy in expenditures" and to return to "Jeffersonian simplicity in office" is the purest buncombe. It is a glittering generality, a mere rhetorical extravagance; it is a pledge impossible of fulfillment, a pledge nullified by contrary party pledges more binding because more specific. In the Democratic platform itself this conflict of professions is obvious and glaring. Vague exhortations to "economy" are [illegible] by an utter failure to [illegible] specific lines along which [illegible]

ROOT CALLS IT "OUTRAGE."

What Ex-Secretary Thinks of the Talk Against Higgins.

I think it is an outrage that so good a man as Lieutenant Governor Higgins should be subjected to the attacks made upon him and deprived of the support of many Republicans. The other day I took pains to look over the papers which were furnished to me relating to the one specific thing that is made the basis of special attacks upon him—that is, the $18,000 payment to the Furnaceville company—and when I read the papers I was amazed to see how thoughtless and baseless the attack upon him was.

I found thousands of Republicans, thousands of good thinking people, believed that Governor Higgins voted to pay this company eighteen thousand and odd dollars for excavation of rock when there was no rock excavated. I found the fact to be that the contract of the Furnaceville company provided that rocks should include hardpan, and that the engineers certified that there were eighteen thousand and odd cubic yards of hardpan excavated, and accordingly the payment was made for the hardpan according to the contract for rock.

That payment was made in 1898, years before Governor Higgins became a member of the canal board, and the question before the board of which he was a member was whether it should be taken from them or taken out of the company, charged back against them or taken out of the retained percentage to which they had become entitled by the closing up of the work. The production of the contract and the proof that the excavation of hardpan had been made, that they were entitled to be paid for it as long as it had been paid for according to the contract, settled the question.—Elihu Root to Union League Club.

FOR GOOD ROADS.

A Bond Issue For That Purpose to Be Voted On.

Among the constitutional amendments to be voted on this year is one that permits the contracting of a state debt for improvement of roads. The legislature may provide that counties should pay 35 per cent and towns 15 per cent of the cost of the highways to be constructed.

Both the Republican party platform and candidate for governor are pledged to good roads. The platform says:

> We reaffirm the position heretofore taken by the party in regard to good roads, for the construction of which the state has already paid or appropriated over $2,250,000.

Mr. Higgins in his speech of acceptance made this declaration on the subject:

> The Republican party, in its platform and by legislation, stands pledged to the policy of good roads. Sound public sentiment favors a continuance of this policy. By recent legislation the state contributes 50 cents to every dollar of cash expended by the different townships which have adopted the money system in the improvement of their highways. This statute insures to every locality choosing to take advantage of its provisions practical and substantial state aid, thereby distributing the benefits of state assistance equally to all parts of the state. The Republican party takes no backward step upon the subject of good roads.

HIGGINS VOTED RIGHT.

His Record Wins Him the Support of the Commercial Travelers.

Commercial travelers as a body, without regard to party politics, advocate the election of Frank Wayland Higgins as governor. They hold Mr. Higgins in grateful remembrance for his votes while a state senator on two bills in which they were vitally interested. The commercial travelers made a united protest against the passage of the so called antiscalpers law which was framed for the purpose of prohibiting the sale of cut rate railroad tickets by scalpers in this state.

Mr. Higgins voted against this law, which is known as chapter 639 of the laws of 1901.

The other measure referred to is the mileage book law, chapter 1027 of the laws of 1895. Under its provisions railroads are compelled to issue mileage books good for 1,000 miles at a rate not exceeding 2 cents a mile. The enactment of this law was demanded by the commercial travelers of this state on the ground that it would be a great benefit to them.

Mr. Higgins was recorded in favor of the mileage book law by his vote.

THE SILENCE OF PARKER.

Judge Parker refuses to go on the stump. He will make no speeches at all.

No more letters of acceptance are to be written.

It is doubtful if he will find opportunity to even send another telegram.

And it begins to look as if people would never know whether he thought he was right or wrong when he voted for 16 to 1 in 1896 and 1900.

AGED MR. DAVIS.

Why should amazement be expressed at the blunders made by Henry G. Davis in his letter accepting the nomination for the vice presidency? The old man cited the last year of President Harrison's administration instead of the first year of Cleveland's regime for the purpose of contrast with the fiscal year 1904. Elihu Root called attention to Mr. Davis' advanced age weeks ago.

If you want the excise law repealed and a return to direct taxes you can get both by voting for Herrick.

COST OF PHILIPPINES

Grossly Exaggerated Statements Reiterated by Judge Parker In Recent Speech.

Shows Narrowness or Obstinacy In Repeating Previous Errors Officially Corrected.

[Washington Dispatch to the New York Tribune.]

The avidity with which Judge Parker and ex-Secretary Olney swallowed the statement that the Philippines had cost this country $650,000,000 and the pertinacity with which they cling to it after its falsity has been proved again and again are past the comprehension of persons in Washington who are familiar with the real conditions in the Philippines.

That the cost of the Philippines, including the $20,000,000 paid to Spain, amounted, up to May 1, 1902, to $189,000,000 has been established beyond dispute. No Democratic member of either house of congress has dared to challenge Secretary Root's statement to that effect. The cost to this country for the following year has been shown to be $3,080,000, and for the year just ended $2,100,000, a total of $194,180,000. That has been the actual cost of the Philippines up to June 30, 1904.

The statement Mr. Parker permitted himself to repeat when he declared that "over 200,000 lives have been sacrificed" is equally false. The total loss of life of American troops and Filipinos in the American army from all causes has amounted to 4,067 privates and 155 officers, a total of 4,222 men. Even adding to this number the loss of Filipino insurgents, a liberal estimate of which is less than 10,000, the grand total aggregates 14,000 against Mr. Parker's 200,000. Moreover, the totals here given include deaths from wounds, sickness, drowning and other accidents, and, an important contributory cause, the contagious diseases which, unrestrained, ravaged Americans and Filipinos when American occupation began. Only 126,000 American soldiers, all told, have been sent to the Philippines.

As an offset to this loss of life should be set the magnificent work of the army medical corps and of the health officers of the Philippine commission, whose unremitting efforts have stamped out the plague, reduced smallpox and other contagious diseases to a minimum and rendered the Philippines as healthful as Cuba.

That unintelligent campaign speakers should voice the extravagant charges of the partisan press without taking the trouble to investigate them may not be surprising, but that men of higher standing should reiterate them, especially in the face of the testimony of high minded and unimpeachable witnesses, is a source of amazement. The insular bureau points to the interview with the Most Rev. J. J. Harty, the Roman Catholic archbishop of Manila, cabled from the Philippines, as indisputable evidence of existing conditions in the Philippines. Archbishop Harty's testimony agrees with that of Dr. Brent, the Episcopal bishop of Manila, who is now in this country. The archbishop, after returning from an extended tour through the islands, declared his hope that Theodore Roosevelt would be elected president of the United States and said:

"I was impressed during my journeyings by the progress of American institutions among the masses of the people, the general happiness, the security of person and property and the supremacy of order and justice. I believe that under divine guidance the beneficent rule of America is destined ultimately to place the Christian Malay race on a moral and political plane that as yet has never been attained by an oriental people. This task that the Americans have assumed they cannot shirk or abandon. This work that Governor Taft so auspiciously began and that Governor Wright continues must be carried to a triumphant conclusion."

Archbishop Harty is eminently qualified to judge of the situation. In his nine months' residence at Manila he has held exhaustive conferences with the bishops and provincial priests. He has spent months living with the people, traveling practically alone and unguarded even in the remotest provinces, inspecting parishes and visiting the people in their homes. In some of the districts he visited it had been thirty years since a bishop had been there.

Nor is the testimony of these churchmen isolated. Every one who has had an opportunity to judge of conditions in the Philippines as they actually exist brings to Washington the same story of progress. The Philippine government is being judiciously administered, the people are prosperous, Christianity is thriving under the freedom of American policies, and the pernicious influence on a few excitable Filipinos of the false assertions of Democratic candidates and speakers is now the only menace to uninterrupted peace and prosperity in the Philippines.

A Menacing Threat.

[From the Louisville Herald.]

The Democracy, by denouncing protection as robbery, has put the workingman's full dinner pail, his home, his children's food, clothing and schooling, his wife and family's legitimate comforts in jeopardy. It menaces likewise the enterprise and profits of capital. It threatens a return of the stringency and stagnation of ten years ago.

LEGAL NOTICES.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage upon real property situated within the state of New York, whereby the power to sell has become operative, notice is hereby given that said mortgage, which is dated the 22d day of February, 1889, and is recorded in the office of the Clerk of the County of Oswego, at Oswego, N. Y., on the 23d day of February, 1889, at 9:20 o'clock a. m., in Liber 158 of mortgages at page 422, was given by John E. Cain and Hattie Cain, his wife, mortgagors to Orlando Howell, mortgagee, and the name of each assignee of said mortgage is as follows: 1st assignee, Fred O. Howell, 2d assignee, Maria A. Howell.

The sum claimed to be due upon the said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is sixteen hundred seventy-five dollars and forty-one cents, which is the whole amount secured by said mortgage.

The following is a description of the mortgaged property, contained in the said mortgage:

"All That Tract or Parcel of Land, situate in the Town of Granby, County of Oswego and State of New York, and being on Lot No. 72 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is described as subdivision Number One of said Lot according to Peter Schenck's map, made from his survey & dated Sept. 26, 1839, and is bounded on the N. & W. by the N. & W. lines of said lot; on the S. by the State Road running E. & W. through said lot & on the East by Subdivision No. 2 containing 19 acres of land more or less.

"Also all that certain tract or parcel of land situate in the said Town of Granby, N. Y. & being a part of the State's 100 acres of land on lot No. 62 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is bounded as follows: Beginning at the S. E. Corner of said Lot 63 and running West 21 chains & 62 links; thence N. 11 chains & 56 links; thence E. 21 chains & 62 links to the east line of said Lot, thence S. 11 chains & 56 links, to the place of beginning. Containing twenty-five acres of land, more or less.

"Also all that certain other tract or parcel of land, situate in the Town of Granby, N. Y., and being a part of Lot 71 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby) is bounded as follows: Beginning in the East line of said Lot in the center of the Fulton & Hannibal Plank Road (so called); thence Northerly along the E. line of said lot 71 about 25 rods & 6 links to a stone wall intersecting said line of Lot 71 from the East; thence Westerly in a direct line with the center of said stone wall One Hundred four & one-half (104½) feet to a stone set in the Earth indicating said corner; thence Southerly parallel with the East line to the center of said highway; thence Easterly along said Highway to the place of beginning. Containing about one acre of land."

Pursuant to the power of sale contained therein, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the said mortgaged property, or a part thereof, at public auction, at the law offices of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton County of Oswego, New York, on the 29th day of October, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day.

Dated and subscribed at Fulton, N. Y., this 3d day of August, 1904.

Compliments For Heflin.

[From the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

In the north and west a person who would talk like this Alabama blatherskite would be locked up. Apparently he will be elected to congress in Alabama. Such a man as that ought to be put upon the stump in some of the northern states during the canvass to show a little of the temper of the men who are running Parker for office and who would control the Parker administration in the south if he should be elected. There is a candor about this Alabama anarchist which may arouse laughter in the north, but it will be necessary for the country to take such people into the account. An excellent way to deal with those advocates of assassination is to bury under an avalanche of votes the Parker ticket which they are trying to elect.

The Distant Stars.

Speaking roughly, we have reason from the data so far available, to believe that the stars of the Milky Way are situated at a distance between 100,000,000 and 200,000,000 times the distance from the sun. At distances less than this it seems likely that the stars are distributed through space with some approach to uniformity. We may state as a general conclusion indicated by several methods of making the estimate that nearly all the stars which we can see with our telescopes are contained within a sphere not likely to be much more than 200,000,000 times the distance of the sun.

Granting that all the stars we can see are contained within this limit, may there not be any number of stars without the limit which are invisible only because they are too far away to be seen?—Simon Newcomb in Harper's Magazine.

Too Easy Success.

Success in literature early in a writer's career is often a serious misfortune, writes Julius Chambers in the Pittsburg Dispatch. I distinctly recall a conversation with Frank R. Stockton regarding "The Lady or the Tiger?" that illustrates this point. "Never was I so near starvation since I began to write as after the publication of 'The Lady or the Tiger?'" said Mr. Stockton. "For nearly two years everything I offered for sale was sent back with the curt explanation that it did not compare with that story. 'The Lady or the Tiger?' was made a standard by which everything was judged. Prior to its publication I had trouble in selling my matter, and that very story had been offered to every publisher in New York before it was accepted."

A Very Remarkable Remedy.

"It is with a great deal of pleasure and satisfaction that I recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Druggist A. W. Sawtelle, of Hartford, Conn. "Recently a gentleman came into my store so overcome with colic pains that he sank at once to the floor. I gave him a dose of this remedy which helped him. I repeated the dose and in fifteen minutes he left my store smilingly informing me that he felt as well as ever." For sale by H. C. Geisler.

JUDGE PARKER REGISTERS.

He Wasn't Recognized Until He Gave His Name.

[From the New York Sun.]

Kingston, N. Y., Oct. 14.—A lone horseman rode into this city today and pulled up in front of the old pottery, where the registration board of the Third district of the Ninth ward was at work. A young member of the board looked up and asked:

"Do you want to register?"

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Your full name, please."

"Alton Brooks Parker."

The young registration official looked up again and glanced surreptitiously at a campaign lithograph of the Democratic candidate for president which was one of the few decorations of the old building. Apologetically he explained:

"You know we ask the question as a matter of form, judge."

The judge nodded, but his eye twinkled as he tumbled to the fact that the young man had failed to recognize him.

An Absurd Charge.

[From the Richmond Times-Dispatch, Dem.]

It is said that Mr. Roosevelt in a speech delivered before the New York Wool Exchange on Oct. 27, 1896, referred to the farmers as the "basest set in the land." This statement appears on a leaflet sent out by the national Democratic committee, but we wish to enter our protest against that sort of campaigning. It is very cheap and can do the party no good. More than that, no sane man believes that Mr. Roosevelt ever made such a remark in a public speech. He denies it, and the committee will do well to take him at his word and be done with such pitiful claptrap.

The Times-Dispatch is very anxious to see Mr. Roosevelt defeated, but it is unwilling to stoop to mud flinging. Let us have a clean campaign. Both the candidates are clean men, and there is no excuse for throwing dirt. If the Republicans wish to engage in it, let 'em. The Democrats cannot afford it.

Better Than Pills.

The question has been asked—In what way are Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets superior to the ordinary cathartic and liver pills? Our answer is—They are easier and more pleasant to take and their effect is so gentle and so agreeable that one hardly realizes that it is produced by a medicine. Then they not only move the bowels but improve the appetite and aid the digestion. For sale at 25 cents per bottle by H. C. Geisler.

By training, experience and proved efficiency Henry B. Van Alstyne, Republican candidate for state engineer and surveyor, is better qualified to fill that office than his opponent. His character, too, is above reproach.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol cures indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does not only cure indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy cures all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

No one who is acquainted with its good qualities can be surprised at the great popularity of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It not only cures colds and grip effectually and permanently, but prevents these diseases from resulting in pneumonia. It is also a certain cure for croup. Whooping cough is not dangerous when this remedy is given. It contains no opium nor other harmless substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. It is also pleasant to take. When all of these facts are taken into consideration it is not surprising that people in foreign lands, as well as at home, esteem this remedy very highly and very few are willing to take any other after having once used it. For sale by H. C. Geisler.

Books In Series.

While it is certainly a pretty sight to see a long row of books in a neat and uniform binding, like soldiers on parade, there is a distinct loss of individuality. As you glance over your books upon their shelves it is pleasant to recognize them from their outward dress. They keep themselves better in mind if each one is not exactly like its neighbors. You are even likely to forget what you have if you cannot know them from across the room.

We often go to the bookcase looking simply for "something to read," and then it is an advantage to know each book at the first glance. Of course this does not apply so strongly to the works of a single author. These belong in a uniform, and you know what is among them.—St. Nicholas.

ROOSEVELTISM—PARKERISM.

Some Comparisons Worth Considering.

"Rooseveltism" means—	"Parkerism" means—
National prestige unsullied.	Loss of national prestige.
Protection of all American rights at home and abroad.	Invasion of foreign cheap labor.
The constant expansion of American interests.	Loss of markets at home and abroad.
The safeguarding of American workingmen.	Diminution of productive capacity.
Factories constantly in operation.	Loss of employment to labor.
Mills ceaselessly running.	Longer hours for less pay.
Protection against foreign cheap labor.	Idle workshops; closed mills.
Steady employment for all labor.	Empty dinner pails; innumerable soup houses.
Four years more of the full dinner pail.	Financial panics.
Opportunity for every workingman to own his own home.	Cheap money.
No sixty cent dollar.	Mortgaged homes of workingmen.
Peace, progress and prosperity.	Discontent and disaster.

Cause of Lockjaw.

Lockjaw, or tetanus, is caused by a bacillus or germ which exists plentifully in street dirt. It is inactive so long as exposed to the air, but when carried beneath the skin, as in the wounds caused by percussion caps or by rusty nails, and when the air is excluded, the germ is roused to activity and produces the most virulent poison known. These germs may be destroyed and all danger of lockjaw avoided by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely as soon as the injury is received. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and causes such injuries to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. It is for sale by H. C. Geisler.

Origin of Some Names.

Many religious sects are now known by what were originally nicknames. These epithets, coined in derision, have "appreciated" and grown into honorable epithets. "Methodism" was a nickname originally, an undergraduate nickname, applied to Wesley and his friends because they lived by rule and method. Every one knows what it is now. So people use the word "Quaker" without any contemptuous connotation, and even a word like "ranter" was on the way toward respectability when ranting seemed to fall out of fashion.

SHYLOCK

Shylock was the man who wanted a pound of human flesh. There are many Shylocks now, the convalescent, the consumptive, the sickly child, the pale young woman, all want human flesh and they can get it—take Scott's Emulsion.

Scott's Emulsion is flesh and blood, bone and muscle. It feeds the nerves, strengthens the digestive organs and they feed the whole body.

For nearly thirty years Scott's Emulsion has been the great giver of human flesh.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

Careful of Her Nose.

Many interesting stories of courtiers and favorites at the old French court are found in the memoirs of the Marquise de Crequy. She says that on certain solemn occasions kings of France wore ermine linings to their robes, but ermine became scarce, and she writes: "The anointing of Louis XV. was retarded some years for want of this fur for the court mantles, and at the coronation of Louis XIV. they actually used catskin." Superbly elegant was the Duchesse de la Ferte, who generally was carried around under a canopy. The marquise goes into ecstasies concerning this particular duchesse, whose eyes "had the most disdainful expression I ever saw, though they had a slight cast in them." But her supreme elegance can be appreciated when it is known "she never blew her nose for fear of spoiling her Greek contour, but dabbed it at intervals with a small square of cambric."

Many Mothers of a Like Opinion

Mrs. Pilmer, of Cordova, Iowa, says, "One of my children was subject to croup of a severe type, and the giving of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy promptly, always brought relief. Many mothers in this neighborhood think the same as I do about this remedy and want no other kind for their children." For sale by H. C. Geisler.

An Apt Retort.

In the biography of Dr. Hawtrey, a famous English schoolmaster, there is a description of his unkempt appearance, with a comment which has been greatly quoted. It is said that he was scolding for being late at morning lessons a boy, who replied that he had no time to dress. "But I can dress in time," said the doctor. "Yes," replied the boy, "but I wash."

Pill Pleasure.

If you ever took De Witt's Little Early Risers for billiousness or constipation you know what pill pleasure is. These famous little pills cleanse the liver and rid the system of all bile without producing unpleasant effects. They do not gripe, sicken or weaken, but pleasantly give tone and strength to the tissues and organs of the stomach, liver and bowels. Sold by H. C. Geisler and G. T. Boyington.

Great crowds have greeted Lieutenant Governor Higgins and Julius M. Mayer, candidate for attorney general, wherever they have spoken. Special interest has been manifested in Mr. Mayer, the opponent of John Cunneen who made so much noise at the beginning of the campaign, but whose batteries have been completely silenced. Mr. Mayer seems to have impressed the voters with the conviction that he is the right man for attorney general.

Can You Eat?

J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Criesman, Texas, says, "I could not eat because of a weak stomach. I lost all strength and ran down in weight. All that money could do was done, but all hope of recovery vanished. Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefitted me, and after taking four bottles, I am fully restored to my usual strength weight and health." Kodol Despepsia Cure digests what you eat and cures. Sold by H. C. Geisler and G. T. Boyington.

INDEPENDENTS FOR HIGGINS.

[From the New York Globe and Commercial Advertiser.]

Between Mr. Higgins and Judge Herrick no independent voter can hesitate for a moment. No independent newspaper is likely to say of Mr. Higgins what the Evening Post says of Judge Herrick, and surely none can say it truthfully. He is a man of unblemished character, of tried and trained ability in public office, and he has never been a party boss or in any manner implicated in the "disreputable arts" of politics. No fair minded person who has followed Mr. Higgins' career will say that, if elected governor, he will fail to be an able, upright and thoroughly just administrator of the affairs of the state.

One of Many.

H. A. Tisdale, of Summerton, S. C., suffered for twenty years with the Piles. Specialists were employed and many remedies used, but relief and permanent good was found only in the use of DeWitt's Witch Hasel Salve. This is only one of many, many cures that have been effected by this wonderful remedy. In buying Witch Hazel Salve it is only necessary to see that you get the genuine DeWitt's, made by E. C. DeWitt & Co., in Chicago, and a cure is certain. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cures all kinds of piles, cuts, burns, bruises, eczema, tetter, ring-worms, skin diseases, etc. Sold by H. C. Geisler and G. T. Boyington.

Absentmindedness No Crime.

Judge—Not guilty! Why, the policeman says he actually caught you with your hand in this man's pocket.

"Mebbe so, your honor. But once I had a coat of the same pattern, an' I'm a little absentminded at times. Fact, your honor."—New York Times.

Good For Children.

The pleasant to take and harmless One Minute Cough Cure gives instant relief in all cases of Cough, Croup and La Grippe because it does not pass immediately into the stomach, but takes effect right at the seat of the trouble. It draws out the inflammation, heals and soothes and cures permanently by enabling the lungs to contribute pure life-giving and life-sustaining oxygen to the blood and tissues. Sold by H. C. Giesler and G. T. Boyington.

Her Two Degrees.

"It was only two years ago that Mrs. Weddin took her B. A. at college, wasn't it?"

"Yes. Why?"

"She has just taken a higher degree—MA in the school of life."—Philadelphia Press.

DIZZINESS AND WEAK NERVES CURED.

Nothing Helped Until Dr. Kennedy's NEW Medicine, Cal-cura Solvent, Was Taken.

"I very much wish," writes Loretta J. Vail, of Hopewell Junction, N. Y., "that I might be able in a few lines, without putting myself forward, to let the people understand how valuable Cal-cura Solvent, the new medicine discovered by Dr. David Kennedy, is in cases of indigestion and the like ailments, which are so common among us. I suffered from a severe variety of liver complaint, with dizziness, numbness, and an exceedingly weak and excitable state of the nerves. I employed the best treatment within my reach, yet nothing really helped until I began to use Cal-cura Solvent, and that did." All druggists, $1.00.

TO THE PEOPLE OF FULTON: INTRODUCING

... WESTCOTT HEIGHTS ...

The ownership of Real Estate in a locality growing rapidly in population is an interesting proposition. Real Estate is the foundation of all wealth, the greatest fortunes of the world—the Astors were built up on Land Values. Senator Jones truthfully said, "The quickest, surest and safest road to wealth is in Real Estate investment.

Now Look at Syracuse

Population 1880, 52,000. Lots in our vicinity sold for $100.

Population 1890, 88,000. Lots in our vicinity sold for $500.

Population 1904, 120,000. Lots in our vicinity sold for $1,200 to $2,500.

Syracuse, the banner City of New York State in general, and WESTCOTT HEIGHTS the banner Section of Syracuse in particular, offers the best, safest, surest and quickest money making investment ever offered.

WESCOTT HEIGHTS is not OUTSIDE PROPERTY but INSIDE PROPERTY at slaughter prices—less even than outside prices.

BUY OUTSIDE PROPERTY and hold it until it becomes INSIDE PROPERTY

Right in the heart of the City, only a few steps from the University we are today selling large lots 40x132 feet, for only $200 to $400, and on the easiest of terms—only $10 down and $5 to $10 a month. Some of the wealthiest and best business men in Syracuse have purchased here. Lots immediately adjoining bring $1,600 and are no better than ours. Electric Cars, Paved Streets, Water, Sewer, Gas and all City Improvements. The handsomest dwellings in the entire city are all surrounding this property known as WESTCOTT HEIGHTS. Everybody says we are fools to sell so cheap—however we bought cheap and intend to sell cheap. We believe in quick sales and small profits—you reap the benefit. To advertise this property we have determined to make the following amazing proposition:

75 MAGNIFICENT UPRIGHT PIANOS TO BE GIVEN ABSOLUTELY FREE

While they last, one piano given away each day in the following manner: One Magnificent Mahogany Upright Piano—"Schirmer make"—given away each day to the first purchaser after 10 o'clock, a. m., of not less than two (2) lots. Twelve Pianos already given away to Syracuse people. The following are a few of them:

S. A. Safford, 212 Barrett Street;
Ernest Tichenor, 210 Ashworth place;
Mrs. Josephine Laager, 408 Westmoreland Avenue;
Mrs. Henry D. Wilkin, 111 Comstock Place;
Thomas Heaphy, 107 Granger street.

The above parties can inform you as to our square dealings and the beauty and rich tone of the pianos—sample of which can be seen at our office.

In order to give Fulton people the same opportunity we have given the people of Syracuse, we now announce a SPECIAL INVITATION to any parties desiring to profit by this unusual offer, to visit our property next Sunday. For this purpose our Agents will be at the Clark Hotel, Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings. Call and see them and arrange to visit this property next Sunday, or any day convenient.

Orders by mail accompanied by deposit to show good faith will be conscientiously executed by the undersigned in person, in case it is impossible to come down and with the understanding that if the selection is not satisfactory on seeing the Lots, exchange will be made for any Lots on the property remaining unsold or money refunded.

TRIBUTES TO JUDGE STOWELL FROM MEMBERS OF THE BAR

Attorneys Unite in Declaring Him to Be an Excellent Lawyer and an Impartial Judge.

[Oswego Times, Nov. 2.]

The Times to-day takes pleasure in laying before the people of Oswego City and County, interviews with leading attorneys of the county, endorsing the candidacy of the Hon. Merrick Stowell for County Judge. A perusal of the names shows that the members of the bar are practically united in their praise of Judge Stowell.

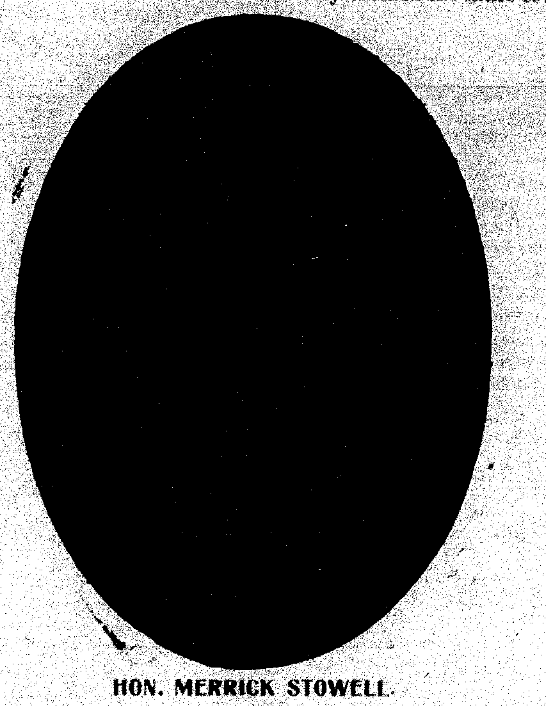
The eloquent tributes paid him completely disprove and expose the stories which are being maliciously circulated by political enemies that the lawyers of this city and county were against the re-election of Judge Stowell.

These baseless stories have been industriously circulated for the purpose of misleading citizens outside of the legal profession and making it appear that Judge Stowell was weak and unpopular with the members of his own profession. The attorneys whose statements are given below, besides praising Judge Stowell's exceptional ability as a lawyer, refer particularly, and in the strongest possible terms, to his fairness and rank as a judicial officer. All agree that he has never been influenced, either politically or otherwise, in rendering decisions.

These handsome expressions of praise and admiration, coming as they do from distinguished and honored members of the bar, old and young, should convince any honest, fair-minded and unprejudiced layman that the charge that Judge Stowell is a political judge is utterly false and unjust.

The combined and enthusiastic endorsement of Judge Stowell by fearless and independent attorneys who practice in County Court and at County Court Chambers, is the strongest proof of his fitness and the desire of the bar to have him continued in office. The names of several attorneys did not appear in the list, but they are going to vote for Judge Stowell just the same. On account of political reasons they did not care to be quoted.

The following interviews show the sentiment of members of the bar, and they should be read with interest by every voter in the entire county:



HON. MERRICK STOWELL.

Hon. Nevada N. Stranahan.

"The sentiment favoring non-partisanship in the judiciary of the State is a constantly growing one, and properly so. It, however, has found its best expression at all times in the continuance upon the bench of tried and able judges, so much so, that both parties have frequently united in renominating judges of experience and probity.

Judge Stowell has served continuously for upwards of twelve years on the Oswego County bench, and so far as I am informed, there has been no charge of partisanship against him in connection with his official acts.

If the Democracy of Oswego County and their allies in the Independent Judiciary League were anxious to promote the actual spirit of non-partisanship, they could have best done so by endorsing the nomination of Judge Stowell, but I fear this is not the actual purpose, but rather that it is an effort to injure the State and national tickets through spoiled ballots, as is invariably the case when voters attempt to split their ticket. No Republican should be misled by this ancient trick of the Democracy.

We have presented a ticket, from President to Coroner, which deserves the vote of every Republican.

The hearty support given by our best citizens to Judge Stowell's candidacy convinces me of his election by the usual satisfactory majority. I trust that it is hardly necessary to add that my vote and influence will be for the election of Judge Stowell."

P. W. Cullinan.

During the period while Judge Stowell has been County Judge I have yet to learn of any instance where justice has not been done or crime has gone unpunished. This is all that the terms of his official oath require, and the community has no right to expect more.

It was my pleasure to practice my profession in the same court where its presiding officers were Judges Whitney, Nutting and Wright, and it is no reflection on them to say that Judge Stowell's administration of the duties of the office is equal to the record of any of them.

Sheldon B. Mead.

"As an attorney, I have practiced before Judge Stowell during his term of office as County Judge, and I regard him as thoroughly competent and honest, and so far as my observation extends, he has discharged his duties without fear or favor. I shall support him and do all I can to promote his election. I regard the alleged independent movement as a device originated by David Bennett Hill, who hopes that an attempted split of tickets on the part of the Republican electors will cause a large number of votes to be lost to the State and National tickets. It is a poor time for Republicans to fail to support any candidate of their party."

S. Mortimer Coon.

"I have known Judge Stowell for 25 years and have been pretty well acquainted with his professional and judicial career. Our associations at times have been quite intimate. He is a man of much more than ordinary intellectual capacity and has much of the judicial make-up in his cast of mind. He is a very diligent student and during the time I have known him has seemed to make the most of his opportunities to grow in legal knowledge and intellectual development. He has the characteristics of a self-made man and one of those is always likely to be of continuous growth and development. In my judgment he is in every respect fully capable of filling the office of County Judge.

While my practice in County Court has not been large, but mainly in the Supreme Court, still occasionally I have business in the County Court. So far as my observation extends, and that coincides entirely with my experience, Judge Stowell has made an excellent County Judge and has been uniformly fair in his judicial decisions and in the treatment of the attorneys practicing before him. With his past experience he ought now to be better equipped than ever before to discharge the important duties of County Judge and I know of no reason why the people should not have confidence in his integrity and ability to abundantly meet the requirements of that high office."

Hon. H. L. Howe.

"I have known Judge Stowell for more than thirty years and have had more or less civil business with him. I have always found him very accommodating and ready to put himself out of the way to accommodate me as an attorney. I never knew him to do a dishonorable thing [illegible] he has tried to do his duty under [illegible] circumstances.

He has frequently put himself [illegible] of the way to accommodate [illegible] meeting me for the purpose of [illegible] ing orders or any matters I [illegible] get his attention on. The [illegible] lence of having a County [illegible] Oswego [illegible] importance of the [illegible] personally I should [illegible] like to have the office [illegible] Judge and County Judge [illegible] removed from the city of [illegible] have always considered Judge [illegible] fair and ready to listen and to [illegible] careful attention to every matter [illegible] have ever brought before him [illegible] cially which has been in accord with expressions I have heard from other members of the bar."

Elisha B. Powell

"It has chanced that I have had quite a practice in the County Court of Oswego County during the incumbency of Judge Stowell and I have always found him eminently fair, thoroughly qualified, well equipped, impartial and in every way conducting the business of the County Court to the entire satisfaction of any fair-minded man.

He has always been painstaking and careful, and a great student of the law. I know of no one in the county who would discharge the duties of the office of County Judge better than he."

Henry R. Carrier.

I have seen a great deal of Judge Stowell's work in the position of

NEXT TREASURER OSWEGO COUNTY

GEORGE W. BROOKER,

Republican Nominee for Mayor of Fulton.

George W. Brooker, the Republican nominee for Mayor of this city, is making new friends each day and strengthening the old ones. He is a plain, practical business man of unusual executive ability and fully merits and will receive the united support of his party. The Second Ward stands practically unanimous for him, and how one's neighbors feel is the surest index of a man's character. Mr. Brooker promises, if elected, to give the city a clean, business-like administration. None who have watched his career while serving as a member of the Common Council will doubt that he will keep the pledge given in every sense of the word. VOTE FOR MR. BROOKER.

HON. T. D. LEWIS,

Republican Nominee for Assembly, First District.

Thomas D. Lewis's superb record as representative from this district entitles him to re-election on Tuesday next. Party lines have been swept away as far as he is concerned, and he will be elected by a large majority. In his service to his constituents Mr. Lewis has had but one ambition—to protect and promote their interests, and he has succeeded so well that they are anxious to see him advance still higher in the ranks of his party. But for Mr. Lewis, Oswego County would have been ignored as far as the barge canal was concerned. This is but one of the many incidents recalled of Mr. Lewis's efforts in behalf of his constituency.

Voted For Harrison.

EDITOR TIMES: I have read in the Times about some old voters. I wish to say that I voted for William H. Harrison in Fulton in 1840, and have voted for every president since that time. Have always voted the Republican ticket and shall vote for Roosevelt and Higgins. If you have any older voter trot him out.

Respectfully,

HON. JOHN F. O'BRIEN.

Hon. John F. O'Brien, the present Secretary of State and a candidate for re-election on the Republican ticket, is President of the City National Bank of Plattsburg and has large business interests in Northern New York.

His honesty, sagacity and uprightness have been instrumental in securing his advancement in business and political life. Two years ago, Clinton, his home county, gave him 4,040 majority, a majority more than twice as large as had ever been given a candidate for any office in that county, indicating his popularity with those who know him best.

Under his administration, the affairs of the office of Secretary of State are conducted wisely and well.

The entire Republican ticket is clean from top to bottom and the people should see to it that every candidate is elected by a decisive majority.

HON. C. L. KNAPP.

[Washington Mirror, Oct. 24.]

Hon. Charles Luman Knapp, Member of Congress from the Twenty-eighth New York District, is prominent at the bar and in politics in that populous, romantic and fertile region in Northern New York. Educated at Lowville Academy and Rutgers College, New Jersey, graduating from the latter in 1869, he studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1873. Two years later he was elected from his district to the State Senate and served in that body during the years 1886 and 1887 on the committees on judiciary, railroads and miscellaneous corporations. He, also, was chairman of the committee on literature and public education. President Harrison appointed him Consul General to Montreal, Canada, in 1889, at which point he remained until September, 1893, when he resumed the practice of his profession in his native town. June 26, 1887, he married Sarah Dorrance, daughter of Hon. Daniel Dorrance, of Oneida Castle, New York. By reason of the conspicuous ability displayed by him in the exercise of the various duties reposed in him by the people of his district, he was elected to the Fifty-seventh Congress to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon. A. D. Shaw, and was re-elected to the Fifty-eighth Congress, receiving 25,396 votes to 14,883 cast for Frank Smith, Democrat, and 1,274 cast for Charles W. Richards, Prohibitionist. Mr. Knapp's committee assignments in the House are important ones. He is a member of the Committee on Elections No. 1, Committee on Indian Affairs, and also of that on Railways and Canals. He has displayed marked [illegible] the floor of the House and [illegible] is one of those members on which the speaker always relies in case of emergency. He is popular with his fellow members and is noted for his strict attention to his public duties. He has the confidence of President Roosevelt, as he had that of Presidents Harrison and McKinley, and it is more than probable that in due course of time he will be called to much higher positions by the people of his State and the nation at large than he has thus far held. Mr. Knapp's affable manners have made him quite a social favorite in Washington, but his naturally studious nature has prevented him from entering very seriously into the gaities of the national capital.

GOVERNOR WRIGHT'S answer to the Parker calumnies regarding the Philippines is doubly effective because Wright is a Democrat.

THE great asset of the Democratic politicians is destructive capacity. The chief asset of the Republicans is constructive capacity.

WILL any business man who recalls the financial disaster which followed the last time the Government was entrusted to the Democracy, care again to undertake the experiment?

IF President Roosevelt were the lover of strife that his opponents depict him to be, he would propose to King Edward that Great Britain and the United States undertake to discipline Russia for her careless use of firearms on the high seas.

THE money stock of the United States has increased in ten years from $1,600,000,000 to $2,500,000,000. But that is not the important point. The valuable feature of this increase is that every dollar of it is worth 100 cents. It is as good as gold.

SPEAKER CANNON says that the only danger to Republican success will be overconfidence. We doubt it. The Republicans of the country will not content themselves merely with Roosevelt's success. They will cast their ballots whether needed or not, just to strengthen his fine purpose by splendid popular support.

CANDIDATE PARKER recently charged that officers of the Government are now "practically chosen by a handful of corporate managers." The chief officers of the Government today are: Hay, Taft, Moody, Metcalf, Shaw, Wilson and Wynne. The men who have so obliged Mr. Parker in this campaign as to insure their becoming the officers of the Government, if he is elected, are: D. B. Hill, August Belmont, Delancey Nicoll, William F. Sheehan, Thomas Taggart, McCarren, et al. Which group do you believe would prove the most willing servants of the "corporate managers?"

SWINDLER IN SPAIN.

Postoffice Officials Investigating Fraud Practiced Upon Pennsylvanian.

In view of the recent exposure in The Times of the scheme concocted by Spanish swinders to defraud Mr George Emeny of this city, the following extract from a paper published in Scranton, Pa., will prove most interesting reading. The method is similar to the one employed in Mr. Emeny's case:

Altoona, Pa., Oct. 13.—It is believed that a big swindle has been unearthed and that its victims number hundreds. D. N. Burget, an aged and wealthy residents of Curryville, received a letter last June ostensibly written by a man named Martin at Valencia, Spain. Martin claimed to have married a relative of Burget's, who died leaving a daughter aged 17 years. The letter stated that Martin, being a Cuban revolutionist, was arrested when he went to Spain to reclaim his daughter and was sentenced to eight years in prison. His large fortune was concealed in England. He remembered that his wife had a relative named D. N. Burget at Curryville, Pa., and through "Father" Ponce of the prison he opened correspondence with Burget.

After exchanging several letters Martin was represented to have died. "Father" Ponce continued the correspondence and claimed Martin left a will, leaving $150,000 to his daughter and one-third that amount to Burget. Ponce wrote for money to pay Martin's court costs, and Burget sent $850 by registered letter. After it was received Burget received a cable dispatch requesting $150 more, which was also awarded. Burget's friends saw an account of a similar swindle and apprised him of it. The services of Altoona police and Washington postoffice officials were enlisted and an attempt is now being made to secure the arrest of "Father" Ponce.

A Professor in a Western college, while giving an examination in mythology in a country school, called up a bright looking girl and asked the following question, "Who was Ganymede?"

Promptly came the answer, "Ganymede was the son of Olynipus and an eagle."

The class teacher blushed for her pupil and exclaimed, "Why Elizabeth! where did you learn that?"

"Indeed it says so in the book," replied the girl.

The Professor then asked the girl to find the place and read the paragraph aloud, whereupon the class was both astonished and delighted to learn that Ganymede was borne to Olympus by an eagle.—Caroline Louderback, in November Lippincott's.

SUPREME COURT.

Howard vs. City of Fulton.

A verdict of $400 was entered against Fulton in the action brought against the city by James Howard, who sued to recover $5,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been sustained by falling from an ice wagon at the corner of Oneida and Fourth streets, as the wheel of the wagon slid off from the side of a temporary bridge erected by the city over a newly constructed crosswalk.

The city, the defendent in the action, claimed that they exercised all reasonable care and precaution in constructing the bridge and providing warnings for the persons using the streets while they were undergoing improvements. They contended that the plaintiff was careless and that the accident was due purely to his own negligence.

The plaintiff had three witnesses to prove that lanterns were not lit nor were any situated around the place of danger to warn people, and the defense had eight to prove there were lights lit and placed at convenient intervals as a warning. The court directed the jury that if they should find that the electric light and the lanterns were lit that they should render a verdict in favor of the defendent.

The action will probably be carried to the Appellate Division of the Supreme court on the grounds that the verdict is contrary to the weight of evidence, particularly in regard to the question of the lights having been lit. Attorney S. J. Kelly of Syracuse appeared for the plaintiff and Attorneys W. E. Hillick of Fulton and Theodore E. Hancock of Syracuse for the defendant.

Hunter Arms vs. Standard Life and Accident Insurance.

In the Supreme court at Oswego, Thursday morning, Judge Andrews granted a motion for non-suit in the case of the Hunter Arms Company of this city against the Standard Life and Accident Insurance Company. The action was brought to recover the amount of a judgment which the Hunter Arms Company paid Frank W. Schue who secured a verdict in the Supreme Court for $729.52 for injuries received as the result of an accident. The Hunter Company was insured against accidents in its works with the Standard Life and Accident Company to the amount of $2,500. The insurance Company claimed that the Hunter company did not give proper notice to them as soon as the accident occurred, and it was on this ground that the nonsuit was granted.

Review of Reviews for November.

A distinctive feature of the Review of Reviews for November is the series of sketches of men of the hour, including, besides an elaborate character study of the late Senator Hoar, by Talcott Williams, briefer articles on Mr. John Morley and Mr. James Bryce, who are now visiting the United States; on Commander Booth Tucker of the Salvation Army, whose work in America is just closing; on the late F. A. Bartholdi, the designer of the statue of "Liberty" in New York harbor; and on the late Lafcadio Hearn, the interpreter of Japan to the Western world. Mr. Herman Rosenthal writes on "Prince Mirsky, Russia's New Minister of the Interior," and Mr. W. T. Stead contributes an interesting character sketch of Lord Grey, the new Govenor-General of Canada. Mr. Stead's article is followed by two other Canadian papers of exceptional interest, "The Trend of Political affairs in Canada," apropos of the approaching elections, by Miss Agnes C. Laut, and "Western Canada in 1904," by Theodore M. Knappen. "Iowa's Campaign for Better Corn," by Prof. P. G. Holden, is a suggestive account of the work performed last spring by the so-called "Corn Gospel" trains. Mr. Edward A. Moseley, secretary of the Interstate Commerce Commission, contributes an authoritative article on American railroad accidents; their causes, and the means of securing greater safety in travel. Miss Florence E. Winslow reviews the work of the Episcopal Triennial Convention, which has just completed its session at Boston. "What the People Read in Hungary," is somewhat out-of-the-way subject of a paper by John Skotthy. The closing phases of the Presidential campaign, the developments in the Russo-Japanese war and other topics of the hour are discussed in the editorial department, "The Progress of the Word."

Cured of Backache.

Member of the Business Men's League and one of the best known business men in St. Louis, Mo. Read what Mr. Wand has to say about Dr. Fenner's Kidney and Backache Cure:

"I know what it is to be afflicted with backache and I sympathize with fellow sufferers. After swallowing various and frequent nauseating doses of this and that prescription I decided that if Dr. Fenner's Kidney and Backache Cure could not rid me of those backaches it at least would not do me any harm and I procured a bottle.

"Now the first bottle didn't stop those wearing backaches, but it did afford me great relief. The second bottle, however, did effectually put a stop to those racking backaches. Occasionally they returned when strenuous business affairs exhausted the physical forces, but a dose or two of Dr. Fenner's Cure gave instant relief.

FRANK W. HIGGINS.

The Republican Candidate—His Great Work in the Senate.

[Hon. John A. Sleicher in Leslie's Weekly, by permission.]

At the age of thirty-eight Senator Higgins received his first political office. A bitter feud had broken out among the Republicans in his senatorial district, and to settle it satisfactorily to all both sides tendered him a unanimous nomination. With great reluctance he accepted, and he was so popular with the people that he had a plurality of more than 8,000 votes over an opponent who had the united support of Democrats, Populists and Socialists.

Senator Higgins was renominated for three successive terms and re-elected by increased pluralities each time. His long continued training as a business man and banker has given him the keenest insight into the management of public departments. No political influence ever shook his determination to oppose what he believed to be a wrongful or unnecessary appropriation. Many of his associates on the finance committee recall the indignation with which their chairman expressed himself on more than one occasion when questionable appropriations were pressing for favor. In one notable instance—and there are many others—the disclosure that a combination had been formed by a speculative ring to buy a certain property intended for public purposes and to sell it to the state at a generous profit set Chairman Higgins irrevocably against the bill, although the proposition itself was meritorious. Out of this opposition on his part a local feeling against the lieutenant governor was created, but, satisfied with the rectitude of his purpose, he did not seek either to explain his action or to conciliate his opponents.

Two Notable Works.

The carefulness with which Senator Higgins attended to his public duties at Albany and the close scrutiny with which he examined legislative appropriations and state expenditures were evidenced notably by two bills introduced by him, both of which have become laws. It had been the custom of managers of state departments of some public institutions to make contracts in excess of legislative appropriations and then to ask for deficiency appropriation bills to cover the necessary additional amounts. Senator Higgins regarded this as a public abuse, for it had given rise to hints of public scandals. He introduced a bill making it a misdemeanor for any state officer to let a contract for an amount in excess of the legislative appropriation therefor. The practical value of this measure must be obvious. Many of the state departments and institutions are in receipt of fees and other payments, and these were formerly utilized to swell their balances and cover up extravagances. Senator Higgins regarded this as very loose and unbusinesslike, and accordingly he introduced a bill requiring that all receipts, from whatever source, of state departments, institutions or commissions must be paid into the state treasury and not paid out again except by legislative action. Under this law the state has been enabled for the first time in its history to know precisely the cost of each of its departments and institutions. Thus an end was put forever to one method by which official extravagance had been skillfully concealed.

The effort to abolish the direct state tax had the most earnest and practical support of Senator Higgins, and he aided most effectively in making it a success. Amid all the vexations and cares which have always made the chairmanship of the senate finance committee a very difficult place to fill Senator Higgins by his courtesy, his straightforwardness and his singleness of purpose has satisfied nearly every one with whom he has been brought into official contact. Even those who were disappointed have felt that he was guided by the purest motives and the most unselfish devotion to the interests of the state. His hand has always been set firmly against unnecessary and promiscuous legislation. He has introduced, as compared with other members, few bills. He believes that the statute books are incumbered with many unnecessary laws and that the tendency to indiscriminate legislation should be checked.

His Personality.

With a round head set on square shoulders, dark hair turning to gray, clear, bright brown eyes that look straight at you, Senator Higgins impresses the visitor as a clear headed, resolute man of courage and good purpose. He has a pleasant voice, is firm but not aggressive in speech and is a quiet and patient listener. He is a man whom one feels safe in doing business with, and impresses a stranger by his sincerity and modesty as well as by his firmness and decision. Among his friends and neighbors he is notably popular. The best evidence of this is the unanimity with which they give him their support at every election. He is deeply interested in philanthropic work and has been for years a trustee of the Chautauqua assembly, of the Western New York Home For Friendless and Dependent Children and of other benevolent enterprises. He is a vestryman of St. Stephen's Episcopal church of Olean and a generous and unostentatious contributor to deserving charities.

One of his warmest friends is President Roosevelt, who, while governor of the state, found a most conscientious and helpful adviser in Senator Higgins. The president was one of the first to congratulate the lieutenant governor on his nomination for the governorship and in his message from Washington paid him this high compliment: "I have never had the good fortune to be thrown with any public servant of higher integrity or of greater administrative ability."

CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS, 1904.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing amendment to article seven of the Constitution, relating to improvement of highways.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the seventh article of the Constitution be amended by adding thereto the following section: § 12. Improvement of Highways.—A debt or debts of the State may be authorized by law for the improvement of highways. Such highways shall be determined under general laws, which shall also provide for the equitable apportionment thereof among the counties. The aggregate of the debts authorized by this section shall not at any one time exceed the sum of fifty millions of dollars. The payment of the annual interest on such debt and the creation of a sinking fund of at least two per centum per annum to discharge the principal at maturity shall be provided by general laws whose force and effect shall not be diminished during the existence of any debt created thereunder. The legislature may by general laws require the county or town or both to pay to the sinking fund the proportionate part of the cost of any such highway within the boundaries of such county or town and the proportionate part of the interest thereon, but no county shall at any time for any highway be required to pay more than thirty-five hundredths of the cost of such highway, and no town more than fifteen hundredths. None of the provisions of the fourth section of this article shall apply to debts for the improvement of highways hereby authorized. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the Legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the Constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 1, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 2, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER TWO.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the constitution in relation to the time within which debts of the state must be paid and striking from said section certain limitations.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section four of article seven of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VII. § 4. Except the debts specified in sections two and three of this article, no debts shall be hereafter contracted by or in behalf of this state, unless such debt shall be authorized by a law for some single work or object, to be distinctly specified therein; and such law shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax to pay, and sufficient to pay, the interest on such debt as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal of such debt within fifty years from the time of the contracting thereof. No such law shall take effect until it shall, at a general election, have been submitted to the people, and have received a majority of all the votes cast for and against it at such election. On the final passage of such bill in either house of the legislature, the question shall be taken by ayes and noes, to be duly entered on the journals thereof, and shall be: "Shall this bill pass, and ought the same to receive the sanction of the people?" The legislature may at any time, after the approval of such law by the people, if no debt shall have been contracted in pursuance thereof, repeal the same; and may at any time, by law, forbid the contracting of any further debt or liability under such law; but the tax imposed by such act, in proportion to the debt and liability which may have been contracted, in pursuance of such law, shall remain in force and be irrepealable, and be annually collected, until the proceeds thereof shall have made the provision hereinbefore specified to pay and discharge the interest and principal of such debt and liability. The money arising from any loan or stock creating such debt or liability shall be applied to the work or object specified in the act authorizing such debt or liability, or for the payment of such debt or liability, and for no other purpose whatever. No such law shall be submitted to be voted on, within three months after its passage or at any general election when any other law, or any bill, shall be submitted to be voted for or against. The legislature may provide for the issue of bonds of the state to run for a period not exceeding fifty years in lieu of bonds heretofore authorized but not issued and shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax for the payment of the same as hereinbefore required. When any sinking fund created under this section shall equal in amount the debt for which it was created, no further direct tax shall be levied on account of said sinking fund and the legislature shall reduce the tax to an amount equal to the accruing interest on such debt. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 21, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 22, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER THREE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the constitution in relation to justices of the appellate division of the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section two of article six of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VI. § 2. The legislature shall divide the state into four judicial departments. The first department shall consist of the county of New York; the others shall be bounded by county lines, and be compact and equal in population as nearly as may be. Once every ten years the legislature may alter the judicial departments, but without increasing the number thereof. There shall be an appellate division of the supreme court, consisting of seven justices in the first department, and of five justices in each of the other departments. In each department four shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of three shall be necessary to a decision. No more than five justices shall sit in any case. From all the justices elected to the supreme court the governor shall designate those who shall constitute the appellate division in each department; and he shall designate the presiding justice thereof, who shall act as such during his term of office, and shall be a resident of the department. The other justices shall be designated for terms of five years or the unexpired portions of their respective terms of office, if less than five years. From time to time as the terms of such designations expire, or vacancies occur, he shall make new designations. A majority of the justices so designated to sit in the appellate division, in each department shall be residents of the department. He may also make temporary designations in case of the absence or inability to act of any justice in the appellate division, or in case the presiding justice of any appellate division shall certify to him that one or more additional justices are needed for the speedy disposition of the business before it. Whenever the appellate division in any department shall be unable to dispose of its business within a reasonable time, a majority of the presiding justices of the several departments at a meeting called by the presiding justice of the department in arrears may transfer any pending appeals from such department to any other department for hearing and determination. No justice of the appellate division shall, within the department to which he may be designated to perform the duties of an appellate justice, exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court, other than those of a justice out of court, and those pertaining to the appellate division, or to the hearing and decision of motions submitted by consent of counsel, but any such justice, when not actually engaged in performing the duties of such appellate justice in the department to which he is designated, may hold any term of the supreme court and exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court in any county or judicial district in any other department of the state. From and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, the appellate division shall have the jurisdiction now exercised by the supreme court at its general terms and by the general terms of the court of common pleas for the city and county of New York, the superior court of the city of New York, the superior court of Buffalo and the city of Brooklyn, and such additional jurisdiction as may be conferred by the legislature. It shall have power to appoint and remove a reporter. The justices of the appellate division in each department shall have power to fix the times and places for holding special terms therein, and to assign the justices in the departments to hold such terms; and to make rules therefor. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 29, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 6, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FOUR.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to trial commissioners.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that section six of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 6. Circuit courts and courts of oyer and terminer are abolished from and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five. All their jurisdiction shall thereupon be vested in the supreme court, and all actions and proceedings then pending in such courts shall be transferred to the supreme court for hearing and determination. Any justice of the supreme court, except as otherwise provided in this article, may hold court in any county. Whenever and as often as the causes upon the trial term calendar of any county of this state, having a population according to the latest state enumeration of over five hundred thousand, shall have so accumulated that an unpreferred cause cannot be reached for trial in due course within one year after it has been placed upon the calendar, the appellate division of the department in which such county is embraced may, by a certificate signed by a majority of its members, certify the fact to the court of appeals, whereupon said court may by order authorize the appointment in said county of trial commissioners, stating in said order the number of commissioners to be appointed, and their terms of office, not exceeding six years. Such order shall be made in duplicate and one copy thereof filed in the office of the secretary of state, and one in the office of the clerk of the county in which said appointments are authorized. The appellate division of the department embracing said county shall thereupon appoint the number of trial commissioners authorized by said order, who must possess the qualifications required for a justice of the supreme court. They shall possess and exercise in the county for which they are appointed all the powers of a justice of the supreme court respecting the trial and disposition of causes upon said trial term calendar and the settlement of cases on appeal, but shall possess none of the powers of such a justice out of court or at special term. They may be removed in the same manner as is provided in case of a justice of said supreme court. They shall each receive an annual salary of twelve thousand dollars to be paid by the county for which they are appointed, and may not practice law. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 23, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 8, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FIVE.

Concurrent resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the constitution.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section seven of article seven be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Forest preserve.—The lands of the state, now owned or hereafter acquired, constituting the forest preserve as now fixed by law, shall be forever kept as wild forest lands, except as hereinafter provided. They shall not be leased, sold or exchanged, or be taken by any corporation, public or private, nor shall the timber thereon be sold, removed or destroyed. The legislature may authorize the removal of dead timber on burned areas so far as necessary for reforestation, through officers and employees of the state, but not by contract. The legislature may also authorize the sale of lands outside of the limits of the Adirondack park and the Catskill park as such parks are now established by law. The proceeds of such sales shall be set apart in a separate fund and used only for the purchase of lands in such parks. A violation of this section may be restrained at the suit of the people or with the consent of the supreme court on notice to the attorney-general at the suit of any citizen of the state. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 4, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 8, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State, at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section one of article two of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SIX.

Concurrent resolution, proposing amendment to section one of article two of the constitution relating to qualification of voters.

Resolved (if the senate concur), that section one of article two of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article II. Section 1. Qualification of voters.—Every male citizen of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a citizen for ninety days, and an inhabitant of this state one year next preceding an election, and for the last four months a resident of the county or of a city comprising more than one county, and for the last thirty days a resident of the election district in which he may offer his vote, shall be entitled to vote at such election in the election district of which he shall at the time be a resident, and not elsewhere, for all officers that now are or hereafter may be elective by the people, and upon all questions which may be submitted to the vote of the people, provided that in time of war no elector in the actual military service of the state, or of the United States, in the army or navy thereof, shall be deprived of his vote by reason of his absence from such election district; and the legislature shall have power to provide the manner in which and the time and place at which such absent electors may vote, and for the return and canvass of their votes in the election districts in which they respectively reside.

State of New York: In Assembly, Mar. 23, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section one of article two, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to sections one and seven of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SEVEN.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to article six of the constitution in relation to providing additional justices of the supreme court and judges of the court of appeals.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section one of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 1. Supreme court; court of appeals; how constituted; judicial districts.—The supreme court is continued with general jurisdiction in law and equity, subject to such appellate jurisdiction of the court of appeals as now is or may be prescribed by law not inconsistent with this article. The existing judicial districts of the state are continued until changed as hereinafter provided. The supreme court shall consist of the justices now in office, and of the judges transferred thereto by the fifth section of this article, all of whom shall continue to be justices of the supreme court during their respective terms, and of twelve additional justices who shall reside in and be chosen by the electors of, the several existing judicial districts, three in the first district, three in the second, and one in each of the other districts; and of their successors. The successors of said justices shall be chosen by the electors of their respective judicial districts. The legislature may alter the judicial districts once after every enumeration under the constitution, of the inhabitants of the state, and thereupon reapportion the justices to be thereafter elected in the districts so altered. The legislature may at any time, when it deems that the public interests requires it, increase the number of justices of the supreme court or of judges of the court of appeals as it sees fit, provided that the total number of judges of the court of appeals shall not exceed eleven, and provided also that any bill increasing the number of justices or judges as aforesaid shall receive the assent of two-thirds of the members elected to each branch of the legislature. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section seven of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Court of appeals.—The court of appeals is continued. It shall consist of the chief judge and associate judges now in office, and of such additional judges as the legislature may from time to time provide in accordance with section one of this article and as may be elected according to law, who shall hold their offices until the expiration of their respective terms, and of their successors, who shall be chosen by the electors of the state. The official terms of the chief judge and associate judges shall be fourteen years from and including the first day of January next after their election. The legislature may provide by law for the manner in which the court shall sit, whether in two divisions or one, and for the number of members of the court necessary to form a quorum in either instance and also for the number whose concurrence shall be necessary to a decision. The court shall have power to appoint and to remove its reporter, clerk and attendants. § 3. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 13, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to sections one and seven of article six, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER EIGHT.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That section six of article six of the constitution be amended by adding thereto the following: In any department in which supreme court commissioners have been appointed, the justices of the appellate division of the department, or a majority of them, are authorized from time to time to designate one or more of such supreme court commissioners to hold trial terms of the supreme court within such department and to [illegible] such [illegible]. A supreme court commissioner so designated shall have power to hold a trial term of the supreme court within said department and to perform the duties of a justice of the supreme court in the trial term to which he may be assigned. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, to be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 15, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

About These Prices!

The usual Democratic bugaboo about American manufactures being sold at lower prices abroad is again in full blast, but what of it? Admitting, for the sake of argument, the whole charge, what does it amount to? Who has suffered? Not the American wage earner, because there is no instance on record of any American manufacturer having asked his work people to accept less wages on that portion of his output which he is compelled to sell at lower prices abroad than at home because of the pauper paid labor made goods with which he has to compete in foreign countries. Inasmuch as the American wage earner has not suffered, it follows that neither the farmer, the storekeeper, the house owner nor any of those whose welfare depends on the wages of the wage earner have suffered.

Supposing, also for the sake of argument, that it was made compulsory by law, or even by tariff legislation, that nothing of American manufacture should be sold for more money at home than what could be got for it abroad, competing against the cheap labor referred to, what would be the result? Would not the American wage earner be obliged to accept lower wages not only on what of his make is sold abroad, but on all the output of his brain and hands? More than that, would he not see the call for his labor reduced, as it is notorious that goods made in cheap labor countries are offered and pushed for sale in the mighty market of the United States at even lower prices than in the country of their manufacture and other countries?

But, say the Democrats, the American people as a whole are suffering because an American sewing machine, for instance, has been or can be bought for less money in London than in New York. Presuming that to be so, what of it? The American workman who made that machine has been paid the same wages for making it as he was paid for making the one which was sold in New York. Consequently he has had money enough to buy his flour—a barrel instead of a pound, as in 1893-96—and the American farmer has thus been able to give his hard-working wife the money to buy a sewing machine and thus lighten her cares. Her purchase of that machine leaves room for another to be made, and the American sewing machine maker gets his wages over again. So it goes on, an endless chain, benefiting somebody as each and every link is paid out. What is true of the sewing machine is true of every other line of American manufactures which finds a market abroad. The larger our factory product the larger the weekly payroll and the larger demand in every line of American effort.

Freedom For Filipinos.

[From the Brooklyn Eagle, Dem.]

It is not wisdom to bring "freedom for the Filipinos" into the present campaign. The work now going on in the Philippines is such as to prepare the islanders for freedom. In time they will be able to govern themselves or at least to enjoy such autonomy as is permitted to Canada by England. But to abandon them to their own devices at this season would be to inaugurate among our eastern wards a reign of graft, corruption, mismanagement and anarchy. A few self seeking adventurers would control the islands, every district would be the scene of a revolution, industries would fail, all the corruptions and all the traditions of misgovernment established by the Spaniards would be revived, civil law would be replaced by martial and church law, education would cease and envoys would be sent by Europe to prepare the way for the annexation of the islands by more appreciative nations. That in the process of enlightening the barbarians of the east we have committed some barbarisms ourselves is not merely possible, but true, but the rudeness of a few soldiers and the baseness of a few adventurers are no test of governmental processes or purposes. Civilization proceeds in our own country despite the outbreaks of a few criminals and the dishonesty of a few politicians, and it will proceed and is proceeding in the Philippines. Conditions there—moral, industrial, sanitary and political—are improving, and it is much doubted if the masses would accept the sort of freedom they would be likely to "enjoy" under native government. Nobody clamors for the freedom of the Apaches.

The law requires that a ballot [illegible] be marked with a pencil having a [illegible] lead. The pencil which will be found in each voting booth should be used.

To vote a straight Republican ticket put an X mark inside the circle under the Republican emblem—a ballot box surmounted by an eagle.

Any other mark than the X used for the purpose of voting, or any erasure made on the ballot, makes it void, and no vote can be counted thereon.

If you tear or deface or wrongly mark your ballot return it and obtain another.

Many Republican voters walk into the election booths every year and think they are exercising their right of franchise. They mark their ballots in divers and sundry ways and after depositing them with the ballot clerk walk away in the belief that they have voted. In reality they disfranchise themselves by not marking their ballots properly. All voters who favor Roosevelt and prosperity should place just one X mark inside the circle under the eagle, as shown in the cut, and not touch the pencil to the ballot anywhere else. By so doing they will cast a vote which is certain to be counted for Roosevelt and the continuance of American prosperity and the entire Republican ticket.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

Our nation reaches another crisis on Tuesday, and it remains for the elector with his ballot to say under whose guidance it shall continue—Theodore Roosevelt's or Alton B. Parker's.

The electors are too "safe and sane" to permit a change in our national policy. When the ballots are counted next Tuesday it will be found that not a Republican on the list of nominees will be relegated to private life, and that for four years more, peace, prosperity and national growth will prevail throughout this country, from Maine to Manilla.

Vote the straight Republican ticket.

HONORABLE REFUTATION OF SLANDERS.

The New York Times, which has taken a most active part against the Republican nominees on State and National tickets, now confesses it was in error in its campaign of vilification and abuse against the Republican State administration. In a recent editorial it refuses to countenance any longer the slanders of the alleged "Furnaceville Contract" charges. It states:

"The Times is now convinced that these charges are not well founded, and in justice to Mr. Higgins it takes this occasion to say that the evidence does not warrant the belief that his motives were other than honest and quite compatible with a right view of public duty. The fact that The Times opposes Mr. Higgins candidacy and sincerely desires his defeat makes it the more willing to withdraw and abandon this baseless accusation."

Democratic Papers Endorse Roosevelt.

The Boston Pilot, of Boston, The Irish World and the Sunday Democrat, both published in New York City, vigorous Catholic papers, are urging the election of Theodore Roosevelt and Charles W. Fairbanks. The Sunday Democrat says it has never before supported a candidate who was not a Democrat but "believing that courage to carry out the constitution and laws of this country in a fearless and just manner should be recognized and appreciated, and feeling confident from his actions in the past that the interests of our people will best be served by his election, this journal has concluded to lend its support to Theodore Roosevelt for President of the United States."

"Theodore Roosevelt will be elected President in November. Of that fact we entertain neither doubt nor question. He deserves to be elected, and [illegible] American Democratic votes by thousands will be cast for him on [illegible] we have outlined. East and [illegible] North and South, but nowhere [illegible] large and surprising numbers [illegible] Empire State of New York."

TRIBUTES TO JUDGE STOWELL FROM MEMBERS OF THE BAR.

County Judge and I unhesitatingly say that he has made an admirable judge. He has been able, upright and impartial and conducted the court with great dignity and fairness and with courtesy to all. He is learned in the law, diligent and painstaking and with all these qualities, he is pre-eminently a man of good common sense, and fine judgment and endowed in a marked degree with the power of analyzing and getting at the real facts of the case. His years of service on the bench have given him great experience which is very valuable to the public. He is a man whose keen insight into human nature enables him in criminal matters, to discriminate between offenders and administer justice in a way to help the repentant law breaker to a better life, or to punish a hardened offender, as the best wishes of the people require.

Frederick G. Whitney.

The Hon. Merrick Stowell's long service as County Judge of this County has been uniformly characterized by a fearlessness, honesty and impartiality which commends him to the members of the bar and those who have transacted business in the County Court. His long judicial experience and eminent fitness and ability are a sufficient warrant for his re-election.

N. B. Smith.

Judge Stowell was renominated unanimously and with cordiality for the office of County Judge at the recent Republican County Convention. I never have heard it charged that his nomination was effected by unfair or corrupt methods and I know of no reason why he is not entitled to receive his full party vote. Since he has been County Judge I have practiced in both civil and criminal branches of the County Court and have found him to be fair in his rulings and in the disposition of cases submitted to him.

Irving G. Hubbs.

The Democratic party in its efforts to carry this State is making a desperate attempt to stir up dissension in the different strong Republican counties. The talk about an Independent Judiciary is the guise adopted in this county. I do not believe that the Republicans of this county will be caught with that kind of a bait. Hon. Merrick Stowell is entitled to the vote of every Republican. In my practice in County Court I have always found him to be a courteous, fair and honest judge and he should receive his full party vote.

Freelon J. Davis.

Both as a lawyer and public official I have had excellent opportunities to observe and know the judicial ability, character, and conduct of Judge Merrick Stowell during his long service on the County Bench, and I wish to say that his record has invariably been that of a wise and just judge and an honest man. He has acquired great familiarity with the law and practice of the court over which he presides, and possesses that intuitive knowledge of human nature and mature judgment which are the peculiarly essential qualifications of a judge, all of which especially fit him for the discharge of the important duties of the County Court.

I regard the aspersions against his candidacy for re-election at this time as wholly unfounded in fact, inspired by partisan and malicious motives and designed to throw dust in the eyes of the Republican voters, induce them to split and spoil their ballots, and thereby injure the whole Republican ticket.

B. E. Parkhurst.

In my practice in Oswego County Court and from personal observation I have found County Judge Merrick Stowell just and fair in all his acts. I have considered it the best policy when the people have a good judicial officer to retain him in that position as long as possible, and I see no reason to make a change at the present time and believe it to be to the best interest of all law-abiding citizens to support our present County Judge for re-election.

H. Louis Wallace.

During the past eight years I have had occasion to appear in my official capacity at every term of the Oswego County Court presided over by Hon. Merrick Stowell, Oswego County Judge.

Judge Stowell has at all times performed the duties of his office with ability, courtesy and absolute impartiality.

He has been unanimously renominated by the Republican party of this county for the office of county judge, and the faithful discharge of the duties of his office, together with his long and valuable service to the party, entitles him to the loyal support of every true Republican in the county.

Clayton I. Miller.

In my practice before Judge Stowell I have always found him absolutely impartial, courteous and kind. It is a fact well known to all members of the bar that substantially all matters arising in Oswego County, in reference to the sale of infant's real estate and the management of the estates of incompetents, come before the County Court. Judge Stowell is not only especially familiar with the practice in such proceedings, but always sees to it that every right of the infant or incompetent is safeguarded and their estates protected from waste. I heartily favor his re-election.

Captain Francis D. Culkin.

The Hon. Merrick Stowell, as County Judge of Oswego County, has conducted the affairs of that office with entire regard to the needs of the community and to those who are unfortunate enough to stumble in life's pathway. I have had many cases before him during my several years' career at the bar and I have ever found him beyond the reach of influence, political or social, where a real or confirmed criminal was up for trial. In conserving the safety of the public, Judge Stowell has always shown a degree of earnestness and judicial duty which no man can disprove. No lawyer who has practiced before Judge Stowell can deny this statement if he bases his denial on fact. None will except by reason of disappointed ambition or envy or some other sentiment.

Judge Stowell proved his civic bravery at the time of the great national crisis. In connection with the foregoing that fact should be sufficient to convince all citizens of his worth and devotion to duty as County Judge."

William B. Baker.

During the past eight years I have been personally acquainted with Judge Merrick Stowell and during that time I have had an excellent opportunity to observe him both as a lawyer and a citizen.

I regard him as an excellent lawyer, a capable, conscientious, impartial and industrious judge and under any and all circumstances an honest man. He posesses that rare qualification, a truly judicial temperament which with his extensive legal knowledge and wide experience eminently fits him to discharge with satisfaction all the duties of the high office of County Judge.

He is and always has been a loyal Republican, but in the discharge of his duties as County Judge he knows no party and in every case which comes before him he decides upon the merits without regard to who the persons interested may be.

The interests of those who in the future may come into our County Court can best be subserved by the re-election of Judge Merrick Stowell.

Louis W. Baker.

As an attorney and counselor at law, it has been my good fortune to practice before Judge Stowell in the County Court ever since he was elected judge, and I may be pardoned for being a little personal, when I say that my practice in the County Court has been as extensive as that of any other attorney in the county. I am therefore in a position to say that Judge Stowell has invariably been fair and impartial in the discharge of his judicial duties and has always exhibited those qualities that are most essential in making up the judicial character of any judge, to wit., ability, courtesy and patience.

Norman S. Bentley.

"I have practiced law in the city of Oswego during the past ten years. During that time I have appeared before the County Court on numerous occasions and before the County Judge at his Chambers and have always found Judge Stowell very courteous, painstaking and strictly fair and impartial both in his treatment of myself and opposing attorneys."

Elias H. Foley.

"During my practice in County Court and its Chambers I have always found Judge Stowell strictly fair in the discharge of his judicial duties. I have had occasion to secure orders at Chambers and I have had some practice before him in criminal matters and so far as my experience goes I have always found him strictly impartial and careful in his decisions. In my opinion he has made an excellent official."

Harry Mizen.

"Although one of the younger members of the bar I have had some experience in County Court and at Chambers, and I never knew Judge Stowell to let any outside influence interfere with his judicial duties."

Don A. Colony.

As an attorney I have practiced before Judge Stowell and I consider him a careful, conservative and able judge, one who is not only impartial and fair but one who is ever kind and courteous to all persons who have business to transact with him.

He is worthy and well qualified for County Judge and has shown himself to be eminently fitted for the position and deserves the united support of all Republicans in Oswego County.

Roscoe Sargent.

As a lawyer I have practiced before Judge Merrick Stowell for six years past and have found him both competent and conscientious in the discharge of his judicial duties. Strict adherence to the fair treatment of litigants in his court and promotion of justice and equity have characterized his conduct; and I consider his record as a judge sufficient to commend him to the hearty support of the voters of the county.

Ezra A. Barnes.

"During my experience in County Court and at County Court chambers I have always found Judge Stowell fair and impartial. I never knew him to let politics interfere with his judicial duties. He has always been courteous and considerate."

Spencer Brownell.

During my practice of the law in the city of Oswego I have been before Judge Stowell on various occasions in both civil and criminal matters. I have invariably found him painstaking in arriving at the true facts of the matters before him for adjudication and his decisions of such matters has been fair and impartial.

David P. Morehouse.

Among all the members of the Oswego County bar, it may be said in closing, there is no more constant and strenuous advocate of Judge Stowell's re-election than Mr. D. P. Morehouse. In all of his numerous addresses he never failed to refer to Judge Stowell's admirable qualities — his all-round good citizenship, his excellence as a lawyer, his courtesy and impartiality on the bench and the patriotic spirit that led him, when the call of duty came, to put on the uniform of his country and give several years of his life to its service. Against such a record, Mr. Morehouse holds, as do thousands of others, that all the criticisms that can be justly leveled against Merrick Stowell—Merrick Stowell, student, teacher, soldier, good business man, good lawyer and just judge—weigh as but dust in the balance.

SECRETARY OF STATE.

Democratic and Republican Management Contrasted—The Office Shows a Surplus as Against a Deficit Under Democratic Control.

John F. O'Brien has "made good," as Secretary of State. In common with the other departments of the State government, this office under the present incumbent has been put on a business basis. Instead of the business being conducted in a slip-shod manner, it is now done on a system, with the result that a branch of the Government, which was a drag on the treasury, now turns a neat sum into the treasury annually.

From 1890 to 1893, the last four years the Democrats were in charge of the Secretary of State's office at Albany, the expenses of the office were $26,822.80 more than the entire fees received for that period, while during the past four years—1901 to 1904—under Republican rule, $100,907.00 was turned into the State Treasury in excess of all expenses; the above showing in connection with the fact that from April 19, 1811, to January 1st, 1894, 150 volumes of original business corporations were filed in the Secretary of State's office, while from January 1, 1894, to May 24, 1904, the number of original volumes of business corporations were 357, which is over 200 per cent. more business in that department than had been transacted in the 83 years previous to 1894.

At the close of the last Democratic administration in 1893, the work of recording was five years behind. There was no general index of records and papers of Land Department, which made searches difficult. Every year since 1894 has witnessed an increase in the efficiency of the affairs of the office. The credit system, by which fees due the office were annually lost to the State by failure of those receiving the credit to pay the same, has been abolished. This system was in entire violation of the law, as the statute prescribed what fees shall be charged and requires the Secretary of State to collect the same and turn them over to the State Treasurer. How well this has been done is indicated by the fact that $92,567.33 was turned into the State Treasury by the Secretary of State's office for the fiscal year ending the first of October, 1904, as against $47,013.46 for the last year of Democratic control.

Fulton Camera Club.

For the third time in the history of Fulton, an effort has been made to organize a camera club and this time the effort has been crowned with success. The promotors of the present effort are exceedingly enthusiastic and as there are many interested students of the fascinating art in this city, the club will undoubtedly be a permanent feature. The club will meet the second and last Tuesday in each mouth at the home of a member for the purpose of discussing matters pertaining to art. The officers are, President, Mr. J. J. Morrill; vice president, Dr. G. A. Guile; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. R. B. Hubbard.

If you are thinking of buying a watch, you should look over the immense stock at G. B. Farley's, 21 First street.

True Brothers, the progressive millers who conduct the Oswego River Mills, have recently added a new attrition grist mill to their well-equipped plant and are now better than ever prepared to grind corn, cob and all, if desired. Farmers should bear this fact in mind. It will be to their advantage to patronize True Brothers.

The members of the Nicotine club on Saturday received invitations from Mayor Foster to gather at his home, on Monday evening, "to watch the ghost walk." There was a "full house" at the time appointed and the guests proceeded in a dignified manner to celebrate the advent of one more Holloween. In bobbing for apples Mr. Frank Darrow excelled; Dr. Lake investigated the shadow which he saw over his left shoulder in the dark, and found it was a pumpkin pie; Mr. Newell Gilbert rendered the "Bedouin Love Song" in so charming a manner that the shades of night refused to permit the ghost to walk lest the timid be alarmed, and Mr. W. P. Hillick hypnotized the company so that they remained perfectly quiet while Mr. George Chauncey completed the narrative which he commenced several years ago. The guests repaired to their homes as the High school curfew bell struck 12, gratified that the happy privilege of being present at the celebration had been theirs.

F. P. Connell & Co.

F. P. Connell & Co., are now "at home" in their handsome new store, No. 109 Oneida street, and their friends are rapidly finding them. The block was purchased by Mr. Orrin Henderson, senior member of the firm, and it has been fitted up in the most modern manner; it fairly shines in its new paint, glass and large stock of new Fall goods. An especial feature is the carpet, cloak and fur rooms on the second floor which are reached by a wide stairway of easy ascent. This firm is prepared to do the largest business in their history this Fall and if convenient surroundings, obliging clerks, beautiful store and large and complete stock of goods will accomplish it, they will more than realize their ambition. The handsome electric sign on the front of the block tells the story by night, as do the handsome show windows by day.

The Times extend's greeting and bespeaks for the firm most liberal patronage.

HERRICK'S SLANDER OF ROOSEVELT.

Judge Herrick, the Democratic nominee for governor of New York, stood up at Plattsburg on Oct. 19th and most foully slandered the president of the United States. He declared that the Republican campaign managers were doing in effect the same thing that the police of New York city did under Devery when they collected blackmail from houses of ill repute and other unlawful sources as the price of violating the law, and then exclaimed:

So we have today the presidency of the United States in the market, open, to be paid for by protected monopolies and protected trusts. Those of you who approve that kind of business—if there are any American citizens who hold the presidency so lightly—then vote for Roosevelt. We want none of you.

The same thing is being done on a national scale, with millions at stake and the government of the United States at stake, as was done by the policemen and captains of the city of New York. Isn't it so? Doesn't it almost necessarily follow, as day follows night, that where there is necessity, the opportunity, the knowledge, the need of protection and the need of money, that the money will be given and the protection granted?

What do those Republican voters whom Herrick has been asking to support him for governor think of this? How do they like to see Roosevelt compared to Devery? How do they like to have Herrick say that if they wish to vote for Roosevelt he does not want their votes? Who is this Herrick who thus slanders Theodore Roosevelt? Here is what the newspapers of New York city that are supporting him for the governorship have had to say of him in the past:

The Sun, May 6, 1903: "The Hon. D. Cady Herrick of Albany, in politics a judge and on the bench a politician. * * * Any attentive friend of this desperate political operator might have warned him that if he openly committed the indecency of perverting his authority as judge of the supreme court * * * the press of the Empire State would condemn him as a disgrace to the judiciary."

The World, Sept. 20, 1904: "Herrick's warmest friends would not deny that he has damaged the reputation of the judiciary by his participation in practical politics."

The Times, Sept. 22, 1904: "He continued to take an active part in politics after he had become a judge of the supreme court in the Third judicial district. That was an impropriety; it was a scandal. It ought not to have been. For our part we shall not attempt to excuse or gloss over this part of the candidate's career."

And this is the man who ventures to slander Theodore Roosevelt, to call him a blackmailer and to spurn the votes of all Republicans who support Roosevelt. What sort of a Republican must that be who will consent to vote for this Democrat after such a revelation of his character as this and after his scurrilous assault upon the Republican president?

THE STATE CHARITIES.

Here Are Comparisons Which Herrick Asks—Does He Want More?

D. Cady Herrick has made the mistake of asking for comparisons between Republican and Democratic expenditures for maintaining the state charitable institutions. The record is open and is all in favor of Republican administration. The more people know of the facts the less likely they will be to vote to put Herrick and his supporters into control.

To begin with, it cost the state in round figures 60 per cent more to maintain its fifteen charitable institutions in 1903 than it cost to maintain the nine charitable institutions in 1893. This increase of 60 per cent in cost maintained an increase of 100 per cent in population.

This of itself shows a decided improvement in methods under Republican administration as compared with Democratic.

If Judge Herrick wants comparisons here are some which he has omitted to make:

In 1893, the last year of Democratic control in this state, all of the epileptics who were public charges were cared for as paupers in the county houses. Today New York state maintains one of the largest and best equipped institutions for epileptics in the world in Craig colony at Sonyea, which has a population of about 900 and which is being increased from year to year. Do the Democrats object to this expenditure, and is it their purpose to turn these unfortunates back into county almshouses?

In 1893 the state maintained two institutions for the care of the feeble minded with a total population of 841, a very large portion of the feeble minded being housed as paupers in county houses.

Today the state maintains three institutions for the feeble minded, which institutions had during the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1903, a total population of 1,629.

Does the Democratic candidate for governor desire to be understood as in favor of reversing this policy and turning these unfortunates back into almshouses?

In 1893 the state was caring for 864 old soldiers in the institution at Bath. Ten years later it cared for 1,685, and in addition to that number cared for 141 old soldiers and their wives, soldiers' widows, mothers and army nurses in the Women's Relief Corps home at Oxford, which was not in existence during the Democratic regime. These two institutions cost the state last year $248,802.

Does the Democratic candidate for governor wish to be understood as objecting to the care which the state is giving to the old soldiers?

In 1893 the state maintained one reformatory institution for women, with a population of 270. In 1903 the state maintained three reformatory institutions for women, with an aggregate population of 505.

Does the Democratic candidate for governor wish to be understood as objecting to the present policy of maintaining reformatories for women and favoring their incarceration in the common jails?

His opinion on this subject will be awaited with interest by a large and active body of philanthropists.

The Democratic candidate for governor professes dismay at present expenditures as compared with expenditures ten years ago under Democratic administration. In 1893 the state spent for the maintenance of its charitable institutions $878,204.12. This sum cared for 4,863 inmates at a per capita cost of $180.61.

In 1903 the state spent $1,365,556.51 for the maintenance of 8,350 inmates at a per capita cost of $163.54.

Had these 8,350 inmates been cared for at the Democratic per capita of $180.61 it would have cost the state $1,508,093.50, which is $142,536.99 more than it actually did cost under Republican administration.

Does the Democratic candidate for governor wish to be understood as favoring an administration of small accomplishment and large per capita rather than an administration of large accomplishment and small per capita?

Easy to Be an Expert Pistol Shot.

"Any man with ordinary nerve can become a fair shot with a revolver from the saddle with a few weeks' practice. I believe in a short time a man can become sufficiently expert to make 95 out of 100 shots," said a regular army officer.

"You see, it is all in learning when to shoot. The aiming is a small part of pistol and revolver shooting. The aiming is just like pointing your finger. A man can naturally point his finger at an object accurately. If he can do that he can aim a gun by simply throwing it out in the same way. The reason an unpracticed marksman is no marksman at all is that he stops to aim and gets off the mark or becomes unsteady in pulling the trigger. He must learn his gun, so he will know just the exact instant when it goes off, just how much and how long a pull he must make to snap the trigger. When he learns so that it is second nature to shoot just as he points the gun, he will hit any ordinary mark within reasonable range."—Des Moines Register and Leader.

"Poor Pay, Good Tenant."

"It isn't always the tenant who pays his rent on the first of the month who is most desirable," said a householder the other day. "Your prompt tenant is likely to hold you his debtor for that virtue and feel perfectly free to ask for numerous improvements. My best paying property is leased to a man who is always two or three months behind in his rent. Of course I lose the interest on my money for that time, but that is all. In the three years in which he has rented of me he has not had the nerve to ask me even to paper a room for him. I haven't done it, either. In one instance he had some plumbing done at his own expense when he should have charged it to me. I am constantly afraid that he will get prosperous some day and want to pay me on time. Just as sure as he does I will have to spend several hundred dollars on the house."—New York Tribune.

"Knockout Drops" In a Ring.

"A knockout ring," said the detective. "Look at it well. It belonged to Jimmy the Kid. He was notorious."

The ring was of gold, and it contained a huge dark blue stone.

"Now, watch the stone," continued the detective. And he pressed with his thumb a spring, smaller than a pinhead, on the gold loop opposite the setting.

Instantly the middle of the stone slipped back like a sliding door, and out of the opening three or four drops of fluid fell. When the detective ceased to press the spring the stone closed up again.

"See how it works?" he said. "I sit with you, and there are two glasses of liquor before us. Talking away, I draw the hand with the ring on it across your glass, and with my thumb I press the spring. Then into your glass there falls enough chloral to put you out of business." — New York Press.

Happiness.

The secret of a happy life does not lie in the means and opportunities of indulging our weaknesses, but in knowing how to be content with what is reasonable, that time and strength may remain for the cultivation of our nobler nature.

Mothers Praise It.

Mothers everywhere praise One Minute Cough Cure for the sufferings it has relieved and the lives of their little ones it has saved. A certain cure for coughs, croup and whooping cough. A. L. Spafford, Postmaster, of Chester, Mich., says: "Our little girl was unconscious from strangulation during a sudden and terrible attack of croup. One Minute Cough Cure relieved and cured her and I cannot praise it too highly." One Minute Cough Cure relieves coughs, makes breathing easy, cuts out phlegm, draws out inflammation and removes every cause of a cough and strain on lungs. Sold by H. C. Giesler and G. T. Boyington.

Shipping an Elephant.

An elephant is without doubt the most difficult passenger to load of any in the world. It is rarely that the best of them can be induced to walk aboard a ship as did the traditional pair of elephants who boarded the ark. To overcome their objection they are usually first coaxed or forced to enter great wooden boxes, when they are securely fastened and the entire outfit is hoisted with a derrick to the level of the deck and swung aboard.

A Good Complexion.

Fabulous things have been said about Grant's smoking propensities. An Inheritance of Gestures.

A young man in crossing Chestnut street stumbled and immediately put his hand, palm outward, over his eyes.

"Why did you cover your eyes like that?" asked his companion.

"The gesture is an inheritance from my father," the young man replied. "My father in his boyhood was caught in a fire, and as the flames shot up into his face he put his left hand, palm outward, over his eyes, thus saving his sight. Afterward he would put his hand in that way over his eyes whenever he got any sudden shock or fright. I have done the same thing involuntarily all my life.

"Cases like mine are not uncommon," continued the young man. "There is a woman in Washington who never puts her right hand up to her head. Her mother broke her right arm early in life and couldn't raise it thereafter above her shoulder. The daughter can raise her own right arm, but she never does.

"A biologist had a goat that he kept chained to a pole. The chain galled the goat's left fore leg, and she limped on this leg slightly, so as to ease the chain's rubbing. In time she became a mother, and her offspring limped on its left fore leg all its life."—Baltimore Herald.

What Chemistry May Do.

It has been said that a century is the natural duration of the human body that it decays earlier because it does not receive proper care in health and disease. In regard to this latter, here is a suggestion from a man who protests against so much research in electricity to the neglect of chemistry. He says there are seventy-two elements of matter capable of entering into an infinity of combinations and concludes therefore "that a form of matter must be capable of existence, and must therefore be within the power of chemical research to discover and prepare, which will possess any assignable or conceivable potency or influence over any form or species of matter, dead or living." If this be true, then it is possible to chemistry to find substances which will neutralize all the poisons generated by disease germs and kill disease the moment it is discovered.—Exchange.

Like a Comet in the sky comes the star of health to the weak and weary despondent dyspeptic, curing all stomach troubles and digestive disorders.

This famous remedy does for the stomach that which it is unable to do for itself, even if but slightly disordered or overburdened.

Kodol supplies the natural juices of digestion and does the work of the stomach, relaxing the nervous tension, while the inflamed muscles and membranes of that organ are allowed to rest and heal. It cures indigestion, flatulence, palpitation of the heart, nervous dyspepsia and all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying and strengthening the glands, membranes of the stomach and digestive organs.

Artificial Eyes.

The trade in artificial eyes is extensive not only from the number of people who need them, but also from the fact that they only last for about a year in consequence of the action of the secretions of the eyes upon the enamel.

The process of manufacture involves eight distinct operations, which call into play considerable artistic ability and patient skill, and for this female workers seem specially adapted.

The enamel has first to be fused, then the globe is blown and colored, after which the shaping, tempering and polishing have to be attended to. The minutest details, even to the coral veins on the sclerotic coat and the broken colored iris, are so faithfully reproduced that the imitation can rarely be detected save in times of great emotion.—London Standard.

A Titled Dandy.

At the court of St. James in 1773 Lord Villiers appeared, according to a writer of that day, in a coat of "pale purple velvet, turned up with lemon color" and "embroidered all over with S's of pearl as big as peas, and in all the spaces little medallions in beaten gold—real solid—in various figures of Cupids and the like." In that day the dandies rouged and powdered and carried nosegays as big as cabbages. Walpole records an occasion in the house of commons when, to hasten the adjournment, some of the exquisites voted against their own opinions, "because the house was very hot and the young members thought it would melt their rouge and wither their nosegays."

A Heavy Load.

To lift that load off of the stomach take Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. It digests what you eat. Sour stomach, belching, gas on stomach and all disorders of the stomach that are curable, are instantly relieved and permanently cured by the use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. S. P. Storrs, a druggist at 297 Maine street, New Britain, Conn., says: "Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is giving such universal satisfaction and is so surely becoming the positive relief and subsequent cure for this distressing ailment, I feel that I am always sure to satisfy and gratify my customers by recommending it to them. I write this to show how well the remedy is spoken of here." Kodol Dyspepsia Cure was discovered after years of scientific experiments and will positively cure all stomach troubles. Sold by H. C. Giesler and G. T. Boyington.

"No" Is Unique.

"It seems odd that the English alphabet, out of which can be constructed several thousands of words, contains just one word formed by the letters in their present order," remarked the observant young man. "That word is 'No.' You can look the alphabet over, and you won't find any other combination of vowel and consonant characters that will form a word. The nearest approach is 'Ab,' which by straining a point might be considered an abbreviation of 'Abraham,' or 'Hi,' which might answer as short for 'Hiram.' But 'No,' one of the shortest words in the language, is the only bona fide word formed in the arrangement of the alphabet's twenty-six characters."—Philadelphia Record.

FROM SOUTH AFRICA.

New Way of Using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Mr. Arthur Chapman, writing from Durban, Natal, South Africa, says: "As a proof that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a cure suitable for old and young, I pen you the following: A neighbor of mine had a child just over two months old. It had a very bad cough and the parents did not know what to give it. I suggested that if they would get a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and put some upon the dummy teat the baby was sucking it would no doubt cure the child. This they did and brought about a quick relief and cured the baby." This remedy is for sale by H. C. Giesler.

Indian Mothers and Dolls.

When an Indian girl dies her mother often substitutes a doll for her lost little one. She fills the empty cradle with feathers, arranged in the form of the child, and carries this around with her wherever she goes, talking to it and caressing it as she would her loving child.

If she does not do this she ties in a tight bundle the toys, clothes and armlets which belonged to her little one and, fastening this to the cradle board, carries it as she had formerly done her child. The Ojibways call these "unlucky dolls," because they represent the dead.

The reason the Indian mother carries her "doll" in this pathetic way is because she thinks that the little dead child is too small to find its way to paradise. By substituting the doll it will help along until the dead baby has grown large enough to make its way to the spirit land alone. At least this is what the sad Indian mother believes.

Animal Arithmetic.

A certain Mr. Tinioffeff was the happy possessor of a dog that was able to calculate with precision. One day, having been fed a large platter of chicken bones, he found twenty-six left over when his appetite was satisfied. These he proceeded to bury carefully in different places, as all dogs do. The day following he dug up and ate twenty-five, went to sleep, suddenly woke up, apparently with something on his mind, hesitated a moment, dug up his twenty-sixth bone, ate it and went to sleep, this time soundly.

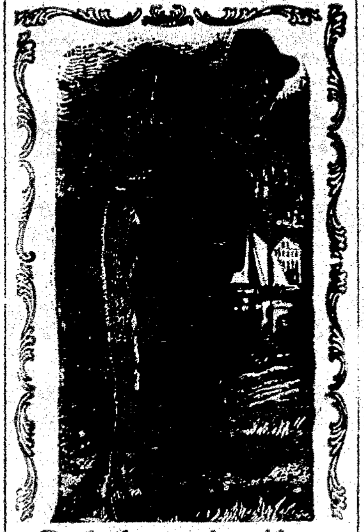
Birds count well. They usually know the number of eggs they are hatching. Here is something odd: A half tamed nightingale was always given three beetles as a sort of dessert. If he received but two he waited impatiently for the third. If three were given to him he ate them up and flew away without waiting for more.—Revue Rose.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is Pleasant to Take.

The finest quality of granulated loaf sugar is used in the manufacture of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and the roots used in its preparation give it flavor similar to maple syrup, making it quite pleasant to take. Mr. W. L. Roderick, of Poolesville, Md., in speaking of this remedy, says: "I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with my children for several years and can truthfully say it is the best preparation of the kind I know of. The children like to take it and it has no injurious after effect. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

The First Steamships.

The first steamship appeared on the Hudson in 1807 when Robert Fulton proved the possibility of steam navigation with the famous little Clermont. Ten years later the first steamboat appeared on the Ohio and Mississippi, and in 1827 the Chancellor Livingstone made her first run through Long Island sound from New York to Providence. In those days the ordinary steamboat was about as large as a good sized modern tugboat, and among them the Chancellor Livingstone, 157 feet long and 38 wide, was a veritable giant. All these vessels were propelled by paddle wheels.



Don't forget the old man with the fish on his back.

For nearly thirty years he has been traveling around the world, and is still traveling, bringing health and comfort wherever he goes.

To the consumptive he brings the strength and flesh he so much needs.

To all weak and sickly children he gives rich and strengthening food.

To thin and pale persons he gives new firm flesh and rich red blood.

Children who first saw the old man with the fish are now grown up and have children of their own.

He stands for Scott's Emulsion of pure cod liver oil—a delightful food and a natural tonic for children, for old folks and for all who need flesh and strength.

Took His Meals in His Cabin.

An Australian millionaire, Mr. James Tyson, left behind him when he died a fortune of £8,000,000. One of the many stories concerning him tells how on one occasion he was a passenger on a Queensland coasting steamer. As usual, when traveling he declined to undress at night and lay in his bunk fully clothed, boots and all. He had taken thither with him, moreover, three loaves of bread upon which to subsist for forty-eight hours in order to save the expense of meals. The stewards complained to the purser of the crumbs which the millionaire's methods caused in the cabin. But nothing would induce Tyson to eat his loaves elsewhere than in his bunk. Great was his rage when at the end of the voyage he was charged not only full rate, but one-fourth extra for having "taken his meals in his cabin."

A Japanese Hint.

The proverbial politeness of the Japanese has resulted in the development of a number of neat little customs. One of the best is the manner in which one hostess gets rid of an unwelcome guest. She does not hint that the time is about up for his stay or that she is going visiting soon, but sets to work preparing a dainty luncheon, which she packs in a little box, ties up with ribbon and paper and hands to the guest some morning. It isn't an insult, either; it's just a hint, and one that is always taken.

Chronic Diarrhoea Cured.

Mr. Walter Richardson, of Troutville, Va., had an attack of diarrhoea that came near ending his life. His physician had failed to relieve him and the disease had become chronic when he began using Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It soon cured him and he now recommends that preparation whenever an opportunity offers. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

A TRINITY OF EVILS.

Cured by Dr. Kennedy's NEW Medicine After Other Treatment Had Failed.

Mr. Martin Montgomery, of Silvara, Penn., formerly of Roxbury, N.Y., writing to Dr. David Kennedy, of Kennedy Row, said:

"Your new medicine, Cal-cura Solvent, is immense. It cured me of liver and kidney troubles, and rheumatism, after a lot of weary dosing with things that did no good. It is a record breaker and no mistake."

As in Mr. Montgomery's case, rheumatism is often, indeed almost always, complicated with kidney and liver trouble. It is because Cal-cura Solvent acts on the kidneys and liver and at the same time expels uric acid from the blood, that it is such a reliable remedy for rheumatism and the attendant disorders. It cures by removing the cause, therefore the cure is permanent, safe and sure. All druggists, $1.00.

DIED.

Oct. 28, at Niagara Falls, Frances Marie, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Wilson. Burial at St. Mary's cemetery, Niagara Falls, N. Y.

Mrs. Louisa Austin, aged 80, died at her home on Wednesday and the funeral services were held from the home of her son, Mr. Luther Barnes, in Palermo on Friday. Interment in Phoenix Cemetery.

On Sunday night Charles Wesley Brown, aged 71, died in this city after a long illness. The funeral services were held this Wednesday afternoon at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Larrabee, in Second street. Interment was made in Mt. Adnah.

Anna, wife of Lewis Lovine, died at her home one mile east of Palermo Centre on Saturday, at the age of 54. The remains were brought to this city and the funeral was held from No. 216 Seneca street on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment was made in Mt. Adnah.

William C. Spouenberg, aged 62, died at his farm near Ingalls Crossing on Friday, as the result of a fall from a hay loft in his barn at Gilberts Mills about ten days ago. His skull was fractured and he was unconscious when found and never regained consciousness. He was one of the best known and most highly respected residents of this vicinity and his sad and untimely death is a source of regret to all who knew him. The funeral services were held from his late home on Monday and interment was made in Mt. Adnah. The deceased is survived by his widow, three sons, Messrs. Ralph, Raymond and Glenn; a sister and a brother.

On Friday at her home in South Fifth street, Genevieve, wife of Mr. George W. Barnaskey, passed to rest after a two weeks illness, at the age of 36. The deceased had resided in this city nearly all her life and had a large circle of friends, all of whom sincerely regret her demise. Upon the husband and six little children, the youngest but two weeks old, the blow falls with crushing force. The funeral services were held on Monday morning from the late home, the Rev. A. H. Grant officiating. Interment was made in Mt. Adnah. Beside the husband and children, the deceased is survived by her mother, Mrs Angeline Piper, and three brothers, Messrs. Giles, Fred and Jay Piper of this city.

Joel P. Streeter, eldest son of Willard Streeter and Sally A. Rhodes, was born near Berlin, Rensselear County, N. Y., Oct. 16, 1825. When only sixteen years of age, his father's death left him to care for his mother and several younger brothers and sisters.

Soon after, he moved to Jefferson county and later to Scriba, Oswego County, where he married Adeline M. Johnson, by whom he had three children—Lewis Duane and Clarence W., of Fulton and Mrs. Carrie A. Davies of Bement, Ill.

In 1864, he enlisted in the 184th Regiment, serving his country until the close of the civil war. On returning from the army, he bought a farm in Volney, where his eldest son now resides.

In 1876, he moved to Fulton, where he has since resided. His wife died in 1885, and he afterward married Nettie A. Adams, who passed away in 1894, leaving one son, Joel Adams Streeter. All his children survive him.

At the early age of ten years, he gave his heart to Christ, Who became his constant companion, moulding his life and character.

He was very fond of music and taught singing school several Winters previous to his entering the army.

He was town Sunday school superintendent of Scriba and for a time every school house in the town had a Sunday school. He was also actively interested in the erection of the Mount Pleasant church.

Always a foe to the saloon; he felt for years that the only successful way to fight it was with the ballot, and loyalty to his convictions, made him an ardent supporter of the Prohibition party.

His last words were "It is well, I am ready to go" He fell asleep Nov. 1, 1904, to awake in Heaven.

He has been a member of the First Baptist church of Fulton for over twenty eight years. His funeral will be held from that church on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. X.

John C. Lang, aged 68, died at his home in this city on Thursday evening. The deceased had been in feeble health for some time, but had been enabled to attend to business up to within a week of the time the fatal summons came. Indeed, there was no apprehension of danger on the night in question, although he complained of a recurrence of a severe pain in the region of his heart and his wife hurriedly sent for the family physician. In a few moments, however, the patient peacefully passed away, apparently without a struggle. The deceased was born in Germany and came to this country when 9 years of age. Both Mr. and Mrs. Lang have been residents of Fulton for about thirty-five years and enjoyed the esteem and confidence of a large circle of friends. He was one of the oldest members of Neahtawanta Lodge, I. O. O. F. The funeral services were conducted at the late home on Sunday evening by the Rev. W. L. Sawtelle Appropriate music was rendered by a male quartette. There was an abundance of flowers, slight tokens of affectionate remembrance. A large delegation of friends and also of members of Neahtawanta Lodge were present. The remains were taken to Athens, N. Y., on Monday morning for interment in the family burial plot. Athens was Mrs. Lang's former home and is now the home of her brother and other relatives. Besides the widow, three daughter, Mrs. Hall of Mississippi, Mrs. Perine of Albany and Bertha of this city survive. A son died several years ago.

Card of Thanks.

Mrs. John C. Lang desires to return heartfelt thanks to the many friends and neighbors for the kind sympathy manifested during her sad bereavement in the loss of her beloved husband; also to the friends who sent flowers and the members of the male quartette for appropriate music rendered during the last solemn rites.

Card of Thanks.

Mrs. Austin Keller and family desire to thank the friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted them during their late bereavement, especially those who furnished the music and flowers.

MARRIED.

At the State Street M. E. church parsonage by the Rev. S. D. Robinson, Mr. William J. Hall of Fulton and Miss Nellie C. Alexander of Taberg, N. Y.

Miss Josephine Woodcock of this city and Mr. William Flack of Oswego were united in marriage in Oswego on Saturday evening, Oct. 29, by the Rev. T. B. Shepard.

On Saturday evening, Oct. 29, at the Adams House in Oswego, Mrs Dora Parmalee of this city and Mr. Edgar T. Munger of Tonawanda, were united in marriage by the Rev. T. B. Shepard.

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Quigg in West First street on Wednesday morning, Miss Ella Quigg and Mr. Vernon H. Austin were united in marriage by the Rev. W. G. Bassett The bride, who was dressed in brown velvet and carried bride's roses, was unattended. The home was prettily decorated with yellow chrysanthemums and presented a very pleasing appearance. After partaking of a wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Austin left for a bridal trip to Niagara Falls. They will make their future home in this city.

ANNUAL CONVENTION.

W. C. T. U. Held an Interesting Session at Pulaski and Elect Officers for the Ensuing Year.

The twenty-seventh annual convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Oswego County was held in the First M. E. church, Pulaski, on Thursday and Friday of last week.

There was a large attendance of delegates and visitors, nearly all of the nineteen unions in the county being represented.

An address of welcome was given by Miss Maude Guile, daughter of the Rev. Mr Guile, who was at one time pastor of the First M E. church of Fulton. A greeting from Mrs. Cora D. Graham, president of Onondaga County, was among the many pleasant features of the convention. Mrs. Graham also addressed the teachers of the village who attended in a body at 4 o'clock on Thursday afternoon. Her subject, "Scientific Temperance Instruction," was presented in an attractive manner, and those who listened to her must have felt that it is a privilege, rather than an unpleasant duty, to teach children the harmfulness of alcoholic beverages in every form. The president's address was replete with good suggestions and an inspiration to advance along all lines.

The address of the evening by Mrs. Susan S. Fessenden, ex-president of Massachusetts W. C. T. U., was one long to be remembered for its logical arguments. She held the close attention of her audience for over an hour and all agreed that Mrs. Fessenden would always be welcome in New York State.

Friday morning was devoted to reports of superintendents of various departments and showed that much work had been done during the year. Mrs. Fessenden is a parliamentarian, and her instructions were very helpful during the day. She has a class in the Massachusetts Senate and is thoroughly conversant with parliamentary usage.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. S. M. Barker, New Haven; first vice president, Miss Bertha Holdredge, Mexico; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Eugenie Graves, Mexico; recording secretary, Mrs. Helen W. Stebbens, Phoenix; treasurer, Mrs. Edna Moore, Fulton; secretary "Y" branch, Miss Hazel Gardner, Fulton; secretary L. T. L. branch, Mrs. Charles Kelley, Oswego.

Mrs. G. M. Gardenier of Oswego was made honorary president. The next convention will be held at Mexico, October, 1905.

Violent Death.

Track Walker Benjamin Rowe of Pennellville on Sunday morning early found the mangled remains of Charles O'Neil of this city on the O. & W. R. R. track at that place. The supposition is that O'Neil was riding on a through freight train and that he jumped when he reached Pennellville, falling under the wheels. The body was dreadfully mangled and death must have been instantaneous. Coroner Cusack was notified and after inspecting the remains he ordered them removed to the undertaking rooms of Brown & Hunter, from which the funeral services were held on Monday, the Rev. S. D. Robinson officiating. The deceased had been employed in Pennellville. His father, Mr. Daniel O'Neil, sister, Mrs. John Powers and brother, Robert O'Neil, all of this city, survive.

All Souls Sunday—Next Sunday is an anniversary peculiar to the Universalist interpretation of christianity, set apart long ago for a time of specia emphasis upon the distinguishing feature of its creed, "The Universal Fatherhood of God." It bears the title, "All Souls Sunday." This first Sunday of November will be observed with an appropriate service at 10:30.

The Sunday School meets during the noon hour.

The devotional meeting of the young people is held at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Subject, "Freely ye have received, freely give."

Oswego County Fruit Growers.

EDITOR TIMES: The next annual meeting of the Oswego County Fruit Growers will be held in Oswego, December 20, 1904.

Mr. T. B. Wilson of Ontario County a prominent apple grower and president of the New York State Fruit Growers' Association, will address the meeting. Now is the time to lay aside choice specimens for the exhibition that will be held in connection with the meeting. Two cash prizes of $4 and $2 are offered for the first and second best exhibits of apples grown in Oswego County. If possible each variety should contain ten or twelve specimens.

A collection to represent our Society will be made from the exhibits and sent to the meetings of the New York State Fruit Growers and the Western New York Horticultural Society, held in Geneva and Rochester respectively.

D. D. STONE,
President Oswego County Fruit Growers' Society.

Republican Flag Raising.

The Republican flag raising in the Sixth ward on Friday evening was attended by a large crowd. The Continental Drum and Bugle corps marched to the scene of the celebration at the head of a large throng and the following was the order of precedure: Mr. H. K. Burdick became chairman and the Campaign Glee club rendered two appropriate selections. Attorney W. S. Hillick addressed the assemblage at length on State and National issues and touched upon local and county affairs political. His address was greeted with cheers. The Glee club rendered a selection which was encored and they responded with a second stirring campaign song. A handsome Roosevelt and Fairbanks banner was then unfurled to the breeze amid hearty cheers and a salute by the Drum and Bugle corps.

The weather yesterday was all that could be desired. There was no confusion or boisterous talking on the street corners or elsewhere. All were intent on doing their duty. Not within the recollection of the oldest inhabitant was there manifested by the electors so much quietness and determination to register their mandate in favor of national prosperity. The people have again demonstrated that they are the sovereign judges without appeal; and they certainly discharged their duty with spirit and efficiency.

The people had studied well the issues at stake and when the time arrived to register their decision, they did it wisely and well. The Republican campaign in this city had been waged along educational lines, and the experiment proved the advantage to be gained by ignoring the opposition and taking the public into full confidence regarding the platform of the respective candidates. The east side papers endeavored to find out the whole truth and to give it to the electors without reservation. A potent factor in the campaign had been the ward meetings held at intervals during the past two weeks, in which the speakers who had been selected by Surrogate S. B. Mead—ignoring the opponents—dealt sledge-hammer blows in the interests of their own party candidates. In no other way could Mayor-elect G. W. Brooker have reached his whole constituency, regardless of party—and he won friends by every address. The Glee Club, the Continentals and Granby Escort with their drum and bugle and drum and fife corps added materially to inspiriting the electors by their own enthusiasm and tireless efforts. A monster mass meeting at the Opera House on Monday evening, with E. R. Redhead, Esq., as chairman, Mr. G. W. Brooker and Collector N. N. Stranahan of New York City, as speakers, and an interesting and instructive stereoptican lecture by Messrs. W. H. Selleck and W. W. Spencer, Jr., of Oswego, closed successfully a campaign in this city which had not been lacking in dramatic features.

New China Kiln.

Mrs. James Vincent has received a new, modern kiln for firing china and she is prepared to fire china painted by our residents who have heretofore been compelled to send their work out of town. She will also give instructions in china painting at her home, No. 113 Rochester street. Nothing makes a more desirable gift than a handsomely decorated piece of china, especially if the work be done by a friend, and it is with pleasure that our local amateur artists have learned of Mrs. Vincent's intention.

The Most Important Reason

why you should patronize the New York Central's Tenth Annual Boston excursion, is that it will allow you to spend Thanksgiving in New England. This one fact should be sufficient to induce you to make the trip. Tickets to Boston, Palmer, Worchester, Springfield or South Framingham will cost but $9.00 and will be good for ten days. Ask any New York Central Agent regarding time of trains, sleeping car reservations, etc. 11-23

MARRIED.

Mr. Edward True of this city and Miss Anna Bateman of Scriba, were united in marriage on Oct. 1, 1904. The young couple kept the marriage a secret until this week when it was announced. They are now receiving the congratulations of their friends.

Miss Nellie Scanlon and Mr. Harvey Baldwin were united in marriage at the parochial residence of the Rev. P. J. Kearney on Monday, Oct. 31. A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the brides' parents in South Granby. Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin left on the evening train for Corona, Cal., where they will make their future home.

DIED.

In Oswego on Nov. 6, occurred the death of Delight, widow of the late Hiram Mattoon, at the age of 74.

May, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mathew Patterson, died at their home in this city on Thursday.

John J. Grey, aged 26, died at the home of his mother, Mrs. Fanny Grey in Granby on Friday morning. The funeral services were held on Sunday from his late home, and interment was made at Lewis's Corners.

Anna, aged 30, wife of Mr. Lawrence Conley, died at her home near Hannibal on Sunday after a brief illness. The funeral was held from the Catholic church this Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock. Interment in St. Mary's.

Samuel Nichols, aged 75, known throughout this section of the State as "Captain" Nichols, died at his home in Mexico on Saturday after a lingering illness. The funeral services were held from his late home on Monday at 2:30 o'clock.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, It has pleased the Grand Master of the universe to remove by death from this community and this earthly Fraternity of the I. O. O. F., our friend and brother, Past Grand John C. Lang, and

Whereas, Brother Lang was a good citizen, a tender husband and father, one of the oldest, most earnest, untiring, unselfish and respected members of the Lodge, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we extend to the bereaved family of our deceased brother our heartfelt sympathy in this, their hour of affliction.

Resolved, That we as brothers and Odd Fellows, hold Brother Lang in tender remembrance; that our charter be draped in mourning for thirty days; that these resolutions be published in the local press and a copy thereof presented to the bereaved family.

Low Excursion Rates To St. Louis—Last Chance.

We would remind our readers that this is the last month of the great World's Fair at St. Louis. The Ontario & Western are still selling low-rate tickets to St. Louis and return. Coach excursion tickets, good for ten days, are sold on Wednesdays. This wonderful fair is fast approaching its close and your last chance to witness it is near at hand.

Art Works for Schools.

Miss Helen C Parmenter has selected the following art works for the Fulton schools. The funds for their purchase were the result of the art exhibit held last Spring and the proceeds have certainly been judiciously expended. The good, the true and the beautiful, alike exert an unconscious influence, and these works of art will for years to come influence the Misses and Masters who shall cross the thresholds of Fulton's educational institutions.

Singing boys, Della Robbig, bas relief.
Section of frieze from "Parthenon."

An earnest effort will soon be made to raise funds wherewith to purchase a large painting by Mr. Darwin Stiles, to make more complete the collection.

Since Miss Parmenter has been the drawing instructor in the schools in this city, the students have taken keen interest in this study and many very commendable pieces of work have been done by students not heretofore thought to possess the slightest artistic talent or taste. The competative exhibitions are awaited with interest by students and parents and improvement is noted with each exhibit. The annual art exhibits entail endless labor and thought on the part of Miss Parmenter and her effort in behalf of the schools should be, and is, appreciated.

STEPHENS OPERA HOUSE.

"The Game Keeper" redolent with the delightful odors and atmosphere of the Emerald Isle, and smirking of the Shamrock and blarney stone, comes to the Stephens Opera House on Thursday evening Nov. 10th. The stage settings are picturesque, the costumes bright and gay and the production in its entirely is remarkably strong. Thomas J. Smith the star of "The Game Keeper" is handsome and clever, his Irish wit never fails to score and his songs are decidedly pleasing. Two of the other powerful attractions of "The Game Keeper" are the wonderful child actress and Smith's thoroughbred setter, "Barney." The latter enters thoroughly into the work as if he understood every line and plays an important part in unmasking the villian.

Rowland and Clifford have surrounded Mr. Smith with a capable company, and a pleasing entertainment is the result. The male members are refined and artistic in manner, and the ladies are noted for their beauty and the way in which they dress and the gowns worn next Thursday evening will doubtless cause quite a flutter among the feminine portion of the audience. Prices 25, 35, 50 cents. Seats now on sale at Watson's.

Sudden Death.

Mrs. Lucetta Byrne who resided by herself in Hannibal, was found dead in her bed on Sunday morning by a neighbor who noticed that her curtains were not raised at the usual time. Coroner Vowinkle was called as soon as possible and he decided an inquest was unnecessary, as the deceased had previously sustained a stroke of paralysis and her death was unmistakable caused by a second stroke. Her son, Mr. Will Byrne, is a resident of this city. The funeral services were held from the Presbyterian church in Hannibal on Tuesday afternoon.

Thimble Party.

The ladies of the Universalist society and their friends are invited to enjoy a thimble party at the home of Mrs. Melvin F. Stephens, 211 Rochester street, Friday afternoon, this week, from 3 to 5 o'clock.

BRISTOL HILL.

The Ladies' Aid Society met with Mrs. Fred Sikes at Volney Center on Wednesday afternoon. The annual sale and supper held in Mr. Vanderburgh's new barn, was largely attended. About $75 was received.

Mrs. William Ingraham and Mrs. Herbert Burlingham, who have been on the sick list, are improving.

BAIRDS CORNERS.

Raymond Clute has gone to Troy for an indefinite stay.

Miss Lila Whitfield entertained about twenty of her friends on Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gaylord of Fulton spent Sunday with Mrs. Emma Teal.

They are still receiving apples at the evaporator at Lysander. It has made employment for people for about five weeks and will continue a week or two longer.

Thanksgiving Proclamations.

"It has pleased Almighty God to bring the American people in safety and honor through another year, and in accordance with the long unbroken custom handed down to us by our forefathers, the time has come when a special day shall be set apart in which to thank Him who holds all nations in the hollow of His hand for the mercies thus vouchsafed to us.

"During the century and a quarter of our national life we as a people have been blessed beyond all others, and for this we owe humble and heartfelt thanks to the Author of all blessings.

"The year that has closed has been one of peace within our own borders as well as between us and all other nations. The harvests have been abundant, and those who work, whether with hand or brain, are prospering greatly. Reward has waited upon honest effort. We have been enabled to do our duty to ourselves and to others. Never has there been a time when religious and charitable effort has been more evident. Much has been given to us and much will be expected from us.

"We speak of what has been done by this nation in no spirit of boastfulness or vainglory, but with full and reverent realization that our strength is as nothing unless we are helped from above. Hitherto we have been given the heart and the strength to do the tasks allotted to us as they severally arose.

"We are thankful for all that has been done for us in the past and we pray that in the future we may be strengthened in the unending struggle to do our duty fearlessly and honestly, with charity and good will, with respect for ourselves and love toward our fellowmen.

"In this great republic the effort to combine national strength with personal freedom is being tried on a scale more gigantic than ever before in the world's history. Our success will mean much, not only for ourselves, but for the future of all mankind; and every man or woman in our land should feel the grave responsibility resting upon him or her, for in the last analysis this success must depend upon the high average of our individual citizenship, upon the way in which each of us does his duty by himself and his neighbor.

"Now, therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, do hereby appoint and set apart Thursday, the twenty-fourth of this November, to be observed as a day of festival and thanksgiving by all the people of the United States at home or abroad, and do recommend that on that day they cease from their ordinary occupations and gather in their several places of worship or in their homes, devoutly to give thanks unto Almighty God, for the benefits he has conferred upon us as individuals and as a nation, and to beseech Him that in the future His devine favor may be continued to us.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the City of Washington, this first day of November in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four, and of the Independence of the United States the one hundred and twenty-ninth."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

By the President,

JOHN HAY, Secretary of State.

Have you a Tongue?

When you consult a physician, he first asks to see your tongue. It shows at a glance if you are billious, and if your stomach, liver and bowels are acting as they should. Save the expense of a physician, and send today to the Vernal Remedy Company, LeRoy, N. Y., and you will receive free of charge, a trial bottle of that wonderful household remedy, Vernal Palmettona (Palmetto Berry Wine) which will surely and quickly cure you of all diseases which are brought on by an unhealthy condition of the stomach, liver, kidneys and blood. Your druggist can supply you, but the proprietors wish to have every reader of The Times first try a bottle so as to become thoroughly convinced of the wonderful benefits to be received.

Voted for Lincoln.

EDITOR THE STANDARD UNION:—

I notice a call for names of Lincoln voters. I was an orderly sergeant in a company of wide awakes in Red Creek in 1860 and we had great times in Wayne County and vicinity making "sober" rail fences. In 1861 I enlisted in Company E. Twenty-fourth N. Y. Infantry, to help Uncle Abe through his trials. It was my luck to shake his hand and hear him talk and I was mighty glad I voted for him in 1860. In '64 again I helped in his election and was tickled over the result. Ever since then I have been a Republican and this Fall I urge all my friends to vote straight. As a friend of good government I am confident that our State nominees are all right. It would have pleased me if Woodruff had got the nomination, but I am heart and soul for the ticket, any way—no split. Yours truly.

PENNELLVILLE REPUBLICAN ENTERS PROTEST.

EDITOR TIMES: The date of my birth was March 9, 1833, or 71 years ago last March, and the place of my birth was Schroeppel. My first vote for president was for John Fremont, and I have voted for every Republican nominee since. In 1864 I voted by proxy, as I was in Virginia as one of Uncle Sam's boys; I fought four years to help save the Union which the Democratic party was trying so hard to destroy. I have never been a politician but have tried to keep myself informed as to the workings of both parties by reading the party papers of both sides, and so far have failed to find any party I can trust except the Republican party, and I shall if alive and able to reach the polls on Tuesday, vote the straight Republican ticket as I have done for 50 years. I believe in a pure judiciary—one that is not in any way biased by politics or other considerations—but is not the candidate of the Independent Judiciary League also the candidate of Hill and Bulger? And has not the League, assisted by the Democrats, used every means to compel Republicans to forsake Judge Stowell and vote for their candidate? No fair man can approve of such means to purify even so impure a thing as they claim the County Court of Oswego to be. A Republican who votes for principle, not men.

Syracuse University Notes.

The new dormitory, Haven Hall, is occupied this year for the first time. There were over two-hundred more applicants than could be accommodated. This is one of the most complete dormitories in the country. Great care has been taken to secure safety and sanitary conditions. The culinary department has been placed in the building by a hotel furnishing company and is thoroughly modern and complete.

Only Makes a Bad Matter Worse.

Perhaps you have never thought of it, but the fact must be apparent to every one that constipation is caused by a lack of water in the system, and the use of drastic cathartics like the old fashioned pills only makes a bad matter worse. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are much more mild and gentle in their effect, and when the proper dose is taken their action is so natural that one can hardly realize it is the effect of a medicine. Try a 25-cent bottle of them. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

"LeRoy Plows Turn the Earth."

Horses and men grow fat, their labor is pleasant and easy, and the results of the labor are highly satis factory, all because the farmer profited by the experience of his well satisfied neighbors and purchased a "LeRoy Plow." The draft is just right. The turn of the moldboard is found only on the "LeRoy" and is just right. If the "LeRoy Plows" are not all right they will not cost you a cent. Sold by E. Quirk, Fulton.

Interesting Meetings.

Of late the young people's meetings in the Universalist church at 5 o'clock, Sunday afternoons, have been especially helpful and interesting.

By way of illustrating the subjects, instrustive talks have been given by members of the society.

Miss Cora VanBuren gave a talk regarding her visit to California. She caused her listeners to see with her eyes the scenes of beauty which had been to her most impression.

On a recent Sunday afternoon, Mr. A. J. Snow talked of the wonders of the great Fair at St. Louis. The undivided attention of the listeners was given him, and it was an instructive hour. There will be more of them.

"Your Mother."

We have just received one of the most beautiful home songs that has of late come to this office. It is called "Your Mother", written by J T. Rider. This is a song that everybody ought to buy and everybody ought to sing.

CHORUS.

Why, your mother, your own mother,
Such affection could come from no other
In sunshine or rain, in pleasure or pain
The one you loved best was your mother.

MISS GEORGIANNA BISHOP.

New Woman Golf Champion of United States Is of Fine Physique.

Miss Georgianna Bishop, who recently won the title of woman golf champion of the United States, is a Bridgeport (Conn.) young woman and a member of the Brooklawn Country club of that city. The contest for the women's national golf championship took place over the links of the Merion

MISS GEORGIANNA BISHOP.

Cricket club of Philadelphia, and Miss Bishop won her honors by defeating Mrs. E. F. Sanford of the Essex County Country club of Orange, N. J., by 5 up and 3 to play. The survival of these two players formed an interesting climax to one of the most exciting tournaments ever held by the United States Golf association.

It was the third championship contest in which a married woman reached the finals. In 1896, at Morris county, Mrs. A. Turnure of Shinnecock was put out in the finals by Miss Beatrix Hoyt, and in 1899, at the Philadelphia Country club, Mrs. Caleb F. Fox of Huntington Valley lost by 2 up and 1 to play to Miss Underhill. In the recent tournament before reaching the finals Miss Bishop, after qualifying with an even 100, successively defeated her sister, Miss H. F. Bishop, and three other women, one of whom, Miss Frances C. Griscom of Philadelphia, was champion in 1899. At an early stage of the tournament Miss Bishop's leading opponent, Mrs. Sanford, defeated Miss Pauline Mackay of Oakley, Boston, victor over Miss Charlotte Dod, the British champion.

Miss Bishop has won her honors by careful, persistent work, critical study of her faults and analysis of the game. For several years the new champion has been well up in the game and has played with the foremost women golfers of the United States. She made her first effort for the championship in 1899 at the Philadelphia Country club. In 1902, coupled with Miss Jessie Howe, she defeated Miss Genevieve Hecker, then national champion, and Mrs. Manice, then champion of the Women's Metropolitan Golf association. She is of strong physique and genial temperament, well fitted to stand the physical and mental strain of a week's play. In a recent cup contest Miss Bishop was defeated for the first time this season by Miss Pauline Mackey.

rick David, and he is the eldest son of George Frederick Ernest Albert, prince of Wales and heir apparent. He was born at White Lodge June 23, 1894. His brother Albert is next to him in age and was born Dec. 14, 1895. The death of Prince Edward would make him heir presumptive. He was laden at his christening with the names Albert Frederick Arthur George, two less than his elder brother is forced to carry through life. The young Prince Edward, who would become heir apparent in case of the death of King Edward VII., is a promising lad who has already evinced a taste for military life and who is regarded as quite precocious.

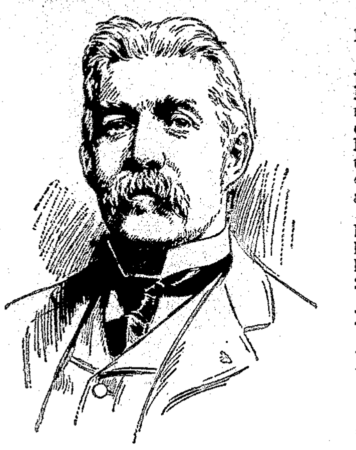
Lo-Co-Moter Ataxia. Now in Good Health.



Dr. M. M. Fenner, Fredonia, N. Y.

Dear Sir:—After a sickness of more than five years, I was tempted to try your Kidney and Backache Cure. In the mean time I had tried or been under, about 20 doctors care at the beginning of my trouble. It was thought to be only a local one, but as time wore on I became worse, so that at last I could not stand on my feet. Then my arms and hands became useless.

But at last after a very long time the use of both came back to me so that I could walk a little with the aid of crutches. The Doctors helped me to this point and no further, and for 2½ years I kept in the same condition.

Through the use of your Kidney and Backache Cure I am now in good health.

Will say, the doctors told me—all of them—that there was no cure for me, because I was then suffering from Lo-Co-Moter Ataxia.

I Remain yours Respectfully,

THIS is the day of the natural waisted woman. The W. B. Erect Form has changed the American figure. It has supplanted discomfort with ease—it has banished the impossible and exaggerated figure produced by the old corset idea. It removes the strain of lacing from the sensitive parts of the body and throws all pressure upon the hips and the strong back muscles, supporting the stomach within the corset and not forcing it below the garment. The Erect Form is made in more models than ever before. There are forty distinct styles of this popular make, each meant for a distinct type of woman. Dealers in all sized towns and cities the land over, sell the Erect Form. Prices range upward from $1.

THE BALTIC FLEET

STRENGTH OF THE SQUADRON WHICH ATTACKED BRITISH FISHERMEN.

It Numbers About Fifty Vessels and Includes Seven Battleships—How It Compares In Size With Three of Great Britain's Fleets.

Russia's second Pacific squadron, known as the Baltic fleet, in firing on fishermen peaceably pursuing their vocation but a short distance off the coast of Great Britain set all England aflame and seriously threatened the peace of Europe. The Japanese having either destroyed or rendered ineffective the Russian naval armament on the coast of Asia, the question arose whether the Baltic fleet, the sole remaining effective fleet of the czar, would be dispatched to the orient. There seemed at one time to be a difference of opinion among the advisers of the czar as to whether the situation would be improved by dispatching this fleet to the far east. At any rate, it set sail about two months ago from Cronstadt, it then being understood that the destination of the squadron was the orient. In chief command was Vice Admiral Rojestvensky, and the squadron commanders were Rear Admirals Enquist and Voelkersam. Although the departure from Cronstadt, at the head of the gulf of Finland, took place about two months ago, the fleet on Oct. 21 had only reached a point about 200 miles off Hull, on the eastern coast of England, and thus had proceeded but a small part of the 15,000 marine miles it must traverse to reach the Yellow sea. It was here that the attack on the fishing vessels occurred.

VICE ADMIRAL BERESFORD.

It is well known to all seamen that the North sea off the English coast is filled with fishing craft. The fishing industry is an important one, and it is estimated that close to 500 steam trawlers ply these waters engaged in taking fish. A recent estimate put the value of the annual product of the fleet at $13,000,000. The steam trawlers are a species of fishing vessel built in recent years, with hulls of steel and containing large refrigerating plants. They carry purse shaped nets with wide mouth, kept distended by a wooden spar, and are worked by powerful tackle and engines. Into these nets the fish are drawn by thousands. It was a fleet of these vessels upon which the Russian warships opened fire.

The Baltic fleet is an armada compared with which that sent by Philip of Spain against England was but an insignificant and harmless force. It is composed for the most part of splendid fighting machines, though the ability of officers and men in handling them remains to be tested. It is said that very few of the officers, engineers or men behind the guns have felt the shock and stress of a genuine naval battle. There are seven battleships, the tonnage of each ranging from 10,000 up to nearly 14,000. There are two armored cruisers, two protected cruisers of the first class, one of the second and three of the third. There are twelve destroyers in the fleet, of 350 tons each, with a speed of from twenty-six to twenty-seven knots. There are also nine auxiliary cruisers, a hospital ship, repair ships and colliers, the fleet comprising nearly fifty vessels.

A few facts about Vice Admiral Rojestvensky's flagship, the Kniaz Suvaroff, may be given to illustrate the character of the battleships in the fleet. The Suvaroff was built in 1902 and has a tonnage of 13,516. It has four twelve-inch breechloading guns, twelve six-inch quick firing guns, twenty twelve-pounder quick firing guns, twenty three-pounders and one one-pounder. The seven battleships cost an average of $6,500,000 each, or nearly $50,000,000 for this part of the fleet, the cost of all the vessels in the armada being placed at about $85,750,000.

Compared with the channel, Mediterranean and home squadrons of the British fleet, now practically surrounding it, the Baltic fleet is a mere pygmy. The channel squadron, under Vice Admiral Beresford ("Condor Charley"), consists of six battleships and six cruisers. The Mediterranean fleet, under Admiral Sir Compton Domvile, is composed of twelve battleships, fourteen cruisers and twenty-four torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers, and the home squadron numbers eight battleships and five cruisers, a total of twenty-six battleships and twenty-five cruisers, as opposed to the seven battleships and eight cruisers of the Baltic fleet. As senior naval lord of the admiralty, Admiral Sir John A. Fisher is the practical head of the British navy.

A HERO PRINCE.

General Fushimi, Who Will Be a Guest of the United States.

Lieutenant General Prince Sadanaru Fushimi, a distinguished representative of the Japanese nation, who is soon to land on American shores, is a nephew of the mikado, and he comes to the United States to visit the world's fair at St. Louis as the special representative of the emperor of Japan. The gallantry of the Japanese in the war with Russia is greatly admired in this country, and as Prince Fushimi comes direct from the battlefields of Manchuria and is himself a hero of one of the most daring and romantic episodes of the war, the assault and capture of Nanshan hill, he is a very interesting personage.

The emperor has sent him to the United States as a reward for his service, the emperor knowing that his physique is not adequate to the hardships of the campaign in Manchuria. The prince expressed a desire to remain with the army, but the emperor insisted on his coming to the United States.

General Fushimi ranks as senior imperial prince. He won his rank as lieutenant general by his exploits in the Chino-Japanese war. In the assault on Nanshan hill in the present war he commanded the first division of General Oku's army. Twelve hours of desperate fighting had failed to dislodge the Russians from their stronghold, and the Japanese had almost exhausted their ammunition. The officers then addressed their men and urged them to take the position at all costs. At the word of command General Fushimi's division advanced on the hill, jumped over the entanglements, rushed the enemy's guns and clambered over the lower intrenchments in the face of a terrific Russian fire. Other officers and their commands joined in, and the splendid rush carried the hill and won a most important victory.

HAS HAD UNIQUE CAREER.

Colonel John S. Mosby and His Friendship For Grant.

Colonel John S. Mosby, the famous Confederate cavalry raider, is almost as picturesque a figure now in his old age as when in his younger days his unexpected dashes and bold raids caused so much annoyance to the Union army. He is today a striking, white haired man, with a face like an old Roman. Though on the Confederate side during the civil war, Colonel Mosby has been an officeholder under administrations of Republican presidents. This comes about through his friendship for General Grant.

COLONEL JOHN S. MOSBY AS HE IS TODAY.

Colonel Mosby's head was in danger after the surrender of Lee's army. The secretary of war, Mr. Stanton, wanted him hanged. But General Grant, who could admire bravery, even in his most untiring foe, had permitted Mosby and his band to be included in the terms accorded Lee's regular forces. He insisted that he had given his word as a soldier in the matter.

Mosby never forgot Grant's action, and in the campaign of 1872, when Virginia, for the first time after the war, voted for president, he stumped the state for him, even though it meant political ostracism and the loss of his practice as a lawyer.

General Grant stood by those who stood by him, and at the close of his second administration he left a request to the incoming president, Mr. Hayes, that Mosby be made minister to China. Hayes honored the request. Mosby was later placed in the law department of the Southern Pacific railroad by Senator Stanford at the request of Grant. In McKinley's administration he was appointed a special agent of the United States land office.

Place Names In [illegible]

"Phonetic laxness" in the [illegible] place names is notorious in the [illegible] of England, writes a correspondent of the London Chronicle. Lancashire has a curt way of dealing with troublesome names. "After all," writes a correspondent, "there is an excuse for saying 'Oost'n' instead of Ulverston in these days of stress and hustle, and life is too short to say 'Little Urswick' when you can make yourself understood more easily by 'Liloeik.' In Cumberland I once asked the way to Aspatria. The native didn't understand for some time, when it suddenly dawned upon him that I meant 'Spethry.' Difficulties of pronunciation, however, present themselves to the Londoner much nearer home than Cumberland. In Essex for instance, I once asked a laborer if he could give me some rough idea as to how far St. Osyth was from any known outpost of civilization. He was a most intelligent fellow, for he had scratched his head only four minutes when he exclaimed, 'Oh, you mean Toosy!' I supposed I did."

Tribute to "The Thunderer."

In 1841 the London Times was instrumental in detecting and bringing to the light of day a far reaching scheme to defraud by forgery not only English bankers, but many prominent bankers of Europe. In an action at law brought against the Times the jury found the charge technically true, and a verdict of 1 farthing damages was given, but the judges refused costs.

As there had been enormous subscriptions to reimburse the Times its costs were set on foot at the Mansion House and throughout Europe. A goodly sum was raised, but the Times firmly refused to handle any portion of it, and it was devoted to scholarships bearing the name of the paper, to be held at Oxford, Cambridge and Christ's Hospital, while marble tablets commemorating the event were set up in the Royal Exchange and the Times office, a notable tribute to straightforward English journalism.

Henry Clay's Father.

John Clay, the father of Henry Clay, the distinguished statesman, was not only a Baptist, but a Baptist preacher. He resided most of his life in what is known as "the slashes" of Hanover, and his farm, on which he [illegible] for many years, is two or three miles from Ashland. Here his son Henry was born, and probably Porter Clay, who removed to Kentucky and became a distinguished Baptist minister. Robert B. Semple, in his "History of Virginia Baptists," says that the Black Creek Baptist church in Hanover county was originated by John Clay and that he was pastor of the Chickahominy church and did much missionary work in the region around.

He Wished For Her.

"You see," explained a young man as he showed a pretty girl the wishbone of a chicken at a picnic luncheon, "you hold here and I'll hold here. Then we must make a wish and pull, and, when it breaks, the one who has the bigger part of it will have his or her wish gratified." "But I don't know what to wish for," she protested. "Oh, you can think of something!" he said. "No, I can't," she replied. "I can't think of anything I want very much." "Well, I'll wish for you!" he exclaimed. "Will you really?" she asked. "Yes." "Well, then, there's no use troubling about the old bone," she interrupted, with a full smile. "You can have me!"

The Moorish Woman at Home.

When not fixed up for visitors the Moorish woman is always en dishabille, lounging about all day in a loose cotton or muslin nightgown, rose or yellow being her favorite shade, her bare feet thrust into slippers very much down at the heel and a flower stuck in her wisp of uncombed hair, which, from a continual use of henna dye, is apt to break out in patches of yellow, green or gray. Hairbrushes are unknown, a very coarse comb alone being used, which may account for the fact that the hair is never glossy or well kept. She has a devouring passion for paints, powders and perfumes, attar of roses and sandalwood being in special demand.—Pilgrim.

TRIUMPH OF REPUBLICAN PRINCIPLES.

The election returns indicate in a most emphatic manner that the people of this country are honest at heart and are blessed with a large endowment of common sense. If they are correctly informed they can be depended upon to vote right on any question of public policy. A review of the development and final disposition of any great question of public concern that has threatened the welfare or stability of the Republic has shown that while some danger has existed in the uninformed or minformed condition of the popular mind, yet as soon as correct information displaced ignorance, the question was permanently settled.

The experiment of a government by the people and for the people has been treated with suspicion by monarhial governments, because historians stated it lacked stability. The American people have proved that the stability of honesty and justice as the basis of the patriotism of the people, is superior the the stability of order arbitrarily enforced. When the people are sovereign, loyalty to self and loyalty to country are inseparable. Every man wishes his fellowmen to deal with him honestly, inteligently and justly. That is the reason why the majority of the electors of this country have determined to retain in office the Republican party in State, county and nation. They have a confidence born of experience that President Roosevelt and his advisors are sincere in their desire to administer the affairs of this nation in a manner that will insure confidence at home and respect abroad. When the sentiment of the people is for honesty the stability of the government is assured.

Common Council.

The Common Council held its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday evening, Nov. 1. The different municipal Boards submitted their estimates for the coming fiscal year as follows: Board of Public Works, $2,500; Board of Education, $25,000; Commissioner of Charities, $3,500.

City Clerk Hinsdale submitted a detailed statement of the several items of expense, as required by the city charter, as follows:

School fund	$25,000
Improvement fund	5,000
Public Works fund	2,500
Light fund	7,300
Sewer fund	1,000
Poor fund	3,000
Police fund	5,500
Fire fund	5,115
General city fund	7,000

Mr. Hinsdale also called attention to the fact that it will be necessary to provide for the city's share of the improvements to Third and Fourth streets, or $10,621 36, as is at present estimated. There will also be interest from Nov. 1, 1904, to Feb. 1, 1905.

The appropriations for the two districts of the city, as per Clerk Hinsdale's report follow:

Two town of Granby school bonds of $1,025 each	$2,050.00

Mr. Nicholas Lester, as Commander of Post Schenck, G A. R, submitted a letter stating that the Post intended to care for helpless soldiers and sailors and also the widows and children of the soldiers and sailors, and he estimated the probable cost for the coming year to be $700.

Bills were ordered paid from the Poor Fund, $50 13; from the City Fund, $652.30.

The Board of Fire and Police Commissioners handed in the following budgets of estimates for the next fiscal year:

Fire Department budget—
Eight paid firemen	$3,840
Fifteen call men	750
Salary of chief	200
Salary of assistant chief	100
Rent for west side house	225
Six new alarm boxes	800

Total	$12,415
Police Department budget—
Salary City Judge	$800
Salary Chief of Police	780
Salary six patrolmen	3,600
Salary janitor of jail.	150
Incidentals	170
Total	$3,500

Alderman Dilts, at the request of Mayor Foster, read a resume of the city affairs under its first administration and thanked the members of the different Boards for their courteous treatment and the hearty co-operation with him in the management of the matters which came under his jurisdiction.

The Board of Public Works reported that there only remained $60 uncollected assessments for paving, as their share to be collected, and the Council authorized the City Chamberlain to borrow $86.65 as the total amount uncollected from taxpayers and city.

City Attorney Hillick gave as his opinion regarding the power of the city to further bond that, under the clause in the State Constitution preventing cities from bonding to more than ten per cent. of their total assessed valuation, the City of Fulton is within that requirement, with a margin of about $30,100.

Board of Education.

At the regular monthly meeting, of the Board of Education, held last Friday, among the business of importance transacted was the appointment of a committee consisting of Messrs. Richard Carr and J. R. Sullivan on a readjustment of the insurance on the several school buildings, it being the judgment of the members of the Board that it was not sufficient. The committee was instructed to obtain necessary expert information regarding the value of the property with a view of insuring up to something like full value. It was also practically agreed to divide the business between the agencies of Whitaker & Lovejoy, Streeter & Platt, G. F. Schenck, F. G. Spencer and C. H. David.

Marching Clubs Appreciated.

The Oswego Times of Saturday evening said, "The Granby Escort, Captain George Symons, a well-drilled and fine looking organization, added to the fine appearance of last evening's parade. Oswegonians appreciate their action and will be always glad to welcome this organization especially during campaign times. The members present a fine appearance on parade and are a gentlemanly lot of young men. Captain Symons is an excellent drill master."

"The famous Continentals of Fulton, Captain Watson's crack organization, are also entitled to the thanks of Oswegonians for their part in the campaign. In their handsome uniforms and being well drilled they added greatly to the appearance of the parades and aided in stirring up enthusiasm. The Continentals have been coming to Oswego for several years and are always welcome."

HEENAN CLOAK CO.

The busiest shopping time of the year is here. The world discovers its most imperative wants in November, particularly when the cold snap gets in the air and Jack Frost makes his appearance. Nowadays a very ample portion of Syracuse ladies bring their wants to us. First, because our store is so conveniently situated—on or near car lines from everywhere. Second, because our stock of authoratative and exclusive styles in Suits, Cloaks, Waists, Skirts and Wrappers and Furs is so extensive, so broad, so satisfying, so excellent, so exhaustive and so fairly priced.

The newest authoratative style is always here first; the choicest, the most fashionable is always here first; the most decisive bargains come to us naturally, and so the public come. Last week was the busiest in our history.

The specials we offer for Friday and Saturday should, if posible, bring greater returns. Only twenty-one days to Thanksgiving; seven weeks to Christmas. Today is not one moment too soon to begin the shopping demanded by the two holidays that are hurrying towards us.

Water has been turned into the new ten-inch main in South Fourth street. This main extends from the junction of, First and Fourth streets to the Nestle Food Company's plant, a distance of about 2,000 feet, where it joins a 10-inch main previously laid, running north and south on Fourth street. The construction of the new main gives better water pressure and householders in South Fourth street will appreciate the fact. The expense of the improvement amounts to about $2,500.

Mexico Independent: The improvements on the island, near the mouth of Little Salmon River, near the burial spot of Silas Town, are nearly completed, and a lovely spot now meets the eye. It will be remembered he was a scout for Washington. Having been a frequent visitor on this island he selected this as his burial place. He was buried there in 1806. The tall forest trees of more than a century's growth now stand as sentinels around his lonely grave, and the decorative work of man tells how they would honor his works and his memory, even after nearly 100 years.

MEDAL OF HONOR MEN

VALIANT SOLDIERS TO MEET AND TALK THEIR BATTLES OVER.

History of the Legion Commanded by General O. O. Howard—How the Precious Medals Are Awarded—Mainly In the Possession of Privates.

The Medal of Honor legion, which meets in annual convention at Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 21 and 22, is a society composed of men who have received medals from congress in recognition of deeds of bravery on the battlefield. This medal conveys an honor upon its recipient similar to that of the Victoria cross of England, the iron cross of the German empire and the ribbon of the Legion of Honor of France. The badge always signifies that the wearer has performed some signal deed of courage. The nature of this deed and the date of its performance are inscribed upon the medal. It is not conferred simply on the ground of general meritorious behavior. The only exception to this rule which has occurred arose during the civil war, when quite a number of medals were awarded to the Twenty-seventh Maine infantry and to the soldiers who acted as the escort at the obsequies of President Lincoln. These medals were not issued in accordance with either the letter or spirit of the law and are known as blank medals.

Nearly 3,000,000 men were enrolled in the Union army and navy during the civil war, and less than 1,000 medals, duly and lawfully awarded, were conferred in consequence of deeds of bravery done in the course of that war. Some 225,000 men were enlisted in the army and navy during the Spanish war, and but twenty medals were awarded to participants in that contest. The question may be asked, "Why should so few medals be given when the number of brave men was so large?" The question is answered in the following extracts from the war department regulations governing such awards:

I. In order that the congressional medal of honor may be deserved, service must have been performed in action of such a conspicuous character as to clearly distinguish the man for gallantry and intrepidity above his comrades, service that involved extreme jeopardy of life or the performance of extraordinarily hazardous duty. Recommendations for the decoration will be judged by this standard of extraordinary merit, and incontestible proof of performance of the service will be exacted. II. Soldiers of the Union have ever displayed bravery in battle, else victories could not have been gained, but as courage and self sacrifice are the characteristics of every true soldier such a badge of distinction as the congressional medal is not to be expected as the reward of conduct that does not clearly distinguish the soldier above other men whose bravery and gallantry have been proved in battle.

Many officers of the American army and navy and veterans of the civil war whose names are widely known belong to the Medal of Honor legion. The bulk of the membership is made up, however, of men whose names are known only in the communities where they reside, but whose bravery proved of signal service to their country's cause. The order is made up of privates for the most part rather than generals and colonels.

The design of the congressional medal was adopted by congress in the early sixties. Later, when the G. A. R. was organized, it copied the shape of the medal, although the design of its badge and the ribbon attached are different. As it is somewhat difficult to distinguish between the G. A. R. badge and the congressional medal a new design for the latter has within the past year been adopted, and congress has made an appropriation sufficient to strike new medals. These will be issued to all who make application for them, the holders surrendering their old medals to the war department.

The Medal of Honor legion was organized April 23, 1890, at Washington. The present commander is General O. O. Howard of Vermont. The past commanders include M. A. Dillon of Washington, Frank M. Brown of Boston, General James R. O'Beirne, General Charles H. T. Collis, the late Hon. Amos J. Cummings, Hon. George W. Brush, Colonel Charles M. Betts, Major Moses Veale and General Daniel E. Sickles of New York, General Nelson A. Miles of Washington and General Theodore S. Peck of Vermont.

Major General O. O. Howard, commander of the legion, is a veteran of the Seminole war, the civil war and many Indian campaigns. He became a major general of the regular army in 1886 and was retired in 1894.

LITTLE MISS BROWN.

She Is the Favorite Granddaughter of Henry Gassaway Davis.

Henry Gassaway Davis, the Democratic vice presidential candidate, has many grandchildren, but little Miss Katharine Grace Davis Brown is said to be his favorite. Perhaps this is because her mother, who was Mr. Davis' daughter Kate, died not long ago.

The young miss, who is a very bright and lovable child, now makes her home with her aunt, Mrs. Arthur Lee, with whom the ex-senator has spent his
